OAS Aftermath Creates Crisis In Argentina

Military Chiefs Want Foreign Minister Fired

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—President Arturo Frondizi was reported under pressure today from the military chiefs of Argentina to break diplomatic relations with Cuba and fire his foreign minister because of the Argentine stand taken at the Punta del Este conference

Informed sources said leaders of the three armed forces served a virtual ultimatum on Frondizi in anger at the government's refusal to vote at the inter-American foreign ministers conference for the immediate expulsion of Fidel Castro's Communist regime from councils of the Organization of American States.

There was no indication, however, what the military would do if Frondizi refused its demand.

Bowing to the military — a powerful force in Argentine politics—would amount to repudiation of the government's refusal to go along with the United States and 13 other Latin American countries. Foreign Minister Miguel Angel Carcano at the conference sided with Brazil, Chile, Mexico, Ecuador and Bolivia in advocating delay in the expulsion.

MAY HAVE QUIT

Reports circulated here that Carcano already had sent his resignation from Punta del Este but these could not be confirmed.

Castro's Cuba has been a headache before for Frondizi, caught between strong leftist factions and the traditionally conservative military.

Frondizi bowed to the military last August and fired a previous foreign minister, Adolfo Mugica, who was blamed for setting up a much-criticized meeting between him and Cuba's Communist economic czar Ernesto Guevara.

The 53-year-old Frondizi, who has weathered crisis after crisis since he took over the presidency in 1958, appeared to be facing one of the most serious threats yet.

While officials were silent, informants and the influential newspaper La Nacion indicated the crisis may force Frondizi's hand in a wholesale government shakeup.

PUNTA DEL ESTE, Uruguay (CP-AP)—The ouster of pro-Communist Cuba from the councils of the Organization of American States was viewed today as a somewhat costly victory for the United States because it produced the first major split in the 10-year history of the OAS.

Already the decisions of the ministers were arousing repercussions in Latin America.

Six countries abstained on the resolution to expel Cuba because they disagreed over whether the OAS foreign ministers conference here could legally take such a move. Firm action had been urged by the

Missiles Placed On 26 Pads

The contractor, Boeing Airplane Company of Seattle, Wash., has installed missiles on the 28 launching pads.

It is expected that the base will be at full operational readiness about March 1.

However, the missiles have no warheads — nuclear or conventional.

One defence department official said it is doubtful that a Bomarc without a warhead could knock down a bomber even by colliding with it. He likened such a collision to two cars bumping fenders.

NOTHING ON ORDER

Egan Chambers, parliamentary secretary to Defence Minister Harkness, said in the Commons Monday that no conventional warhead for the Bomarc erists and that no arrangements have yet been made with the United States for a supply of nuclear warheads.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker said in the Commons Jan. 18, 1960: "The Bomarc anti-aircraft missile to be effective would require nuclear warheads."

However, Mr. Diefenbaker also has said that Canada does not want to take any action which might impair chances of an East - West disarmament agreement or of restricting membership in the nuclear club to the present nuclear powers.

The 18 - country disarmament committee, of which Canada is a member, is scheduled to begin talks at Geneva March 14.

OTHER BASE UNFINISHED

Missiles and launching equipment still have to be installed at the second Canadian Bomarc site at La Macaza, Que. This is expected to be done this spring.

Unlike the Bomarc, the RCAF's CF-101 voodoo jet interceptor is armed. The Voodoo carries the Falconair - to - air missile which has a conventional high-explosive warhead.

The defence department, however, wants the RCAF's 66 Voodoos armed with the American Genie nuclear rocket.

Officials here said no official ceremony was planned in connection with the RCAF taking over the North Bay Bomarc base.

Brr! Again!!

IRREGULARITIES IN FEDERAL SPENDING SEEN

Auditor-General Reports to House

OTTAWA (CP) — The public usually hears but once a year from Maxwell Henderson. Wednesday it got an earful.

Mr. Henderson is the gentlemanly, quiet 54-year-old former brewery executive lifted from his post as CBC comptroller three years ago to become auditor-general of Canada — Parliament's $20,000-a-year watchdog over government spending.

Wednesday he submitted his annual report. Some irregularities noted:

A $42,000,000 acreage payment to Prairie farmers voted in 1960 as "a higher return for wheat used by human consumption in Canada" was paid to growers regardless of whether their land was in wheat, oats, barley or summer-fallow.

A 27-year - old corporal who wanted to quit — meaning he would take his $2,031 pension contributions with him—instead was fired as "an administrative nuisance" three months before he would have left voluntarily and was granted a pension totalling almost $27,000.

MAKE NO PROVISION

No provision was made in the government's $6,000,000,000 annual operation for increased pension benefits payable as a result of salary and pay increases granted during the year for which Mr. Henderson reported—the 1960-61 fiscal year ended last March 31.

These costs were estimated at $80,700,000 for federal government employees, $79,050,000 for members of the armed forces and $1,760,000 for the RCMP.

About $44,600 worth of aviation gasoline flowed down a manhole when three RCAF aircraftsmen opened the wrong valves on a storage tank. There was disciplinary action of only "a minor character."

After a contractor had started a two-storey public building in Elliot Lake, Ont., the public works department halted the job and chopped the second storey out of the plans. The delay and extra costs meant the final bill for the structure was $20,000 more than if the original plan had been left untouched.

DOESN'T USE

The defence production department paid $62,000 for Montreal warehouse space which it didn't use.

There was no provision for an examination by federal officers of municipal claims under the municipal winter works program in which Ottawa pays half the payroll costs of capital works projects — a $40,000,000 cost item this winter.

A high-speed wind tunnel estimated in 1954, when it was started, to cost $3,750,000 had actually cost $7,531,000 by last March 31 and the final bill is expected to reach $9,000,000.

10 DIE IN CRASH

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Ten farm laborers were killed Wednesday night when a Southern Pacific freight train and a bus collided in thick fog.

Gunther Wallenda, 60, Son Go Aloft Day After Tragedy

DETROIT (AP)—Their faces grimly expressionless, Herman and Gunther Wallenda Wednesday night walked the high wire from which two members of the Great Wallendas troupe had fallen to death only 24 hours earlier.

There wasn't a sound in the huge State Fair Coliseum as the 60-year-old Herman and his son, Guenther, 34, paid their tribute to the show-business tradition that the show must go on.

With a substitute aerialist flown in to fill the gap left by death and injury, the two Wallendas performed feats of daring for five minutes three storeys above the concrete floor.

As on the previous night, there was no net between the Wallendas and the concrete. Herman and Guenther were the only ones of the seven Wallendas on the wire the night before who were not killed or injured.

"It's a tradition that the show must go on," Gunther said matter-of-factly after the act, in which Gene Mendez, who had flown from Stockholm, Sweden, was the third man.

All other activity in the coliseum stopped and tension crackled in the air as the two Wallendas and Mendez climbed the poles to the slender wire 35 feet up to do their Shrine circus act.

Gunther rode a bicycle across the wire and then teamed with Mendez, a former member of the troupe, to carry Herman standing on a cross bar between them. In their finale, Herman stood on his head on the bar.

Most Critical Month Begins In de Gaulle's Long Battle

ALGIERS (Reuters) — The most critical month in president Charles de Gaulle's three-year-long effort to bring peace to Algeria began today.

It started after one of the bloodiest months since the territory's Moslem nationalist insurgents began their rebellion against French rule in November, 1954.

Military officials announced Wednesday that at least 754 persons died and 1,427 were wounded in European extremist and Moslem insurgent attacks throughout Algeria in January. However, this figure did not include French Army and insurgent casualties.

There was speculation that de Gaulle might announce an agreement between France and the insurgent Algerian provisional government when he broadcasts to the country Monday. But a warning against expecting anything "exceptional" came from Information Minister Louis Terrenoire Wednesday night.

Still, informed circles in Paris said that when the insurgent government meets in Tunis this weekend it will discuss whether to accept a French cease-fire offer and whether to co-operate with France in administering Algeria during a transitional period leading to a self-determination referendum and eventual independence.

The sources said that most matters have been agreed provisionally between the negotiators, although the official agreement of the insurgent movement still has to be obtained.

Meanwhile, Paris police reported they had uncovered a plan to disrupt the televising of de Gaulle's speech on Monday.

They announced that when they captured Philippe Castille —a 36-year-old escaped prisoner said to have masterminded plastic bomb blasts in metropolitan France—they discovered plans to blow up the television tower on top of the Eiffel Tower before de Gaulle was to speak.

Police said the explosion—code-named Budapest—was to assassinate Gen. Jean Debrosse, deputy commandant of the mobile guards.

Castille, picked up three days ago, was identified as a top man in the outlawed Secret Army Organization, the bitterly anti-Gaullist European extremist underground which vows to keep Algeria "French."

Kennedy Would Visit Russia If There Is Cold War Thaw

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Kennedy says he would be prepared to accept an invitation to visit Russia if some major thaw develops in the East-West cold war.

His latest view, made at a press conference in the presence of Soviet Premier Khrushchev's son - in - law, heightened speculation that some significant change in tense Soviet-American relations may be in the process of negotiation.

Kennedy told the press conference Wednesday the United States and Russia are edging towards close agreement on how the remnants of the Laotian crisis should be resolved. And Soviet Izvestia editor Alexei Adzhubei, Khrushchev's son-in-law, supported this view later when he told reporters he expected a final agreement on Laos "very soon."

The president added during the conference that while no significant progress has been made as yet on the Berlin issue, he was hopeful that a third round of Moscow talks opening today "will bring a happy result." The talks are between U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

Asked under what conditions he would accept an invitation to visit the Soviet Union, Kennedy said:

"I would think that an invitation and acceptance of an invitation would probably wait on an easing of the tensions which unfortunately surround our relationships. So at present, of course, until we have significant breakthroughs, that sort of journey would probably not be considered useful by either country."

Kennedy's press secretary,

RCN Shelling Incident Recalls Famous Battle Over a Pig

OTTAWA (CP) — The last incident in Juan de Fuca Strait took 13 years to settle.

Authorities here expressed confidence today that any and all claims which may arise from Monday's incident in the strait can be straightened out in much less time.

The incident this week was the apparent accidental shelling of Clallam Bay, Wash., by an exercising Royal Canadian Navy destroyer. No one was hurt.

No one was hurt in the 1859 incident. But a pig was shot and killed.

In fact, it was the shooting of the pig on San Juan Island in Juan de Fuca Strait which touched off the incident which brought Britain and the United States to the brink of war.

The Hudson's Bay Company had a farm on the island. An American settler named Cutler had a garden on the island.

A company pig went foraging in Cutler's garden. Cutler shot it. The company demanded $100 damages. Cutler refused to pay.

A company of the 9th U.S. Infantry was landed on San Juan Island. It was led by Capt. George Pickett who later became famous for Pickett's charge at the Battle of Gettysburg in the American Civil War.

The Royal Navy within a few days anchored overwhelming strength opposite the U.S. position on the island.

This strength included the frigate Tribune, 31 guns; the corvette Satellite, 21 guns; the steam sloop Plumper, 21 guns.

There was no shooting, however, and in 1860 a joint occupation policy was worked out. On March 20 that year 84 Royal Marines were landed from HMS Satellite.

Finally, in 1872, William I, emperor of Germany, the arbitrator, awarded San Juan to the U.S. and on Nov. 21 that year the Royal Marines decamped.

During the 13-year dispute Canada achieved Confederation. British Columbia joined Confederation July 20, 1871.

BRANT HOTEL IN BRANTFORD COMPLETE LOSS

Fire Damage Said $1,000,000

The fire was under control but still smouldering late Wednesday night after the entire Brantford fire department fought the flames for seven hours.

Herman Laufer, president and general manager of the 80-room hotel, said damage "Will be well over $1,000,000 and possibly as high as $1,500,000 as far as I'm concerned."

He said the property was insured for less than half the loss.

The fire in the four-storey hotel on Dalhousie Street broke out shortly before 2 p.m. in the boiler room where fire inspectors were inspecting recently-installed fire-doors. They noticed smoke and turned in the alarm.

The hotel's staff and 25 guests were evacuated. Police said no one is missing.

BURNS OUT OF CONTROL

The fire at first was thought to be confined to the basement but at 2:30 p.m. it was found to be beyond immediate control and Fire Chief Charles Townson called in all Brantford's off-duty firemen.

The flames quickly spread through false walls and ceilings and sparks and smoke were blown throughout the building by the air-conditioning system.

Firmen feared for hours that the blaze would spread to the rest of the downtown block but the flames were contained within the hotel by firewalls on either side of it.

At one point, flames burst through a wooden door in the firewall into an adjacent, unused theatre building but firemen were able to prevent them from spreading further.

When the fire was at its

Weather Woes in California Too, There It's Fog, Claiming 28 Lives

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Fog, blamed for at least 28 deaths since Sunday, including 11 victims in a bus-train collision, has created a crisis in central California.

With visibility zero at times in many of the area's major cities, dozens of schools were closed and motorists were advised to keep off the highways.

The weather bureau said the fog would persist in the San Joaquin and Sacramento valleys at least until Friday.

Oldtimers term the fog the worst they've seen in years. Weather experts said it's caused by vaporizing moisture rising from the area's lush agricultural fields. The moisture is the result of a rare snowfall in the central valley last week.

In the worst accident, 10 laborers lost their lives Wednesday night at a railway crossing in Mendota, about 50 miles west of Fresno. The other laborer in the truck died of his injuries several hours later.

They were only two blocks from their destination, a labor camp, when a 60-mile-an-hour Southern Pacific freight train collided with their vehicle, a panel truck converted to a bus.

"They never had a chance—the bus driver apparently never even saw the train," said Mendota police officer Marvin France. He estimated visibility then at 100 feet.

Most accidents occurred on a 230-mile stretch of U.S. Highway 99 between Stockton and Bakersfield, a major route to Los Angeles.

The fog was so thick near Modesto a motorist needed help in finding his way. He got out of his auto to flag down a truck. It crushed him to death against his car.

30 Below at Frankford, Minus 28 at Bancroft

Burrrr— it was cold!

And city and district residents starting out on their way to work this morning fully realized it. At 7.45 this morning the temperature stood at exactly 17 degrees below zero.

Officials at the city water filtration plant said it was the coldest for the year and for the season, and also was the coldest since January, 1957 when the mercury dipped to 21 below.

As it turned out the weatherman slightly underestimated the drop in temperature for last night, and yesterday promised no worse than zero for today. In fact, it was still 10 below at 10 o'clock this morning.

One man reported 22 below in the city as did another party at Point Anne, while at Frankford the mercury was claimed to have dipped to 30 below. At Bancroft the reading was 28 below.

In Belleville it was two below at 1 a.m. and from then on until 7:45 the thermometer dropped steadily until it reached 17 below.

This morning was the coldest in five years but it lacked a long way reaching 39 degrees below, the coldest on record for Belleville back in February, 1934. That month the mercury dropped below the zero mark for 23 days hand running.

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 31, 1962

The Commons launched debate on the government appropriation of $40,000,000 for the winter works incentive program.

Paul Martin (L — Essex East) said the program fails to get to the root of the unemployment problem.

Labor Minister Starr said it is a most useful method of tackling seasonal unemployment; it had provided work for 111,200 men so far this winter.

Walter Pitman (NDP—Peterborough) said if the program is a measure of government inaction he has no doubt the Conservatives will lose the next election.

Speakers from the three parties voiced varying interpretations of the meaning of Quebec Premier Lesage's reply to Ottawa on the power-grid question.

Senator Thomas Crerar (L—Manitoba) said increased expenditures on old age pensions are unwarranted because of the serious state of government finances.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker indicated Canada does not intend to change its policy toward Cuba.

THURSDAY, Feb. 1

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. EST to debate winter works. The Senate sits at 3 p.m.

QUEBEC PREMIER UNDER ATTACK IN COMMONS

Lesage Accused Of Playing Politics

OTTAWA (CP) — Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec was accused by a Conservative member of the Commons Wednesday of playing politics by his negative response to the idea of an Ottawa - sponsored national power grid.

"This response, I suggest, is a political one and is not the response of sensible people in that province," said Hugh M. Horner, member for the Alberta constituency of Jasper-Edson.

He was referring to the premier's reply to a letter from Prime Minister Diefenbaker suggesting a Dominion-provincial conference to consider "fundamental problems" bearing on the transmission of hydro power in Canada.

Hydro, replied Mr. Lesage tartly, "is a field of provincial jurisdiction and I consider that is where we must let the matter rest."

Wednesday's Commons debate was on a motion by Arnold Peters (CCF—Timiskaming) asking government consideration of the advisability of setting up a national grid, initiating research and calling a federal-provincial conference.

FILES ERE OPENING

Mr. Peters said he had filed his motion before the Jan. 8 opening of Parliament. In the speech from the throne the government referred to "steps that might be taken" toward long-distance power transmission.

The CCFer's private motion was talked out, and will not likely come up again this session.

Mr. Peters said he had filed his motion before the Jan. 18 opening of Parliament. In the speech from the throne the government referred to "steps that might be taken" toward long-distance power transmission

The CCFer's private motion was talked out, and will not likely come up again this session.

Mr. Peters said the government will be remiss in its duty if it tells the public, "if it were not for this terrible Liberal in Quebec, we would have a natonal power grid."

Augustin Brassard (L — Lapointe) said the other two MPs had misinterpreted Premier Lesage.

He noted Mr. Lesage informed Mr. Diefenbaker that he had written other premiers on the subject and that it would be discussed at the forthcoming premiers conference in Victoria, of which Mr. Lesage will be chairman. This could not be construed as shutting the door on future talks here.

Abandon Hunt For Bodies in Fire Debris

The search for the bodies of two young girls who died with their mother when their home near Bancroft was destroyed by fire late Tuesday afternoon, has been temporarily called off, it was noted today by Bancroft provincial police.

The body of Mrs. Ian Kelly was found in the basement of their burned out home on the Hermon Road, but no trace has been found of the bodies of the small girls, aged 1 and 2 years.

Mr. Kelly, an employee at Faraday Mines, found his home blazing when he returned from work late Tuesday afternoon. Provincial police at Bancroft said the cause of the blaze was still undetermined.

Police said it was possible the bodies of the two girls may have been completely consumed in the terrific heat when the debris of the house fell into the basement.

Will Re-Shuffle Certain Departments at Hospital In Order to Get More Beds

In a measure to provide just a few more beds and thus relieve slightly crowded room conditions, a re-shuffle of certain departments is to be carried out at Belleville General Hospital.

Result of the shuffle will be that room for an additional six to eight beds will be made available.

The rated occupancy of the Belleville hospital is 220 beds, but last year the hospital operated at an average of 115 per cent of its rated capacity, with as many as 286 beds having been set up at one time.

The "grand change" of hospital departments will start right at the main entrance with the accounting department to be changed from its present location to the space now occupied by the doctors' room and medical records.

Medical records will be moved to the nurses' locker area and the doctors' room will be moved to the present nurses' lounge which in turn will be moved to an upstairs location.

The nurses' locker area will be moved to the basement of the Ritchie Memorial Nurses' Residence.

Hospital administrator Werner Daechsel stated that the change, agreed on at the last meeting of the hospital Board of Governors, would mean that up to an additional eight beds could be made available.

Fifty Foster Parents Meet Board and Staff of CAS

At least fifty foster parents met with members of the Board and Staff of the Children's Aid Society at Education Hall, Belleville General Hospital, Monday evening. These meetings, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Edward E. Follwell, are the first of their kind to be held in Eastern Ontario. Mr. George Wishart welcomed the foster parents on behalf of the board, noting that this, the third meeting of the series, had attracted the largest gathering to date. Mr. Wishart commented that it was obvious that foster fathers, of whom there were at least twenty present, played an active and willing role in the lives of their charges. This, he said, reflected the attitude of the Society, which was interested in providing a wholesome family atmosphere for the children entrusted to its care.

Mr. Bruce Kerr, director, acting as chairman said that while it had been the initial plan of the committee charged with the responsibility for the meeting to have a panel of foster parents "Take a look at the CAS" the members of the child care department staff had decided that they would like to "Take a look at Foster Parents". As a result there would be two presentations.

Mr. J. D. Adamson, the Society's casework supervisor, introduced Miss Betty Ann Makar, Kenneth Boardman, Jeffery McDermott and Miss Maude Watson, all of whom are actively engaged in working with children in forter home care.

SHARE INFORMATION

In the discussion that followed it was noted that foster parents appeared, in certain instances to be reluctant to share information concerning their foster children with the caseworker, being of the opinion that "the worker was too busy to be interested in trivial matters." This, Miss Watson emphasized, was not the case. The child's caseworker was available at all times and unless the wealth of information accumulated by the foster mother was shared with the caseworker, much of the effectiveness of the worker's role was lost.

Miss Betty Ann Makar stressed the need for confidence; that information concerning the child and his family was made available to the foster parents so that they might all the better understand the child and the manner in which he reacted to different situations and that it should never be shared with anyone outside the family circle.

Miss Maude Watson felt that unfortunately some foster parents used the caseworker "as a big stick" intimating that, if the expected standard of behavior was not achieved, it would be reported to the caseworker.

Since the worker was, in effect, an agent of the Society, which to the child represented the ultimate in authority, this could serve to destroy, rather than enhance, the worker-child relationship.

Mr. Kenneth Broadman thought that there was more acceptance of "academic learning" and less emphasis on "practical experience" today than in years gone by. He said he found most foster families more than willing to accept guidance and help with their children.

Mr. Jeffery McDermott said that more often than not the rewards received by foster parents were unspoken rather than spoken and the greatest reward of all was knowledge of a good job well done. He was of the opinion that steps should be taken to see that the foster child shares in some of the routine responsibilities of the home from the very beginning of his placement, thus actively becoming a part of it.

SPEAK FOR PARENTS

Mrs. Murney Simmons of Holloway, Mrs. Reg. Workman of West Huntingdon and Mr. Lee Tripp of Belleville presented the foster parents point of view. Mrs. Simmons spoke of the change in the attitude of the community towards agency children and commented on the difference in the manner in which the children were now clothed and the greater attention to dental and medical care.

She felt the C.A.S. should be more generous in the matter of spending allowances, but complimented the Society on providing extra allowance for Christmas and special occasions. Mrs. Simmons thought that extra maintenance should be paid to foster parents when the child attains the age of ten and again at the age of thirteen, when they may start to High School.

Mr. Tripp remarked that prior to the taking of a foster daughter into their home, neither he nor his wife "knew anything about" the Children's Aid Society. He felt that the Society's caseworkers "did a good job" and that they tried very hard to help the foster parents. He too felt that the Society might be more generous with spending allowances for older children but then said "foster parents should remember that the child contributes to their home in a variety of ways and for this foster parents might expect to offer some financial reward".

Mrs. Workman was critical of natural parents who try to buy the affection and respect of their children by providing expensive gifts at Christmas time — gifts which the foster parents can neither duplicate nor provide their own children. She believed that the present system of purchasing clothing by voucher, could be improved upon and offered helpful suggestions in this respect.

It was announced that the final meeting in the series would be held the latter part of April.

Woman Is Dead, Two Injured In House Brawl

MONTREAL (CP) — Police are holding two men and four women in connection with a rooming house brawl early today in which one woman was shot to death and two other persons were wounded.

The dead woman was identified as Mrs. Giesle Vincent, 28, a cashier.

Shot and in critical condition in hospital is Jean Louis Rivard, 59, owner of the rooming house where the brawl took place.

A second woman, Mary Drumbo, 27, a waitress, was reported stabbed. She was taken to hospital after police patrolling the area saw three women dragging her into a car parked near the rooming house.

When the police investigated, Miss Drumbo was quoted as telling them: "Never mind me, help the woman upstairs."

After calling for reinforcements, the police entered the house and said they found Mrs. Vincent dead in a chair of a gunshot wound.

Meanwhile Rivard, who had left the rooming house some time earlier, to take a taxi to police headquarters, was taken from there to hospital with two bullets in his chest.

He said he had been shot during an argument in the hall of the rooming house over the sale of a bottle of liquor.

IN MEMORIAM

BROWNSON. — In loving memory of our dear son, Thomas, who passed away February 1st, 1961.

We often think of bygone days,
When we were all together;
The family chain is broken now,
But memories will live forever.
To us, he has not gone away,
Nor has he travelled far,
Just entered God's eternal home,

—Lovingly remembered by Mother and Dad.

CARTER. — In loving memory of my dear husband, Fred Carter, who entered his eternal rest February 1st, 1956.

"God takes the loved ones from our homes,
But never from our hearts."

—Gone but never forgotten by wife Mary.

HAMILTON. — In loving memory of a dear Mum and Grandma, Bessie M., who passed away February 1st, 1960.

Peaceful be thy rest, dear mother,
It is sweet to breathe thy name;
As in life we loved you dearly,
So in death we do the same.

—Ever remembered by husband Ed, daughter Irene, son-in-law Bob and grandsons Roger and Ronald.

Around The Tee

Sixteen rinks will kick off the second draw at the Quinte Curling Club tonight, while the playoffs for the first draw will continue until a winner is declared. There will be three flights in the second draw, the same as in the first draw and the winners of flights "B" and "C" with some other rinks will be moved up and those rinks, that were at the bottom of the flights will be knocked down a notch in order to make more competitive curling. The first draw proved most successful and the second draw is being eagerly looked forward to.

The draw has been placed on the bulletin board and the time of curling and it is up to the members to acquaint themselves of the draws and time and try to make the schedule in order that the teams will be at full strength for each game. It was decided that the games both on the seven and nine o'clock draws be eight ends so it would not be too late a finish for those on the late draw. The committee has done an excellent job in picking the rinks and now it is up to the players to win as many games as possible. The club games have proved very popular.

Playoffs in the British Consuls for the rink to represent the Quinte Club in the playoffs to be held at the Kingston Curling Club on Wednesday next are continuing at the club and a winner will be decided over the weekend. There were four teams entered in the round robin series but two of them have dropped by the wayside and the winner will be between rinks skipped by Mac White, representative last year, and Ben Corke.

On Tuesday night the rinks hooked up in a tidy duel with Mac White winning the game on his last rock. The rinks were tied coming home and Mr. White made an excellent shot to take the verdict. On Wednesday night the Corke rink came up with a good game to even the series. The Corke rink was two up coming home but White was lying three and possibly five when the skips took to the ice.

White in attempting to guard his shots was a little long and came into the house for shot and Tom Carruthers, who was delivering his last rock came to the guard and stayed to count one and win the game. A sudden death game will be played over the weekend and the winner will proceed to Kingston. Dr. F. J. McCorquodale is leading, Dave Brown is second and Bill Riley is vicing the Mac White rink while Ben Corke is leading and skipping the rink, Al McCullam is playing second stone, Cec Kirkwood playing third and Tom Carruthers is delivering last rocks. These are two strong rinks and some excellent curling has been witnessed during the playoffs.

More entries are required for the one-day spiel that will be played on Saturday. In this spiel the skips are at liberty to pick their own rinks and some smart curling should result. There will be three eight-end games played on a point system and the spiel will be finished in plenty of time for the boys to hold a social hour before departing for their homes. Whether the club will be in operation after the spiel has not yet been decided as the members, with their president, have not had time to hold a meeting.

DENIES ROMANCE

COPENHAGEN (AP) — King Frederik's private secretary denied Wednesday that there is a romance between Princess Margrethe, heiress to Denmark's 1,000-year-old royal throne, and British Prince William of Gloucester. A report of a possible match between the two was carried by a London newspaper last Monday.

Stresses Need Active Div. Of Corps

TRENTON—The importance of an active division of St. John Ambulance, being maintained in Trenton, was stressed by Brigadier Eric Snow, of Toronto, provincial commissioner of the St. John Ambulance Council, at a meeting in Trenton Tuesday night. Brigadier Snow told executive members of the local division, that the organization was sponsoring a re-activation program all across the province. While he did not allude to "civil defence" application in so many words, the brigadier said that persons taking advantage of the training in home nursing and first aid, offered by the division, would be ready to cope with any emergency, on a local basis, which might arise.

February is St. John Ambulance month and an appeal for funds has been started locally. Chairman of the drive is Wib Shier. Stressed is the point that money raised in Trenton will be used in Trenton. Letters, outlining the needs of the local group will be sent to householders in the town. A general meeting, to which members of the public will be invited, will be held in the near future.

Present at Tuesday night's meeting were W. James, branch secretary of the Belleville division, and president of the Quinte area division; J. McCreary, of the Belleville division; Mrs. G. Ellsworth, nursing head at Trenton; Mrs. C. Lowe, representing Trenton Memorial Hospital and Mrs. O. W. Larry, publicity officer for the local division.

Hinde and Dauch And Union Agree On Contract

TRENTON — Harry Tremblay, spokesman for Local 470, United Papermakers and Paperworkers (employees of the Hinde and Dauch Paper Company at Trenton), said yesterday that an agreement between the union and company representatives had been reached through the efforts of a conciliation officer, R. V. Bradley. On December 3, the 100-member local voted to have union and company differences as regards to renewal of a contract, which expired in October, 1961, brought before the Ontario Department of Labor representative.

By the new contract, which will run for a two-year period, dating back to October 22, 1961, the workers will receive a general hourly wage increase. The company will review the present welfare benefit plan, and a number of contract changes have been brought into effect with the signing of the new contract.

height, about 6 p.m., a crowd estimate at 2,000 jammed Dalhousie Street to watch flames leaping 50 feet in the air.

Four firemen were injured. William Woodcock suffered possible rib fractures when he slipped from the roof of the Paramount Theatre and his chest struck the edge of another roof immediately below.

Fire Captain Del Batchelor was taken to hospital after he drove a spoke through his hand.

Lloyd Decker was almost knocked from his perch atop an aerial ladder when wind threw a shower of sparks in his face. Only his belt saved him from falling. Fellow firemen helped him to the ground. He returned to the fire after receiving first aid.

Gary Stockdale was temporarily overcome by smoke but returned to fight the flames.

A men's wear shop on the ground floor was destroyed and an office, restaurant and bakery on the east side of the building received heavy smoke and water damage.

Police said a nearby drug store broke out in flames at one point but firemen managed to save the building.

Early reports that the fire originated from a short-circuit in the main fusebox in the basement were unconfirmed.

The hotel, largest in Brantford, was recently renovated at a cost of $150,000.

Mr. Laufer and two other co-owners, Harry Ross and Henry Banack, both of Toronto, said it was too early to tell whether they will rebuild the hotel, which was more than 100 years old.

Toronto Flying Club Members To Visit RCAF

TRENTON — Friday morning, weather permitting, RCAF Station Trenton will be "invaded" by a fleet of 50 light aircraft, piloted by members of the Toronto Flying Club. The civilian flyers plan to arrive by nine o'clock and will spend the day listening to lectures on search and rescue operations of the RCAF and viewing survival exhibits. If flying conditions aren't good, the club members will come to Trenton by bus.

The flyers will be told primarily how not to get lost, but they will also learn of the extensive search and rescue operations which would be carried on by the RCAF, should they get lost. They will also be given instructions on survival tactics to be employed while waiting for help to arrive.

Cars Collide

TRENTON — A two-car crash in Trenton yesterday resulted in damages estimated at $450 but neither of the two drivers involved was injured. The accident occurred around 8.10 a.m.

Police say that a car, driven by Robert Sager, 4th Ave. in Trenton, proceeding east on King St. was struck by a car driven by Dr. W. A. Grey, Wilkins St., which was entering the main street from Catherine St. According to the police report, Dr. Grey apparently failed to see the east-bound car approaching.

OAS AFTERMATH

United States.

The resolution mustered only the minimum of 14 votes necessary for the expulsion. All previous ministerial level conferences have resulted in at least 20 to 21 votes on resolutions.

CUBA CONDEMNED

The conference wound up Wednesday night with a show of unanimity against Castro as 20 of the 21 countries at the conference signed the document formally condemning the Cuban regime for going over to communism and aligning itself with the Soviet bloc.

The Cuban delegation boycotted the final session and hurried back to Havana claiming the outcome amounted to "a defeat for U.S. imperialism." In the Cuban capital about 700 persons paraded behind a coffin marked "OAS sharks" as loudspeakers blared: "Cuba will win its struggle, with or without the OAS." The coffin was dumped into Havana harbor in symbolic burial of the inter-American organization.

U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk, before leaving for Washington, said: "We have agreed on a great deal." He added that the Cuban walkout before the conference ended "demonstrated . . . the principle of self-exclusion."

Sweeping Modernization Of Lord's Day Act Requested

TORONTO (CP)—The Lord's Day Alliance, in a brief to Prime Minister Diefenbaker, has called for a sweeping modernization of the Lord's Day Act.

The brief, presented to the prime minister last Friday but made public only Wednesday, proposes:

1. The amount of advertising by broadcasting be regulated in fairness to "other media of advertising which may not engage in Sunday business."

2. That "Dominion law" take cognizance of the volume of public opinion in favor of Sunday sport and entertainment and make provision for it.

3. That consideration be given to the development of long-distance trucking which has taken place in recent years "and also to automation in manufacturing, vending, etc., which is being accelerated in these times."

The alliance, while stressing the hope that "the act would fully retain its main proctective feature of allowing the maximum number of workers to enjoy their rest day with others on the common day of rest," said a variety of factors "have in a measure altered attitudes in the direction of using Sunday more widely than heretofore for recreation and entertainment."

The need for "fresh attention to Sunday law" becomes apparent, the brief says, "when note is made of the fact that the Lord's Day Act deals with such minor matters as hiring a small boat or a horse and carriage, but has nothing to say about aeroplanes, or trucks, or radio and television broadcasting."

The brief suggests that permitted exceptions to the act's provisions might be broadened to include "activities having to do with sport and entertainment."

It suggested the practice of the provinces in allowing municipalities to determine by local plebiscite whether "such things shall be done on Sundays within their boundaries" might be embodied in Dominion law without the need of action at provincial level.

The alliance, noting that prosecution under the act is costly and time-consuming, suggested "there should be a more convenient and less expensive method of securing an authoritative judgment."

It also suggested that "penalties prescribed are completely out of line with the present value of money. Fines are so small as to exert practically no deterrent power."

Falconbridge Mine to Merge With Ventures

TORONTO (CP) — Merger of two giants of the Canadian mining industry moved towards completion Wednesday when shareholders of Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd. voted in favor of a proposal to merge with Ventures Ltd.

Under the plan Falconbridge will purchase all of Ventures assets, except its holdings of about 2,100,000 shares of Falconbridge, in exchange for approximately 800,000 shares of Falconbridge. The proposal also provides for the distribution to Ventures shareholders of all shares of Falconbridge owned by it on the basis of 104 shares of Falconbridge for each 100 shares of Ventures.

In addition, McIntyre Porcupine Mines Ltd., which controls both companies, will acquire 280,600 treasury shares of Falconbridge at $62.03 a share.

Ventures Assets to be acquired by Falconbridge include: Giant Yellowknife Gold Mines, Northwest Territories gold producer; United Keno Hill Mines Ltd., Yukon silver producer; Opemiska Copper Mines (Quebec) Ltd., Quebec copper producer; Lake Dufault Mines Ltd., which is expected to go into copper production in late 1963; Dominion Magnesium Ltd., Ontario magnesium producer; and Alminex Ltd., Western Canada oil producer.

Legislation Is Inadequate

It was interesting to observe a Washington news report to the effect that segregation has been nearly completely wiped out "officially" in bus and rail terminals in the southern United States according to the Justice Department.

The key to the statement is, of course, the word "officially" and even this is qualified by the advice that there are a few local situations where municipal authorities still defy the federal authority's edict that segregation is to be eliminated in public transportation terminals.

The sudden "official" resolving of a problem does not necessarily remedy the situation unless the people involved are prepared to abide by this decision. Whether or not their moral judgment is sound or warped regarding the issue concerned appears hardly relative. As human beings they are basically emotional and logic or reason must, unfortunately, take second place in the vast majority of individuals' personal characteristics.

The particular quality of enlightenment which is required to overcome personal emotions is a very rare quality indeed. It is not gained overnight. It is not necessarily obtained through higher education. Rather it stems from what might be best described as environmental education.

As the song from "South Pacific" proclaims, "You've got to be taught before it's too late . . . Before you are six, or seven, or eight."

This requires that a person have capable and enlightened teachers in the form of one's parents at an early age. The segregation problem of the southern United States is an inbred situation finding its origin amongst the group of persons aptly called "poor white trash," a description given them by their own people.

It is this strata of society which must be re-educated, if the democracy in which they were bred is to remain strong and provide equal opportunity for all its citizens.

Spirit of Adventure

G. Arnold Hart, president of the Bank of Montreal, says that Canadians should meet the challenge of changing world trade patterns in a "spirit of adventure."

All right then, let's face up to the basic reason why John J. Phillips, general manager of Cockshutt Farm Equipment at Brantford, resigned as an officer and director of that company on Tuesday. Mr. Hart says his resignation was caused by the fact that severance pay for a number of Cockshutt workers who will be without jobs will be below what he considers fair. His protest does him credit and effectively destroys that picture of the hard-hearted capitalistic boss that some unions like to paint. But the real cause of the trouble is that Cockshutt, once a Canadian-owned firm, is being taken over by a United States company.

This is happening much too often. We know all the arguments against discouraging the investment of U.S. capital in Canada. We disagree with those who would erect obstacles against it. But when a U.S. company acquires an established Canadian firm it does not necessarily contribute anything towards the expansion of Canada's productive capacity.

Want to face the problem with a "spirit of adventure?" All right then, how about forbidding the sale of existing Canadian companies to foreign interests? That way, anybody wanting to invest in Canada would have to start a new company, thereby contributing to our industrial complex, instead of merely taking over control of existing facilities.

Strike Me Blue—And Shivering

Tailor and Cutter, Britain's male fashion magazine, has offered its solution for one of the world's most pressing problems, strikes.

The solution will not cut much ice in warmer climates, but it is admirably tailored for countries like Canada.

Instead of striking, says Tailor and Cutter, workers could achieve the same aims by removing one article of clothing a day.

This, it will be noted, would provide for an automatic cooling off period.

Nobody who poked a nose out of doors in Belleville on Monday would deny that the rage freeze would prove more effective than Prime Minister Macmillan's old-fashioned wage freeze.

Of course, we should have to watch for abuses. It would never do if a solution tailored for a specific problem was permitted to spread into disputes in related areas. For instance, there would always be the danger of niggardly customers insisting on the waitress doing a tip-tease before receiving a gratuity.

Ottawa Offbeat

Year of the Big Promise

BY RICHARD JACKSON
(from The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — While the average taxpaying voter may or may not appreciate the fine financial intricacies of budgets running in billions, and deficits into millions of dollars . . . there is no shadow of doubt, as one of the organizational Brain Trust at National Liberal Headquarters mournfully mused the other day, that he does "dig dogs."

And so, in these past five weeks, Prime Minister Diefenbaker has had no more glittering political asset than the golden Labrador pup that his wife gave him for Christmas.

Inch by measured inch, and minute by stop-watched minute, no one thing has got the Prime Minister so much space on the news page of the nation's press, or so much time on the air.

In the continuing political battle for the public eye and ear —and so, they hope, its heart and mind — the organizational headquarters of all Federal parties keep track of such things.

For success in political public relations is measured in inches and minutes.

And since, more and more, political leaders and their parties are being packaged and sold like so much cereal or soap by the advertising and public relations "image-makers", every newspaper, news and editorial pages alike, is clipped, and a great many national and even regional radio and TV broadcasts monitored.

All this to see who might be winning the race for time and space.

The clippings are annotated, assembled under their separate subjects, and either filed for future reference or drawn directly to the attention of the individual most concerned.

OUT IN FRONT

In this chase of public attention, the little Lab leads the pack.

There were stories and pictures of the pup himself and with the PM and Mrs. Diefenbaker - - - and then came the business of selecting a name, with literally hundreds of people sending in suggestions.

The public interest in the dog seemed to astound the Prime Minister, for, he was frank to confess on several occasions, it was truly "amazing."

Now there was quite a trick to naming the pup. It had to be a non-controversial name - - - it could be neither French-Canadian nor suggestive of English Canada - - - there mustn't be any geographic or regional ring to it - - - and, of course, it wouldn't hint of anything political, like "Tory," a name that led all the rest in the mail reaching the Prime Minister's office.

In short, it had to be a name acceptable to everybody, a name that couldn't possibly be exploited politically by any party, particularly the Opposition.

GREAT CAMPAIGNER

Since his "christening," Happy, politically neutral though he is supposed to be, has been in there pitching for the PM.

He is good for a picture, which gets into all the newspapers, every time anybody of note visits the Prime Minister, or Mrs. Diefenbaker presides at a social function at 24 Sussex Drive, the official residence.

In the loot that Happy has been assembling, is an indoor back-yard, a picket fence painted green and enclosing a New England style centre-door Cape Cod cottage, in red clapboard with a green roof and white trim.

The layout, looking something like a baby's playpen, has been set up in the Diefenbaker basement, in the same room where the PM keeps his 32 honorary degrees, his collection of caricatures and cartoons and a garish "portrait" done of him by former National Gallery Director Alan Jarvis in old bottle tops, odds and ends of string, a rag mop and other assorted junk all glued together in a mess of lumpy oil paint.

There may be great issues up for debate, national decisions in the making, the Throne Speech, the Budget and a General Election in the political works . . . but an awful lot of people, instead, are watching a 10-weeks-old honey-beige Labrador pup.

Dogs, like babies, are great political props. In an election year, the pups get patted and the infants bussed.

Balloons Once Common

St. Thomas Times-Journal

Mrs. Alfred Wolfe, a native of Hamilton, took off from Big Springs, Texas, early on a late fall Sunday morning in a balloon and 40 hours and eight minutes later landed at Boley, Okla. beating the previous distance flown by a woman.

A generation is growing up that has never seen a balloon, except, perhaps, in a book or magazine. Toward the latter part of the last century, James Gordon Bennett, New York publisher, offered a trophy for an international balloon race, and for years it was an international event. The United States won most races before interest died out after the advent of heavier than air machines. Two American balloonists in 1910 made a record for distance of 1,173 miles.

Time was when a balloon ascent, sometimes with a parachute descent for added thrill, was a special attraction at Canadian fall fairs. The bag took a long time to fill and people stood for hours watching it being inflated. Balloons were used for observation of military dispositions as early as the American Civil War. They were also used during the siege of Paris in 1870, especially for carrying mail out of the city, about 2,500,000 letters thus being sent. They were used as recently as the First World War for observation purposes and in the Second World War in the form of balloon barrages for protection of cities against low level aircraft attack.

The discovery that bodies could be raised into space was something like James Watt's discovery of steam for power when he sat by the fire and watched a kettle boil. In 1872, two French brothers, Joseph and Jacques Montgolfier, sat by the fire watching smoke curl up the chimney, and the thought occurred to them that smoke could be used to raise bodies in the air. Next year in the presence of the king and a great gathering of notables, they rose in the first real balloon carrying people in a basket hanging from below.

There is no means of steering a balloon. Its course is dependent on the direction of the wind. The way to bring it down is by operating a lever to let air out.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

GODS AND HALF-GODS

There are few things which disturb children more painfully than to have to pick up with their family, move to another community, enter another school, and make new friendships.

A little six year old was sad one evening because it was the last night in the town in which she had been born and brought up. That night she said her prayers and her final petition was: "God bless mommy, and daddy, and brother, and sister, and all my friends. And this is goodbye to you too God, because we're moving tomorrow."

All ancient people had the idea that each nation and each section of the country had its own particular deity. Move out of that section and you moved away from the protection of that god. This little girl was thinking what everybody believed centuries ago — move out of an area and you move away from the protection of the God of that area.

There are some people who have divided their lives in such a way that God rules some areas and not others. He rules the church area, the contribution area, the Bible reading and prayer area. He does not rule the business area, the sex area, the gossip area, the grudge area. The devil rules all these and does a devastating job. God rules the "holy" areas. Satan rules all the others.

How about you? Do you believe in one God or many?

Transmitted Follies Upset Progress

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices:

When a book doesn't require much thought from its reader, we may be sure it didn't require much from its author either; when we go through a book "easily," it goes through us just as easily.

The reason it takes the human race so long to make even the barest progress was aptly put by Isaac Goldberg many years ago, when he observed: "We spend half our lives unlearning the follies transmitted to us by our parents, and the other half transmitting our own follies to our offspring."

The best way to refute a bad argument is to encourage the speaker to continue — the longer he talks, the more obvious his contradictions become. To suppress the speech of a demagogue is to remove the most effective weapon against him.

It is a naive mistake to believe there is always a right way and a wrong way — there is always a right way, and a hundred wrong ways.

A statesman is a man who has made a solemn resolve to deal in the truth — when he has turned 70 and is beginning to write his memoirs.

Unhappily married couples always imagine that other families live more harmoniously; the prevalence and intensity of domestic conflict remains one of the world's best-kept secrets.

Some anonymous Eastern sage expressed a fine irony about money when he said, "Be not concerned if thou findest thyself in possession of unexpected wealth; Allah will provide an unexpected use for it."

Most of the characters who review books and discuss other "cultural" matters on television ought to be fined for indecent exposure of the mind.

At least most of the physical exhibitionists have splendid bodies; but most of the intellectual exhibitionists are pathetically under-developed.

Whenever I hear of a man well into his 30's who is still "pursuing" his studies, I begin to fear he will never overtake them. Scholarship should be a way of penetrating reality, but for many it is merely a way of evading it.

As soon as we begin "giving the Devil his due," we find more and more due to him.

People who call for a return of the "old-fashioned virtues" forget the old-fashioned vices that went with them; nostalgia is just an emotional resistance against coping with the present.

Well Chewed Food Digests Easier Than Gulped Chunks

Dear Dr. Molner: Is there harm in feeding an infant from two to six months old rapidly? I have seen so many mothers, including my daughter, feed their babies another mouthful when the first one hasn't been swallowed. I say it is feeding too fast. — Mrs. Slow Eater

I'm afraid you're unduly upset. If you are a slow eater, then slow eat — and bless you. Well-chewed food digests easier than gulped chunks.

But with baby food, the "chewing" is already done; strained foods have been pulverized the way they would be treated by teeth — of which infants haven't any.

If a baby is fed so fast that he gags, then it's too fast. Otherwise the speed at which food is spooned into him doesn't matter to any significant degree. Nature, fortunately, provides an automatic protection.

If a baby is getting food faster than he can handle it, he'll refuse to open his mouth, or let the excess dribble down his chin, or even (in an emergency) blow a mouthful of strained spinach all over his bib.

Dear Dr. Molner: We have several diabetics in the family. At school age they took insulin and watched their diets at all times. They are now grown and eat all foods, but take enough insulin. They seem to get along fine. What's your opinion? — C.M.M., SR.

My opinion? They'll always have to take insulin, always have to keep the amount of food (especially sugar) within the amounts that can be compensated by the insulin. But diabetes patients who, consistently, follow the rules, live long and happy lives.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am one of the many people who cannot take penicillin and am trying to find out where to purchase a silver band or bracelet, with wording to this effect, to wear all the time. I do a lot of traveling and feel this would be a good thing—in case of an accident. — Mrs. C.G.

I agree. It's an excellent idea for anyone with a severe sensitivity, whether penicillin, tetanus antitoxin or other medication is involved. Diabetics also often carry this type of identification.

Jewelry stores carry such bracelets, or sometimes can show you different styles in catalogs. I've also seen such things advertised. Or, of course, it is not prohibitively costly to buy a bracelet that suits you, and have the warning engraved by the jeweler.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have just turned 14 years old. I have not yet started to menstruate. I had a few cramps but never at any certain time of every month. All my friends have started, and I am wondering if something could be wrong. — Wondering

It's human to want to grow up quicker when we are young, and to stay young longer when we are old. There isn't much we can do about either except to live sensibly, stop worrying, and accept life the way it is — and it's part of life for us all to have variations from average.

At 14, I wouldn't worry at all. Some boys shave a year or two (or more) earlier than others. It doesn't mean anything. It's the same with your "problem." We all have harmless, minor variations.

As to "cramps," many women never have them; only a very few always have them. And they won't, in any event, come at "a certain time of every month." The average cycle occurs every four weeks, so the time shifts two or three days each month. Except February, since it is usually a month of exactly four weeks.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Those of us who are of the age at which we do not expect to be here twenty years from now are free to amuse and entertain ourselves by speculating on what the world is going to be like in another two decades. For example, there are sounds now generally accepted as being music which certainly would not have been tolerated by either the public or even the majority of musicians twenty years ago. Such a howling, hooting and wailing as passes for singing in the great majority of popular recordings today, as compared with, say, Bing Crosby's cautious "vuh-vuh-vuh" innovations of twenty years ago, permit us to imagine some pretty awful noises by 1982.

If jazz and pop bands progress for the next twenty years at the rate and in the direction they have come in the pasty twenty, the strangled tone of trumpets the thumping and banging of drums, the slightly off-key hoot owling of saxophones, together with whatever new noises they can think up, will make the 1982's something to look forward to, for those who have to.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

A GREAT ART

A friend told me the other day that he liked a certain man because he always made him smile.

What an art — to make people smile!

I recall attending a movie one evening when one of those comedies was put upon the screen. There was one fellow in the audience who had a laugh that woke up the entire house — so the picture got a double laugh — one because of what it was and one because of what it did to that one man.

There is nothing truer than the old Earth must borrow its mirth — for it has troubles enough of its own.

Never leave your friend unhappy. Make him smile — over something, be it ever so trivial.

I am for the "funnies," the comics in newspapers, and the stories that are created to give people a "lift" or smile.

Anyone can make another want to cry or hurt his or her feelings. But it takes the rare person to make another laugh.

Why not aim to be a rare person?

Jokes and stories should be part of the daily menu. They are as essential as good bread. In fact, they should go hand in hand. Jokes and good stories should be used as salt is at the dinner table. Food digests so much better with a good story tickling the stomach juices.

And the man or woman with a sense of humor in his or her veins lives the longest and enjoys life the most, no matter how many troubles either may have had or does have.

"Laugh and the world laughs with you.
Weep—and you weep alone.

Uranium Sales To Outside Countries Dip

By JOHN E. BIRD

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's loss of rich uranium export caused a further sharp reduction in uranium production in 1961 and an additional decline in output is expected this year.

Eldorado Mining and Refining Limited, Crown-owned uranium purchasing and marketing agency, announced Wednesday that deliveries of uranium by mines last year dropped to 9,557 tons, lowest figure in four years.

Value of the 9,557 tons was $201,328,460, compared with deliveries of 12,338 tons in 1960 worth $262,124,140.

Deliveries last year were the lowest since 1957 when they totalled 6,636 tons with a value of $136,304,000. In 1958 deliveries rose sharply to 13,403 tons worth $279,538,000 and increased in 1959 to a record 15,892 tons valued at $331,143,000.

Reduced production reflects the plan to stretch out until 1966 uranium exports to the United States and Britain under contracts expiring in mid-1962 and mid-1963.

WILL BE BELOW

Deliveries in 1962 will be well below the 9,557 tons delivered last year and may be as low or lower than those in 1957, an Ottawa source said.

In the fourth quarter of 1961 deliveries totalled 2,150 tons valued at $44,787,657, down from 3,175 tons worth $67,119,370 in the corresponding period in 1960.

Meanwhile Canada is continuing negotiations with Britain in connection with the sale of 12,000 tons of uranium.

Under a 1957 letter of intent, Britain committed itself to buy this quantity of uranium at $8 a pound—a total price of $192,000,000. It was to have been delivered in the 1963-66 period.

However, with the development of a glut in uranium supplies, Britain has been unwilling to enter a firm purchase contract under these conditions.

MAY BE LOWER

Britain doesn't want to take delivery now and it's understood that when a contract is signed it will call for a lower price—perhaps in the vicinity of $5.25 a pound. Deliveries also will likely start in 1966 instead of being completed in 1963-66.

Signing of an agreement with Britain is not expected for some time. W. M. Gilchrist, president of Eldorado, now is in London for further talks on a contract with Sir Roger Makings, chairman of the British Atomic Agency.

Report Molotov In Hospital, 'Heart Trouble'

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Vyacheslav Molotov, 71-year-old former Soviet foreign minister, is in a hospital suffering from a heart ailment, a reliable Soviet source said today.

The source said he has been in hospital for the last 10 days.

There was no immediate confirmation of the report from official Soviet sources here.

Molotov was said to be in the Kremlin hospital on the other side of the road from his fourth-floor apartment in a government block near the Lenin Library.

The source said he was being treated by a woman doctor who had stated that his condition was "not serious" and he would be leaving the hospital "soon."

Molotov's wife Pauline, a former chief of a Soviet cosmetic trust and the Soviet fish industry, has been visiting him regularly, the source said.

The number of the hospital is not listed in any telephone book and is not made available from the Moscow telephone information department.

"Look at them," he said. "They got it. They're steady. They're all right."

Afterward, the three men walked the wire to a platform at one end. As soon as they stepped on to the platform, ending the act, the silent crowd of 5,000 burst into thunderous applause.

Today the Wallendas were to decide on funeral plans for their dead: Richard Faughnan, [illegible]-year-old husband of the former Jenny Wallenda, and Dieter Schepp, a 23-year-old nephew whom Karl Wallenda managed 10 months ago to rescue from Communist East Germany.

Faughnan had called the high wire the "safest place in the world."

"I'll never die up there," he had assured his stepmother.

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

There is a tribe vanishing, leaving the scene without so much as a dying gasp.

"Grandma" - the kind we used to know is virtually dead.

Today, girls are marrying at 17 or 18, promptly have children. They stand a good chance of being grandmothers at the age of 36 or 37.

"Grandma" and "grandpa" once suggested images that were mature and sedate, people filled with at least a touch of the wisdom of age. Grandma's were, until recently, at least valuable and dependable baby-sitters, people who could be relied upon to be around when everyone else wasn't.

But the grandma now aborning will probably be hiring baby-sitters herself if she's not too busy getting ready her second divorce. She probably won't be around to give advice; she may be too concerned with getting it from the same psychiatrist who looks after her granddaughter.

What has brought all of this about?

First is our relative abundance in material things. One sociologist suggests that this is the question now being asked in many homes where youthful marriage is contemplated: "Who is going to support them - her father or his?"

Then, there is the increasing specialization in our society. Before a man can be adequately and fully prepared for his future work, then to seek the opportunities for growth in his career, he despairs of the possibility of waiting for achieving financial independence. He can't be expected to wait - and so he marries without it.

Next is the current tendency for tender youths of 15 or 16 to "go steady." They "go," "go steady" and are "gone" into marriage before they know what it really means, and what they have been "steady" about.

Finally, a new phenomenon has made its entry into our culture. For generations women fought for cultural emancipation, for equal opportunities for education and jobs. Many of them have now turned their youthful backs upon higher education - a counter-revolution is in the making. Truth to tell, many young ladies, after a year or two at college, have had their fill, and are more and more content to regard the most importan degree no an M.A. or M.S. but the "Mrs." Universities, for many women, are regarded as sublimated hunting grounds, at best as matchmaking schools. For many belles - school bells are less musical than wedding bells.

Young grandmothers are pleasant to behold. But they may only be symptomatic of a sight less alluring. Mounting divorce rates may not be unrelated to the creation of a new "middle age" in which, women find themselves with children off their hands and with time heavily placed on them. And still they remain in revolt - they rebel against their own revolution, for they are ill-prepared to fill in the empty hours they themselves have created. The fight against boredom always manages to get itself called youthful nerve. But it doesn't end up in victory. Often, in concludes with broken and dismembered homes, conspicuous and extravagant waste and marriages that never go steady - because they went steady, with too little, too early.

Fares on TTC Will Be Raised

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Transit Commission will be forced to raise its fares within two or three years in order to meet debenture costs of two subways systems, TTC Chairman Clarence Downey said Wednesday night.

Mr. Downey said in an interview he would tell the Metropolitan Toronto executive Friday night the fares must be raised if the TTC is to remain self-sustaining.

Present cash fare is 20 cents.

He said introduction to the two-zone fare structure, effective Thursday, will mean a loss to the TTC of between $110,000 and $150,000 this year.

The system carried 267,582,653 passengers last year against 282,227,939 in 1960 and travelled 48,136,000 miles in 1961 as compared to 49,170,000 the previous year. In 1960 the TTC showed a profit of $1,100,000.

Largest French-Canadian Town West of the Rockies Trying to Keep Identity

The sign indicates something more than a Quebec version of a credit union. It marks the headquarters of an operation to facilitate the building of homes—homes for French - speaking Canadians.

It strives with considerable success to keep as many young French - Canadian families as possible firmly anchored in this town 15 miles east of Vancouver where, in unity, the habitants can survive instead of spreading through British Columbia and being swallowed up.

For, with 600 French families, Maillardville is the largest French - Canadian town west of the Rockies.

Once the visitor is aware of the French fact in Maillardville, it becomes easier to find more of it. A few shop names, and many street names—though invariably given English pronunciation—can be detected.

LAVAL SQUARE

Brunette Street is the main road through the settlement. A few blocks above it is Laval Square—not Carre Laval. Focal point of the square is the church of Notre Dame de Lourdes, the heart of the first French-language parish in B.C.

The pastor, Rev. Alberic Frechette, lives next door. Well-suited to his present posting, Father Frechette was born in Massachusetts and grew up in French - language colonies of Rhode Island.

"The situation here is very similar to that in the States," he said. "But here at least, the two languages are official. We can feel at home.'

They sought out families in Ottawa and Hull, Que., and on Sept. 22, 1909, 110 boarded a special train of 13 cars in Montreal for new homes in the bush three miles outside New Westminster.

NAMED FOR PRIEST

They lived in baggage cars for two weeks while homes were built on half - acre plots sold them for $150 by their new employers. The company also gave them material for a church, school and rectory.

With them came Father Maillard, an Oblate, who said mass the first Sunday after they arrived — in a loft above the company store. When he left in 1912, the community bore his name.

Since then, Maillardville has developed quietly, but on a strong French line. No longer is it semi-isolated. Subdivisions are springing up all around. Part of Notre Dame de Lourdes parish was recently cut off to form a new English - speaking Roman Catholic parish.

Father Frechette, not worried by the district's burgeoning development, describes Maillardville as a "real fort of French culture and language."

Says Companion Kicked Victim Three Times

TORONTO (CP) — John Hallman, 21, of Hanover, Ont., testified Wednesday against a companion accused with him of manslaughter in the death of Charles Nicholls, 38, of Toronto.

Hallman, formerly of Toronto, said Reno Taylor, 28, kicked Nicholls three times as he lay on the ground outside a downtown Toronto tavern June 16. Nicholls died in hospital Aug. 28.

Hallman said he had been drinking beer with Taylor during the evening and had one or two more beers at the Parkside Tavern.

"I was just feeling good," he said. "Taylor was really loaded."

He said that as they were leaving the Parkside Taylor was hit by a swinging door and that a fight following after the man who swung the door did not apologize. Hallman said he was punched in the eye and the mouth.

He said he punched Nicholls in the face and they they wrestled to the ground. At that point, he said, Taylor came over and kicked Nicholls. He said he had not himself kicked Nicholls.

Nicholls died of internal injuries. A doctor testified earlier that one of his injuries was a ruptured pancreas, an extremely rare injury.

The trial continues.

Wilsons Whip Northern In Hoop Tilt

The Trenton Wilsons, minus the services of ace scorer Bob Burleigh, still had enough scoring punch to whip the hapless Belleville Northern Electric 91-15 in a Bay of Quinte basketball league game played last night.

Wilsons walked all over the Northern crew, building a 48-9 lead by half time, and going on in the second half to register the easy win.

Two games scheduled for tonight, pit Crawford Metals against RCAF at the air station while Belleville Lightfoots visit the Picton Prospects.

Wilf Borden led the Wilsons in last night's tilt, scoring 27 points. Carl Crews and Ernie Clarke each hit for 19 while Warren Whitley had 16.

Harry Green, with four points, was high man for Northern.

KENNEDY

Pierre Salinger, has been invited to visit Moscow in May or June. His trip is being billed as a mission to improve Soviet-U.S. communications. But some American commentators have raised the question whether in fact Salinger is going to Moscow to prepare the way for a Kennedy trip later.

Adzhubei, who published a long interview with Kennedy in the Soviet newspaper Izvestia last November, conferred both with the president and with Salinger but details of their talks were not disclosed.

The president struck a light, cheery note when he joked about Adzhubei's two appointments—as head of Izvestia and member of the Soviet central committee — thereby combining "two hazardous professions, politics and journalism."

But the smiling Soviet faces, nine rows back of the president's rostrum, turned rigid when Kennedy immediately afterwards hailed the Latin American action in Punta del Este condemning Cuban communism.

"It is the first time," said Kennedy exuberantly, "the independent American states have declared with one voice that the concept of Marxism-Leninism is incompatible with the inter-American system and they have taken explicit steps to protect the hemisphere's ability to achieve progress with freedom."

He indicated the U.S. now may proceed with its big economic aid program for the Latin Americans under the Alliance for Progress.

Prime Minister Doubts Act Will Pass Congress

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker was reported to have expressed doubt Wednesday that President Kennedy's tariff - cutting program can clear the United States Congress.

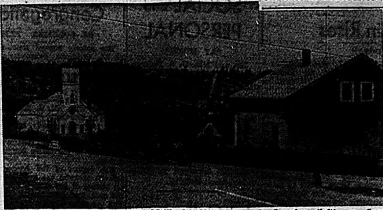
Members of a 75 - man farm delegation said he took the view that he would be surprised if the Kennedy proposals — designed to reduce tariff barriers multilaterally in reaction to the European Common Market influence — got congressional approval.

The Market and Britain's entry negotiations with it were major items discussed as the National Farmers Union made its annual submission to the federal cabinet.

President Al Gleave told a press conference that the farm union's proposal for federal legislation to permit national marketing boards also was prominent, along with the transportation royal commission's recommendations on railways.

The NFU brief urged that Canada take the initiative in direct negotiations with Britain, western Europe and the U.S. "The recent action taken by the president of the U.S. to reach agreement with the ECM countries on mutual reductions of import tariffs emphasizes the urgency of a clarification of Canadian policy."

The prime minister was said to have reiterated that Canada can't join the common market and that the Canadian emphasis is on retaining as much protection as possible for Canadian produce exported to Britain.



BIT OF FRENCH CANADA—Maillardville, with 600 French families, is the largest French-Canadian town west of the Rockies. Located 15 miles east of Vancouver, one of the town's main landmarks is the Church of Notre-Dame de Lourdes (left) on Laval Square. It was around the church, first French-language parish in British Columbia, that Maillardville started to grow in 1909. (CP Photo).

Albino Beaver Found in Trap

Ralph Franklyn of Queensboro, a veteran of many years with the traplines discovered the rare animal. The pelt measured 53 inches.

He reported his find to the Lands and Forest Tweed office. Conservation officer T. Hutchinson said he did not believe the animal's pelt would have any increased value because of its color.

The officer said hunters have come across an albino deer in some parts of the northland, but a beaver of this nature is a distinct rarity.

The Curtain Rises

By SYLVIA DOLAN

If activity dispels winter doldrums, there is indeed one happy group in our midst!

As the January monthly meeting of the Belleville Theatre Guild progressed, members enthusiastically received an exciting variety of plans for the remainder of the theatrical season. Mrs. David Jardine, who chaired the meeting on Wednesday evening, January 24th, first outlined activities to take place in the Workshop Division of the Guild. It was announced that rehearsals were running smoothly for the two one act plays that are to be presented for the public on February 2 and 3rd at the City Recreation Centre.

These two plays promise an evening of fine entertainment and are being directed by Mr. Harry Mulhall. Theatre-goers will be delighted wth the broad wit and absurb humor of the Russian classic, "The Marriage Proposal," by Anton Chekhov. The second production of the evening will be "Krapp's Last Tape," by Samuel Beckett which enjoyed a long run in an off-Broadway theatre and also at the Crest Theatre in Toronto.

FIRST PRESENTATION

It is interesting to note that Mr. Mulhall's production of this play will be the first presentation outside of Toronto.

Plans are also being considered for entering a play in the One-Act Play Festival which is to take place in May at Deep River, Ontario. Play-readings are to continue every other Tuesday evening within the Workshop Division and Mr. Mark Heitshu will produce a workshop play during the Spring season.

Mrs. Jardine announced the news that many members had been looking forward to with anticipation. The Belleville Theatre Guild will be a definite entry in the Eastern Ontario Drama League Three Act Play Festival to be held in Kingston March 27th and 31st. Other entries in this regional competition will include plays from Ottawa, Cornwall, Hull, Brockville and Kingston. The festival will be adjudicated by Mr. Peter Symoox of Montreal and New York.

EXPERT CRITICISM

A festival of this calibre presents an opportunity for amateur groups to receive expert criticism on staging, directing and acting. Awards are presented in these fields and the winner becomes a possible entrant in the Dominion Drama Festival to be held in Winnipeg, Manitoba, in the late spring. Mr. Kingsley Thomas will direct the Belleville entry, "The Chalk Garden" by Enid Bagnold, a play considered to be of excellent calibre for festival entry. Casting will be completed during the coming week and intensive rehearsing will begin immediately. . .

GUEST SPEAKER

The evening's guest speaker was most appropriately chosen for this occasion, and Mrs. Jardine introduced Miss Marion Webb, of Kingston, who is chairman of the Eastern Ontario Drama League Miss Webb stated that her goal for the year was to visit as many groups as possible to explain more clearly the functions of the Dominion Drama Festival and the EODL.

Under the set-up of the DDF she explained that Canada is divided into 14 regions and each region sub-divided into eight zones. The Eastern Ontario Drama League is zoned with the Quonta Region and therefore a winner from either region may be the one to proceed to Winnipeg for the Dominion Drama Festival.

PARTIAL PAYMENT

Miss Webo explained that the DDF undertakes partial payment of expenses for all groups entering the final festival. Therefore their operating expenses range from 50 to 60 thousand dollars per year.

Canada Council contributes to this with the aid of other groups including the Canadian Association of Broadcasters and private donations are also given. The C.A.B. has undertaken sponsorship of the Dominion Drama Festival for the next five years with individual stations contributing individually.

In connection with the Eastern Ontario Drama League Miss Webb stated that she expected to travel at least 10,000 miles on official business. In 1933 the E.O.D.L. began functioning with one act plays, from these progressing to a combination of one and three act plays. This year it was decided that only three act plays would be accepted and the one act festival will take place separately at Deep River, Ontario. Miss Webb felt that more courses were required within the E.O.D.L. region in order to provide further training.

The progress of the organization was pointed up by the fact that six plays have been entered in this festival in Kingston this year as opposed to only three last year at Cobourg.

The E.O.D.L. also publishes a Newsletter for all member groups in order that news of activities may be shared.

Other undertakings include the annual Weekend Conference held last year in Kingston, which will take place again next September. Miss Webb stated that sizes of groups belonging to E.O.D.L. range from the very large Ottawa group to newly - formed organizations such as the Bancroft Little Theatre. Close liason is maintained with the Community Programs Branch in organizing conferences and special courses.

ONE WEEK COURSE

At the present time plans are being negotiated for a one week course to be held tentatively at the Kemptville Agricultural School. The Senior Directors Course initiated last year will be held again this season and will perhaps be located at Belleville. Outstanding study is provided in this course by Dr. Schneiderman of Northwestern University.

Miss Webb commended the Belleville Theatre Guild on their Workshop Program and stated that many other groups in this region are interested in following the example, in order to keep members active and interested.

EXCHANGE VISITS

She also stressed the importance of groups exchanging visits to performances and maintaining closer contact in order that E.O.D.L. might continue to grow. Miss Webb was thanked by Mr. M. Heitshu and members enjoyed an informal chat with their guest over refreshments.

Alpha Lambda Sponsors Black Gold Ball

A touch of "Gay Paree" was the keynote at the Club Commodore last Friday evening when Alpha Lambda chapter, Beta Sigma Phi held its annual Black and Gold Ball.

Mrs. M. White and her decorating committee were responsible for the clever decorating and guests entering the club were delighted to see a chorus line of "Can Can girl" pin-ups complete with colorful billowing crinolines. Inside the hall, the pillars were decorated to resemble lamp post with Parisienne street signs.

Receiving the guests were: Mr. and Mrs. John Hayman, and Mr. and Mrs. William Tatham.

Soft candlelight glowed from the tables surrounding the darkened dance floor, while the gay crowd danced Mr. Stan Kostashuk acted as master of ceremonies and anounced the winners of spot dances and door prizes donated by various Belleville merchants.

A sumptious buffet supper, planned and prepared under the direction of Mrs. N. Desmond, was served from two beautifully appointed tables each centred with a silver bowl of exquisite yellow roses and flanked by gleaming silver candelabra.

Dancing continued until one o'clock bringing to a close yet another successful sorority ball.

Art Gallery Presented With Silver Statue

As far as it is known, this is the largest and most important example of the silversmith's art produced in Canada. The statue is two feet two inches high.

Made by Salomon Marion (1782-1832) in Montreal about 1820, the design is linked with that of a similar figure of the Virgin made in France, which was given by Louis XIV to the Parish Church of Notre Dame, Montreal, in 1715. Marion used this statue as a model for the one now being given to the National Gallery.

Congregational Meetings

ST. COLUMBA PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The second annual meeting of St. Columba Presbyterian Church was held on Tuesday evening. The minister, the Rev. N. Hutchinson, opened the meeting with prayer. Presiding throughout the meeting was the minister with Mr. J. Hayman acting as secretary.

A mimeographed booklet containing all activity and financial reports for 1961 was available to the entire congregation.

The report of the Assessor Session stressed the growth in all phases of the church under the continued guidance of God. The Assessor Session from St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, composed of Mr. V. Weir, as clerk; Mr. D. Kane, Mr. W. Marner and Mr. K. D. Taylor, has been carrying on the spiritual aspect of the mission church for the past year. In December, nominations for eldership in St. Columba Church were received and the election and ordination of same will take place early this year.

The Assessor Session acknowleged with appreciation the following organizations and leaders within the church; the children's choir, under the direction of Mrs. William Bowles and Mrs. R. R. Brain; the children of the church (C.O.C.) led by Mrs. J. Olaveson and Mrs. W. Bowles; the Explorers under the leadership of Mrs. G. Devolin; Brownies guided by Mrs. D. Kuhn and Mrs. P. Rawlyck; the Senior High Fellowship under the leadership of Bob Dunsmore and the minister; the Church School with Mr. K. D. Taylor as superintendent, and the women's groups, the Alpha and the Iona.

The Board of Managers, under chairman Dr. R. R. Brain, had an active year. As 1961 was the first complete year of the St. Columba congregation, separate from St. Andrew's church, the decisions and challenges of the Board of Managers were many. Several recommendations of the Board were accepted unanimously by the assembly.

The church school superintendent noted that the teaching staff had been increased to keep pace with the growing student body. Although the home should be the basic training ground for the youth, the church school with only one hour of instruction each week can only hope to supplement proper home training.

In November the inauguration of the Association of Presbyterian Women took place with Mrs. A. Dunsmore elected as president of this directing group. This Association unites all the women of the church in fellowship, study, service and worship. Under this parent association are the two women's groups, the Alph and the Iona.

The building and planning committee kept the congregation informed throughout the year on its progress. As chairman of this committee, Mr. R. Blatchford reported that the building of a sanctuary should begin in April.

COMMITMENTS

Visiting the local congregational meeting was the Rev. Malcolm Mark, superintendent of Home Missions for the Synod of Toronto-Kingston. With his active experiences in supervising newly formed congregations, Mr. Mark was able to outline the commitments and challenges facing St. Columba congregation.

Mr. J. Fullerton, church treasurer, reported on the financial contributions to all three allocations — the budget, the current account, and the building fund.

A social hour followed the adjournment of the meeting.

Bees, Honey Making Topic At W.I. Meet

The regular meeting of Bethel-Zion Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. E. Snider with a large attendance of members and visitors. The president, Mrs. Roy Sills presided.

Members were reminded of the next meeting at Mrs. Earle Sayers' on February 5. Also the short course which will be held on February 8 at Stirling.

Mrs. Sills turned the meeting over to Mrs. Gerald Tummon, convener for Home Economics and Health. Mrs. Tummon gave a reading, "Oh Give Me Patience." Mrs. Fred Sills gave a most interesting paper on "Rheumatism — Arthritis."

The guest speaker for the afternoon was Mrs. Clayton Sullivan, who gave a detailed account of honey bees and the making of honey, which was interesting.

Foxboro UCW Meets, Elects 1962 Officers

The first meeting of the United Church Women of Foxboro, was held in the church with the president, Mrs. C. Hubble, presiding. In her opening remarks Mrs. Hubble said this being a new year and a new venture she thought the poem, "Stairway of the Year" by Theresa E. Thompson, a good reading with which to begin the meeting.

The devotional was in charge of Mrs. C. H. LaRue and Mrs. W. L. Johnston. A hymn read in unison was followed by the reading of the Scripture, Colossians 1:15-17 and John 1:1-5 by Mrs. Johnston. Meditation on the Scripture was given by Mrs. LaRue, who also gave the prayer which followed. A hymn and prayer closed the devotional.

No program had been prepared as much business was to be completed. Mrs. G. Gay read the budget as prepared by the budget committee, using the 1961 expenditures as a guide. It was decided to use the envelopes for the general meetings which are to be held every other month, and every other general meeting to be held as a day meeting. The general meetings are to be held on the second Wednesday of the month.

Arrangements for catering to the Hart-Rombough wedding were completed.

A short meeting of each of the four units under the new leaders followed the general meeting.

Shepherd's Pie Modernized

by Mary Moore

Bunny has 36 ways of serving hamburger now and their house is nearly paid for. They call it the house that hamburger built.

Would you like the 38th hamburg recipe? It is particularly pretty and cheap and easy. Bunny serves it with an outsize green salad and big baked apples. For those who do not know, Bunny is my cousin-by-marriage.

Dinner Menus

THURSDAY (Guests)

Lasagne (see Wednesday — cut recipe in half); Light and Dark Green Salad: Spinach, Chinese Lettuce, Cucumbers, Onions, Parsley; Italian French Dressing; Apples Alden (see Tuesday) Rilda's Buttermilk Cake (see Tuesday); Tea.

SUNDAY

Barbecued Lamb Leg (see Monday); Parkerhouse Rolls (optional — see Friday); Combined Carrot Chunks and Cauliflowerets with Parsley Butter; Fresh Frozen Limas; Waldorf Salad (with seeded grapes); Two-Egg Sponge Cake (see Friday); Coffee.

SHEPHERD'S PIE — MODERNIZED:

1 package instant mashed potato (I used the "flake" type), 2 tablespoons fat, 1 lb. hamburger or ground beef, ¼ cup chopped onion, ¼ cup chopped celery, ½ teaspoon oregano, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ½ cup cracker crumbs, ½ cup tomato sauce (or broken up pulp from canned tomatoes plus a little catsup), 3 processed cheese slices, cut in wedges.

Prepare the package of instant mashed potato according to package directions, and with this mashed potato, line bottom and sides of a 9" well-greased pie plate or shallow casserole. Prick up the rim with a fork. Brown hamburger, onion and celery in the fat in frying pan. Remove from heat and add seasonings, cracker crumbs and tomato sauce or canned tomatoes and catsup (if used) and mix well. Spoon into mashed potato crust. Bake 30 minutes at 350 deg. Fahr. Garnish top with cheese wedges. Broil until cheese melts. Serves 6.

Baked apples are a good dessert to serve with this.

BAKED APPLES:

6 large cooking apples (preferably red), 2 tablespoons butter, ½ cup brown or white sugar, ⅛ teaspoon cinnamon, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 6 tablespoons water.

Wash and core apples. Do not peel but near top of apple insert point of a knife downward into apple and make a cut about half an inch deep completely around apple. Set apples in shallow baking dish. Cream butter, add sugar, cinnamon and salt and cream together. In centre of each apple place 1 to 3 teaspoons of mixture, depending on tartness and size of apple. Pour water into baking dish and place in oven. Bake apples uncovered at 350 deg. Fahr. 375 deg. Fahr. or 400 deg. Fahr. until tender, testing with a skewer. Baking time and temperature will depend on what else you have in the oven. If you bake them at 350 deg. Fahr. they will take 50 minutes. To serve, spoon juice from pan over apples. If desired, more water, butter, sugar, salt and spices may be added to juice. In addition to, or in place of, a butter-sugar-spice mixture one or more of the following fillings may be used: raisins, currants, candied ginger, cut peel, mincemeat, cranberries cranberry sauce, lemon juice, grated lemon rind, marmalade, jam, small hard candies honey maple sugar, nuts. A spoonful of meringue or a marshmallow may be placed on each apple 10 minutes before baking time is complete.

Friends Present Many Gifts to Mothers-To-Be

MADOC JUNCTION — A pleasant time was spent on Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Martin, when Mrs. Martin and Mrs. Keith Johnson were co-hostesses for a "Stork Shower" in honor of Mrs. T. Kovach and Mrs. F. White.

Despite the icy condition of the roads, a nice crowd of the neighborhood ladies and a few other friends were present.

During the evening, games and contests were enjoyed. Then the guests of honor were asked to take the chairs arranged for them. On behalf of all present, Mrs. Keith Johnson read an address for Mrs. Kovach and Mrs. Martin read one for Mrs. White. Mrs. Kovach and Mrs. White were then presented with lovely and useful gifts for which they each graciously expressed thanks.

Refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

Bayside H-S Hears Talks on Scouts, Retarded

At the recent Bayside Home and School Association, Mr. J. Gibson, treasurer, briefly outlined the duties of the Boy Scout leader as prescribed by the regulations from Scouting International, as well as explaining the raising of money for the various purposes, and the activities of the Scouts and Cubs.

Plans were made for the Fun Fair to be held in April with Mrs. Genereaux as organizer. This is usually the highlight of the year, both for the youngsters and the older folk.

Mrs. Ken Reid of Middleton Park, Trenton, spoke on Retarded Children, and the training needed, describing the local organizations and their problems of accommodation and financing.

Mrs. Reid was introduced and thanked by the president, Mr. George Miller.

Coffee was served by the ladies from Belcrest.

Looks for Far-Off Pen Pal

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—Could you advise me on how to acquire a pen-pal?

I am eleven years old. My mom told me to tell you that I'm white and Anglican. It doesn't matter if my pen-pal is white or Anglican of course. I don't speak or write any other language than English.

I don't want to sound fussy, but I'd like a pen-pal from another country than the United States or Canada. I enjoy doing things boys do better than things girls do, so it doesn't matter if my pen-pal is a girl or boy.—KATHY.

DEAR KATHY—There are pen-pals on the other side of the world. Some dark brown, some yellow, some redskins. Take your pick.

To find them, write to Mrs. R. T. Turner, Overseas Correspondence Department, United Nations in Canada, Markham, Ontario. Tell her about yourself so she can match you and your pal up properly.

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—I am a girl of 18 who is going with a man of 23. We got engaged at Christmas, but I'm so mixed up I don't know if I love him or not.

I had been terribly hurt before so I played hard to get. But wonder of wonders he practically worshipped me from the start and other girls meant nothing to him.

But there are times when I think he's not sophisticated enough for me and not too well educated. He brags too much for my liking. Then other times he can be so wonderful and understanding.

I try to forget his faults but don't succeed too well. I have gone out with about 40 boys before and none were as easy to get along with. Sometimes it seems as if we belong together and other times I feel I am too good for him. I hat myself for it.

Sometimes I feel like a stupid old nobody and can't understand how he can love me so much. What is wrong with our romance? I'm so CONFUSED.

DEAR CONFUSED:—Let's sort it out. He is 23. You are 18. Quite a gap. You have more education than he has. The bragging is in self-defence. If he is too easy going, he can spoil you—if you let him.

The unknown quantity, from where I sit, is whether your interests are mutual. Do you read the same books; like the same sports? How do you feel about children?

Love can grow. But don't depend on young emotions and physical attraction to carry you through.

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—I should like to locate information on budgets for a family of four. I am particularly interested in the $6,000 to $6,500 a year bracket.—POUND FOOLISH.

DEAR POUND—Ready-made budgets are hard to come by. Money matters are so personal. What one thinks important, another allows just nothing for.

I am sending you a pocket chart which indicates recommended percentages for food, shelter, home operation, clothing and so on, related to income and size of family.

Also I am sending an item which appeared in my column some months ago, supplying suggestions for keeping the budget within bounds.

• • •

(Get Doris to help you take a new look at what's bothering you. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: A most unfortunate thing happened during a party at our house last week. A friend lost a gold earring. She didn't miss it until she got home. She called me the next day. I turned the house inside out, but I couldn't find it. The earring is part of an expensive pair, and I know she feels very badly about losing it. Now I wonder if I should offer to replace it, since she lost it at my home. Would this be the correct thing to do? — Mrs. V.A.B., Trenton, N.J.

Answer: Since the earring wasn't missed until your friend returned home, she could have lost it in her car or on the train or bus, if she took a public conveyance. You might advise her to investigate these possibilities, as well. But even if it was lost in your home, you really aren't obliged to replace the earring. It obviously fell off because it wasn't on securely, or your guest absent-mindedly took it off and put it down in an obscure place. The loss was her own fault, and she should acknowledge it graciously.

• • •

Question: My husband and I have received a formal engraved invitation to the wedding of a friend. It's only for the ceremony. Should the invitation be acknowledged? — Mrs. C.C., Trenton, N.J.

Answer: No. Only one that includes an invitation to the reception has to be acknowledged.

• • •

Question: A friend sent us a set of cocktail glasses and a shaker for a wedding present. Unfortunately, when I opened the package I discovered that three of the glasses were broken. I'd send the set back to the store for replacement, but it came in a plain white box with no markings. Should I mention the breakage when I acknowledge the gift, or should I merely say thank-you and keep quiet about it? — Miss R.A., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: If the package was insured, then you should let the donor know about the breakage so he can be reimbursed for the damage and replace the glasses. If the package was not insured, then whether or not you advise the donor about the breakage depends on your relationship. You might want to let a close friend know, but you might not want to bother a casual acquaintance about it. It's a personal decision that only you can make.

• • •

Question: The young son of a friend started rooting around in my bureau drawers the other day, and I caught him just as he was fingering a manicure scissors. His mother never watches him when they come to visit, and he gets into everything. This time I scolded him, and his mother seemed quite upset about it. Is it wrong to stop a child from getting into mischief in your own home? — Mrs. B.H., Peekskill, N.Y.

Answer: The mother who takes her child visiting is responsible for his behavior and should dish out any discipline when he gets into trouble. However, if she neglects her duty, then the hostess certainly may steer the child away from difficulty. It should be done tactfully, though, and the hostess certainly should refrain from punishing, no matter what the provocation.

Cancer Society Reports on '61 Activities

An executive meeting of the local unit of the Canadian Cancer Society was held at 224 Pinnacle Street on January 23rd, at 5 p.m.

Mr. Clarence D. Fuzzen, newly elected president, was chairman for the meeting, and welcomed new members of the executive as well as former members.

Mrs. A. Mazer, treasurer, read the financial statement for operations to September 30th, the end of the financial year, and also the statement to December 31st. 1961.

CANCER FILMS SHOWN

Mrs. E. Logan, chairman of the Women's Service, gave a resume of educational activities for 1961. It was noted that films pertaining to cancer had been shown to a number of societies, also literature had been distributed and advertising had been done in the local paper.

Mr. Fred Deacon, campaign manager, outlined plans for the campaign in April.

The Society is looking for new members at all times and any person interested in joining this worthwhile Society is urged to contact the office at 224 Pinnacle Street or telephone WO 2-0686.

Many Baby Gifts Given to Mother-To-Be

SCOHARIE — On the evening of January 27, Miss Norma Foster entertained a number of friends and neighbors at a lovely baby shower for Mrs. Ross Foster and baby Elizabeth.

Mrs. Foster was seated in a decorated chair and, as the guests arrived, their prettily wrapped gifts were fastened to pink and white streamers flowing from the centre light fixture.

Miss Mary Huff conducted two contests, the winners being Mrs. Lyle Hagerman and Mrs. Keith Foster. Three-year-old Cathy Hanna handed the gifts to the guest of honor who opened them and passed them around for all to view. Margaret expressed her sincere thanks to all for their thoughtfulness and the beautiful gifts for baby and invited all to visit her.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mr. L.T. — Someone should talk sense into Stuart. He's throwing away a million dollar chance.

Stuart T. — It's not worth a cent if it means spending your life at something you hate.

• • •

Mr. L.T. — We have a son and a daughter. Roselle has started college, where she's majoring in languages. With Stuart graduating from high school next year, we're trying to interest him in a medical career. But all he talks about is engines and machinery. He can't wait to work full time in the service station where he had a summer job last year.

How can I stop him from such a mistake? I made a similar one. I went into business and, although I've made money, I've always regretted not having a profession, especially since my father is a physician and begged me to follow him in the field.

Stuart is an excellent student and would make a wonderful doctor. His grandfather would help him with his studies and make things easy.

• • •

Stuart T. — My grandfather wanted another doctor in the family. Just because it wasn't my father, why does it have to be me? Roselle is studying what she wants. I want to quit studying out of books and sitting at desks. I want to see things with my eyes and take them apart and put them together with my hands for a while.

Smiling Sam, down at the garage, tells me I'm the best part-timer he's ever had. I can tell what's wrong with a motor as well as he can, just from the sound. If I ever go back to a classroom, it'll be to study metals, fuels and mechanical engineering. It'll be to learn whatever I can't learn in the shops.

I'm sorry to disappoint Dad. But being a doctor doesn't appeal to me — too much reading.

The Council: With an eager beaver like Stuart trying to know all there is to know about matters mechanical, medicine's loss may well be Detroit's gain. After all, clogged transmissions can be almost as painful as indigestion! But we must warn him that somewhere along the line, if he wants to serve society fully, he'll have to buckle down to books — reading them, maybe writing them. Like money, they're an efficient medium of exchange.

For Mr. T., the words are good and bad. What he may not like to hear is that he had no right to expect, through slick indoctrination, that Stuart would round out the unfulfilled areas of his own life. He's trying to have it both ways — a career he picked for himself, plus a career he feels he should have picked for himself but can follow in his son's name. No can do!

We've all known people who are chained to work they don't like. Those who can't leave it, perform it in a dispirited robot-like way. Nothing creative comes out of it. Surely Mr. T. would not doom his son to a lifetime of plugging away at a pursuit whose only appeal for him is that his father and grandfather liked it. Evidently the hoped-for spark has not been kindled within Stuart.

But another spark has ignited. And this is the good word for Mr. T.: Stuart wants to master a hard calling. He wants to excel. He's eager to study facts, theories, procedures from the "grass roots" of the trade he likes, all the way to the engineering colleges. Two things may happen, both okay. Either he'll become a highly skilled mechanical expert, or he'll have his fill of pistons, cams and combustion, and decide that — come to think of it — medicine may be his forte as well as his grandpa's. A bright boy can succeed at almost anything, granted the emotional climate is right.

At any rate, Mr. T., there's the chance that your daughter Roselle may marry a doc, giving you a son-in-law, if not a son, in the field. Don't despair.

Beulah Louise Henry Called 'Lady Edison' by Friends

NEW YORK (AP)—Friends affectionately call Beulah Louise Henry "Lady Edison." She's often a couple of steps ahead of the U.S. patent office.

Miss Henry recently received a patent on a combination mailing and return envelope that can be manufactured in continuous strips and can be stuffed and addressed by machine.

The New York Times reports government files indicate the patent is the 45th obtained by the former southerner who won't tell her age but says she receives some Social Security payments.

She has a novel cooker in the process of being patented. For obvious reasons she wants its detail kept secret, but says the principle promises to add succulence to any roast or stew.

Meanwhile, she is working on a device to eliminate the need for carbon paper in a typewriter, to retail at $1.50. She has in mind, too, an "endless thread."

Miss Henry has been inventing things since she was a child in North Carolina.

She came to New York in 1920 with her mother and an idea for an umbrella with snap-on covers, so that a woman could carry an umbrella to match her dress. From this, Miss Henry received about $50,000.

Her favorite invention was a plush toy cow called Milkamoo. The cow could give milk, and inventing it netted her $7,000.

For the last 17 years, Miss Henry has lived and worked in an apartment at the Seville Hotel in Manhattan. For companions, she has a variety of birds and two turtles.

She claims no mechanical ability or scientific knowledge, but a mind that visualizes.

"If necessity is the mother of invention," she says, "then resourcefulness is the father."

H-S Assoc. Sponsors Fine Bridge, Euchre

DESERONTO — The attendance of the bridge and euchre party sponsored by the Home ance at the bridge and euchre Lions Hall last Wednesday nigrt was beyond the expectation of the committee in charge. The hall was jammed with tables and there was little room for more tables. Party began shortly after eight o'clock and continued almost to ten when the ladies served lunch to all present.

In the euchre William Houle won the top honors for top score for the men, while Mrs. Lena Carter of Marysville, won top honors for the ladies. Peter Whalen took the prize for the most lone hands. The high scores in bridge were won by Edmund Dowling and Mrs. William Saunders and the door prize by Mrs. Elinor Schell.

PRESENTATION MADE

During the lunch, a presentation was made from the Home and School Association to Mrs. Estella Jackson who has long been a member of the Association and is leaving for Toronto where she has secured employment. In thanking the Home and School for the gift, Mrs. Jackson said that she would always have a warm spot in her heart for the Deseronto group and hoped that all would give the association the support they deserved.

Tre convener for the evening was Mrs. Doris Gilligan, who was assisted by Mrs. M. Kudman, Mrs. W. Saunders, Mrs. J. Graham and Mrs. E. Gill.

The financial returns from the venture were good and the monies will be used to defray the expenses of a trip for the students in the Spring.

Club Activities

MESSENGERS CLUB

CENTENARY — On January 16th the Messengers held their first meeting in Centenary School under the leadership of Mrs. H. Melburn and Mrs. T. Dutton. This organization was formerly called the Mission Band but under the new plans of United Church is called "The Messengers".

The meeting was opened by repeating the members' purpose and singing the Mission Band hymn.

Roll was called by Gail Christopher with 69 present. The theme was "O, come let us make a joyful noise, to the Rock of Salvation." Scripture was Psalm 95.

Twenty-nine paid their dues. A poem "New Year" was read by Nancy Thompson. A guitar solo was given by Jim Haighway. Wenda Windsor and Brenda Douglas sang a duet, "Do You Know". The introduction of "The Messengers" was given by Mrs. Melburn, also the study book.

REACHES QUEBEC

Smiths, Browns And Millers Familiar Names

MONTREAL (CP)—No one is surprised to find such names as Lavoie, Dupuis and St. Pierre on the rolls of a club called Societe d'Etude et de Conferences.

What is surprising is the number of Smiths, Browns and Millers.

President Mrs. Laurent Gelly said that while the organization was formed primarily to promote culture, "now you might say we have a second purpose — the spreading of bilingualism."

"More and more English-speaking women who are studying French are finding membership in our organization a great help."

Some, such as Mrs. Donald Brown, speak French fluently but find they must use it regularly in conversation or risk getting rusty.

The 1,300-member society, affiliated with the University of Montreal's philosophy faculty, is aimed at women who want to keep their minds active after finishing formal studies.

In addition to hearing several visiting lecturers each year, the group is broken up into 87 circles which undertake their own studies on such topics as the Middle Ages and the art of the Aztecs. Each member is expected to give a paper during the year.

So far, except for a branch in Ottawa, the organization is confined to Quebec province.

Vandals Damage Toronto Dock

TORONTO (CP) — Vandalism and labor troubles have struck a new dock being rushed to completion by the Toronto Harbor Commission for the 1962 shipping season.

Alexander Morton, project supervisor for THC, said Wednesday $1,500 damage was done to ceiling lathing and light fixtures in the office area of the Edward L Cousins Dock. He said the damage was done between 5 p.m., when workers left the job, and 7 a.m. when they returned.

Meanwhile, members of the United Electrical Workers (Ind.) Tuesday refused to cross picket lines organized by the Lathers' International Union (CLC).

A dispute between the Lathers' and the Operative Plasterers and Cement Masons International Association (CLC) reached the project the day before the damage was done.

The union split developed when Lathers signed contracts with some firms in the management association but not with others. They began picketing the firms where no agreement had been reached.

Gen. E. A. Walker, Retired, Disturbed About Loyalty In the U.S. Government

By RELMAN MORIN

NEW YORK (AP) — Gen. Edwin A. Walker is a deeply disturbed man.

He is disturbed about loyalty in the United States government, about coexistence with the Communists, about some rulings of the US Supreme Court about several 'policy decisions' in foreign relations, about the position of the United States vis-a-vis the United Nations, about actions of the late secretary-general Dag Hammarskjold, and especially about the "media," meaning American newspapers, radio and television.

Discussing this last point during an interview with this reporter, he asked:

Earlier, in a speech, he said: "The image of America, as I have seen it in the Far East and the West, is distorted and grotesque . . . a picture of corruption, immorality and materialism. This kind of propaganda, combined with censorship, has hastened our retreat from victory through 16 years."

Walker's ideas, in some respects, closely parallel those of the recently - formed groups on the far right. The transcript of the army investigation of his conduct as a commander in Germany quotes him as saying he joined the John Birch Society in 1959 but never attended another of its meetings.

SPEAKS FOR HIMSELF

He told this reporter: "I m not being associated with any organization. I am not going to be a principal spokesman for anyone but Edwin A. Walker."

In any case, it seems unlikely that he would emerge as the leader of a unified rightist movement, should such unification ever take place.

Walker, 52, is a tall, handsome Texan.

He graduated from West Point in 1931 He was a combat commander during Second World War and in the Korean War. He commanded the troops sent to Little Rock, Ark., in the desegregation disturbances of 1957 "contrary to my personal wishes."

In 1959, he tried to resign from the army. His letter of resignation read in part:

" . . . The 5th column conspiracy and influence in the U.S. minimize or nullify the effectiveness of my ideas and principles, military mission and objectives . . ."

His resignation was refused. The army assigned him to command the 24th U.S. infantry division in Germany.

COLLISION DEVELOPS

His collision with Washington developed last April.

A pamphlet published by Walker says Arthur Sylvester, assistant secretary of defence of public affairs, telephoned him from Washington, April 15.

The pamphlet says Sylvester asked Walker whether he was using John Birch Society material in his troop - indoctrination program. Walker replied that he was not.

Sylvester then asked, according to the pamphlet, whether Walker had ever alluded to former president Truman and former state secretary Dean Acheson as "pink." Walker also denied this.

In response to the same question with regard to Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, the pamphlet says:

"Gen. Walker replied that he had referred to Mrs. Roosevelt as a pink; that his reference to her had been made a year or so before in a discussion meeting.'

Walker was relieved of his command. The army investigated these and other charges against him. When the inquiry ended, he was "admonished," then assigned to Hawaii as assistant chief of staff for training and operations.

Sylvester later said in a television interview:

"The basic issue in Gen. Walker's case had to do with what the army discovered itself. And that was, according to them, there is a prima facie case that he may well have violated both the federal Hatch Act and the army's counterpart of that—regulations which prevent army officers from trying to influence their troops in how to vote."

Sylvester said Walker had urged troops to consult an index which gave a "voting rating" of members of Congress. The army had identified this index as a document compiled by the conservative group, "Americans for constitutional action.'

Walker denies any improprieties. He says he was the victim of "censorship." He resigned and refused army retirement pay—$12,000 a year—in order to be free to conduct his campaign against those he feels are censoring information from soldiers and the public about communism.

Walker is courteous to a reporter, but he looks you straight in the eye and says: "The job at hand is to inform the public, which the media have failed to do. They are infiltrated, too."

He says: "Coexistence is in effect collaboration with the enemy."

What's the alternative? A shooting war?

"No, no," he replies. "The alternative is power strategy. It is the combined power of the people and the military, unified in a cause which becomes the power strategy for America. With God's blessing and what we've got, there isn't a power or combination of powers that would dare challenge us."

The United Nations?

"We have long since passed the point of no return in the UN. Hammarskjold was a long way from being the best thing that ever happened to America."

ARREST TWO MORE

TORONTO (CP) — Two persons charged with fraud Wednesday brought the number of arrests in an accident insurance claims case to 17. Police said the total amount in the case may amount to $200,000 and 40 arrests before the investigation is over.

10 Railway Police Officers Receive Long Service Medals

A total of 302 years' police service in the Canadian National Railways Investigation Department was recognized at Belleville yesterday as railway police officers from the Rideau area with more than 20 years' service were presented with police long service medals.

The presentations were made by J. A. Pollock, area manager, at Club Canara.

Among the ten men honored with police service medals were two retired constables formerly with the CNR at Belleville, G. H. Jerome of Shannonville and J. W. Skelly of Belleville.

Two of the men honored were from Ottawa, and one each from Brockville, Kingston and Cornwall, the remainder being from Belleville.

The police long service medals are sponsred by the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police and are to be presented to officers with 20 or more years' service with a recognized police force.

FIRST IN CANADA

Yesterday's presentation at Belleville was the first for the CNR in Canada and was also said to be the first for any police department in the Dominion. Mr. J. K. Chadwick, superintendent of investigation for the CNR St. Lawrence Region, acted as chairman for the presentation program.

The two retired Belleville CNR police constables, Mr. Jerome and Mr. Skelly, each had 36 years' service with the local railways investigation department, while Sgt. W. Old of Ottawa, who is to retire this summer, has 38 years on the force.

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario building contractors urged the provincial cabinet today to take a careful look before setting up any system of licensing to combate fly - by - night operators in the construction industry.

If a system of licensing is established, the contractors said, then labor unions should also be licensed and the construction industry should either run the scheme or lay down its terms.

The proposals were contained in a 24 - page brief submitted to a cabinet meeting by a delegation from the Canadian Construction Association, headed by National President Arthur G. Sullivan of Montreal and Ontario Vice - President T. G. Fuller of Ottawa.

A text of the brief was released to the press before delivery.

The question of licensing—recommended last October by Ontario's royal commission on industrial safety, among others, to bring stability to the industry — was prominent among the industry's submissions.

The industry brief added: "There is a widespread feeling that a more effective administration of existing legislation would meet the largely undefined objectives of those who advocate the 'licensing' of contractors as a means of reducing malpractices."

Noting the uproar which followed a recent Toronto magistrate's decision that employers have the right to dismiss striking employees, the industry said the government may be tempted to provide for a "right to strike" under the Labor Relations Act.

"We would point out that any such amendment should similarly grant employers a statutory right to lock-out. We would further stress that an employers' right to continue to operate an enterprise during a strike has never been challenged and that this right will require proper consideration under the law."

Londoners Facing Another Subway Strike on Monday; Post Office Slowdown Ends

LONDON (Reuters) — Members of the cabinet headed into a meeting today to deal with another "Monday only' transportation crisis that threatens to paralyze London once more—the biggest headache to the government in Britain's turbulent labor front.

An emergency committee of the cabinet led by Home Secretary R. A. Butler was called into session to look for ways of preventing a repetition of the virtual travel standstill that descended on the capital three days ago during the first "Monday only" stoppage by subway workers and some suburban railway men.

The subway workers held a stormy, closed - door meeting Wednesday night and reaffirmed their decision to strike again next Monday. Workers on surface rail lines in southeastern England already have decided to strike on that day.

London was one huge traffic jam last Monday when subway and rail commuters drove to work.

Press forecasts in advance of the Butler committee meeting said likely suggestions included closing offices Monday, with Saturday morning work as an alternative; hiring cars to bring essential personnel to their jobs and improving traffic control at River Thames bridges—the biggest bottlenecks three days ago.

SLOWDOWN ENDS

There was one bright spot in an otherwise gloomy labor picture—the ending of a month-long work-to-rule slowdown by 173,000 postal workers. Their leaders said Wednesday that the slowdown would end at noon today because Postmaster-General Reginald Bevins was prepared to discuss the workers' demand for higher pay.

However, the 73,000 - strong Post Office Engineering Union said it was continuing its week-long slowdown campaign against a wage freeze.

Leaders of 420,000 strike-threatening railway men working on the government-owned lines had what they called a "hopeful" meeting with the British Transport Commission chief, Richard Beeching.

A union spokesman said later: "There was a suggestion made that might bear fruit. We are one day nearer a settlement."

While the rail union men were talking to Beeching about their bid for more pay, London Transport Commission officials were conferring with representatives of 39,000 busmen, also seeking wage increases.

Meanwhile, the government was hit by a renewed demand for pay boosts by 500,000 civil servants. Earlier the white collar workers had called off a slowdown at the last minute after the government announced increases might be considered after the April 1 end of its "pay pause" or wage freeze austerity move—source of most of the unrest.

Demand Grows For Seat Belts

OSHAWA — The growing popularity of seat belts was underlined today with the announcement by General Motors of Canada that its dealers ordered 8,200 pair of belts for their customers during the first three months of the 1962 model year (October through December). This compares with 5,600 sets ordered during the entire 12 months of the 1961 model year.

Steadily increasing sales of seat belts appear to be general across Canada and no particular regional pattern is apparent. Color preference in seat belts indicates gray, tan, black, turquoise and maroon in that order, General Motors said.

'Peace' in Algiers May Only Produce More Fighting

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

With whispers of peace rising amid the bomb blasts in Algeria, the question is how to make it stick.

After a succession of false alarms, there is a strong impressions of impending accord between official France and the rebel leadership. But what about the Secret Army Organization?

If "peace" does come, it may merely produce more fighting. In what has become a three-way war, the secret army has vowed to struggle to the end to keep Algeria French, and recent events have shown its strength.

AUTHORITY BREAKS DOWN

While reinforcements pour into Paris to protect the capital against a possible right-wing coup, authority has broken down in Algiers and Oran.

Bab-el-Oued, one of the European-populated suburbs of the glistening white city of Algiers, is tightly in the grip of the Secret Army Organization.

In the Paris newspaper Le Figaro, Serge Bromberger writes that a "fever of self- destruction" rages. He describes Bab-el-Oued as virtually an independent republic.

Recently, says Bromberger, the secret army offered Canadian television commentators facilities to film an execution, but finally decided against it.

STRIKE WILDLY

Oran is another hot spot. In this half-Arab, half - European town, where mixed communities once lived in harmony, hot-blooded youths in black leather jackets have practically taken over.

In response to some Arab act or in blind vindictiveness, they storm around on motor scooters, killing or maiming any Moslem who blunders into their path.

In Paris recently, a specialist on the Algerian war told this reporter that historians may sharply criticize Algeria's European population. But, he added, allowances must be made — "they feel themselves surrounded, isolated, alone against the world."

In any accord, this settler mentality will be the biggest obstacle to a working agreement.

Wants Drapes On City Hall Automatic

TORONTO (CP)—Picture the scene when Toronto's $25,000,000 city hall is completed.

A cloud covers the sun. Hundreds of small electric motors, triggered electronically, hum busily and the plastic drapes swing open. The cloud goes away. The motors get busy again and the drapes whirr closed to cut the glare out of the offices.

That will be the picture, roughly, if architect Viljo Rewell of Finland has his way.

Mr. Rewell said in a report to the Toronto city board of control preliminary provision had been made for the use of automatic drapes although the city had not yet accepted the idea.

Liberal Member Accuses Govt. of Haphazard Look At Unemployment Problem

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberal MP Paul Martin accused the government Wednesday of taking a "haphazard, laissez-faire" approach to the unemployment problem.

The member for Essex East said in the Commons that the government's winter works incentive program—under which the federal treasury pays half the payroll costs of approved municipal projects—fails to get at the root of unemployment.

Earlier, Labor Minister Starr had defended the winter works plan, saying "the results prove that it is a most useful method of tackling seasonal unemployment."

Under consideration by the House was a $40,000,000 item in labor department supplementary estimates to cover the federal share of the program for the rest of this season. It failed to come to a vote and the debate will continue.

PUTS MEN TO WORK

Mr. Starr said 111,200 men have been put to work under the program so far this winter.

Since the winter works program was first inaugurated four years ago more than $762,000,000 worth of municipal works had been constructed. In addition to providing work, it also helped municipalities install needed facilities.

Mr. Martin said that since 413,000 were officially reported as unemployed at mid-December — and the figure was no doubt higher now — "not too much satisfaction" could be derived from Mr. Starr's statement on the number provided with employment.

Unemployment, said the Liberal member, "continues to be the major domestic problem facing us."

SUGGESTS SHARE COSTS

He suggested that the federal government should pay a portion of the cost of materials and supervisory personnel. He also suggested that the program should be more particularly addressed to municipalities where unemployment is heaviest.

Walter Pitman (NDP—Peterborough) said if the winter works program is a measure of the inaction of the government on Canada's No. 1 problem he has no doubt the voters will give a verdict against the Conservatives at the next election.

With a "blundering, purposeless and directionless economy," how was Canada to compete against the nations of the European Common Market for the economic offensive of the Communist countries?

Murdo Martin (CCF — Timmins) said the progrom benefits only areas where the winter is not severe. The government, by making its announcement about the availability of the assistance after most municipal budgets had been drawn up, was unfair to municipalities.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Walt Fraser, Picton's Casey Stengel of the softball diamond, must have been fitting a 6½ hat on a 7¼ cranium when I called him on the telephone. Either that or he was arguing over the speed of the "Black Maria," the flagship of Colonel Ron Church, when he sailed the Napanee River with the Picton baseball squad as ballast back in the early thirties.

The navy-trained Fraser hasn't lost all his sea-legs, nor his salt-water vocabulary. I could hear the thump of his shoes as he half-walked, half-waddled to the phone.

Told who was speaking he growled: "You're too early. The sun's not over the yardarm—and the SRD rations haven't come up."

I told him that signals fluttering from staffs of rumor ships had the word that the Picton Walts, the New York Yankees of Prince Edward County outdoor softball stadia, would withdraw from the Belleville District Softball League, and join the foreign legion down Kingston way, fifty miles east 'o here.

"That," quoth Walt, the ex-Salt, "is only partially true. My club was approached by Kingston softball interests with a view to entering a league down that way—but we are going to throw in our lot again with the Belleville District clans."

"And," piped Walt in his best quarterdeck manner, "you can say that the Walts will be back bigger and better. We have two or three new players that will make some league eyes open. We Spaniards are going to make the mainlanders sit up and take notice if we have to stage a couple of bullfights."

And up around Cobourg way it seems that Time, the wonderful healer, has got in its good work. Last fall when hassles, arguments, and other useless items nearly blew the league sky-high, the lakeshore town boss-man said that was it. Never, by gum, will we enter a Belleville league again. Never let it be said that we kowtowed to the monsters that sat in the league's seats of the mighty. We're through, and that's that.

Now it seems the Cobourgers have fallen in line with the rest of the league squads in the belief there was nothing wrong with the loop that a good strong executive couldn't cure. The once-belligerent Mr. Neill, his wounds, imaginary and otherwise, cured, told friends the Merchants would be back. The Trenton Flyers "are said" to be in.

And Marse Robert Temple who takes time out from legal duties to help teach pretty nine-months-old Michele to walk, says his famous Bobcats will be back in the running.

With things looking well, on the surface at least, and unless Rear-Admiral Fraser changes his mind, it seems the time should not be too far off when the powers-that-be of the Belleville District League get together and talk matters over.

True softball is a trifle unseasonable but there is nothing like having things done and giving Old Man Procrastination the one-two.

After all Tempes Fugits at an alarming rate and I presume the league has a lot of things to straighten out. Most important is the election of an executive, one that has teeth and not afraid to use them.

Despite the regrettable circumstances that marked the end of the 1961 season, the league had an exceptionally good year. Crowds were good, particularly in Picton and Trenton. With all the hassle water of last season under the bridge, the way could be cleared for another good year.

The Ontario Amateur Softball Association, under the presidency of Don Lee and an able executive had another record-breaking season last year. Secretary L. G. Pickard says all records were eclipsed. Continuing increase in participation is evidenced by the 167 local associations declaring 267 representative teams to contest the championships in the twenty series. This is an increase of 14.6% over the previous year.

Signs for $90,000

Willie Reaches Heights

NEW YORK (AP) — The Willie Mays of San Francisco Giants became baseball's highest salaried player for the second straight year when he signed his 1962 contract for a reported $90,000 Wednesday.

The $90,000 is believed to exceed the salary given Mickey Mantle of New York Yankees of the American League. Mantle has signed for a reported $85,000.

Southpaw pitcher Bud Daley became the 13th Yankee player to come to terms, signing for a reported $23,000. Pitchers Dick Stigman, Bill Dailey, Steve Hamilton and Floyd Weaver sent in their signed contracts to increase the number of satisfied Cleveland Indian players to 23.

Veteran outfielder Rip Repulski, 32, was given his outright release by Minnesota Twins so that he can bargain directly with other major league clubs.

Player Sale Kept Cubs Out of Red

CHICAGO (AP) — Expansion of the National League to 10 teams kept Chicago Cubs from going some $400,000 in the red for 1961 operations.

At the Cubs' annual stockholders meeting Wednesday it was announced the club achieved a $29,166 profit only because of sale of five players to the new Houston Colts and New York Mets for $425,000.

A club statement, ostensibly issued by President P. K. Wrigley, reported a $395,834 operating loss for the last year, due mainly to home and radio attendance slumps and decrease in TV-radii revenue.

'Gump' Sparks Blues In 5-0 Victory

Hawks Halt Wings 4-1

By LAURENT CHIASSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The New York Rangers Wednesday night snapped their longest National Hockey League losing streak in 18 years, largely because of a magnificent performance by goalie Lorne (Gump) Worsley.

Worsley stopped 40 shots and the Blueshirts, who had managed only two goals in four previous outings, pounded Boston Bruins 5-0 at New York.

Worsley's performance saved Rangers the ignominy of tying the club record of 11 consecutive losses established in 1943-44.

Rangers crept within one point of fourth - place Detroit Red Wings after the Wings lost 4-1 to Chicago Black Hawks in Wednesday night's only other game.

The Black Hawks were led by Chico Maki and burly Stan Mikita. Maki, filling in for the injured Murray Balfour, scored his second and third NHL goals while Mikita added one goal—his [illegible] of the season—and a pair of assists.

GOALIE SAVES THEM

The Rangers were badly outshot and outskated most of the way. They tested Boston goalie Bruce Gamble only 23 times, scoring twice in each of the first two periods and once in the third. Worsley, meanwhile, was spectacular.

Vic Hadfield, working on a new forward unit with Pat Hannigan and Dave Balon, paced the New York attack with two goals. They were only his second and third in 28 games this season.

TIES IT UP

Bobby Hull's 26th goal of the season tied the score 1-1 and Maki sent the Hawks into a lead they relinquished near the end of the first period.

Mikita scored in the second and Maki added the fourth goal in the third.

Detroit rookie Bruce MacGregor, 21, was awarded a rare penalty shot in the second period, but the puck hit the goalpost after having beaten Chicago goalie Glenn Hall cleanly.

The centre got the free chance after being hauled down by Chicago defenceman Dollard St. Laurent when he was going in for a clear shot on Hall.

It was the fourth penalty shot called in the NHL this season, two of which have resulted in goals.

Garrison Badminton Club Hosts

'Bird' Tournament Here

Arrangements for one of the best Class B badminton tournaments have been completed by officials of the Belleville Garrison Badminton Club.

The tourney is scheduled for Saturday, February 3rd and will consist of ladies and men's doubles and mixed doubles.

Ladies doubles play gets underway at 10 a.m. Saturday followed by the men's doubles and the mixed doubles.

The finals, always exciting affairs, will be played in the evening. Eight courts in the Belleville Armouries where the tourney holds forth, will be available.

Consolation rounds will be played for all events.

Trophies will be awarded to the winners, runners-up and the consolation players.

Players from Oshawa, Peterborough, Bowmanville, Picton, Whitby, Napanee and a large entry from the Garrison Club will take part in the tournament.

Tournaments sponsored by the city Garrison Club in the past have been outstanding successes, and club officials believe this tourney will exceed any played here.

Varied refreshments will be served in the officers' mess following the tournament. Dancing will round out the evening.

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—Stan Leonard of Vancouver and Rex Baxter Jr. of Amarillo, Tex., led a host of par-wreckers through the first round of the $50,000 Palm Springs golf classic Wednesday. Each shot a six-under-par 65.

Thirty-five golfers broke par 72 and 16 bettered regulation figures at Thunderbird, one of four courses on which the tournament is being played.

Doug Ford was in third place with a 66, followed by Gene Littler, Lionel Hebert and Jerry Steelsmith, all with 67s. Arnold Palmer and Gary Player each shot a 69 and Sam Snead had a 70.

Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg and Al Johnston of Montreal were among the par-breakers at 69.

It's Not Cricket To Picket The Wicket

By HAL B. COOPER

Turners spurn it. Seamers wouldn't dream of it. The mere thought gives stitchers the twitchers.

That's why things were so politely quiet Wednesday at the cricket ball factories of Chiddingstone — pronounced Chiddingstun — and Leigh — and Leigh—pronounced lie as in untruth.

There's a strike on, but picketing isn't done, at Chiddingstone. And as for Leigh, they'd rather die.

Anyway, there was nobody to picket. All 55 of the workers have walked out—every stitcher, turner, closer and quilt maker.

The plant produces 90 per cent of the cricket balls made in England. The strike began last Friday in support of a demand for a seven-cent raise in the basic pay of 64 cents an hour.

"Very unfortunate, all this," said Charles Lambert, union chairman, "It is the first time we have never struck for a wage increase," he added sheepishly:

"We did go on strike 31 years ago to resist a pay cut."

The workers say they can't live on their present wages.

Beverley Ives, general manager of the factories, said a pay increase would put him out of business.

"People in other industries," he said, "would be horrified at our small margin of profit."

Score Was 15-2

Pepsi's Whip Shamrocks

The Bowmanville Shamrocks' new coach, Jim Crombie, one of the better referees in the senior "B" days, brought his Irish crew to town last night. And Smilin' Jim took them home again — with a 15-2 defeat sitting lightly on their shoulders. It was the Pepsi's 17th victory against a lone defeat.

"This is our last game away from home" Jim said, and added "we're going to win the rest. Half of my new players did not show up tonight".

Again it was a closer game than the lopsided score indicates. The Pepsi's passing plays were clicking neatly, and the lighter Shamrocks never quit trying.

Defenceman Lionel Botly handled the club in Coach Lamirande's absence and did a fine job. He scored one of his rare goals and Fiori Goegan skated over and handed him the puck.

Ron Hull who led the Pepsi's attack with three goals and two assists started the hit parade at 29 seconds of the first period. His mates added four more in the period with the Shamrocks' Preston scoring his club's lone marker.

The red team uncorked their combo plays scoring four goals in six minutes in the second frame and adding two more before the period "cease fire" sounded.

The Shamrocks played their best hockey in the latter half of the second period, but poor shooting and unfinished plays cost them goals.

Second to Hull with another hat-trick was Bob Taylor who also had an assist. Jones had two and three; Goyer and Baker one and two, Goegan one and three; Rowbotham and Marineau one and two; O'Meara one and one.

Every Pepsi but Crawford, McDonald and Doran scored, but they had one, two and three assists respectively.

The teams:

Bowmanville — Fowler, Vanstone, Abbott, Preston, D. West, Wiseman, Armstrong, Glassfell, T. Masters, Hughes, D. Masters, T. Fairey, Burgess, B. Fairey.

Phils Face $500,000 Lawsuit

DETROIT (AP)—Philadelphia Phillies were sued for $500,000 Wednesday by a father whose son was an ex-farmhand of the baseball club and died in 1960.

Frank Gemignani's suit in U.S. district court charged that his son, Jerry, became ill while a member of the Philadelphia minor league system in 1959 and that nothing was done to treat his condition.

The suit said the youth was released instead by the Phillies in the summer of 1960 for lack of ability. A few months later the player died of uremic poisoning.

He was given a $5,000 bonus by the Phillies in 1958 after 15 major league clubs had sought to sign him, the suit said.

Miroslav Filip of Czechoslovakia, who leads the tournament with 3½ points, played to a draw with Fridrik Olafsson of Iceland.

Three players are tied with 2½ points — Uhlmann, Arturo Pomar of Spain and Pal Benko of the United States.

U.S. grandmaster Bobby Fischer of Brooklyn and Lajos Portisch of Hungary adjourned their match with Fischer apparently in a good position to win. Fishcher has two points.

Yanofsky, who lost his first two games, now has 1½ points. He earned a draw Tuesday with Mario Bertok of Yugoslavia in the third round.

World Hockey Pot Still Bubbling

MONTREAL (CP) — The strife - ridden world hockey championships, scheduled to be held in Colorado Springs, Colo., March 8-18, appeared to be still in the cards today but with the possibility that some expected participants might not be around on opening day.

The problem arises from the reported refusal of United States authorities to provide the East German entry with the travel permits necessary to apply for U.S. visas. The United States does not recognize the East German regime.

Wednesday, the East German Hockey Federation announced it has cabled Bob Lebel of Montreal, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, protesting against the U.S. decision and asking his organization to "support our rights."

Mr. Lebel said he has not yet received the cable. But added the IIHF will do "everything within its power" to enable East Germany to compete.

MEETING WILL DISCUSS

He said a meeting of the federation American executive committee in Colorado Springs next week will "re-assess and make final plans for the championships.

Commenting on press reports that Russia, Czechoslovakia, Sweden and The Netherlands may withdraw from the tournament if the East Germans cannot play, he said no national association has given official notice of withdrawal as yet.

However, Jack Roxburgh of Simcoe, Ont., president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, earlier cabled Czechoslovakian hockey officials asking them to make sure their team—one of the strongest entries—competes in the games.

In a side issue of the dispute, an East German official said Wednesday night his regime should prevent U.S. vehicles from travelling the autobahn between Berlin and West Germany until the issue is settled.

International Bonspiel

Maritimers Look Good

QUEBEC (CP)—Hugh Little of Halifax looked today like a good bet for the championship of the Quebec International Bonspiel.

The dark spot in Little's horizon, however, was another Maritime rink, the Edmundston, N.B., rink skipped by J. D. Coster.

Little, after narrowly avoiding a tie in the final end of his 10-end game when his opponent miscued on the last rock, beat E. Slatcher of Weston, Ont., 9-7 in the first round of the bonspiel's championship playoffs for the Lieutenant - Governor's Trophy Wednesday.

Coster trimmed Joe Thomas of Quebec 11-9. Thomas last year won the Omega Trophy, one of the bonspiel's three major events, and is still alive in the semi-finals this year of the Chateau Trophy, another top competition.

Little, Coster, and two Quebec City rinks were the tournament's only undefeated rinks by today. Each had won five straight games.

Girard beat John Buchowski's rink from Coniston, Ont., 9-7 in the Lieutenant-Governor's playoffs and comes up against Coster in the semi-finals of the Omega Trophy event tonight.

Joe O'Brien Top Harness Race Driver

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP)—Joe O'Brien formerly of Alberton, P.E.I., but now of Shafter, Calif., was the United States' top harness racing driver in 1961, according to the annual standings published Wednesday by the Universal Driver Rating System.

The 44-year-old O'Brien, who also won the Rating System's title in 1956, compiled a season record of 88 wins, 61 seconds and 64 thirds in 344 starts.

Second in the 1961 averages was Stanley Dancer of New Egypt, N.J., the leading money-winning driver for 1961. He scored 137 wins in 513 starts and compiled a .399 system average.

Booms Did It

Gardens Bat Struck Out!

TORONTO (CP)—The slap of a broom has ended the brief, lively career of a hockey - minded bat and spelled triumph for traditionalists on the staff of Maple Leaf Gardens.

The creature swooped from the rafters of the home of the National Hockey League Leafs last Saturday night and buzzed players for five minutes.

Subsequent bat-hunting operations split the Gardens staff, with some supporting caretaker Whitey McAllister's time-honored broom - swat method while modernists sided with radio expert Bob Wood's sound-wave system.

Wood was certain transmitting high - frequenty sound through the public address system would send the bat's built - in radar haywire and drive it into a wall. McAllister countered with a special bat-killing broom, the bristles parted to improve airflow.

Late Tuesday night, staff painters Dave Lasky and Jim Kennedy were slapping on some fresh color when the bat flitted by. With no time for high-pitched sound - waves, they grabbed a couple of handy brooms and demolished the invader in the traditional style.

RYFF UNCHANGED

NEW YORK (AP)—Frankie Ryff, 28, former lightweight boxing contender, remains in critical condition after undergoing surgery Tuesday to relieve a blood clot on the brain. A hospital spokesman said Wednesday he has not regained consciousness since he suffered head and arm injuries in a seven-storey fall through an elevator shaft Jan. 19.

Barons Win Over Bucs, Indians Lose

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cleveland Barons, who have won nine of their last 11 American Hockey League games, hope to get an assist from Quebec Aces tonight in the tight Western Division race.

The Barons, paced by Fred Glover's three goals, trounced Pittsburgh Pirates 7-2 Wednesday night and closed to within three points of Buffalo Bison's, leaders in the Western Division. Hershey Bears beat Springfield Indians 3-1 in the only other game.

Buffalo visits Quebec in tonight's only game, and a Bison victory would give them a five-point lead.

HORSE OWNER DIES

SASKATOON (CP)—Alec Miller, 69, prominent in thoroughbred racing circles as a partner in the RPM Stables, died Wednesday. Miller, who also was a farmer, helped develop a process for refining rapeseed which made it tasteless and odorless and thus an edible oil.

20-Pounder Brings Angler Top Honors

OTTAWA (CP) — Lucien Lafleur's 20 - pound, seven-ounce northern pike Wednesday won him the honors as top fisherman in the Federal Civil Service Recreation Association.

Lafleur, who caught the fish last summer, was awarded the Lyle Blackwell Trophy as winner of the annual derby. The fish was 39¼ inches long and had a girth of 22½ inches.

The top woman angler was Gisele Dugay who hauled in an 18-pound, five-ounce pike.

OLD SECT

Minor Hockey Results

The Maple Leafs blanked the Macs 4-0 to officially wind up the bantam hockey league schedule last night. Playoffs will get under way on Saturday morning at 11.30 a.m.

G. Lucas paced the Leaf attack with a pair of goals and one assist. D. Muldoon and R. Brooks scored the other goals with J. Blakely, W. Salisbury and R. Ellis drawing single assists.

In juvenile action the Blacks shaded the Blues 3-1 on goals by G. York, J. Rutherford and K. Johnson. Long and Emerson picked up assists. B. Symons potted the losers' goal with help from G. McMillan.

In an exhibition hockey game played at Frankford on Tuesday night, the Belleville Peewee Maple Leafs shaded Frankford by a 5-4 score. Joey Scanlon scored the winning goal, Alex Bradley had two Belleville markers while the others were scored by Cal Wilson and Greg Kaye.

61 ENTER RACE

LONDON (AP) —Sixty-one horses, including three former winners, were named Wednesday in the first list of official acceptors for the Grand National Steeplechase at Aintree March 31.

A field of about 30 probably will start in the race, on which the first Irish hospital sweepstakes of the year is based.

Spokane Wants Poile Fined

Western 'Bad Guys'

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Spokane Comets coach Roy Roy McBride charged Wednesday that coach Bud Poile of Edmonton Flyers should be fined for his team's rough play in the Western Hockey League.

The anger of McBride was aroused by two Spokane injuries in the last two games against Edmonton. Steve Witiuk was spilled and injured by Edmonton's Lou Marcon last week and earlier this month, all - star defenceman Sandy Hucul was put out of action for several weeks in a game at Edmonton.

"I know some of the Edmonton players have been fined and suspended," said McBride. "But I think the league should go to the source and land a substantial fine on Poile. . . .

"It seems more than a coincidence that three jaws have been broken in the league this year, all by Edmonton. Gerry Goyer of Los Angeles had his hand cut by a skate in a fight against Edmonton. Referee Joey Johns was attacked by an Edmonton player."

McBride said he was concerned at the news that Howie Young is returning from Detroit.

"Young was too wild for the National League, so much of a head-hunter that his own team had to suspend him," said McBride.

"But Poile's going to let him out of his cage against us."

In Edmonton, Poile's only comment on the charges was: "Is that so?"

Intentionally ran the seven furlongs in 1:22.6 and paid $7.20, $4 and $3.50 across the board as favorite. Carry Back paid $4.30 and $3.70 and Ambiopoise, ridden by Avelino Gomez, $9.70.

Kingston Holds Hull To 2-2 Tie

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hull-Ottawa Canadiens Wednesday night stretched their unbeaten streak in the Eastern Professional Hockey League to eight games—longest of the season in the league—when they came from behind to tie Kingston Frontenacs 2-2.

The tie moved the Habs to within a point of second-place Kitchener - Waterloo Beavers, and left five points behind the league-leading Frontenacs.

Kingston jumped into a 2-0 lead on second-period goals by Lorne Ferguson and Pete Panagabko and held it until Canadiens' Billy Carter beat Frontenacs' goalie Ed Chadwick from 20 feet out at the 49-second mark of the third. Jim Roberts made it 2-2 midway through the period.

SELL HOEKSTRA

Kitchener Wednesday night announced the sale of centre Ed Hoekstra to Quebec Aces of the American League.

Hoekstra, a 24-year-old Winnipeg native, has been instrumental in Beavers' winning ways this season. The club's top scorer, he has 50 points from 23 goals and 27 assists. Last year he scored 32 goals in 70 games.

JEALOUS BAKER FINED

REIMS, France (AP)—"I was jealous because he baked better croissants than I did," said baker Robert Jactat when asked in court to explain why he had spread tacks in front of a rival's store. Jactat was fined 600 francs (about $125) Tuesday.

Western Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bitter rivalry between Portland Buckaroos and Spokane Comets continued Wednesday night and produced the second largest crowd in Western Hockey League history.

The Buckaroos and Comets, top two teams in the Southern Division, battled to a 3-3 overtime tie before 10,658 customers at Portland. The league's attendance mark of 13,702 was set at Los Angeles last weekend.

Calgary Stampeders moved to within two points of first place in the Northern Division by walloping Vancouver Canucks 8-3.

Winger Tom McVie counted twice for Portland, the other goal going to Arnie Schmautz. Del Topoll, Gordie Stratton and Max Mekilok provided the Spokane goals.

Reds Pass Up Speed Skating

BERLIN (AP) — Communist East Germany apparently has withdrawn from the European speed skating championships to be held in Oslo this weekend.

The voluntary withdrawal spared Oslo organizers from the worries now besetting organization committees for the alpine world skiing championships in Chamonix, France, and the world hockey championships in Colorado Springs, Colo.

AT THE PARK — Pirate Passion — Pirate leader Don Megowan and sultry Silvana Pampanini in passionate scene in lair of the buccaneers in the epic sea adventures "Guns of the Black Witch". Emma Danieli also stars in the color and Scope action thriller which opens tonight at the Park Theatre. On the same program the jungle war adventure film "The Lost Battalion", starring Diane Jergens and Leopold Salcedo. Both thrillers are first Belleville showings.

'Flight Into Danger' Gives Wartime Pilot a Fortune

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Television has produced some minor classics which, unlike most of the nightly shadow parade, have lingered in the minds of beholders. Among them were Marty, Patterns, and Judgment at Nuernberg.

But one of the most durable, profitable creative efforts in TV history is an out-and-out suspense story. It is a script called Flight into Danger, written by a wartime pilot, Arthur Hailey, who wanted to get out of advertising and into writing. He knocked out the script almost 10 years ago and, not knowing what else to do with it, mailed it to the CBC—he lives in Toronto.

Some time later, he received a cheque for $500 — and one night turned on his living room set and saw the show. (He was, be it noted, pleased with what he saw.)

Hailey got the idea for the plot one day while flying in a commercial airliner. He started wondering what would happen if all the crew members were suddenly taken ill and the only chance for survival was a passenger who had not flown a plane since war days. It launched a highly successful career.

PRODUCE IN LONDON

Shortly thereafter, Flight into Danger was turned into an NBC show. Then BBC produced it in London. Paramount bought it for a movie. It was turned into a book—and one of the big women's magazines printed it as a serial. Recently BBC did the show again—and Hailey received a cheque for the performance six times the size of the original payment, and other royalties keep rolling in.

Another Hailey show seems destined for similar success. It was a 1959 Playhouse 90 show, Diary of a Nurse. It has already been turned into a motion picture—The Young Doctors—and now CBS is planning to convert it into a dramatic series next season under the title, The Nurses.

Meanwhile, Hailey has quit writing for TV, and is able to write as and what he pleases. In High Places, his first novel, recently was published and received excellent critical notices.

"I got out of TV in 1959 when it was apparent that drama was pretty well departing from the scene," he said. "I enjoy writing novels, but I miss the immediacy of TV."

Loretta Young Will Open New Series Next Season

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — There was Loretta Young on the Goldwyn studio street, looking as pert and pretty as when she used to whip through that drawing room doorway on TV Sunday nights.

"What's doing?" I asked.

"New series," she replied. Twenty minutes later, she had told me the plot of the pilot film and all the details of her new TV show. Then she dashed off with a swish of petticoats.

It takes some doing to keep up with the dynamic Loretta. When her show faded from TV after eight successful years, no one believed she would be idle for long.

"Oh, I've enjoyed having the vacation," she said. "But I also like to work. That is to say, I enjoy the actual work — the making of the show. All the preparation is the hard part."

The Loretta Young show was swept off TV in the anti-feminist drive that saw the networks cancelling shows starring nearly every female personality except Donna Reed.

"I still think our show might have survived," said Loretta. "But our timing was bad.

"I had seen too many stories ruined by cutting them down to a half-hour. The sensible thing was to lengthen to an hour, but the networks hadn't started thinking in terms of hour shows. When they did, it was too late to sell sponsors, so we went off."

The ladies made a small comeback this season with Gertrude Berg, Shirley Booth (Hazel) and (Margie). Next season may see a return of feminence (new word) to TV, with the possibility of Loretta, Lucille Ball and Eve Arden being back with new shows.

"I think we have a good chance with ours," said Loretta.

The pilot was financed by a sponsor, and that's a good sign. The show now is called Christine's Children. You've guessed it—a family show. But Loretta is going all out to beat the others: she'll have seven children, ranging from six to 18.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): An "idol" could have feet of clay if you insist on expecting every virtue in the world. Try to be practical without giving up ideals. Write, communicate. Good for travel, but watch budget.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Mars in sign of Aquarius today . . . the sector of your chart associated with long journeys, publishing and with your ideals, aspirations. Take nothing for granted. Get it down on paper.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Best to "take it easy." Forcing methods likely to cause grief. If you have something up sleeve . . . better check to see whether your secret is well kept. Not best time to try to pull surprises.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Fulfill sense of accomplishment. Do this through hobby, reading, work; also by pitching in to help underdog. Not time to make demands. Watch relations with fellow workers. Go easy.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Might take some doing but you can win your way today through use of charm. Perhaps a Mercurial quip at the right time could save the day. Exercise sense of humor. And try to see brighter side.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Great deal of vitality, energy could be used up today. Take care that you don't waste vital forces. Make sure it is "right person" who receives your care, attention, affection. Do understand.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Like Libra, there is tendency for you to scatter forces today . . . to go in circles. Also, temptation to battle those who mean most to you. Catch yourself and hold up if this happens. Harmony!

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): This day could represent opportunity for new start . . . for letting associates, friends know the stuff of which you are really made. Money matters may be in spotlight. You will get your share.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Very easy for others to advise you, to tell you how it could have been done. Your cycle high. No need to allow others to intimidate you. Hold your own. Good for selling talents, abilities.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Much pressure is on you but your cycle is improving. Try to get needed amount of rest. And don't search too far. What you seek could be close by. Try to perceive meaning of inner feelings. Be honest and sincere.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Matter of confidence most important. Others not convinced unless you are, too. Better wait until weekend is over before making long-range promises. Today strive for tranquility. Nothing to fear!

• • •

If born today . . . remainder of year may find you working quite hard. But you could very well be working for greater personal benefits. You are not too easy to please. But when you do like something . . . you are an asset to other persons and projects.

NEAR MRS. — Mrs. Louise Gossom, 70, of Clallam Bay, Washington, uses the classic fisherman's gesture to show the length of a shell fragment that caromed off the roof of her Clallam Bay., Wash., house Monday. Several shells fired by the destroyer-escort, Skeena exploded over the town. Two Canadian naval officers apologized personally to the widow, and, says Mrs. Gossom, "they promised they wouldn't do it again." An inquiry will try to find out why the Skeena's shells were not all at sea. (CP Photo from AP).

By DOUG MARSHALL

SOELDEN, Austria (CP) — One of the best ways to melt an Englishman's habitual sangfroid is to clip skis on his feet and give him a gentle push down a snowy slope.

The sensation, whether exhilarating or hilarious, is enough to make him forget himself and become just like everybody else for a while.

Thirty years ago Soelden was all but isolated from the outside world. It was a day's journey by horse down an unreliable road to the valley's mouth and the railway line to Innsbruck.

Even 10 years ago the village was still largely a collection of peasant farm houses clustered around the baroque Roman Catholic church.

INNS SPRING UP

Today the church is overshadowed by four large hotels. The farm houses have been swept away to make room for more than 15 smaller inns and pensions.

A bank has appeared and so have gift shops. Signs are written in three languages. Cosmopolitan bands blare out a jazz beat from the many bars and Bavarian crooners sing Hello Mary Lou in pseudo-American accents.

Two modern chair-lifts swiftly whisk tourists up to the slopes and from there the most intrepid skiers can be dragged by a network of tows to 8,000 feet and the highest peaks.

At every stage log - cabin havens offer rum grogs or gluehwein — the Austrian version of hot mulled wine.

Most visitors make use of the cheap and efficient ski school. The instructors—all valley residents—can coach a beginner through a two-week course from the herring-bone stage to the point where he is executing stem christie turns down a 2,000-foot run.

PROSPERITY SPREADS

Soelden, like many similar resorts in Austria, is thriving because of the post-war economic revolution in Western Europe that has made a winter holiday available to middle-class incomes.

An escape from the English winter during the Christmas and New Year seasons has always been a British institution. But until the 1950s only the energetic rich could afford to go. Their choice was and still is the expensive resorts of Switzerland.

Encouraged by the Austrian government, the Tyrol district has developed as a second-class winter playground and the results are proving so successful that tourism now provides nearly 60 per cent of Austria's industrial income.

Although French and German tourists predominate in the late spring, it is the English who come in the largest numbers and spend the most money during the winter season.

From Boxing Day on, train after train pulls out of London carrying high school students undergraduates, bank clerks, brewers and factory workers towards the Austrian sun. This winter about 60,000 people are expected to make the trip.

RATES REASONABLE

Nearly all take advantage of the cheap party rates offered by travel bureaus. A two-week holiday including basic living expenses and rail fare costs about $100. Tourists usually spend another $100 on entertainment and hiring ski equipment.

The Austrians have a genuine affection for the English and do their best to cater to insular tastes by avoiding liverwurst for meals, organizing tea dances and playing Tipperary at least once an evening.

They also remember that the Ski Club of Great Britain, founded in 1903, was chiefly responsible for developing Alpine skiing in its present form, although the last time a Briton won a world championship was in 1936.

APLOMB AMAZES

And the ski instructors are still amazed at the way the Englanders retain their outward calm in the face of impending catastrophe:

"I say, old man, I'm terribly afraid I'm going to crash into you."

A crunch of wood and bone in the clear mountain air and two tangled bodies roll down a short steep hill. After a long pause one gets shakily to his feet holding a loose ski.

"Surely this must be your ski, old man?"

"No I'm almost positive it's yours."

"Just a minute. . . . Yes, actually, you're quite right."

Hubby Was In Bushes As Witness

HALIFAX (CP) — Defence counsel asked Henley Smith of nearby Herring Cove where he was when his wife and Mrs. Madeline Cooper slashed each other with a piece of wire.

Said Smith: "I was lying in the bushes keeping a good eye."

"Were you not afraid something would happen to your wife?" "No. She can take care of herself."

Under cross examination the Crown asked: "Your wife floored Mrs. Cooper?"

"Yes sir."

"Weren't you worried about your wife being hit by Mrs. Cooper with the rocks?"

"No. I was there as a key witness."

Mrs Smith was found guilty by Judge Vincent Pottier of assaulting her neighbor Mrs Cooper Sentence will be passed in April

'Didn't Want to Go Nowhere,' Chicago Boy Flies to 'Frisco

CHICAGO (AP) — Rickie Oprondk, a 10-year-old model airplane builder and an altar boy, left home Sunday morning carrying $4 and a prayer book to attend mass.

He got home from mass, by way of San Francisco, covered by a round-trip jet flight, Tuesday night.

While police and his distraught parents sought the missing boy, he was found in San Francisco.

He got there, he said, by sneaking aboard an American Airlines jet passenger plane Sunday night.

"I didn't want to go nowhere," he said. "I wanted to see how it (the jet plane) looked. And it started. I didn't know the plane was going to take off."

Rickie said that after the plane took off he wanted to tell the stewardess he was a stowaway, "but I was too scared."

He spent two days in San Francisco, most of the time wandering around International Airport looking at planes and asking airline personnel questions about flights.

Airport employees noticed the boy was alone and called police. Police established his identity by means of the name written in the prayer book he had in his coat. Then they got in touch with his parents.

American Airlines sent him back to Chicago.

Police held the boy as a juvenile pending appearance in court on a charge of running away from home.

Premier Roblin Gives Federation Public Blast

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Manitoba Federation of Labor received a public reprimand from Premier Duff Roblin Tuesday after it rejected the findings of the Tritschler report and attacked its author.

The federation attack came in a brief dealing with the report on the 1960 Brandon Packers strike presented to a committee of the provincial cabinet.

Later Mr. Roblin issued a statement accusing the federation of "an open display of contempt" in its attack on Chief Justice G. E. Tritschler of the Manitoba Court of Queen's Bench.

The judge wrote the report before his appointment as chief justice after investigating the strike as a one-man commission.

The union brief accused him of "unwarranted, untruthful and malicious hysterical outbursts" and with being ignorant of the law.

Also rejected was a principal recommendation by Mr. Justice Tritschler that unions should be made legal entities.

The strike itself was eventually settled, but in its aftermath Brandon Packers ran into legal and financial difficulties.

These included the sentencing of its owners Hugh Paton and D. Hubert Cox to jail for fraud. They are appealing their conviction.

The plant, now all but inactive, has been put up for sale by bondholders attempting to reclaim their investment.

Robarts Plans Advisory Council On Economics

General Steel Wares President to Be Head

TORONTO (CP) — An Economic council with wide advisory powers will be set up in Ontario to help the province's industry meet increasing world competition, Premier Robarts announced today.

He named Stanley John Randall of Toronto, 54 - year - old president of General Steel Wares Limited, as chairman of the 17-member council. Other members will be announced when the council's membership is complete.

Six members have already been appointed—W. Roy Thompson of Kirkland Lake, chairman of the Ontario Regional Development Council; Ian McRae, chairman of Canadian General Electric; Dr. A. D. Misener, director of the Ontario Research Foundation; Roland Hill, Canadian director of the International Association of Operating Engineers (Ind); George Gathercole, deputy minister of economics and first vice-chairman of Ontario Hydro, and S. W. Clarkson, deputy minister of energy resources.

Flanked by Mr. Randall and Economics and Development Minister Macaulay the premier told a press conference the council "is intended by the government to be the vehicle for achieving co-operation between management, labor and government" in the promotion of Ontario's industrial expansion.

Reading from a 21-page report which explained the long-awaited council, Mr. Macaulay said the province's recent industrial growth "has been inadequate and new ideas, attitudes and measures are necessary for its acceleration."

SERVE WITHOUT PAY

The members of the council will be taken from all sectors of the economy, serve without pay for approximately three years and then be replaced so new ideas will continue to flow into the council.

The economic council was proposed almost simultaneously last fall by both the then premier Leslie Frost, and Mr. Macaulay. It was promised in the government's throne speech program and has been referred to frequently since then by Mr. Macaulay and Mr. Robarts.

The premier has estimated the Ontario economy must absorb between 50,000 and 60,000 new workers each year for the next 10 years.

And, Mr. Macaulay told a press conference, besides this steadily increasing labor force, "we as a government are not satisfied that the number of unemployed at present is a minimum—that it has to remain static at a fairly high level."

The minister said costs for the council will be flexible and money must be approved by the legislature, but under questioning he estimated the first year's budget at about $250,000.

Mr. Robarts, Mr. Macaulay and Mr. Randall all emphasized the challenge facing Ontario industry from world trading groups. Mr. Macaulay said most other Canadian provinces and, indeed, most other major trading jurisdictions in the world have set up or are considering bodies similar to the Ontario economic council.

The opening words of the report establishing the council give one of the primary reasons for its existence:

"Daily, international competition is becoming more severe. Powerful trading blocs are de-

LABOR MINISTER STRIKES BACK AT CRITICS

Says Jobless Record Is Good

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor Minister Starr struck back Thursday night at critics of the government's unemployment record in a Commons performance smacking of the election campaign trail.

With heat, statistics and a recital of government action—extending to agriculture, housing and other areas—Mr. Starr said December's unemployment was the lowest in five years and a tribute to Progressive Conservative "boldness and imagination."

The Commons opposition would have had cause to "call havoc around the country" if the situation had remained as bad as the 1954-55 period under the Liberals, he said. But that had not been the case.

The winter works job incentive program had been introduced and broadened, seasonal unemployment insurance benefits extended, some 170 vocational training schools authorized and a great many people had been put to work in the last four years of Conservative government.

OUTLOOK GOOD

"From the indicators, it is evident that the outlook for employment is good this winter," Mr. Starr said in a speech frequently interrupted by applause by government supporters.

"More will be done," he told questioners complaining that the works program for this winter is inadequate to meet the unemployment situation.

The Commons was spending its second day on approval of the $40,000,000 with which the federal government will pay half the labor bills for approved municipal winter projects. Provinces and municipalities put up the rest.

OPPOSITION DISAGREES

The government has suffered a death-bed conversion to deficit spending and its popularity is sinking on the basis of public opinion polls, said Walter Pit-

Labor Minister Starr lashed back at opposition criticism on unemployment and said indications are that "the outlook for employment is good this winter."

The Commons "talked out" a CCF bill aimed at speeding up union-management collective bargaining by eliminating conciliation boards.

Senator Olive L. Irvine (PC—Manitoba) said the Conservative party has an "excellent record" for keeping election promises.

FRIDAY, Feb. 2

The Commons meets at 11 a.m. to continue debate on the $40,000,000 winter works appropriation. The Senate is adjourned to 8 p.m. Tuesday.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A disturbance over the Prairies is expected to move through Ontario tonight, spreading clouds and snow to most of the province and bringing much colder air to southern and central Ontario.

LIKE, IT'S COOL — Sandra Randall, 18, of Ottawa waged total war against the winter's coldest weather Thursday. The mercury hovered between 21 and 10 degrees below zero in the capital and a 14-mile-an-hour wind made it the equivalent of 50 below, the weatherman said. (CP Wirephoto).

Paralyzing Cold Weather Will Ease Grip On Eastern Canada After 5 Shivering Days

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Paralyzing cold weather, which swept Eastern Canada for nearly five days, is expected to ease slightly today.

Temperatures which dipped as low as 40 and 50 below zero in Northern Ontario and Quebec were coupled with blistering winds and drifting snow in many communities.

Out West, British Columbia and Alberta residents basked in weather that was 40 and 50 above. A low-pressure area between the warm and frigid masses was expected to draw milder air into Ontario by Saturday.

In Sudbury, building and construction projects, big and small, ground to a halt or slowed to a crawl as a result of the persistent low temperatures.

Warmest it has been in the afternoon since Sunday in Sudbury is two below. Coldest was 32 below Thursday, lowest ever for Feb. 1 and lowest for any day in three years.

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Biting cold weather stung sections of New England and upstate New York today as the season's longest spell of frigid weather held a tight grip across most of the northeast.

An official reading of 45 below zero was reported in Boonville, N.Y., in the foothills of the Adirondack Mountains, for the lowest mark in the icy belt.

Today was the third day of zero-or-below weather for much of New York state. Some frigid readings included 21 below in Plattsburgh, 20 below in Massena and 19 below in Watertown.

Kennedy's Plan to Cut Farm Output May Benefit Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — President Kennedy's drastic proposals for shaping United States farm production to demand contain no serious threats to Canadian agriculture, observers here say. In fact, long-range benefits would result if the program gets approval.

But, privately, doubt is expressed that the package will get through Congress in the teeth of an aroused farm lobby.

Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton was aware of the program's principles and objectives some time before they were made public Wednesday. He has had discussions with U.S. Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman, the most recent at the meeting here last month of the joint Canada-U.S. continuing committee on trade and economic affairs.

Briefly, President Kennedy would curb over-production of various grains and other commodities by letting farmers themselves cut back or face cash penalties on their crops.

Canada exercises indirect control on production of wheat, oats and barley through sales quotas established by the Canadian wheat board.

A U.S. proposal for alternate land use seeks the same objective as the Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act passed by Parliament last year. With provincial co-operation, it would assist the switching of marginal farm lands to other uses such as recreation, tree lots or beef grazing.

Some observers here see no problem for Canadian exports even if the U.S. should begin large-scale disposal of its huge surpluses. They say that the U.S. would use the world food bank approved by the United Nations last year, plus President Kennedy's food-for-peace plan, to distribute much of this rather than the normal commercial channels.

Farmer Held Prisoner, Had Car Stolen by Escaped Convicts

KINGSTON (CP) — Three knife-wielding men held a 70-year-old farmer prisoner in his own home for 7½ hours Thursday night, then escaped in his car before dawn.

Harold Blacklock of Mount Chesney, about five miles north of here, told police he recognized the trio as men who escaped from nearby Joyceville institution Monday night.

Mr. Blacklock, who lives alone, said he answered the door at about 10 p.m. and the three asked him whether they could come in out of the cold. The temperature outside was about 15 degrees below zero.

Inside, they attacked him and tied him to a chair in the kitchen.

The men left at 5:30 a.m., Mr Blacklock said. He took about an hour to free himself, then called police.

He said he recognized the men from newspaper photographs.

Segriff was serving five years for armed robbery, Mueller three years and six months for breaking and entering and theft. Thompson was serving four years and five months for robbery with violence.

Justice Minister's Proposals Termed Vague, Toothless

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Fulton's suggestions for changes in emergency cabinet powers on jailing suspected security risks in wartime have been labelled by an Ontario law comittee as "very vague and toothless."

The same committee says in a report made available here that recent proposals along the same line by Liberal MP Paul Martin went further than Mr. Fulton's but "did not add anything useful to that of the government."

The proposals, made to a committee of the Commons last year, recommend review of cabinet detention orders made under the War Measures Act and stem from federal action in the Second World War when large numbers of Germans, Italians and Japanese living in Canada were arrested without being charged or brought to trial.

A report on these proposals has been prepared for the civil liberties section of the Ontario Bar Association. The Authors include history professor Dr. A. R. M. Lower of Queen's University and Liberal Senator C. G. (Chubby) Power, wartime air minister.

Discussion of the report was scheduled at today's annual meeting of the bar association.

Mr. Fulton's suggested amendment to the act—not yet placed before the Commons itself—would mean that when a detention order is made by the cabinet, "provision shall also be made for the review of the case of every person detained."

The amendment does not stipulate a time limit for the review or say who should do it. The law committee's report notes that during the Second

NUCLEAR BOMBS ARE NOT FUSED OVER CANADA

Report on U.S. Bombers Given

OTTAWA (CP) — American nuclear safety rules are so strict that even in wartime bombers of the United States Strategic Air Command would not arm their hydrogen bombs while flying over Canada, it was learned authoritatively here Thursday

The government, like its Liberal predecessor, exhibited customary reticence in the Commons this week in dealing with the subject of flights made by U.S. nuclear bombers over Canada.

Defence Minister Harkness, in a written reply for Hazen Argue, House leader of the CCF-New Democratic Party group, even declined to say whether these bombers still fly over Canadian territory.

The defence department, SAC headquarters at Omaha, Neb., and the U.S. embassy here all declined, as well, to comment, on grounds of security, on a Canadian Press report last month. This report said SAC now avoids flying over Canada because of Canadian insistence that individual permission be obtained for each nuclear flight over Canada.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker said in the Commons June 3, 1958, that such flights "do take place."

He added that it would not be in the public interest to give any indication of the frequency of such flights or the numbers of bombers involved.

CAN'T BE HEARD

These bombers normally fly so high that they are out of the earshot and sight of persons on the ground.

Despite the military secrecy surrounding these flights, officials said there is no secrecy concerning one aspect of them: The safety rules to prevent any thermonuclear accident.

These rules make sure that in peacetime the nuclear weapons are not armed — that is, they are not fused.

There are manual switches in two separate compartments of the bomber and they are wired in the "off" position at all times.

To arm the bomb in the air, two members of the crew, in different compartments, must push certain switches simultaneously. Thus no one crew member can arbitrarily or accidentally arm the bomb by himself.

An unarmed bomb will not detonate even if the plane crashes.

UN FLAG TO FLY

NORTHAMPTON, Mass. (AP) The United Nations flag will fly again outside city hall—despite Mayor Wallace Puchalski's objections. Two weeks ago the mayor had the flag removed. He said the UN had given the United States nothing but the Korean War, a large debt, an eroded currency and an uneasy peace and that the flag would never fly here again. However, the city council voted 8 to 1 Thursday night to replace the flag.

U.S. May Request Canada Shut Off Trade With Cuba

Rusk Is Hopeful Others Will Copy OAS Policy

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States is considering whether to appeal to Canada to shut off trade with Cuba.

State Secretary Dean Rusk says American intelligence has disclosed that Fidel Castro is using dollars and foreign exchange to promote subversion in other countries.

"If trade produces foreign exchange reserves which can be used by the present government of Cuba to strengthen subversive activities in other countries we think we have to take that into account," Rusk told a press conference Thursday.

Asked whether the U.S. would suggest to the Canadian government that trade between Canada and Cuba be stopped, Rusk replied:

"That is something we will take up after this meeting. I don't want to comment on that today."

Rusk, who spoke with reporters a few hours after returning from the Punta del Este meeting on the controversial Cuban issue, was asked to elaborate on the Canadian problem.

"To what extent would all the resolutions accepted at the Punta del Este conference be effective without the active participation by Canada?"

HOPES FOR SUPPORT

"Well, of course, we do hope," replied Rusk, "that other countries, having seen the clear expressions of policy and attitude to the Organization of American States, would consider—and I am not referring to any single country — would consider whether they might not align their policies with the policies of the inter-American system.

"I think we will find that a number of countries will be looking at it from that point of view."

Canada is not a member of the Organization of American States and does not go along with the U.S. strict anti-Castro policy. The U.S. has imposed an embargo on all exports to Cuba with the exception of food and medicine. Most imports also have stopped with the exception of some items, including tobacco.

In the first 11 months of 1961 the U.S. exported $13,600,000 worth of goods to Cuba, compared with $222,700,000 in all of 1960. Imports from Cuba dropped to $32,400,000 in the 11 months from $367,200,000 in all of 1960.

In contrast, Canadian exports to Cuba rose to $21,500,000 in the first nine months of 1960, up $14,000,000 from the similar 1960 period. Canadian imports from Cuba dropped to $4,600,000 from $6,700,000 in that period. Thus, in commodity trade, the balance was strongly in Canada's favor.

MAY CUT ALL TRADE

Asked whether the U.S. now would cut off all remaining trade with the Castro regime, Rusk said this would be looked into.

Canada maintains no restrictions on Cuba trade with the French Army Tanks Ready in Paris To Guard de Gaulle From Rightists

PARIS (AP)—French Army tanks converged on Paris today to forestall any attempt by the right-wing secret army to overthrow President Charles de Gaulle as reports of an imminent peace pact for Algeria persisted.

With mounted machine-guns, two squadrons totalling 32 tanks moved on the capital to give armored support to 25,000 riot police placed on the alert against the threat of an uprising by the rightist underground fighting against independence for the North African territory.

De Gaulle will address the country by radio and television Monday night in what shapes up as a crucial statement on the long secret negotiations with the Algerian Nationalist Liberation Front to end the seven-year rebllion.

French public opinion was being prepared for a deal with the rebels to carry out de Gaulle's policy of putting Algeria on the path to independence.

Informed diplomatic sources said the agrement already had been drafted and needed only the formal signatures of both sides.

France's allies have been notified that the de Gaulle regime seriously fears an attempted coup by the right-wing extremists either in France or Algeria—or in both places—when the peace accord is announced.

There were reports some French officials hope to provoke the secret army into an uprising in advance of a peace announcement on the theory that a premature putsch would be easier to crush—at least in Metropolitan France.

Security forces also were strengthened in hotbeds of rightist terrorism in Algeria.

The Algerian rebel cabinet was meeting today in Tunis to take up the projected peace accord before putting it before a special session of the National Revolutionary Council — a sort of rebel parliament—in Tripoli within the next two weks.

Approval by the French parliament is not necessary. In a referendum in 1961 the French voters gave de Gaulle a free hand on Algerian policy.

Two Youths Given Terms In Reformatory

Two Belleville youths were given reformatory sentences this morning in city magistrate's court, when they appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills for sentence on charges of theft.

John Morley Moore and Carl Kalvin were sentenced this morning by the magistrate after pleading guilty earlier in the week, to charges of theft, under the amount of $50.

Magistrate Wills sentenced John Morley Moore to six months definite and six months indeterminate in the Ontario reformatory, sentence to run concurrent on each of the two charges. The magistrate told Moore that probation was out of the picture as he was already on probation.

Carl Kalvin was sentenced to one year definite and three months indeterminate, sentence to run concurrent on each charge.

The magistrate told Moore the only thing he could do would be to put him out of circulation for a further period of time, as he had already spent time in a reform school.

Both boys were fined $10 and given an additional seven days for consuming alcohol under age.

Woman Spends Night in Bush At 50 Below

HUNTSVILLE, Ont. (CP)—A 47-year - old Huntsville woman was in satisfactory condition in hospital Thursday after spending a night in the bush with temperatures at nearly 50 degrees below zero.

Mrs. Mabel Diplock is suffering exposure and severe frostbite. A hospital spokesman said it is too early to decide whether amputations will be necessary.

Police said a friend had let her out of his car Wednesday night after she said she could walk the eight miles to the lodge.

Mrs. Diplock, who was hired as a waitress at the lodge a few days ago, had been at a bingo game in Huntsville.

The official temperature reading at Huntsville Wednesday night was 34 degrees below zero, but residents of Dwight, nearer the lodge, said they recorded temperatures of 47 below.

veloping in Europe and elsewhere. Their large - scale, low cost manufacturing industries are expanding their facilities and penetrating our established markets.

"As a consequence, Ontario is having greater difficulty in maintaining and developing its processing and manufacturing industries. In addition, the markets for Ontario's primary products have not expanded as fast as its capacity to supply them."

It sets out the council's purposes:

"The economic council will investigate provincial economic problems and recommend the means to:

"1. Increase the industrial and marketing efficiency of Ontario's economy.

"2. Maintain a rate of economic development capable of absorbing Ontario's growing labor force without creating inflation, and

"3. Promote the economic advancement of both Ontario and Canada."

To achieve its ends, the report envisages a host of committees. No less than 28 are suggested by name, including industrial efficiency, finance and research; product design; regional development; vocational education; export promotion; agriculture; tourism; migration; government services and even Canada's centenary.

The council is seen as a forum for the exchange of ideas, reporting to the economics and development minister.

GOVERNMENT HAS SAY

"It must be understood, however, that the government alone has to determine what its policy is to be in the light of its own assessment of the situation," the report adds.

The report sets out specifically the source for its members.

The Ontario division of the Canadian Manufacturers Association, the Ontario Chamber of Commerce and the Boards of Trade will each nominate one member. The Ontario Federation of Labor, the Provincial Building and Construction Trades Council and Northern Ontario labor will also name a member each.

The Ontario Federation of Agriculture will seat two representatives and the Ontario Farmers Union one.

Two members will come from the fields of finance and commerce and the cabinet will name two government members. One member each will represent the field of research, the universities and the Ontario Regional Development Council.

Meetings of the council and its committees will usually be private, and its reports and discussions confidential. Each committee will have a research secretary named by the government frequently from a government department concerned with the problems the committee is discussing.

These research secretaries will meet occasionally with the deputy economics minister, the report said, to co-ordinate projects and otherwise help the government.

The government will meet the costs of the council, providing office facilities, staff and out-of-pocket expenses for members.

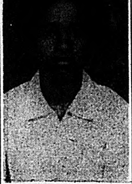
RCAF Wing Adopts Deserted Boy in India

A young Indian boy, R. Jagannathan, age 14, has recently been adopted by 416 (Belleville) Wing, RCAF Association.



Jagannathan was once one of the many orphaned deserted children who may be seen, starving and ill, on the streets of Indian cities or in railway stations. But Jagannathan was one of the fortunate ones. He was succored by the U.S.C. (Unitarian Service Committee) Foster Parent Scheme. At a home operated by this committee he and his little sister have been receiving care for years. Their father had deserted them after an accident and their mother was mentally unstable.

Already skilled in many useful handicrafs, with a good basic education, Jagannathan has grown into a fine up-standing boy, warmhearted and eager to shine.

$40,000 Loss In Hotel Fire At Pontypool

PONTYPOOL, Ont. (CP) — Damage was estimated at $40,000 Thursday after fire destroyed a hotel and a grocery store in this resort village 18 miles west of Peterboroough.

The fire was discovered about 8 a.m. and still was out of control at noon. Firemen brought it under control some hours later.

No one was injured in the fire, believed caused by a short-circuit which sent power along a telephone line.

A spokesman for the Orono Telephone Company Limited said he believed a hydro line between Pontypool and Orono short - circuited on telephone wires.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Van Wieringen and their three children left the buildings when the fire was discovered. They were owners of both the hotel and grocery store.

Mr. Van Wieringen ran back into the blazing building to rescue the family cat and then was forced to jump into a snowbank when his route to safety was blocked by mounting flames.

The other fires, in the homes of Gordon Kirsk, George Van Dam and Neil Curtis, were extinguished by area residents.

Temperature at the time of the fire was 20 degrees below zero. Telephone and hydro service to the 550 residents here was cut off by the blaze but was restored by noon.

exception of strategic goods. However, she does not allow Canada to be used for transshipment of embargoed American goods.

Rusk described the Punta del Este meeting in Uruguay as a "great success." While the majority of the Latin states did not go along with the original U.S. demands of isolating Cuba economically and politically, they had agreed that Leninism-Marxism, which Castro supports, is incompatible with the inter-American system.

A majority—but not including the big ones such as Brazil and Mexico—agreed to exclude the Cuban regime from the affairs of the OAS, the main organ of inter-American relations. But they also agreed to set up a special security committee to help prevent Castro from exporting revolution to other countries and to help halt illicit traffic of arms between Cuba and other states.

Earlier American diplomatic sources estimated that between 20 and 30 Soviet ships are arriving in Cuba each month, mainly with loads of arms for Cuban forces.

SEES CUBA ISOLATED

Rusk tried to put the best possible face on the Punta del Este meeting by saying: "There is no question that the present government of Cuba was and is isolated in this hemisphere."

However, he acknowledged he ran into a lot of trouble lining up sufficient support for his original proposals to impose a complete economic and diplomatic embargo on Cuba in the hemisphere. The big countries wouldn't go along.

Rusk said he told the other foreign ministers to use their best judgment in the light of political conditions in their home countries. He acknowledged there were "some differences of a juridical and technical nature" on the question of how Cuba is to be excluded from the various OAS bodies.

Lord Snowdon Getting Salary Of $21,000

LONDON (Reuters) — Princess Margaret's husband was reported today to be drawing a hefty salary by British standards for his job as artistic adviser to The Sunday Times.

Lord Snowdon, who started the job Thursday, is getting the equivalent of $21,000 a year, The Daily Mirror reported.

It's a lot of money in a country where the average industrial take-home pay is well under the quivalent of $2,000 a year and the prime minister gets £10,000 or $29,000.

There have been several protests over Snowdon taking the job—mainly on the grounds that it could involve him, as a member of the Royal Family, in politics with the Conservative Sunday Times.

Snowdon and Margaret also have been under fire because the government is paying for $238,000 worth of repairs to their rent-free home in Kensington Palace.

COLUMNIST CRITICAL

Commenting on Snowdon's job, his first paid post since his May, 1960, marriage, Connor says "the royal dicky bird has made it."

The waspish columnist goes on: "Unlike other photographers on the lower boughs of the profession, he was greeted by the editor of The Sunday Times at the front door, a swarm of policemen including ex-Detective Superintendent Fabian of the Yard, and a crowd of sightseers.

"As a further precaution the new chick was accompanied by his own private detective.

"With a truly splendid gesture of nonchalance, a spokesman said that his arrival was 'very informal.' I trust that from now on it will be the custom of editors, escorted by police and detectives, to welcome their staff on the steps of the office every morning."

Connor said Canadian millionaire Roy Thomson, Sunday Times owner, made "friendly clucking noises in the direction of his new artistic adviser."

"It is only fair to say that The Daily Mirror, which brusquely stripped Mr. Antony Armstrong-Jones of his new title, Lord Snowdon, is considering bestowing a peerage on Mr. Thomson—for it is quite unlikely that anybody else will," Connor says.

White Cane Club Hears Talk On Camp Life

The January business meeting of the White Cane Club was held recently at the YMCA with a small attendance, owing to the cold weather and illness.

President Pat Baverstock welcomed everyone and introduced a new member, Mr. Ken Chantler, who is the new manager in the stand for the blind at the hospital.

Minutes and correspondence were read and two delegates, Pat Baverstock and Helen Wardhaugh were appointed to attend the Ontario division of the Canadian Council of the Blind Conference to be held at Lake Joseph vacation centre, June 1st, 2nd and 3rd.

Ken Chandler, who enjoyed three weeks of camp life at Lake Joseph last summer, gave a detailed description of the camp, its surroundings and activities. No one can get lost at this camp as it is specifically laid out for the blind with all safety devices. Fishing was indulged in at 6 a.m. from boats. There were hikes and games, such as shuffleboard, lawn bowling, checkers and cribbage. There is a home teacher, a craft instructor, and a theraphy trainer. Sleeping accommodation is excellent. The camp is open from June through September and this year preparation is being made for the blind to bring their families. Lions International is responsible for this wonderful camp.

Next week is White Cane Week and data was read by Maude Rollins dealing with the use of the white cane and many instances where the public can be of assistance to one carrying a white cane.

Lunch was served by the Kinettes, who were thanked by Alice Smith.

NEW POLICE HEADQUARTERS — Provincial Police Headquarters for No. 9 District, and the Belleville O.P.P. Detachment office were moved yesterday into the new police building at 401 Highway and North Front Street. Happy about the move which means more room for personnel is District Inspector A. McDougall, seen in the inset.

New OPP Home, N. Front Street, Modern in Every Way With Large Heated Garage

The new look in police administration quarters came to the Bay of Quinte district yesterday as No. 9 Provincial Police Headquarters and the Belleville detachment office moved to their home in the north end of the city.

The building two storeys in height with full basement, is similar in design to other provincial police headquarters structures, which have been built throughout Ontario. In addition to separate quarters for headquarters and detachment ofifce staffs, the structure has overnight lock-up facilities, and a separate heated garage to hold nine police autos.

With new police building, provincial police headquarters in Belleville has come a long way in the past one-and-a-half decades.

ONLY HAD 3 ROOMS

Not too many years ago provincial police headquarters in Belleville were jammed into three small rooms on the top floor of the Jamieson Bone building on Front Street. In fact the provincial police shared the top floor of the building with the Royal Canadian Mounted Police detachment office.

Then the Bone building was gutted by fire and the provincial police secured quarters in the Big A building on Pinnacle Street where they remained until yesterday.

Prime reason for the new building and yesterday's move was of course the need for more room. Since the police headquarters were on Front Street 15 years or so ago, personnel of both headquarters and detachment office have been increased three or more times.

HAVE OWN LOCKERS

Police constables have their own lockers, showers, lunch room and lounge in the basement while the female secretarial help have their lounge with kitchen facilities on the top floor.

Detachment office quarters take up the entire ground floor of the new building while on the top floor are offices for District Inspector A. McDougall, Staff Sergeant H. S. Gall, the three headquarters secretaries. Aso on the top foor is quarters for the idenification department and photography laboratory.

Inside the main entrance to the new police building is a spacious lobby with information desk at one side. This desk will be manned by a constable 24 hours a day, handing incoming lalls, writing occurrences and in his spare moments will do typing of reports.

Operation of the intercom system which provides interior communication between all departments in the building, will also be the information officer's duty.

RADIO DEPARTMENT

The radio department which allows instant communication with detachment offices, in Picton, Bancroft, Napanee or Kingston, is also on the ground floor.

A convenience of the new structure which was entirely lacking in the previous police quarters is the over-night lock-up. Here prisoners can be lodged overnight until they can be transferred to the county jail.

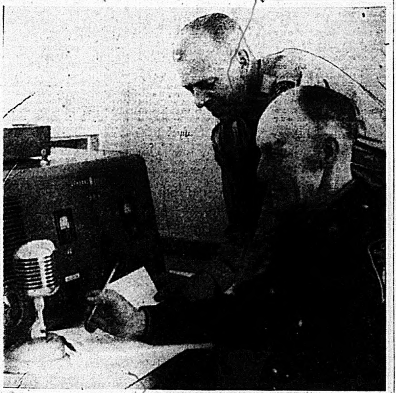
All personnel of both headquarters and detachment offices were happy to make the move yesterday, but none was more happy than Inspector McDougall. For the Inspector yesterday's move was the realization of a long time dream.

Stop Admittance

BRANTFORD (CP) — The Brantford General hospital hit by a shortage of nurses, stopped admitting patients for a day Thursday. The ban did not apply to emergency cases.

Administrator Kenneth Muir said four nurses were unable to work because of sickness, bringing to 37 the number of sick nurses. He said the main causes of illness are influenza and ear, eye, nose and throat infections.

The ban on admissions is to be reviewed today.



RADIO COMMUNICATION between headquarters and police department offices in the district, as well as between office and police cruisers, speeds up police work. Here Corporal Frank Bromfield (seated), and Constable Ray Schwindt listen to message over receiver.

REPORTS — REPORTS — Hundreds of reports and directives go out from police headquarters to detachment offices. Here Staff Sergt. H. S. Gall, of police headquarters staff, checks directive with stenographer Catherine L. Millard after report has been run through duplicator.

Hon. Geo. Hees Pays Visit to Bata Shoe Co.

TRENTON — Yesterday, the Hon. George Hees, Canadian Minister of Trade and Commerce, and his party visited the Bata Shoe Company plant at Batawa, and were briefed on plant production by members of the Bata engineering staff. With the minister were Mel Jack, Mr. Hees' executive assistant, Lee Grills, MP for Hastings South, Rod Webb, MP for Hastings-Frontenac and C. A. Milligan, MP for Prince Edward-Lennox.

Mr. Hees addressed the Bata workers over the plant broadcast system during his visit.

Dignity of Man Subject of Talk

TRENTON — The essential dignity of man was stressed by Rev. W. H. Dunphy, of the Sacred Heart parish at Batawa in an address before the Trenton Kiwanis Club last night.

"We are not just 'nobodies'" said the speaker, "we are 'somebodies,' created by God".

Father Dunphy reminded his audience that "man had been created a little lower than the angels." and said that every man should strive to bring to the fore the better part of his fellow-man.

Four parts of the soul, intellect, will, memory and imagination, were named by the speaker and their functions in the shaping of a man's character were elaborated.

On the subject of relaxation, Father Dunphy told the members to "feel concern," rather than "worry," over life's problems.

He said that the attitude, "after all, it could be worse," was a philosophical way of dealing with besetting worries.

To indulge in "flights of the soul" reliving happy moments of childhood, or visiting distant lands in one's imagination, were recommended as "worry-chasers."

Father Dunphy was introduced to the club by the past lieutenant governor of Kiwanis, Ted Parker and thanked by the immediate past-president, Norman Davis.

Visitors to the club, Clark Nelson, Jim Thompson, John Trafford, Don Finkle, Frank Follwell, Armand Duffy and Ross White, all from Belleville were welcomed by president Howard Aziz.

Bill Long announced that the show Kiwanis Follies '62 was shaping up and that the members would be given a preview of the show at the February 21 meeting.

Think Man Fell Thirty Feet From Footbridge

TRENTON — Around 7.30 a.m. yesterday, Clifford McEwen, 28 of Trenton was found lying on the ice just below the CNR footbridge, which is under repair. He was taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital in a semi-conscious condition.

Dr. J. D. Beecroft who attended Mr. McEwen said that he was suffering from exposure and a head injury. He is still in a dazed condition.

Hospital authorities say today that the man's condition is satisfactory. Police say they assume he fell from the footbridge to the ice below, a distance of 30 feet. No bones were broken.

Honor Veteran Railroaders

TRENTON — Wednesday night, more than 100 Canadian Pacific railwaymen from the Trenton district attended a banquet in the CPR recreation hall at Trenton, honoring Ernest Bowler and Len Lynch, who recently retired from active service with the railroad.

Mr. Bowler worked as yardmaster at Trenton for more than 41 years and Mr. Lynch has seen 38 years of service as telecommunications foreman of the Ontario district, which embraces an area bounded by Windsor on the west, Smiths Falls on the east and McTier to the north.

Both men were presented with gifts and personally congratulated by W. W. Stinson, assistant superintendent at the Belleville CPR subdivision.

Get Iran Orders

TRENTON — James Duncan, works' manager at Central Bridge Company, said today that his company had received an order involving a quarter of a million dollars from two Iranian firms, the Kara Company and the Nowkar Company, of Tehran, for 50 pre-fabricated steel warehouse buildings. The order was received at the end of 1961 and is half completed. Approximately 30 plant workmen are engaged on the project.

Mr. Duncan said that the steel frames and sheets, weighing 750 tons, would be sent by rail to Halifax and shipped to Khorramshahr, Iran. The buildings will be 40 feet by 100 feet when erected and it is presumed that they will be used for storage purposes.

Desirable—But Is It Practical?

The National Council of the Liberal Party has endorsed a plan to have the national treasury pay election campaign expenses of candidates who receive a certain proportion of the vote in their riding—exactly what proportion is left undetermined.

Now, of course, each candidate is nominally responsible for his own expenses. In practice a portion of the cost is usually paid by others who, for various reasons, want to see him elected. This opens the gate for a variety of abuses. The man who pays the piper may later try to call the tune. Even if he does not, fat pocketbooks may weigh the scales against a man of higher principles and better ideas but with fewer wealthy friends.

There are obvious advantages to be derived from having the national treasury pay election expenses. It would remove the charges that "big business" finances the Conservatives and Liberals. It would eliminate concern about the ethics of requiring union members to "contract out" if they do not wish part of their union dues diverted to the financing of the New Democratic Party.

At first glance, it all sounds wonderful. We are afraid, though, that like a lot of other plans with high objectives in practice it will be found to have flaws, perhaps so many that the net results would be to create situations worse than those which prevail today.

Obviously, if the national treasury pays election costs, these costs will have to be subject to a ceiling and there will also have to be some standard which a candidate must meet before having his election expenses paid. Otherwise every Tom, Dick and Harry could run without it costing him a cent. The Liberals did not define precisely what regulations they would favor, beyond saying that a candidate would have to obtain a reasonable proportion of the vote cast to have his expenses paid. J. W. Pickersgill, however, gave some indication of the party's thinking by suggesting that 20 per cent of votes would be a reasonable proportion. This may appear low, but in actual fact might prove to be high in a riding in which there were several independents with a good measure of support. Indeed, it might well be argued that the percentage of votes required should vary with the number of the candidates.

Immediately, however, a number of difficulties suggest themselves. Most people dislike a multiplicity of parties, especially if many of these parties are regional, rather than national, in character, as has been the case, in varying degrees, with the Progressives, the United Farmers of Alberta, the CCF, the Socreds, the Bloc Populaire and French Canadian nationalists. Yet this proposed system, while making it easy and inexpensive for these splinter parties to run candidates where they were strong, would effectively discourage them from attempting to become national parties. At the same time, might it not serve to encourage the formation of more regional splinter parties? There is a also the discontent always unavoidable when an arbitrary limit is set. Mathematically, it would be possible for a couple of votes to make the difference between a candidate having all his expenses paid and having none of them paid. Today a candidate tailors his campagn to the size of his campaign fund. If the national treasury picked up the tab, the temptation would be to gamble on getting the required number of votes. If this standard is not reached, what happens to the bills? Perhaps the candidate, or his party, would be unable to meet them.

These, and other objections which are sure to reveal themselves if such a scheme is ever put into effect, ought to be given extensive consideration before such a plan is launched.

Lessons from London

London, England, had a subway and railway strike on Monday.

The news services covered it fully, with hundreds of words and wirephoto pictures. The pictures looked just like the downtown area of any North American city at the rush hour. Just a long line of cars, obviously barely crawling along.

Come to think of it, perhaps those pictures should be published in every big city on the continent. There is a lesson to be learned.

This kind of thing can be avoided, if people have the sense to depend on public transport, rather than private cars. A proper system of commuter trains and subways could make a traffic jam international news, instead of an everyday occurrence on the main arteries in our larger cities.

U.S. Record For Violence Is the Highest

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

The most violent people on earth are not the "savage" tribes in the African Congo, or the "primitive" inhabitants of the Australian bush.

For no other nation on earth has a worse record than the United States for murder, manslaughter, rape, armed robbery, sluggings, muggings, carnage on the highways, and assorted forms of violence.

In no city of Europe — at least those I have visited — is an adult afraid to walk home alone after dark. Here, we are afraid — not merely in the "worst" neighborhoods, but in the "best" as well.

There are more killings annually in the city of Houston, Tex., than in all of England. And large cities like New York and Chicago have a higher homicide total than most European countries.

What odd combination of elements has created in us this throbbing need for violence? We speak about human life being "cheap" in such countries as China — but no nation which slaughters 40,000 of its own men, women and children annually on the highways can be said to hold human life dear.

Nor can we put the blame upon our "youthfulness" as a nation. Fifty years ago, Oscar Wilde remarked that "America's youthfulness is its oldest tradition — it has been going on for 300 years." We are not all that young, although we may still be emotionally infantile.

In many ways, we are a gentle, generous, peaceable people; our virtues are many and profound. Yet, at the same time, we have somehow bred a national character — or a lack of national character — in which violence seems to play the dominant motif.

It is not the poverty of our masses; the rest of the world has much more poverty, much more glaring contrast between rich and poor. It is not our slums, for slums are prevalent throughout the world, and ours are by no means the worst.

Our lack of respect for human life, our raw violence, is to me a more sinister aspect of our nation's development than any of the political or economic changes that are so deplored by professional deplorers. We cannot see it in ourselves, of course; but nations, like individuals, can never see themselves as they appear to others.

Is there some tremendous hidden rage in us, some vast unconscious rebellion against the social organism, some mounting tension that could easily turn into blood-lust? Our cities are becoming jungles, and our highways are charnel houses. Our crimes of violence have doubled since the end of World War 11.

Perhaps it is time we stopped looking at ourselves as a "peace-loving" people. Our statistics of sudden death suggest we are involved in a civil war, in the towns, in the woods, on the roads.

Perfect team play was the reason the Belleville hockey team defeated the Cornwall team in Cornwall. Belleville had few rooters but those present made themselves heard. Cornwall was a snappy team but they resorted to individual work and that made it "apple pie" for the Belleville boys. There were no particular stars on the Belleville team, every player was working for goals and it made no difference who scored them. The final score was 11 to 8. The following composed the Belleville team: Boland, Holway, Goyer, Arnott, Whalen, Weir; subs — Canning and Swayne. The referee was W. Symon and he gave entire satisfaction. Time-keeper for Belleville: Symons; goal umpire for Belleville: Ken Colling; penalty keeper for Belleville: A. Goyer.

HOLD TIGHT TO YOUR POCKETBOOK

Recently in talking with a friend of mine and holding forth on the privilege of being a citizen of a free nation in these trying times, I concluded by saying, "Certainly no nation ever had a more noble slogan than ours, 'In God We Trust.' " My friend, who is a very practical-headed businessman, smiled and said, "Yes, but everybody else must pay in cash."

Yesterday to my horror an economist showed me on chart the decreasing gold content of the dollar. "Currency has to be supported by something," he said — "gold, silver, goods, or wampum, but it has to be something. We are coming mighty close to the place where our currency is purely and simply printed paper."

A lot of things are happening around about us today so serious that they should make our hair stand on end. Yet we are worried to death about little trifles. We are realizing the necessity for increased military preparedness and are getting furiously active about it. But the money we carry in our pockets? Few of us have enough or the kind of brains that can fathom a problem such as the movement of gold. But there is something happening to our pocketbooks all the time. This is worse than pick-pocketing. At least, after having our wallets lifted we can go to the bank and fill them again. But if the money there has been tampered with — good night. That might mean almost anything of a terrifying nature.

New Tractor Picks Speed

Trade Topics

A tractor that thinks for itself has been produced by a British company. Changing speed automatically to meet every variation in load, it is claimed to be the world's first production tractor with fully automatic transmission.

The unit, Autodrive, is partially hydraulic, but predominantly mechanized. It is built into a standard 52-horsepower tractor and given two forward speeds — one going four to 16 miles per hour for light transport and road work, the other providing speeds of one to six miles per hour for such specialist jobs as harvesting and cultivating.

The driver sets a dial to automatic and then engages the selected speed range. On starting Autodrive selects the lowest speed ratio — so minimizing the load on the transmission — and then automatically changes over to the highest, most efficient, working speed for load and ground conditions.

The manufacturers say they have solved the main difficulty in designing an automatic transmission system for tractors — that of sustaining power to the tractor's rear wheels during speed changes in heavy work when even a momentary interruption of the power drive would be enough to halt the tractor. When plowing on rolling ground Autodrive moves automatically into high speeds on downgrades and into lower speeds on upgrades, leaving the driver free to concentrate on the job in hand. The makers estimate that Autodrive will improve tractor efficiency and productivity between 10 and 15 per cent.

Raise Mice, Save Horses

UNESCO Features

In 1961, 50 horses in Turkey got a deadly disease called African Horse Sickness. This statistic is remarkable because the year before 30,000 horses got the same disease and over 90 per cent of them died. The change was brought about by an FAO expert, Dr. William Moulton and his counterpart in the Turkish Ministry of Agriculture, Dr. Dilaver Bester.

The disease brought economic disaster to Turkish farm families whose horse is their most precious possession, used for tilling, plowing and transportation.

It is spread by insects and, once it gains a foothold, can decimate the horse and mule population of a country in no time. It is 100 per cent preventable by vaccination, however: of the 600,000 horses in Turkey that have been vaccinated by Dr. Moulton and his team not one got the disease.

The attack on African Horse Sickness was twofold: first to produce in Turkey enough vaccine to immunize all horses and mules and second, to get horses in previously exposed areas vaccinated before summer, when the disease would strike again. Both objectives have been accomplished.

The first step was the establishment of a vaccine laboratory and factory in Elazig, a town in Eastern Turkey. There enough vaccine is made to supply the whole country and even neighboring countries threatened with the same disease.

The vaccine is made from the brains of a special type of white laboratory mouse, so that the first problem was to raise at least 13,000 mice. The original specimens were flown in from Italy and England and then escorted by special "mouse bus" to Elazig. It was the middle of winter and mice are very susceptible to cold, therefore they could not travel in an unheated plane.

"Some Turkish agricultural workers were a little surprised when we told them that their new job was to raise mice . . . as quickly as possible," Dr. Moulton said. "There had been quite a campaign in Turkey for mouse eradication, and we were suddenly telling them to raise mice instead of killing them".

Once the vaccine was in production, teams of Turkish veterinarians went from village to village, vaccinating thousands of horses. "In areas where there had been an outbreak of the disease a year ago, the farmers couldn't wait to get the shots for their horses," Dr. Moulton said. "They collected their animals in one village and sat around for days waiting for our teams to come and vaccinate." In areas where no one had ever heard of the disease the farmers were much less eager to have their animals treated . . . sometimes it took a lot of persuading. A full-scale publicity campaign in the newspapers, on the radio and with posters, was effective. "I don't know of any one who downright refused to have his animal vaccinated," Dr. Moulton said.

He is returning to the United States since he has only been loaned to the United Nations for one year by the United States Department of Agriculture. In 1962, he hopes all the 1,500,000 horses in Turkty will have been vaccinated and African Horse Sickness will be eradicated completely from the country.

Oliver Only Good Twist

Halifax Chronicle-Herald

American movie producers, with a few brilliant exceptions, having come to the conclusion that good taste and talent are poor substitutions for banality when it comes to making money, are now racing against time to cash in on the current dance craze, the twist.

Frantically attempting to catch the teenagers in midgyration, they are cranking out memorable epics like "Twist Around the Clock," "Hey, Let's Twist," "Doin the Twist," and "Viva La Twist." Stars include such musical comedy luminaries as Chubby Checkers, the Dukes of Dixieland, and someone named U.S. Bonds.

About the only good thing one can see in this development is that some imaginative promoter might be able to slip a "ringer" over on the youngsters. Picture their unsuspecting surprise if the film, "Oliver Twist," were to unfold on the movie screen.

P.B.I. and B.M.R. Tests Show Metabolism

Dear Dr. Molner: Recently my physician ordered a 'P.B.I.' blood test for me. He said it was the same as the one that I used to have when I breathed through a machine, but that this other test is much better.

Some of my friends have had this test, too. We wonder how the blood can tell the same thing as breathing into a machine. And how is the P.B.I. blood test better? — T.P.

The letters "P.B.I." mean "protein-bound iodine," and the test shows how much iodine has been absorbed in a particular form into the blood.

This "P.B.I." test is one which a good many people are having these days. It does, indeed, tell much the same facts that can be read from "breathing into a machine," or the so-called "B.M.R." test, or "basal metabolism reading."

Now all of us vary a little bit in the way we use up our food and the air we breathe. Some of us are rather placid and calm. Some of us are high strung buzzers. Some of us say, "It's sort of chilly in the house, isn't it?" and some of us say, "Golly, it's pretty warm!" In the same house, I mean.

Some of us are like slow, smoldering fires, and some of us are like fires with a strong draft.

In a good many cases, the difference is in the activity in our thyroid glands. Some thyroids are over-active. Some are under-active. (And most of us are pretty close to average.)

A highly active thyroid will speed up our "fuel-burning ability." We'll be active, feel warm, need a lot of oxygen to burn up the food we eat. So, if we "breathe into a machine," we can measure the amount of oxygen used, and hence get some useful data.

But it so happens that the thyroid gland, which controls this activity, has a close connection with the very fine traces of iodine in the system.

If the thyroid is highly active, it keeps a stronger trace of iodine moving in and out of the gland. The iodine, fired out of the gland, goes into the bloodstream.

There it becomes "protein-bound iodine." Just traces, in any case, but significant ones.

The rate of oxygen use is faster or slower, depending on the thyroid activity. The amount of iodine is higher or lower, depending on the same thing.

Now it happens that our nerves have an effect — and often we are extra-nervous when having any medical test. Hence the oxygen test, or "B.M.R.," or "breathing into a machine" test can be influenced by our nerves.

The "P.B.I." or "protein-bound iodine" test avoids this.

However, the P.B.I. isn't perfect, either. It can be thrown our of kilter if, within some days or weeks, the patient has had an extra amount of iodine from the fluids swallowed for a gall-bladder or kidney X-ray, or other such source, or from medications containing potassium iodide.

In short, you can't say that one test is "better" than another without weighing all the incidental circumstances. But the speed at which you use oxygen, or the rate at which particles of iodine are taken up by the blood, both tend to show your metabolism — and hence the low or high activity of the thyroid.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

One of my friends invariably refuses to allow anyone to buy his lunch for him. Even on business occasions, when being entertained, he refuses to accept dinner, but must pay for his own. He will gladly buy anybody else's lunch or dinner. But he makes it a point on all occasions to have it clear that if he is not expected to pay the tab, it must be Dutch treat.

"," he says, "like to read a menu with a cheerful and open mind. I am fond of eating. A menu to me is a most pleasing prospect. I love to explore it all. And I am determined to choose what I like. But it has been my experience that if I am a guest, I am inhibited. I can't choose what I like. I find myself looking at the price column, with a growing uneasiness. I don't want to stick my host with the $4 dish. I select some dull item at $2.50. My meal is ruined."

Of course, there is the type who, on being invited to lunch, immediately seizes the opportunity to have the $4 dish which otherwise he would never dream of choosing.

It takes all kinds.

DREAMS AND DESIRES

No matter how feathery and invisible dreams may be, they remain as the substantial inspirers of this life of ours.

What would a man or woman amount to if he or she couldn't — or didn't dream?

There has never been a great project completed that didn't begin with a dream. The artist sees his masterpiece before he has mixed his paints. The bridge builder walks over his great expanse before he has even drawn or figured out his blue prints.

We grow better and become nobler and truer only as we dream about it. Our dreams reach out. They do not centre about us as individuals but as a part of something better than we are, and taking in more than we are. The dreamer figures the world as his partner.

But our desires are selfish things. They often centre about wants which would probably not be good for us if they came true.

Our desires often consume much of the good that is in us that should go to others.

We desire fame, money, position, applause, but our dreams go beyond our desires. If this were not so, we would not share with others and there would be no fine spirit in our communities.

The publisher of this newspaper desires profits, but he dreams of the influence that the thoughts, expressed from day to day in these columns, will have on this community and other communities. His dream is to make this newspaper an institution of value, a leader in the right, taking sides with the weak.

Our dreams are things apart. They are akin to our spiritual life. They are the good in us, shadowing the deeds we most want done.

Can Have Full Employment If We Will Work for It, Hees Tells C of C Dinner

"You cannot do business sitting on your you-know-what," Trade and Commerce Minister George Hees emphasized yesterday evening. He was speaking to a capacity audience of well over 150 people at the annual meeting of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce at the Hotel Quinte.

From the 1961 year-end report there is every indication that production in Canada is increasing and that Canadians can realize new levels if they are willing to get out and work and keep driving with a spirit of full co-operation between labor, management and government, he suggested.

"We can have full employment if we work for it," Canada's top salesman said.

The next six months promise to be one of the most important periods in world history, he suggested. It is during this time that Great Britain's entry into the European Common Market will be negotiated and also during which the U.S. Congress will be considering a request of the United States' president for broad powers of tariff adjustment or elimination. Both of these advanced free trade policies are coming from nations which have long been recognized as either independent or protectionist in their trade practices. Mr. Hees noted. MORE . nW ....

SEEKING MARKETS

In the meantime what is Canada doing, the speaker queried, whilst these negotiations and considerations go on? "We are driving as hard as we can for every market in every part of the world," he answered.

As a result of the trade conferences held between Canadian firms and Canada's trade commissioners in Ottawa this past year, there has been an increase in export business, he said. In the first 10 months there was an overall increase of 7.2 per cent in exports with an increase of 14 per cent occurring in the last three months of this period. Sales in markets other than the traditional export markets for Canada have increased one third in the past year, he advised.

This success has only come about, and sales will only continue to increase, because of the efforts of Canadian producers and salesmen to get out and sell their products, Mr. Hees emphasized.

Listing a few of the government's actions to assist in these efforts, Mr. Hees noted the devaluation of the Canadian dollar which allowed the foreign buyer to get five to six per cent more goods for his dollar yet did not sacrifice the income which the Canadian manufacturer received for his product.

A system of export credits extending up to 20 years, provision for the insurance of overseas sales, the sending out of 24 trade missions to examine markets abroad and the participation in 55 trade fairs around the world are other government moves to stimulate and promote export trade.

LOCAL FIRMS BENEFIT

Mr. Hees noted that several local industries had profited from this program. The Bata Shoe firm had received a quarter-million dollar order following participation in a recent trade fair in the United States. A Trenton firm could now provide 62,000 man hours of work thanks to an order from the Near East. District apple growers were benefiting by a new market for their produce in Europe. The Black Diamond cheese was finding an expanding market also, he said.

Canadian producers can find these markets by getting out, visiting them and selling to them. Europe wants to do business with Canada, especially in processed foods, Mr. Hees stated. Canadians should take advantage of the good public relations which they enjoy with these people and go forth and meet them, rather than sit about on their hands at home. The speaker noted that a fruit and vegetable products trade mission would be going out shortly to explore market possibilities.

Mr. Hees stressed the importance of a "get out and sell" policy on the part of Canadian producers because of the fact that Canada is not a low wage country. She must therefore sell quality goods at somewhat higher prices and this requires work.

Mr. Hees said that a number of misconceptions existed regarding the relationship between Canada and Great Britain over the latter's proposed entry into the European Common Market. At no time has there been any ill will or hard feeling between the two nations and Canada has not opposed entry of the latter into the ECM, he advised.

Canada has always maintained that entry into the ECM was a matter for the sole decision of Great Britain and it was not up to the other members of the Commonwealth to decide the issue for her, the Minister of Trade and Commerce said.

Canada has made strong representation as to how her position would be affected by such a move, he said. Right now there is a full team of Canadian representatives, headed by the deputy minister in charge of foreign trade, in Brussels to advise Great Britain's negotiators on Canada's position and to assist the British in their efforts to maintain, to as large a degree as possible, the trading preferences which Canada has enjoyed in the British market in the past.

Mr. Hees expressed the feeling that the European Common Market may find it difficult to allow the maintenance of these trading preferences which affect about 95 per cent of Canada's $900,000,000 annual trade with Great Britain.

The speaker concluded by advising that Canadians have to realize the easy years of the post-war period have ended but that there is still plenty of opportunity for those who will get out and work.

The speaker was introduced by Lee Grills, M.P. for Hastings South, and thanked by Alderman Jack Ireland.

G. A. Wishart, 1961 president of the Chamber of Commerce, said that the resources of a chamber determine the number of services which it is able to provide for the citizens and visitors of the community. There are many facilities which the local chamber would like to provide but could only do so if there was a greater revenue to work with. This could be increased only through a greater membership and he commended the members to take this task to hand and get new members for the chamber in 1962.

Mr. Wishart thanked the members of the executive and the various committees for their full co-operation and close support during the past year and credited the success of the chamber as being due to their efforts and to the energetic and enthusiastic service of the manager, Earl Dicknoether.

For the first time in many years the local Chamber of Commerce has operated in the black, it was announced by treasurer G. H. Trill in making his annual report. He credited this situation to the fine efforts of the previous treasurer, A. J. E. Jarrett.

The new officers were installed by past president Enos David, who reminded them that they were taking on a most important task and that they could do much to improve the community through the conscientious execution of their duties.

Those inducted included Walter Elliott, president; J. B. Corke, vice-president; D. J. Barrett, second vice-president; G. H. Trill, treasurer; directors, O. L. Bell, Ron Cass, A. O. Drysdale, Harold Farrow, G. W. Joyce, G. A. Freeman, Charley Lundy, Jack McArthur, J. A. Ireland and J. C. Houston, directors.

Ald. Walter Elliott, incoming president, stated that he hoped for an increased program of public relations for the community through the Chamber of Commerce. He also remarked that he felt the surrounding area should be a part of this program, to promote the image of this area as a forward community.

Noting that 1961 had been a very good year during which nearly every local industry had experienced some form of expansion; the city had undergone the greatest natural increase of assessment, about $1,500,000, in its history; and the American Optical firm had moved its headquarters to Belleville. Mr. Elliott stated that he looked forward to an equally good year for the community in 1962.

Ald. J. B. "Ben" Corke, brought the greetings of the City of Belleville. Ald. Corke also introduced the head table guests.

Brief remarks were also given by Mayor James MacDonald of Trenton, Mayor Harvey McFarlane of Picton, Warden Harold Varty of Hastings County, Manager Earl Dicknoether of the local chamber and "Zeke" Kvarda, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Close to 165 persons attended the meeting which was one of the best attended annual gatherings for several years.

Groundhog's Shadow Would Freeze

Today dawned overcast in Belleville and the Quinte district.

Never were clouds more welcome.

For the superstitious it meant that, if their luck held, the end of winter was in sight. The groundhog would not be able to see his shadow. He would not duck out of the sunlight to snooze away six more weeks of winter.

For the practical-minded, the clouds meant that a change in the weather was due — an overdue change. With the overcast skies came the weatherman's promise that temperatures would moderate. The thermometer provided evidence that the weatherman had the right "gen." At 2 a.m. today the mercury stood at 20 below, by 6 a.m. it had struggled up one degree, to 19 below, two hours later it stood a 16 below — but by 10.30 a.m. it had climbed up to a mere 9 below.

Come to think about it, maybe there was really no danger of the groundhog seeing his shadow even if the sun had been shining brightly. What living thing, able to sleep through that kind of weather without any alarm clock or hunger pangs to disturb him, would poke his nose from beneath the covers?

Pakistan Ambassador Tries To Point Out Indian Paradox

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Pakistan's diplomatic attack on India is apparently designed to explode Prime Minister Nehru's claim that India sticks by the rule of law in a world dominated by cold-war tigers.

Sir Muhammed Zafrulla Khan, Pakistan ambassador, was clear on this in his request for a United Nations security council meeting on the charge that India was threatening Pakistan once more over disputed Kashmir.

India's army takeover of Portuguese Goa and two other small Portuguese territories on the Indian subcontinent in December gave the UN its most traumatic jolt since the Suez crisis and the Hungarian uprising of 1956.

ESCAPED CENSURE

India escaped censure in the UN because of passionate anti-colonial feeling in the Afro-Asian bloc which comprises nearly half of the UN membership, but no argument has convinced the Western powers that on its face it was anything else but a power grab.

Had any other country except India made such a move on Goa the shock would have been less.

India is deep in the fabric of the UN, a maker of principle, a prime contributor to the UN force in The Congo, a supporter of the UN emergency force in the Middle East, one of the key countries in the solution of the Suez crisis that rocked the Commonwealth.

Shortly before the Goa incident, Nehru addressed the UN general assembly and proposed an international year of co-operation along the lines of the successful "world refugee year."

GANDHI FOLLOWERS

Nehru and his defence minister, V. K. Krishna Menon, long an emissary to the UN, frequently have referred to the wisdom of their mentor, Mahatma Gandhi, and his doctrine of passive resistance rather than force.

Against all this, Pakistan says India in practice will hesitate not a moment to use force where its interests are involved. The Indian army was sent against the recalcitrant state of Hyderabad after Britain granted independence in 1947, it was recalled.

Indian troops have been working out along the Pakistan border. Pakistan says it was an insult to the United States that India turned down President Kennedy's offer of "good offices" between Pakistan and India on the Kashmir dispute which has been in progress since 1948.

Whatever the merits of the Kashmir dispute, it appears Pakistan felt this was a ripe moment to make India a defendant at the United Nations.

JUSTICE

World War the government could—and did — disregard the advice of tribunals that had only advisory powers.

Except as a declaration of principle of review, the committee decides, the government's proposed amendment "is of little value."

The courts already had ruled that the government, after detaining a person, can claim "privilege" and no court can ask the reason for the detention. This would make a review tribunal helpless without legislative powers.

The committe said it is "considering" an amendment calling for review within a reasonable time by an independent tribunal with the power to order the release of the detained person unless the tribunal is told of "reasonable cause for the detention."

In the event the government claimed privilege, the amendment would require it to tell the tribunal confidentially why it detained the person. The person involved still would not be told, but otherwise could appear before the tribunal.

Organized Crime To Be Studied Says Minister

MONTREAL (CP) — Justice Minister Fulton said Thursday night a study will be made leading to a campaign against organized or syndicated crime.

He did not elaborate, making only a passing reference to the study in a spech to the Montreal Junior Board of Trade in which he sketched the government's new program aimed at curbing drug addiction.

Mr. Fulton mentioned the justice department's current inquiry into juvenile delinquency and said the study of syndicated crime—a field closely related with that of drugs—will be "a further or perhaps simultaneous endeavor."

He did not reveal the scope of the crime study or who will carry it out.

(It was learned recently that top RCMP officers and other police chiefs from across Canada have held several meetings to discuss the migration of United States crime syndicates to Canada.)

Gamma Mu Chapter Plans Future Events

In the absence of president, Doreen Greer, vice-president, Mrs. Robin Jeffrey did an excellent job of officiating. After a short business meeting, a program on "absolute music" was presented by Mrs. J. Lewis. She illustrated her interesting comments by playing Dvorak's New World Symphonie. Following this, she entertained the members by playing seelections on the piano.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Mary O'Flynn and Mrs. Robin Jeffrey.

The second meeting in January was held at the home of Mrs. June Sine. President Mrs. Doreen Greer conducted the meeting. It was decided to rush for new members this spring since several girls will likely move on into the new Exmplar Chapter. The possibility of having a mixed bowling party at the end of February, was discussed. President Doreen announced that a nominating committee for next year's executive will be set up at the next meeting. The duties of the various officers were outlined. Mrs. Barbara Riley gave an interesting program on ballet.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Allaneen Murray and Mrs. Jessie White.

Congregational Meeting

ST. THOMAS' CHURCH

Following the dinner meeting of the Brotherhood of Anglican Churchmen, the annual vestry meeting of St. Thomas' Church was held on Tuesday last, with a good representation of the congregation present. The meeting was opened by prayer by the Rector Canon A. S. McConnell and with the appointment of Mr. H. T. Floyd as vestry clerk, reports were given by the rector, assistant Curate and Church wardens.

The rector thanked all those who had assisted in the work of the parish and its organizations during the past year. Special mention was made of the wardens, Mr. Ronald Keel, Mr. Mac Smith and, Mr. A. S. Lewis, chairman of parish visitation. The rector ended his report on these words:

"The pattern of the parish goes on year by year. We place our loved ones in the hands of God and deeply regret their passing; we join in holy matrimony young people of the parish, and wish them years of happiness; we bring children into the fellowship of the church through Christian baptism and watch them prepare for their confirmation at the hands of the Bishop. I am privileged as your Rector, to be with you in your joys and in your sorrows. My only plea is one for your continued loyalty to this parish and the grand old historic church in which we have the privilege to worship".

YOUNG PEOPLE'S WORK

The Reverend D. W. Sinclair gave a report of his activities since he came to the parish last May, especially in the field of young peoples' work.

The wardens' financial statement showed that all parish expenses had been met in full and $6,950 paid on Synod assessment; $3,000 on church extension and a further $5,300 placed in the building fund account.

The Rector warmly commended the retiring warden, Mr. Ronald Keel, for his faithful services to the church during his term as Rector's Warden and asked Mr. Mac Simth to assume these duties for the coming year.

Mr. A. J. Fort was elected to the position of People's Warden with Dr. P. G. Loder and Mr. R. W. G Freestone as Junior Wardens.

The balance of the nominating committee report presented by Mr. M. F. L. Jones, unanimously accepted by the meeting is as follows:

VESTRY COUNCIL

Executive council of the vestry: Mr. F. H. Bellstedt, Dr. J. M. McLean, Mr. L. A. Kells, Mr. J. A. Pringle, Mr. E. J. Richards, Mr. A. R. Scott, Mr. A. W. Athey, Mr. J. L. Clarke, Mr. G. Hume, Mr. M. F. L. Jones, Mr. E. J. Lancaster, Mr. G. M. Miller, Mr. M. Workman, Mr. W. G. Adey, Mr. H. L. Carruthers, Mr. A. L. Gnaedinger, Mr. T. E. Smith and Mr. Ronald Keel.

Auditors — Mr. W. T. Simpson, Mr. W. S. Stone.

Among other appointments confirmed by the meeting were, S-L L. Minion, chairman of sidesmen, Mrs. John A. Pringle, president of the Women's Church Year, and Mrs. T. A. Smith who will replace Mrs. S. E. Morton as parish representative on the V.O.N. Mrs. Morton served faithfully in this capacity for some eight years.

Mr. A. S Lewis gave a full report on the important matter of the recent parish visitation and was given an unanimous vote of appreciation for the work that he and his committee had done.

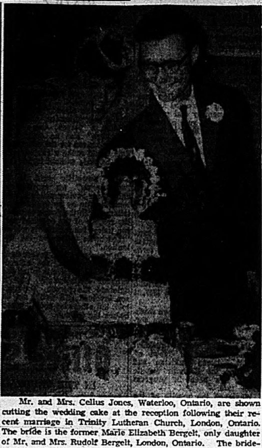
By formal motion the new officers of the Women's Church Year were confirmed in office for 1962 and the funds of the Parochial Guild turned over to the treasurer of the Womens' Church Year.

The Budget for 1962 was presented by Mr. Mac Smith and following a full discussion was approved by the vestry.

Probably the most important discussion of the Vestry followed the presentation by Mr. L. A. Kells on behalf of a special committee appointed to consider further extension to the parish house facilities. The matter was well presented and following its consideration from all angles the Vestry gave its approval to the building of an addition to the parish house and named the following to take further action and report back to the Vestry. Mr. L. A. Kells, Mr. Mac Smith, Mr. Ronald Keel, Mr. A. J. Fort, Mr. W. T. Simpson, Mr. M. F. L. Jones and Mr. H. L. Carruthers.

A letter from the Bishop outlining a method of contribution to the Diocesan Centennial Thankoffering, caused considerable discussion. While the meeting agreed in principle to the need for generous support of this appeal it was felt that the naming of an objective might produce better results.

With all business matters amicably settled, the meeting closed with the benediction by Reverend D. W. Sinclair and refreshments were served by a group of ladies of the parish.



Mr. and Mrs. Cellus Jones, Waterloo, Ontario, are shown cutting the wedding cake at the reception following their recent marriage in Trinity Lutheran Church, London, Ontario. The bride is the former Marie Elizabeth Bergelt, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolf Bergelt, London, Ontario. The bridegroom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Jones, of Belleville, Ontario.

JONES — BERGELT

In a lovely recent candlelight ceremony in Trinity Lutheran Church, London, Ont., Marie Elizabeth Bergelt, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rudolf Bergelt, of Hyde Park, London, Ontario, was united in marriage to Robert Cellus Jones only son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Jones, of Belleville, Ontario, with the Reverend C. J. Killinger, pastor of the church, officiating.

Mr. David Hutchinson, the church organist, provided the traditional wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiantly lovely in her bridal gown of white tulip brocade of simple design, in floor length. She wore a crown of sequins and seed pearls, with elbow-length veil of silk illusion tulle, and carried a cascade boquet of red Sweetheart roses mingled with white baby 'mums and trailing ivy.

She was attended by Miss Elsie Fitz, as maid of honor, and the Misses Florence Fitz of Elmira, Ontario, and Melita Welke, of London, Ontario, as bridesmaids. The maid of honor wore a gown of soft blue silver-flecked velvet in street-length, matching headdress and carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums mingled with pink roses. The bridesmaids were in beige gold-flecked velvet in street length, with matching headdresses and carried bouquets of russet-toned 'mums.

Attending the bridegroom was Mr. Keith Suykens, Belleville, and ushering the guests Messrs. Alfred Bergelt of Hyde Park, London, Ontario, brother of the bride, and Glenn Noble, of Uxbridge, Ontario.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Golden Pheasant Inn, London, where the guests were received by the bride's mother, wearing a navy blue gown in street-length, with white accessories, and a corsage of pink and white 'mums. The bridegroom's mother, attired in a magenta street-length gown, with matching hat, and complementing accessories, with white carnation corsage, assisted in the receiving line.

The happy couple left for a wedding trip around Lake Ontario, to Syracuse, Buffalo and Niagara Falls, and following the honeymoon, a reception was held at St. Andrew's Presbyteria Church in Belleville, with the Reverend R. D. MacLean and the Reverend W. H. V. Walker present.

Previous to her marriage the bride was entertained at a shower held in Burnley, Ont., with Mrs. Art McMurdo, as hostess.

The young couple are residing in Waterloo, Ont., where the bridegroom is attending Waterloo University. Mrs. Jones will continue to teach for the present at Waterloo Public School.

On Wednesday, January 31st, over 150 ladies representing all the Presbyterial United Church Women's groups in the Bay of Quinte Conference met for the inaugural service of the Conference United Church Women in Tabernacle United Church.

Rev. Dr. D. M. Smith of Campbellford presided for both sessions and conducted the inaugural service in the absence of Rev. E. C. Kelloway, president of the Bay of Quinte Conference, who was unable to be present.

In her speech of acceptance, Mrs. W. A. Weatherhead of Sharbot Lake, the first president of the new organization, stated "that as we have prepared over the past two years for what is taking place today, it has been as though we were approaching an open door. It has given us an opportunity to go through to greater things or to step aside and escape. We have accepted the challenge, and with it the responsibilities."

OFFICERS INSTALLED

Other officers installed by Dr. Smith included: vice-presidents: Mrs. Clarence Holmes, 60 Holmes Rd., Belleville; Mrs. L. F. Richardson, 314 Centre St. S., Whitby; Mrs. R. C. Walker, 365 Johnson St, Kingston; Mrs. R. C. Ellis, 160 Dufferin Ave., Belleville; recording secretary, Mrs. J. E. Miss Anne I. Ward, executive secretary of the Board of Women of the United Church, in her address during the inaugural service, said, "Remember that we are standing on the threshold of a new era. It is hard for us to assess the significance of it all. We are going forward in faith. The future holds much that we cannot know nor anticipate."

She reminded the ladies of the rich heritage of the pioneer women who organized themselves on the frontiers and who went as missionaries into fields where no women had ventured previously. God moved in the hearts and minds and wills of these dedicated women who accomplished great things. Now in the twentieth century, these conditions no longer exist. Today here is no aspect of the church's work in which we cannot share.

Miss Ward emphasized that this new movement is not so much women's work as women working. Nothing is really new, it is an outgrowth of the old. Everything new is the inevitable result of what one has been and what one has done. Some people are reluctant to gove up the old ways, and can see no virtue in the new. Others are so eager to grasp hold of the new, that they overlook the value of the old. She remarked that two things are needed: "We need a renewal of our conception of what it means to be the Church (God's people). We need to stretch and enlarge our understanding of the mission of the Church." She stressed the fact that this new organization is no longer a part from the main stream of the Church, nor is it any longer exclusively concerned with women's work, but it exists for the purpose of preparing women to live and work as members of the church, not as members of a woman's organization.

One definition of a congregation is "an instrument of mission". The real task of the people of God is our witness outside the walls of the church, in the community, the nation and the world. There is evidence of expectancy and readiness on the part of women and men to enter into this new phase. But we must remember this new thing cannot be of our own creation. There must be a renawal of our spirit ond our dedication that we may be God's witness in our own generation. We are only instruments in the hands of God for the building of His Church, for it is God alone who makes things new. Let us truly dedicate ourselves that we may fulfill His purpose in the world".

At the noon luncheon greetings were brought by Miss Anne Ward from the Board of Women; Rev. Catherine McKeen, Board of Information and Stewardship, Rev. Sterling Kitchen, Missionary and Maintenance Department and Mr. S. Martin, President of Bay of Quinte Conference United Church Men. Mr. Martin had previously presented all the ladies of the new executive with corsages on behalf of the United Church men.

TASK OF CHURCH

In the afternoon session, Rev. Sterling Kitchen brought a splendid message on the task of the church. He pointed out that the United Church is a great church, not only because of its numbers, and the amount of money raised by its large membership, but because of the work it does on the frontiers, in the downtown parts of our great cities, in the field of education and social service. But he gave a warning that bigness, prestige and money can be the very sign of its downfall, unless one uses them for God. "We must be concerned that we use our power and money to make the work of Christ more efficient and dynamic".

Mr. Kitchen continued saying, "Our Church should be a 'disturbed" church and a "giving" church. So many do not want to be distributed, but Christ came into this world to stir the people out of their complacency. In Jesus' day, He disturbed people with His stories of the woman at the well, Zacchaeus and the Good Samaritan. Today conditions in the world disturb us, — hunger and poverty, sickness and illiteracy in under-developed countries. Quoting a Soudanese man whom he met in Europe at a stewardship meeting, he said 'We have to learn to give, or we'll perish. We must be a 'giving' church for there is so much to do. We must give more that the church may take its proper place in the world. How can church fulfill its mission to spread the gospel in all its fields without the money to back the workers? We must widen our horizons, have a greater vision, that we can accept the challenge to establish the Kingdom of God on this earth".

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION

Rev. R. Catherine McKeen spoke of her pleasure in being at this historic meeting, the first Conference United Church Women's inaugural service in Canada. She was speaking of the work of Christian education and Missionary education of the U.C.W. Since the work is being done through the Christian education committee, it is most important that such committees be established at each level — local, Presbytery and conference. The new Sunday School curriculum places a great emphasis on studies for adults for there is great need for informed and dedicated adult teachers. She particularly recommended the book "The Word and the Way" by Prof. Donald Mathers, an introductory book for the new curriculum. Books, papers and pamphlets to be used in Sunday School, the home, the Messengers (replacing the Mission Bands) were shown and discussed. A colorful poster for missionary education, "Churches for New Times" was displayed. Miss McKeen told of the new ceremony of dedication to mission for boys and girls to be used in a congregational service. She emphasized that one of the big tasks of the church is in the Christian education of the boys. She also reported that General Council has appointed a committee of seven people to conduct workshops across Canada.

DISCUSSION

A short question and answer period followed Miss McKeen's talk, with Miss Ward, Miss McKeen and Mr. Kitchen all taking part.

Mrs. B. H. Soper announced the dates for the School for Leaders as from August 20-25, at Whitby Ladies' College. Dodgers and programs will be sent to the Presbyterial presidents for distribution to the locals.

Following a most impressive communion service conducted by Rev. M. G. McFarlane, Minister of Tabernacle Church, assisted by Rev. D. M. Smith, the report of the courtesy committee was presented by Mrs. Stanley Murray of Woodville. Dr. Smith closed the meeting with the benediction.

The executive met following the meeting and made appointments to the various committees of the Conference U.C.W. The ladies will be informed of their appointments by Mrs. J. E. Marsh, recording secretary.

SERVED IN CONGO — Nuala Kirby, 26-year-old Canadian government employee, has completed 15 months service as a United Nations secretary in The Congo. She says the tour of duty was an exciting adventure but there were times she was almost killed in shooting incidents.—(CP Photo).

Life as UN Secretary In the Congo Exciting

OTTAWA (CP) — Life as a United Nations secretary in The Congo is an exciting adventure, but take it from Nuala Kirby—it gets a little too exciting.

The 26-year-old government secretary back from 15 months of UN service in that turbulent African nation, recalls three incidents in which she was "scared stiff."

Worst of the three happened without warning when she was going to the market in Leopoldville one day. A drunken Congolese soldier suddenly shoved the barrel of a Sten gun into her back.

He pressed the trigger but the machine-gun failed to fire.

On a jungle safari, her party came across a wild lion. "I wasn't even carrying a gun and I wanted to run," she recalls. But the animal didn't attack.

The assignment had its pleasant side, however. As secretary to the chief of UN military personnel Miss Kirby travelled all over The Congo and to other parts of Africa, including Libya and Nigeria.

The UN office in Leopoldville was a "wonderful place" to work.

The plane crash in northern Rhodesia which killed UN Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold was a personal tragedy for Miss Kirby. One of the victims was a close friend Montreal - born Alice Lalande.

Miss Kirby originally left her government secretarial job in Ottawa on a voluntary 12-month UN assignment. Later she was persuaded to stay on in Leopoldville for an extra three months.

How does she feel about resuming a comparatively dull secretarial life in Ottawa? "Delighted."

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: I broke an expensive wine glass at the home of a friend the other night. She wouldn't let me pay for it, but I feel I should. Since she won't tell me what it costs, should I send her a cheque for what I think the glass is worth, or would this be in bad taste? — Mrs. B.R., New Haven, Conn.

Answer: Instead of paying for it, buy a replacement for the wine glass and have it delivered to her home. Possibly someone in her family can give you the name of the pattern and the store in which it can be bought.

Question: My husband and I celebrated our fifth wedding anniversary last year. At the time, we wanted to have a party, but our daughter was sick, so we had a quiet dinner, instead. We'd like to have a party this year to make up for it, but I wonder if it would be appropriate, since this anniversary isn't one that is usually given such significance. — Mrs. R.R., Teaneck, N.J.

Answer: Usually only the "milestone" anniversaries like the fifth, tenth, twentieth, twenty-fifth, etc., are celebrated to any elaborate degree. But it's certainly not inappropiate to invite close friends and relatives to gather and toast any anniversary in between. If you prefer that they don't bring gifts, then don't mention the reason for the party in the invitations. You can do so after they arrive.

Question: My mother wants to display my wedding gifts in the traditional manner at the reception, which will be at home. Personally, I'm not in favor of the idea, but since mother insists on it, I would like to have one point clarified. I've received several duplicate presents. Should only one of each be shown, or should all gifts be put on display? — M.T., New Haven, Conn.

Answer: If gifts are to be displayed, then all must be included. Identical gifts, though, should be separated as much as possible so the duplication won't be too obvious.

Question: In the past month, the following incidents occured: 1) a man rushing down the street almost knocked me over, then scurried off without a word of apology; 2) a waitress snapped that she couldn't wait all day to take my order; 3) a bus driver bawled me out because I didn't put my money in the box fast enough for him; 4) a salesgirl very testily told me she was busy and I'd have to wait until she got around to me; and 5) a woman who came in after me at the butcher shop insisted her turn was next.

I'm sure I don't attract discourteous people, and I'm equally sure that similar incidents happen to your other readers all the time. Yet it infuriates me to turn the other cheek and overlook or pretend I don't notice the often atrocious actions of others. Isn't it sometimes permitted to give an unmannerly person a pice of your mind? I think if more people were told off occasionally, they might get the point and stop stepping on other people's toes. — Mrs. M.C.C., Brooklyn, N.Y.

Answer: It's always difficult to resist "telling off" people who behave as boorishly as those you describe, but I'm afraid that a tongue-lashing would neither improve their dispositions nor their manners. When someone is blatantly disagreeable, it's always better to calmly overlook his behavior rather than compromise your own sense of what's right by responding in kind. Good manners shouldn't be reserved only for those who show an awareness of proper behavior and a consideration of others, but also should be extended to those who are rude. A dignified bearing in the face of unkind behavior s the most effective reproach you can offer.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Mrs. B.R. — Those poor children are at the mercy of a vixen.

Brenda R. — If she wants my job she can have it. She's no help.

• • •

Mrs. B.R. — My son lost his lovely wife three years ago. A year ago he entrusted the care of his little motherless boy, my grandsom Brock, to his second wife Brenda. She happened to be a divorcee with two young children of her own. I was horrified at the whole arrangement. Stuart met her on a cruise and it all happened within two months.

Now they have an infant daughter of their own. I grant you it's hard to be in charge of four little ones, all under the age of five. But it's even harder on the children, especially since Brenda isn't particularly maternal. I shudder over how mean she is to Brock. Stuart won't speak up. He says she knows how to handle kids.

All she knows is how to handle him.

• • •

Brenda R. — Well, a girl can't expect to win all the time! I won Stuart's love, and I believe I've won over my little fiur-year-old stepson. I just don't have the time or energy to work on my mother-in-law, too. If she can't help me with my problems, she certainly shouldn't add to them by her constant criticism, fault finding and interference.

She couldn't even handle one baby. Stuart tells me how she went to pieces when he left Brock with her for a few days. She insisted on a maid, a nursemaid and a baby-sitter to free her from chores she didn't want to perform. I'm trying my best to do right by my four babies, with Stuart's help and encouragement.

What bothers her is that I must be firm with the kids. This is new to Brock. She spoiled him.

• • •

The Council: Brenda's entrance into little Brock's life may be his best break to date. At last, instead of being the sole object of much adult hand-wringing, head-wagging, sighing, instead of standing out there alone while Grandma, Dad and assocted sympathizers cluck-cluck over him, he's one of the chicks under Brenda's wing, for better or for worse. Mrs. R. can do much to help it be for better.

First of all, Mrs. R., quit using Brock as the excuse for your backhanded reproaches to your son over his remarriage. Your opportunity to work on him ended sometime during his teens. After that there was nothing much you could do to aid him in making wise decisions. Now your best course is to accept his most important decision, marriage to Brenda, and do your darndest to bolster it.

Next, be glad that Brock and the other children now have a chance to grow up in as nearly a normal family environment as is possible, with father, mother, brothers and sisters. The firmness you call "mean" is an essential part of the loving parent's job. Judge Florence M. Kelly of the N.Y. Children's Court finds lack of limits in a child's upbringing almost as damaging as lack of love. As a grandmother you have the pleasant prerogative of showering Brock and the other three children with all the softness, hugs and kisses you wish — so long as you don't undermine the authority of Brenda and your son whose love is intertwined with responsibility for the future.

As for Brenda, both prayers and pointers are in order. She needs a wise friend to turn to in these early days of homogenizing a disparate household. May we urge a family counsellor? A first interview would serve to introduce the setup. Follow-up could occur with each S.O.S. Above all, she must constantly see things from Brock's viewpoint — a child who has had three "mothers" in four years.

Memorial Rite Attended By Rebekahs

STIRLING — On January 26, Noble Grand Hilda Rose of Laurel Rebekah Lodge, Stirling, No. 211, and several Laurel members; also some 25 ladies from Peterborough Rebekah Lodge, gathered at the Comstock Funeral Home in Peterborough and held a memorial service for Sister Debbie Brown, whose funeral was held at the Springbrook United Church on January 27.

Pancake Days

Did you know that there are actually two days in our year which are traditional "pancake days?" The first day which may come to mind is Shrove Tuesday or as the day is called in some places Mardi Gras. This is the day when the leavened English pancakes are served. The second day may not be as familiar. It is February 2nd. On this day, French Canadians traditionally serve the tiny, very thin and rich, unleavened French Pancakes or Crepes in celebration of Candlemass which takes place the following Sunday in Roman Catholic Churches and at which time the candles used in the homes are blessed.

Perhaps you would like to serve Crepes for dessert, or tea, or for party refreshments on February 2nd. If so, the Canada Department of Agriculture's French home economists have a delicious recipe for you which makes 15 Crepes of about 5 inches in diameter. Sift together 1 cup flour and ¾ teaspoon salt. Stir in 1 cup of milk. Add 4 to 6 eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Melt a little butter in a small to medium sized frying pan. When pan is quite hot pour in a little batter, just enough to cover bottom of pan. Cook over moderately low heat. When crepes are brown underneath, turn and brown other side. Roll and serve hot with jelly, syrup or a hot fruit sauce (crepes suzettes). Or spread with honey or maple sugar and then roll.

Incidentally, to test your fry pan for heat, sprinkle on a few drops of water. If the drops dance and roll around for a moment before evaporating, the temperature of the griddle is just right. If the drops sputter and disappear almost immediately, the pan is too hot.

Winter Blond

By TRACY ADRIAN

One of the most flattering innovations for the winter season has been the introduction of light and pastel colors to brighten dark days.

Fashioned of a shaggy wool and acrylic fabric in a blond shade, it is tailored with dolman sleeves, a high, collarless neck and a wide body that tapers off at the hem.

Readers' Friday Column

by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

I was wondering if you had a recipe for Parkerhouse Rolls, also a sponge cake using two eggs. My mother used to make them — Mrs. T .

FRIDAY

Dinner Menu

Baked Fish Fillets with Mayonnaise Topping; Casserole of Shredded Beets with Orange; Green Beans with Mushrooms Cream Sauce; Shredded Lettuce and Cauliflower Salad; Ice Cream with Fresh Frozen Raspberries; Coffee.

ANSWER:

PARKERHOUSE ROLLS:

1 package granular yeast; ½ cup lukewarm water, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1½ cups lukewarm milk, ½ cup sugar, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 egg, ¼ cup soft shortening, 7 to 7½ cups sifted all-purpose flour.

Add the 1 teaspoon sugar to the ½ cup lukewarm water, stir then sprinkle over yeast, stir once and let stand 10 minutes. In large mixing bowl mix together the lukewarm milk, ½ cup sugar, salt and shortening. Stir until shortening melts. Add risen yeast liquid. Beat in egg. Then beat in half of the flour. Work in remaining flour by hand in bowl or on floured board. Knead dough until perfecty smooth — about 10 minutes. Return dough to scraped-down bowl, cover and let rise until doubled in bulk and light. Turn out of bowl, and knead again for 2 or 3 minutes. (If desired for very fine texture let dough rise a second time in bowl.) Roll dough out to ¼" thickness. Cut with 3" floured cutter. Brush top of each roll with melted butter. Make deep crease at centre with back of knife and fold over, nearly making edges meet. Press down. Place close together on greased pan. Let rise until doubled. Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for 15 to 20 minutes.

TWO-EGG SPONGE CAKE (9" square pan):

2 large eggs, 1 cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 tablespoon melted butter, ½ cup boiling hot milk, 1 cup sifted all-purpose or cake four, 1 teaspoon baking powder.

In a large bowl beat the eggs until they are increased in volume to 3 or 4 times the original amount. This takes 10 or 12 minutes in electric beater. Beat in sugar, salt and vanilla until blended. To the hot milk add the butter and when it is melted stir into egg mixture. Sift together the sifted flour and baking powder. Remove beater and stir in flour mixture by hand, just until all flour is moistened. Grease and paper-line bottom of 9" square pan. Grease paper. Pour in batter. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 25 to 30 minutes. Test for doneness at centre by touching with finger tip. If no impression remains cake is done. Let stand in pan 5 minutes before turning on cake rack to cool.

Teen-Age Canada

Girls Want Courtesies

By JACK HUTTON

Trust women of all ages to stick together against the opposite sex. This is an old rule—but teen-agers in Montreal and Vancouver have just proven it all over again.

I've just heard of two debates, one in Montreal and one on the West Coast, in which the same question was explored: are men as polite as ever?

The fellows in both cities pleaded that they still open doors for the weaker sex and almost never precede the girl friend through a door.

But the determined young ladies in both cases stuck to their party line. Said one 17-year-old Montreal miss:—"Maybe this just reflects the growing independence of women, but the old courtesies seem to be dying.

"Sure, I can count on a date to open the car door on my side," she added. "But sometimes it means that I have to sit there like a mummy for two minutes until the poor dolt suddenly gets the idea."

Another spokesman for the feminine cause, this time in Vancouver, spoke out even more strongly. "They expect us to be just too darn independent," she said.

"The worst time of all is at parties where the boys wind up on one side of the room talking about cars and the girls decide they'd like to try a new version of the twist—twist the boyfriend's neck."

Is the gentle art of manners dying out in this teen-age generation, or is it perhaps just getting more sensible after all these centuries? (After all, why can't a redblooded healthy girl open a car door?)

This is something we can probably settle in a quick show of hands. Drop me a line if you have views on the subject, and try presenting all the reasons you can think of for your side of the case.

For example, do you feel some of the traditional courtesies are outdated in a fast-moving nuclear age? Does it matter whether the fellow or the girl walks on the outside of the sidewalk? Can a healthy girl put on her own coat?

No one will ever know who the first caveman was who held the tree branch so it wouldn't spring back in his girlfriend's face, but it can be argued that he launched a one-sided system which completely favors the female sex.

Everyone knows that Sir Walter Raleigh ruined one of his best coats by putting it across a puddle to keep the feet of his queen dry. But how many times have you heard of a woman doing something similar?

Let us know what you think, and just as soon as possible we'll publish your overall decision on whether the old courtesies are dying out among Canadian teen-agers.

BRAIN-TEASER

Since so many of you responded to the trick questions I suggested a few weeks ago, here is another one—but don't blame me if it drives you to distraction.

The question: take the numbers one to nine inclusively and arrange them so that they add up to 100. Each number must be used, but none of them can be used twice.

As a further hint, you can form fractions if you need to. I swore after the first evening that this question was impossible to solve, but it isn't. The best way is to have several friends try it at the same time. Happy hunting!

TEEN SUCCESS

The 17-year-old singer from Port Arthur, Ont., has overnight sung himself into the top rungs of Canada's hit parade—but it's likely that half the people in his own home town don't know of him.

Bobby Curtola, a darkhaired high school student with a quick grin, is the reason for Curtola fan clubs all through Canada as well as in the United States, England, Europe and Cuba.

But the young singer, discovered two years ago in his home town by a recording executive, has had a different career than most. His promoters have carefully avoided any high-pressure build-up.

"We have never tried to get newspaper publicity," said Basil Hurdon, one of Bob's two managers. "Instead we have tried to build him with the high school students in small towns."

This is why, in Bobby's home town, he never makes a personal appearance nor does he receive coverage from either of the two local daily newspapers.

"I think it's wonderful," said Bobby. "This recording business can be a strain. On the road I never take girls out, but at home they leave me to myself. I go around with the kids I grew up with."

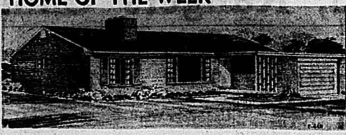
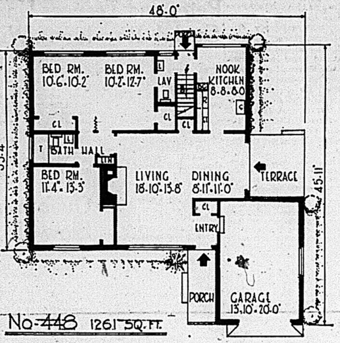
HOME OF THE WEEK





No-448 1261 SQ.FT.

This brick veneer house would be relatively inexpensive to build as it has a simple almost square plan. The front entry has a double feature in that it can also be entered directly from the garage — a boon in bad weather. Living - dining area has generous proportions. There is a private terrace behind the garage — entry is through a door in window-wall of dining area. Size of kitchen does not include the nook. Add this and the size is 8'-8" x 13'-3" which is better than average for a house of this size. Note the easy entrance to the basement, also convenient location of the washroom. Where sewers are available this lavatory could be transferred to the basement and the space used for storage or larger closets.

Wellington

WELLINGTON — The annual vestry meeting of St. Andrew's Church, Wellington was held last Sunday evening with a good number of the congregation in attendance.

The meeting opened with prayer by the rector, the Rev. J. J. Rogers followed by the reading of the minutes of the last annual vestry meeting and three special vestry meetings. Reports were submitted by the following officers. Mr. B. A. Evans, church treasurer; Mrs. Evans, Guild president; Mrs. Sid Broadbridge, W.A. secretary; Mrs. J. Rogers, J.A. leader; Mrs. G. Upton, Little Helpers secretary; Mrs. M. Wiltse, choir Auxiliary treasurer; and Rev. J. Rogers, church school director.

The rector reported that during 1961 there had been 118 services conducted in St. Andrew's and 687 parochial visits made in homes, hospitals and nursing homes. Retiring senior warden Rod Blower was elected lay delegate to the Diocesan Synod with Mr. B. A. Evans as alternate delegate. Mr. Robert Ralston was advanced from junior warden to senior warden and Borden Greatrix was advanced from deputy warden to junior warden. Mr. Harry Lambert was elected deputy warden for 1962. Mr. B. A. Evans was re-elected church treasurer and Colin Lane, envelope secretary.

The vestry council for the coming year will consist of the ex-officio members and the following elected members: Dr. C. Wright, Mr. W. A. Davern, Mr. G. Sprigings, Mrs. B. A. Evans and Mrs. E. Matthews. The first meeting of the vestry council will be held on Friday, February 23rd.

The budget appointment for 1962 was formally accepted, and vestry voted to use the one envelope system in connection with the Diocesan centennial thank offering, in June.

Mr. Rogers expressed appreciation for the fine work done by the laymen and lay women of the parish especially the church officers and leaders of the various organizations.

It was decided that the posts in the sanctuary be removed at an early date and that dossol curtains suspended from below the stair glass window over the altar, be substituted.

The use of a flower chart was recommended and the W.A. president was asked to approve a member of the W.A. to attend to this item.

ODDS AGAINST DEATH

Every so often random flares erupt on the surface of the sun and unleash a storm of radiation into space. Earth is protected from most of it by the shielding of the atmosphere. But in space there is no protection.

For space travellers, this could be a hazard. But now Boeing Aircraft scientists, after a long study of solar storms, figure the odds against a death-dealing dose of this radiation in the course of a week-long space mission would be 120 to 1.

This is without shielding. The hazard of death would be even lower if spaceships were designed to use the equipment and fuel tanks as protection against the solar radiation.

WEATHER EYES

The Tiros satellites already are sharpening the foresight of weathermen for large areas of the earth.

With their television cameras trained on the clouds that scud over the earth, the satellites have spotted hurricanes forming, forewarned weathermen in Australia of the end of a long heat wave, and helped pinpoint violent tropical storms.

One storm was spotted so accurately that weathermen who had tried to locate the storm's centre by conventional methods found they were 300 miles in error.

Four more Tiros satellites will be launched and in 1962 the first Nimbus satellite will be set into orbit over the North and South Poles. With this orbit, the Nimbus will be able to see clouds at every point on earth as the globe rotates slowly under it.

Finally two Nimbus satellites may patrol at once, providing world - wide data every six hours.

A CAT'S LIFE

Having trouble adjusting? Do things change too rapidly for you? Don't feel badly, your pet cat may have the same trouble.

Veterinarians investigating the mental health of pets find that cats do indeed become frustrated, largely from having to live in city environments or otherwise conform to human standards.

Jealous Boy Seeks Help

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—I am 23 years old and my girl friend 20. I really love this girl and we intend to get married when she is finished training in 18 months. My problem is this. I'm extremely insecure and jealous.

My girl friend has a wonderful personality. But when she just says hi to a guy on the street, talks casually about an old flame, or says some guy is cute, I just seethe. I usually make some caustic remark and then follow it with a couple more and we have a fight on our hands. I have tried to make myself not say these things but they come out and after I am extremely sorry, but then it is too late.

I feel that I am going to lose her to someone else. I am afraid to take her to dances or parties because I think someone is going to take her away from me. And I know if I keep acting this way someone will.

You don't know how much courage it took me to write this letter because I have never discussed this with anyone. Please clue me in on how to remedy this situation because I do not want to lose the only girl I really love. —INSANELY JEALOUS.

DEAR INSANELY JEALOUS:—Look. You had the gumption to put it on paper. Say it to her. Tell her you believe in her, hard.

"Perfect love casteth out fear." Use all that emotional energy of yours in showing her your regard for her. Affection, little gifts; the best gift of all, of thinking about what concerns her, can make love grow. When you act jealous, you are thinking only of yourself.

And another thing. These months of waiting are hard on young couples. Use them to learn to communicate without hurting each other's feelings—and talk about things that matter.

DEAR DORIS:—I read the letter from Heart Breaker. I have been sick and am not able to take full time employment yet, but can do light housework and cooking, provided I don't have to hurry and rush and climb upstairs.

My main object is to get somewhere to live without having to pay room and board. I have a small income but not enough to support me. My sons and daughter have been kindness itself, but they have their own families and I do not think it is fair on my part to saddle them with always having me underfoot.

I feel sure you'll agree with me there that three generations are not the exact mixture to have together under on roof if it can be avoided.—WIDOW.

DEAR WIDOW:—Sorry: Heart Breaker lives hundreds of miles from you in another part of Canada. Otherwise her set-up might have been just the ticket.

Bravo for the surge of independence! Try an advertisement in this newspaper, asking for just what you want. Maybe there's another happy Heart Breaker looking for you.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—Is an adherent of a church entitled to take communion or is the sacrament only for members?—A CONSTANT READER.

DEAR CONSTANT READER:—Which church? Some do, some don't.

In the Anglican and in the Lutheran Church, as a rule, you must first be a member. In the United Church of Canada, and most others, all adult Christians are invited to share in the communion, whether they are members of the individual church or not.

* * *

DEAR DORIS:—Our parents' silver wedding anniversary is coming up shortly and we plan on getting them a set of silverware.

Since this is more for Mom, we were wondering if it would be proper to also get something for Dad.—MRS. G. J.

DEAR MRS. G. J.:—A set of silverware is the perfect gift for both of them. A gift for Dad as well might suggest that the main gift belongs to Mom—and that Dad is a sort of "also-ran."

Make your speech to both, looking back over the rich years of companionship and mentioning separately things each has done for you, and wishing them a happy, long future together. Have them open the gift together.

This is the essence of such a celebration.

PEPSI'S MEET WATERLOO

Something a little different will be on the hockey menu at Memorial Arena this evening when the kings of the Lakeshore League, the Belleville Pepsi's, entertain the Waterloo Tigers of the OHA Senior "A" grouping.

And, judging by past results of Lakeshore games here, when the Pepsi's have won by scores of 17-0, 15-2 and 14-1, to mention a few, the change can only be for the better.

Crowds have been small at most of the Lakeshore loop tilts here, through no fault of the Pepsi's themselves. Hockey fans in this area have proven many times that they will not support a losing team. This winter they are also proving, by their absence, that they will not support a winner either, if the league is as lopsided as this one.

While no exact attendance figures have been announced, most of the crowds for the Wednesday night games have been in the 100-300 bracket. The only teams that have drawn are the Napanee Comets (and they not too well), The Trenton RCAF Globetrotters, and the Uxbridge Black Hawks. Attendance at these games has been in the 400-600 neighborhood.

The Pepsi's, following tonight's exhibition against the Tigers, will travel to Napanee on Monday night, hoping to avenge their lone setback this season, by a 4-3 count, handed them by the Comets right here on home ice a short while back.

Uxbridge will supply the action for the Wednesday night game here next week and, if that 2-1 game in Uxbridge a week ago means anything, this should be a top attraction.

Meanwhile, getting back to the matter at hand, tonight's game here, we find that the Waterloo Tigers are resting in fourth spot in the OHA Senior "A" loop, behind the World-championship-bound Galt Terriers, the Windsor Bulldogs and the Woodstock Warriors. It is an eight-team league.

The Tigers have played 29 league games, winning 15 and losing 14, for 30 points. They are five back of third-place Woodstock. While their record does not indicate a powerhouse, the game should cast some light on the calibre of the senior loop.

This department feels, although we must admit that we have not seen any of the senior teams in action, that the Pepsi's would at least hold their own in the upper bracket hockey.

As a matter of fact, several fans have voiced the opinion that a few of the local players would go a long way toward helping the Galt Terriers win the world title. And these are fans who watched the Galt club play against the RCAF at Trenton earlier this season.

We don't know whether he would have accepted or not but we do know that a defenceman by the name of Fiori Goegan should have received an invitation to try out with the Galt club. There are few amateur defencemen in the game today who can do as many things as well as Goegan.

The Pepsi's big Number Two is equally effective going either way and yet he does not play the rough style of hockey that would hurt the Galt club, through penalties, playing under International rules.

And mind you, because of the lack of stiff opposition, most of the Pepsi's have never reached any sharp degree of condition this season. Goegan, Jones and a couple of others look as if they could play the Lakeshore brand of hockey from the confines of a wheel chair.

As one player told us after a recent game: "It's pretty hard to stay 'up' for a game, and play hard, when you are four or five goals ahead after ten minutes of play."

The locals may well have to be up for this one tonight if they hope to prove anything to the Tigers and the fans.

The extra number of games played, not to mention the tougher opposition, will give the Waterloo club an edge going into the game but don't be surprised to see the "home" side of the scoreboard a goal or three up come eleven o'clock tonight.

The Pepsi's are expected to be at or near full strength and the Waterloo management, which incidentally requested this game, has assured J. P. Lamirande that the Tigers will be here in full force.

How about it? Game time is 9.00 p.m.

THEY'LL DO IT EVERY TIME—A few hours after this column was written, the Pepsi's dropped an 8-4 decision in Bowmanville.

* * *

Turning to the OHA Eastern Junior circuit, the Belleville Macs, still smarting from the 7-2 lacing they received in Kingston earlier this week, will travel to Cobourg this evening.

As things stand now, the Macs and Kingston are tied for the loop's top spot and both have three games remaining. The Macs' three games are all on the road while the Frontenacs have three left to play at home.

The clubs could easily end up tied for the top and if so the loop crown will likely be decided by the goals-for-and-against system. The Macs have fallen a little behind the Fronts in this department so will be going all out to pile up a big win in Cobourg tonight.

If Gord Bell's boys don't play better than they did in Kingston, Cobourg could pull an upset. The locals were put through a tough workout the other evening, however, and Bell is confident they will regain their winning ways tonight.

Habs Increase Lead; Rangers Climb

Hull Scores Four Goals

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

This is the year Montreal's great dynasty in the National Hockey League was supposed to collapse.

The Canadiens were ousted from the Stanley Cup playoffs last season by Chicago Black Hawks.

The pundits foresaw a dire future for Montreal with some of the Habs slipping over the 30-year mark and obvious deficiencies on defence and left wing.

But take a look at the standings. In Montreal Thursday night the Canadiens extended the bulge at the top to six points with a 5-2 win over Toronto's runner-up Maple Leafs before a season-high crowd of 15,266.

Unbeaten in 11 starts, the Habs, now have 67 points to Toronto's 61.

HULL SCORES FOUR

That gave the blonde left-winger 30 for the campaign and he shunted Montreal's Claude Provost for the NHL lead in that department.

New York Rangers skipped over the Red Wings into fourth place in the standings with a 5-3 win over the Bruins in Boston before 8,363 fans.

In Montreal Bernie Geoffrion scored a goal and set up two more to power the Canadiens' attack.

BOWER GETS CUT

Near the midway point of the final period Toronto goalie Johnny Bower was hurt in a scramble and took six stitches for a cut near the left ear. The game was delayed about 10 minutes.

Four regulars on the injured list hurt Toronto's cause. Centre Red Kelly and defenceman Bob Baun dressed but Kelly made only one appearance late in the game and Baun didn't play. Forwards Dick Duff and Eddie Shack, both sidelined with leg injuries, didn't make the trip.

WINGS FALL BEHIND

The outcome gave the Hawks 51 points and the Red Wings with 41 fell a point behind the Rangers.

The weekend schedule tosses all six teams into action twice.

Stan Leonard Holds Slim Lead

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (CP)—Veteran Stan Leonard of Vancouver clung to a slim lead as he swung into the third round of the marathon $50,000 Palm Springs open golf tournament today but dangerously close was Arnold Palmer, apparently back to his brilliant form.

Leonard forged ahead Thursday with his second great round and had an 11-under-par 132 for 36 holes. His closest challengers in the 90-hole event at four golf courses were Jack Cupit and Gardner Dickinson, two strokes back. Another stroke behind at 135 was Neil Coles of England.

Palmer, who has been having trouble getting into the tournament grind this year, was four strokes off the pace with Mike Souchak.

Leonard, 47 today, tied after the first round with young Red Baxter Jr., grabbed the lead Thursday with a five-under-par 67. The eight-time winner of the Canadian Professional Golfers Association crown carved six strokes off par for a 65 in the opening round Wednesday.

BAXTER FADES

Baxter blew to a 74 Thursday after his opening 65 and faded into the field with 139. Cupit carded a seven-under-par 65 Thursday.

Other Canadian competitors did not do as well as Leonard. Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg and Al Johnston of Montreal had 72s Thursday for 140 totals. Al Balding of Toronto had a 69 for 142 and George Knudson of Toronto ballooned to a 76 for 149. Jerry Magee of Toronto withdrew with a sore hand

Leonard's fine round was 35-32 and included five birdies.

Underdogs Win

Petes and Teepees Upset Guelph Royals and Wings

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two teams in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series Thursday night turned Groundhog Day into a day of hockey underdogs.

The tail-end Peterborough Petes turned on the fourth-place Guelph Royals 8-6 in Peterborough while the third-place St. Catharines Teepees were edging the league-leading Hamilton Red Wings 4-3 on the Wings' home ice.

The Wings' loss was their first in 11 home games this season. They still hold a four-point grip on first place ahead of Montreal Junior Canadiens.

Ray Cullen paced the Teepees with two unassisted goals. George Standing and John Brenneman got the other two. Howie Menard, Pit Martin and Lowell MacDonald scored for Hamilton.

At Peterborough, 900 fans watched the Petes grab a 4-2 lead into the second period, lose it early in the third when Guelph briefly went ahead 6-5, then pull in front with three unanswered goals.

The win kept Peterborough's playoff hopes alive, although the fifth-place Niagara Falls Flyers still lead by three points.

Lorne O'Donnell's three goals, two of them late in the third period, led the Peterborough attack, with Pete McLachlan, Stu Muirhead, Roy Pyke, Claude Larose and Tom Carty scoring singles.

Quebec Aces Blow Chance

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Quebec Aces blew their chances to break out of a tie with Providence Reds for third place in the Eastern Division of the American Hockey League.

Quebec lost 4-2 to Buffalo Bisons Thursday night.

Terriers Win 8-1 Over Wolverines

HALIFAX (CP) — Demonstrating the speed and teamwork that made them last year's Allan Cup champions, Galt Terriers skated to an easy exhibition victory here Thursday night over Halifax Wolverines of the Nova Scotia Senior Hockey League.

The game was the first of three warmup outings in the Maritimes before the Terriers head for Colorado Springs, Colo., where they will represent Canada in the world hockey championships next month.

The Wolves fought valiantly against the Terriers but saw little of the puck until the last period. Their only goal came 59 seconds before the end of the game on a high shot that sailed past Harold (Boat) Hurley in the Terrier cage.

Alex Keating opened the scoring for Galt with a shot from close midway through the first period. Team - mate Pete Kowalchuk came through four minutes later to end the scoring in that period.

Early in the second, Joe Hogan fired into a crowd in front of the Halifax net and came up with Galt's third tally. Jackie McLeod and Sloan came through with two more to end the period 5-0.

Bob Brown shot his first of two goals at 6:30 of the third followed by Bob Mader's tally at 16:20. Less than a minute later Brown shot his second and the last Terrier goal of the night.

Bob Brown Gets Closer For Top Spot

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Bobby Brown played for two senior Ontario Hockey Association clubs in the week, but it did not effect his scoring power.

He fired in two goals for his home club, Windsor Bulldogs, in the 4-2 victory over Woodstock Athletics, then moved to Galt Terriers to help them defeat Chatham Maroons 13-3.

Transferred to the Terriers with Windsor defenceman Billy Mitchell for the world hockey tournament, Brown collected two goals and three assists in the game against Chatham. The two Bulldogs are playing with Galt in the pre - tournament warmup tour.

Brown's seven-point splurge moved him within two points of Irwin Gross of Windsor. Gross leads the scoring race with 59 points—22 goals and 37 assists; Brown has 29 goals and 28 assists.

George Aitken of Chatham Maroons and Don Emms of Strathroy Rockets, who both led the scoring race for part of the season, are third and fourth. Aitken has 53 points, Emms 50.

Ross Childs of Windsor, with a goals-against average of 3.13, is catching up with the goal-tending leader, Boat Hurley of Galt, who has an average of 3.03.

Penalty Shot Sinks Seals

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A penalty shot for tripping has thrown a damper on San Francisco Seals's hopes of a playoff spot in the Western Hockey League.

Right winger Jim Powers turned the penalty shot into the winning goal with 2½ minutes remaining in regulation time as Los Angeles Blades edged the Seals 4-3 Thursday night in the only league action.

The loss dropped last - place San Francisco six points behind the Blades, who hold the Southern Division's third and final playoff position.

Other Los Angeles scorers were Terry Slater, with two, and defenceman Ralph Keller. Nick Mickoski, Haley and Bob Solinger scored for the Seals.

East Germany Protests

Refused Travel Permits For Games

MONTREAL (CP) — The International Ice Hockey Federation has finally received official notice of East Germany's troubles in getting to the world championships.

Federation president Robert LeBel said Thursday he has received a cable from the East German Hockey Federation protesting against the refusal of the Allied travel office in Berlin to issue the travel permits the East German team needs before it can apply for United States visas.

Mr. LeBel said the East German federation asked for the support of the international federation "and they will certainly get it.

"The East Germans have a right to be in the tournament and we shall do everything we can to enable them to participate."

WILL MEET ORGANIZERS

Mr. LeBel said he will leave for Colorado Springs today to meet the American organizing committee Monday and Tuesday.

Czechoslovakia's hockey authorities said meanwhile in Prague Thursday they have cabled Mr. LeBel offering to stage the championships.

Mr. LeBel said he has not heard from them.

However, at Halifax, Jack Roxburgh, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said Thursday it is too late to shift the location of the championships.

Roxburgh said, "There are so many considerations, not the least of which is the tremendous financial investment made in Colorado. Money has been poured into the project and they need the meet to get some of it back."

"It's too late to shift it to another country," said Walter Brown in New York. "It takes a year to organize this kind of a tournament."

A spokesman for the Soviet Ice Hockey Federation said Thursday the Russians are still undecided whether to participate in the championships.

Crawford Metals defeated the RCAF Flyers 59-48 while Picton Prospects topped the Belleville Lightfoots 44-40 in a pair of Bay of Quinte Basketball League games played last night.

Picton jumped into a 26-18 lead at half time in the game at Picton and hung on for the narrow victory.

Toronto Man Will Anchor Relay Team

NEW YORK (CP) — Toronto runner Bill Crothers, fresh from a record-breaking performance in the men's indoor 500 - yard race at Winnipeg last Saturday, will anchor a Canadian relay team against picked Irish and U.S. squads tonight in the two-mile relay of the Millrose Games at Madison Square Garden.

With him will be three other Toronto-area runners — Jim Irons, Stan Worsfold and Steve Ball.

Irons also set a record at the Royal Canadian Legion meet at Winnipeg, taking the mile in 4:08.3. Ball wrapped up the junior invitational 880 in 1:59.6.

Crothers, who also is entered in the invitational 880 here tonight, took the 500 at Winnipeg in a snappy 56.9 seconds.

Ron Delany, who set an indoor mile record of 4:01.4 in his last appearance at the Garden, will anchor the Irish relay team.

Running ahead of him will be Basil Clifford, Derek McLeane and Noel Carroll. The quartet set a European two-mile record of 7:21.8 last summer, but only Delany ever has run indoors.

Crotherz, who won the 1,000-yard run at the Knights of Columbus meet in Boston last month, will be up against tough competition in the 880. Jerry Siebert of the University of California, top half-miler in the U.S. last year, is favored in the event.

Veteran Pro May Retire This Year

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Charlie Conerly, veteran pro football quarterback, is retiring, the Birmingham News reported Thursday.

"He tells me he is quitting. It's up to the team to announce it when they want to."

In New York, a spokesman for the Giants said the report of Conerly's retirement was news to him. He said the veteran quarterback is expected to visit the office next week to discuss his contract for 1962.

Hull Moves Up

Takes Over Second Place From Kitchener Beavers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two games in the Eastern Professional Hockey League Thursday night changed the position of the four teams in the standings.

Hull - Ottawa Canadiens took over second place from Kitchener Beavers when they trimmed the Beavers 5-1 in Hull, and Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds climbed out of the cellar by downing North Bay Trappers 4-2 in the Sault.

The loss left the Trappers in the cellar, a point behind the Thunderbirds but with a game in hand.

At Hull, Canadiens' victory stretched their unbeaten streak to nine games, best in the league this season.

Freddie Hilts scored a hat trick in the second period to lead the Canadiens to their lopsided win. The other two Hull goals were scored by rookies Wayne Boddy and Jim Roberts. Sandy McGregor got the lone Kitchener goal.

SCORES FROM 10 FEET

Hilts opened the scoring at 3:33 of the middle frame on a backhand drive from just 10 feet out. His other two goals came on power plays late in the period.

Kitchener collected nine of the 15 penalties.

Ernie Wakely, on loan to the Habs from Sudbury Wolves, kept close check on the Hull nets as he filled in for Cesare Maniago, in Montreal with the parent National - league Canadiens.

At the Sault, it was a well-taped Thunderbirds team that hit the ice for the tailenders' tangle.

Before the game Sault trainer Ed Dalton busied himself taping injuries to three key Thunderbird players. All three made the ice — Dale MacDonald with a taped back, Donny Grosso with tape on a bad knee and defenceman John Chasczewski with a bandaged foot.

Before the game, when it was thought Chasczewski mightn't play, Thunderbirds coach Jack Stewart was seriously considering taking to the ice himself to bolster a defence already missing Bob Wilson and Norm Guimond, both out with injuries.

SCORE FOR SAULT

MacDonald, also considered a doubtful starter, made the score 2-0 after Eddie Kachur put the Thunderbirds in the lead early in the first period. Merv Kuryluk and Doug Robinson got the other Sault goals.

George Gosselin and John Sleaver scored for the losers. The win moved Thunderbirds to within three points of Sudbury and the fourth playoff spot.

First of all, he's confined to bed with a severe case of the flu. And then, Frontenacs' injury list has been swelling almost every game the last three weeks.

WOE FOR COACH

The list of the ailing includes Bobby Attersley, sidelined with a knee injury for more than a week; Randy Miller, out for five weeks now with a broken wrist; Bobby Leiter, suffering from a charleyhorse, and Alf Treen, who is playing despite a broken finger.

Wednesday night, following a game with the Canadiens, Blair was told rookie defenceman Ken Stephanson was through for the season.

Stephanson, out since he hurt his leg in a game Jan. 9, had hoped to be back in action in short order. But his doctor found Wednesday that calcium had formed in Stephanson's muscle fibres, prolonging recuperation indefinitely.

To alleviate the player problem, Blair has summoned Jean Paul Parise and Billy Knibbs from Niagara Falls Flyers of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series for a game in Kingston Saturday against Sudbury.

Score Was 8-4

Shamrocks Decap Pepsi's

BOWMANVILLE—The Belleville Pepsi's blew a 4-1 first-period lead here last night and dropped a surprising 8-4 decision to the "new-look" Bowmanville Shamrocks.

The Shamrock win, coming on the heels of a 15-2 whipping handed out by the Pepsi's the night before, was a pleasant surprise to the Bowmanville club and fans alike. The loss was the second for the Belleville club this season and their first on foreign ice.

Bowmanville iced a full 15-man squad, including four West boys, and got a strong game from goalie Vanstone who blanked the Pepsi's after the 19.15 mark of the first period. Belleville had 11 players for the game, including the goalie.

Keith West got the home club off to an early 1-0 lead when he beat Barclay on a three-way play with brothers Dean West and R. West at the 3.37 mark of the first period.

Belleville took over for the rest of the period however and appeared to be well on their way to another lop-sided victory. Bob Taylor tied the game 1-1 at 8.27 and "Shaker" Baker made it 2-1 at 12.53.

Defenceman Fiori Goegan blazed home two goals late in the period, at 18.17 and 19.15 to open up the 4-1 score.

The second period was probably the worst twenty minutes of hockey that the Pepsi's have experienced this year. The Shamrocks exploded for seven goals without a reply to take the 8-4 lead. Then the clubs fought through a scoreless third period.

Back in the second, Wiseman potted goals at 4.25 and 9.18 to put Bowmanville back in the game. T. Fairey fired the tying goal at 9.41 and the fired - up Shamrocks continued to drive.

Wiseman at the 11 minute mark, Hughes at 12.40, Marjerrison at 18.23 and Dean West at 19.37 wrapped it up for Bowmanville as they kept the pressure on until the game's final whistle. Back to back penalties to Taylor and Hull in the dying minutes of the second period left the Pepsi's shorthanded for the Shamrock's last two goals.

Belleville picked up six minor penalties and Bowmanville five overall.

Wiseman paced the Bowmanville scorers, potting three goals and assisting on another. Keith West, T Fairey, Hughes, Marjerrison and Dean West scored the other goals. Powell and T. Fairey each earned three assists with Abbott getting two, Dean West, R. West, T. Fairey, Marjerrison, J. West, Preston and Keith West one apiece.

Fiori Goegan led the Belleville cub, scoring two goals and assisting on a third. Bob Taylor and "Shaker" Baker were the other marksmen. Duke Doran drew two assists, Gary Goyer, Tom O'Meara, Taylor and Dave Jones one apiece.

St. George's Rallies to Win Playoff

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Fern Irwin of Toronto St. George's rallied from a 10-2 deficit to defeat Mrs. Cyril Laurin of Unionville 12-11 in a playoff Thursday for the Southern Ontario women's curling championship.

She and her rink now advance to the provincial finals against foursomes from northern, northwestern and northeastern Ontario.

The playoff was necessitated when both rinks won their final-round games of the eight-rink, round-robin competition to finish with identical records of six wins and a loss.

Mrs. Irwin defeated Mrs. J. H. Shaw of Toronto High Park 12-8 while Mrs. Laurin defeated the winless Peterborough Golf Club rink, skipped by Mrs. C. C. Selkirk, 9-6.

Mrs. S. J. Dalrymple of St. Catharines finished third with a 5-2 record. Mrs. J. Ough of Barrie and Mrs. C. B. Schmidt of Kitchener, who didn't play their scheduled seven - round game, were 3-3.

Monty Hoyt Almost in For Title

BOSTON (AP)—Monty Hoyt, an angular 17-year - old from Denver, whirled through a breathless performance in the compulsory figures Thursday and all but wrapped up the United States senior men's figure skating championship.

Hoyt last year's junior titleholder, compiled a fantastic 5½ ordinals as he went through his paces on the Skating Club of Boston ice. This means he was placed first on the cards of four of the five judges and tied for first on the fifth.

This is the first national championship since the plane crash in Brussels which killed the top 15 American skaters. They were on their way to the world championships — later called off—in Prague.

Scott Allen of the Skating Club of New York whose 13th birthday is next week, was in second place with 10½ ordinals.

Three New Shows Make Top Spots in Best Ten

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The television industry believes that it takes the audience from September, when its new season starts, to mid-January to shake down to any real viewing habits and valid expressions of likes or dislikes for the wares displayed.

Therefore, networks, sponsors and performers are paying close attention to the early January popularity ratings reported this week by the polling organization the industry considers most authoritative, Nielsen.

It is noteworthy, perhaps, that among Nielsen's 20 most popular programs on the networks, only three were new this year: Dr. Kildare and Hazel on NBC and The Defenders on CBS.

They are listed in sixth, seventh and ninth places. But right on top, win, place and show are those perennial favorites, Wagon Train, Gunsmoke and Perry Mason.

Meanwhile, network programmers are deep in plans for next season's delights.

Trend - spotters, who apparently work like race track handicappers, figure that next season will be the year of the war programs. A number of producers have stirring, patriotic sagas of the Second World War in the blueprint stage.

Oshawa Rink Well Up In Grand Aggregate

By GEORGE FRAJKOR

QUEBEC (CP) — The last chance for a complete sweep of the 49th Quebec international bonspiel was gone today.

Hugh Little of Halifax Mayflower, runner - up last year in the bonspiel's championship event, went down to a surprise 8-7 defeat Thursday to a team of youthful Quebec City curlers skipped by Ernie Blackadder in a Chateau Trophy semi-final.

Little still has a chance for the championship and for the Grand Aggregate Trophy, which goes to the team that wins the most games, but his elimination from the Chateau event by Blackadder makes it impossible for the Haligonians to duplicate the feat accomplished only once before — that of winning one of the bonspiel's three major events and going on to win the playoff for the Lieutenant-Governor's Trophy and the grand aggregate.

Little's record now stands at six wins, one loss and three games to go. In a better position to take the grand aggregate is Oshawa's Oscar Parker. His rink lost its first game but hasn't lost since and has six wins, a loss and four games to go.

Parker downed Jack Burgess of Weston, Ont., 10-8 Thursday night to enter the finals of the Francois Jobin against D. A. Evans of Bradford, Ont., who beat out Bob Monast of Quebec Winter Club 10-8.

Finalist against Blackadder in the Chateau event is John Buchowski of Coniston, Ont., who beat Joe Thomas, Quebec Curling Club skip, the Omega champion last year, by an impressive 11-1 score.

Sports Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Writer

The death last Saturday of Percy LeSueur probably set old-timers thinking about the early days of the Stanley Cup, around 1900, when players blithely skipped from one team to another. It seemed to be the fashionable thing to do, especially when more money was offered.

It was an era when Cup champions accepted challenges two, three and four times a season. Teams played league games only on Saturday nights and the champs were free during the week to play sudden death, two-game total-point or even best-of-three series for the Cup.

LeSueur, a grand man of 80 at his death, was right in the middle of this. He and Hugh Lehman, who died about a year ago, held some sort of distinction as the only goalkeepers to play for two Cup teams in one season.

GREAT COMEBACK

LeSueur started it in 1906 when he left Smiths Falls, defeated 6-5 and 8-2 by the rough, tough Ottawa Silver Seven in a best-of-three series, and then joined the Silver Seven in probably one of the greatest reversals of form in the early history of hockey.

Ottawa lost the opener of the total - goals series to Montreal Wanderers 9 - 1. LeSueur replaced Billy Hague in the Ottawa goal for the second game. The Silver Seven won this one 9-3 but lost 12-10 on the round.

"That, I guess, was the highlight of my playing career," LeSueur recalled years later at his home in Hamilton. "And the guy who broke our hearts was Lester Patrick.

"In that second game we had tied the round at 10-10 with five minutes to go. Then Lester talked to each Wanderer personally. We had all the play up to that point, but things started to happen.

"I don't know what Lester said, but it must have been pretty good because all of a sudden they overpowered us and Lester himself scored two goals within two minutes to beat us."

LOST TWICE

Lehman matched the nomadic qualities of LeSueur in 1910, playing in two Cup series with different clubs within two months. And he was on the losing team each time.

He tended nets for Galt, beaten 12-3 and 3-1 by Montreal Wanderers in a two-game goals-to - count series, and then switched to Berlin, now Kitchener, Ont., for its challenge against Montreal. Berlin lost 7-3 in a sudden-death game.

LeSueur stayed with Ottawa until 1911 when the club beat Galt 7-4 and Port Arthur 13-4 in sudden - death games.

Lehman went to Vancouver of the old Pacific Coast League from Berlin and played in eight Cup finals in 18 years.

Now, both are gone. But they had one final moment of glory before their deaths when they were admitted to hockey's Hall of Fame at Toronto.

Judy Garland Once Again On Top of Show World

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Judy Garland is working in a movie with handicapped children these days.

If her reactions to them display more realism than acting, there's good reason. Children such as these once came to her aid at a time when everyone else seemed to desert her.

She will probably be nominated for an Academy Award for her performance in Judgment at Nurenberg, her first film in seven years. Her two-platter album Judy at Carnegie Hall has sold 250,000 copies. Her concerts are smash here and abroad, and she's doing a TV special.

She is getting back into films in a big way. She is starring with Burt Lancaster in A Child is Waiting, then goes directly to England to do a musical, The Lonely Stage.

NEW MENTAL OUTLOOK

This marks another comeback for the legendary Judy, whose talent never really dimmed. But personal troubles and mismanagement have sometimes derailed her career. With a new mental outlook and shrewed managing, she has proved unbeatable again.

When I saw her on the movie set, she was doing a scene in a classroom with retarded children, some of them actors, many of them actually handicapped. She joked and chatted with them all, even engaging in a yo-yo contest with one boy.

"It happened at a time when I was feeling very lonely and sorry for myself," she recalled. I was sick, and I went to Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in Boston for treatment."

CRUCIAL PERIOD

This was at a crucial period in her career. She had been battling for months with MGM, whose bosses were upset by her overweight and tardiness. The studio finally fired her from Annie Get Your Gun and cast Betty Hutton in the role. Judy underwent a breakdown and was sent to the Boston hospital.

"Next door was a children's hospital," she said. "I had no friends to visit me and nothing to do, so I went to visit the children.

"Let me tell you, it was heartbreaking at first. I just wanted to hug them and protect them. But I realized they didn't want protection — they wanted to be accepted. . .

"These children want affection, yes. But most of all they need to be accepted as human beings. They need to feel useful.

"I spent a lot of time with the children in the hospital, thinking that I was helping them in some way. You know something? They cured me."

The wonders and excitement of the Arabian Nights highlight Joseph E. Levine's adventure spectacle, "Thief of Baghdad", playing Today and Saturday at the Belle Theatre. Starring Steve Reeves and Georgia Moll, the Cinemascope-Color production brings to the screen a fabulous new version of the classic legend.

Much of the MGM release was filmed on location in the temples and bazaars of Tunisia, marking the first time a Moslem country has allowed a movie company to have unlimited access to native sites.

Long considered one of the world's most enthralling stories, "Thief of Baghdad" weaves a tale of intrigue and romance. Reeves plays Karim the quick-witted thief whose adventures win him both a kingdom and the heart of a palace princess, portrayed by Miss Moll.

"The Secret of Monte Cristo.

A swashbuckling, action-filled adventure drama designed to entertain everyone, from the age of eight to eighty and more, is unfolded in "The Secret of Monte Cristo", new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer release filmed on a lavish scale in Color and Cinemascope.

The picture has an international cast headed by Rory Calhoun and also starring Patricia Bredin, John Gregson, Peter Arne, Ian Hunter, Sam Kydd, David Davies and Francis Matthews in featured supporting roles, and is the worthy companion feature offering tonight and Saturday at the Belle Theatre.

"The Secret of Monte Cristo" tells the story of a band of adventurers who set out for a tiny island in search of a fabulous treasure said to have been buried by a long-dead cardinal off the coast of Italy. The rivalry amongst various members of the party furthered by greed and avarice, their conflict with a gang of bandits, the part played by the two lovely girls in the party, keep narrative punctuated with action and excitement right up to the plots denouement.

Astrological Forecast

By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19)—Business earning power tends to demand attention. You are urged to be specific with friends. And to rely upon loved ones at home. Good for social evening . . . and for romance, creative activity.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20)—Tomorrow finds most unusual astrological configuration in your section of ambition aspiration, standing in community and profession. Today be very honest with self. See situation as it exists.

Gemini (May 21 to June 2-)—Others look to you for inspiration. Not easy to be one who sets example. But essential for future happiness. Be willing to bypass quick profit for long-range quality, service. Stock to ideals.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21) Cycle not at peak . . best to attend to routine matters and to seek ways of being with people "in harmony" of salt.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21)—Planets converging in opposition to your sign. This could present tremendous challenge. Be the showman . . . but keep "hole" card hidden. Be ready and willing to come up with surprise. Be firm.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)— Those you love may seek favors. Temptation will be to postpone answer . . . but an open mind and heart would be more becoming. You will be happy in long run that you said Yes.

Libra (Sept 23 to Oct. 22)—Facing facts very much advised. Stress heavily on affairs of the heart. There could be a time this evening when quarrels with loved ones enter picture. Try to avoid this via diplomacy.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—If you are going to write any letter in anger . . . do so . . . . but don't mail it. Find way of expressing yourself that is positive. Negative reaction on your part could prove costly. Visit friends.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Tendency for you to be skeptical but be assured someone is working in your behalf. Accept favors graciously. Realize that honest display of emotions is commendable. Luck rides with you.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Much stress on income, money matters, security . . . what to keep and what to discard. Make sure your "pack" is not too heavy. Be willing to give up nonessentials. This becomes clear tonight.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Rest essential. Build up reserves of energy. Your cycle up, Discouragement due to set back should be forgotten. Spotlight personal abilities. Look to future. Use golden rule.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20)—Once again you find that if you take care of the details, the over-all project will almost take care of itself. Know this and act accordingly. Recent investment could pay off. Socialize tonight.

If Born Today . . . your greatest success comes through progressive thought and actions. If you try to return to the past by brooding over spilled milk, you harm yourself. This year could be marked by exciting change, romance and . . . if single . . . by marriage.

General Tendencies: Over-all anxiety prevails. Yet, much can be gained by accepting challenge of future. Cycle up for Capricorn, Aquarius, Pisces. All signs could benefit by study of Aquarius interpretation today.

LABOR MINISTER

man (NDP - Peterborough). He said there is no sign of additional effort by the government to make jobs.

In fact, said Mr. Pitman, it wasn't until November, 1960, that the government had decided there was an unemployment problem and even the word unemployment wasn't mentioned.

The December unemployment figure—413,000 at mid-month — reflected the addition of 15,000 men in the armed forces, another 25,000 in civil defence survival courses plus a few jobs created by Ontario's three-percent sales tax.

J. P. Deschatelets (L—Montreal Maisonneuve - Rosemont) said the government is fighting unemployment with just one measure — the winter works program. That framework needed broadening so that far more municipalities could afford to take part. Federal contributions could be increased and other incentives given.

Liberal party suggestions today embraced "everything that the Conservative party is doing now, item for item."

At another point, W. H. Millan (L—Welland) referred to complaints by the Federation of Mayors and Municipalities of a lack of provision for financial aid to help purchase materials for the winter projects.

He said it would be better if the government had a municipal loan fund as proposed by the Liberal party.

Mr. McMillan also criticized the government program of allowing double depreciation under income tax for new industries established in labor - surplus areas.

He said that after the city of Welland failed in a bid to be considered a labor surplus area, Atlas Steels Limited of Welland had decided to build a $42,000,000 steel plant elsewhere.

POLICY 'UNDESIRABLE'

It was undesirable to have a government policy which made one area more desirable than another for new industry.

H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West) said that legitimate free enterprise is being replaced by monopoly capitalism which accepted no responsibility for employees if profits waned.

He cited the acquisition of Cockshutt Farm Equipment Limited at Brantford by the White Motor Company of Cleveland as an example of how the employment situation was worsened. The result had been that 600 men were facing unemployment at Brantford.

The state should use national planning in the sectors of public and private investment to prevent such events.

Executives Predict Expanded Business for Cockshutt Plant

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

TORONTO (CP)—Predictions that Cockshutt farm - implement manufacturing at Brantford will expand and perhaps produce more products than ever before were made Thursday by officials of White Motor Company of Cleveland, who have bought the operation.

Speaking at a press conference, they asked "patience" for the next few months while production is reorganized.

Just what will be produced will depend, they said, upon what can best be done in either the Chicago plant of the Oliver Corporation, the White subsidiary which will be the operating head, and what can best be done at Brantford.

Oliver and Cockshutt implements will be marketed under their present names and dealer organizations in Canada of both companies will be retained, at least for the present.

The acquisition by white was effective today and officials announced that the Brantford business has been incorporated as a Canadian company under the name of Cockshutt Farm Equipment of Canada Ltd., with George E. Vincent, formerly of Hamilton, vice - president and general manager.

VIRTUALLY UNCHANGED

The new name makes little change from the former Cockshutt Farm Equipment Co Ltd, a company which has operated in Brantford since 1877, but whose control has been held in the United States for several years.

With the sale of farm-equipment operations to White went the right to the Cockshutt name, and the former company has been renamed C. K. P. Developments Ltd., with its interests consisting chiefly of Brantford Coach and Body Ltd. and Florida real estate.

J. N. Baumann, president of White, which is paying about $8,000,000 for its purchase, said: "We have come to Brantford to build. We have no interest in destroying an acquisition If we didn't see an opportunity we wouldn't be putting our money into it."

Asked how many people will be employed, Mr. Vincent said: "I can't honestly answer, but I know we are shooting at 700 to 1,000 compared with the average of 600 to 700 who have been employed during the last two years. And we hope to make it a 21-month a year operation."

During an adjustment period of two or three months employment probably would be down to around 300, including office staff.

Peak employment at the Brantford operations has run to about 1,300, but in recent years there has been considerable fluctuation.

Montreal Fire Kills Woman

MONTREAL (CP) — An elderly woman was killed and more than 30 families left homeless as a result of three major fires that kept firemen busy Thursday night.

Mrs. Joseph Desmarais, 69, of Montreal, died of burns after her clothing caught fire near a store.

About 30 families were forced to flee into the streets in 15-below-zero temperatures when a three-alarm blaze swept a three-storey apartment building in the west end. Firemen fought the blaze for three hours before bringing it under control.

Six families were forced to evacuate their homes when a two-alarm fire broke out in a row of sheds in downtown Mont-

Queen's Sister Defended by Reporter

LONDON (CP)—A woman reporter springs to the defence of Princess Margaret.

Anne Sharpley, who has covered numerous royal tours for The Evening Standard, takes note of recent criticisms of Margaret, acknowledges that the Queen's sister is sometimes a little difficult, but sums up:

"Well . . . so . . . . she's a princess. What else do we really expect? Don't we get a private kick from having a full-blooded, contrary, infuriating princess? Isn't she more fun than a line - toeing, anxious - to-please princess?"

Two Convicted Of Manslaughter

TORONTO (CP) — Two men were convicted of manslaughter Thursday in the death of Charles Nicholls, 38, who died 10 weeks after being beaten outside a downtown tavern.

John Hallman, 21, of Hanover and Reno Taylor, 28, of Toronto were remanded to March 12 for sentence.

Nicholls was beaten outside the Parkside Tavern June 16. He died Aug. 28 in hospital.

Hallman told the court a fight developed when Taylor was hit by a swinging door as he and Taylor were leaving the tavern. When he and Nicholls were both on the ground after wrestling, Taylor came up and kicked Nicholls three times, Hallman said.

Taylor did not testify.

Ottawa Le Droit Publisher Says Life's Happiest Move Was Starting News Career

By GUY RONDEAU

OTTAWA (CP)—Aurele Gratton, publisher and general manager of the Ottawa daily Le Droit, says the happiest move he made in his life was 15 years ago when he quit the civil service to start a newspaper career.

In the civil service for 19 years, Mr. Gratton said he had never been able to get complete satisfaction out of his work. An accountant and social science graduate of the University of Ottawa, he worked in the auditor-general's office and also for the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

"I was not very happy in the civil service and I was always looking for an opportunity to get out," the 52-year-old publisher recalled in an interview

The opportunity came in December, 1946, when he was invited to become head of Le Syndicat d'Oeuvres Sociales, owners of Le Droit and radio station CKCH Hull. His first assignment was a complete reorganization of Le Syndicat

OTTAWA PUBLISHER

Aurele Gratton, 52, publisher and general manager of Ontario's only French-language daily, Ottawa Le Droit, served in the civil service before starting his newspaper career. He became head of the Syndicat d'Oeurvres Sociales, owner of Le Droit and radio station CKCH, Hull, Quebec, in 1946, and since then has increased the business turnover of Le Syndicat sixfold. (CP Photo).

INCREASED BUSINESS

He brushed aside fears of relatives and friends who were worried about him quitting a comparatively comfortable position for what they considered a risky one.

Mr. Gratton was 37 when he took charge of Le Syndicat which in addition to publishing the only French-language daily in Ontario and running the radio station operates a printing plant.

In the last 15 years, business turnover of Le Syndicat has increased 600 per cent. The number of employees has doubled to 300. The circulation of Le Droit, about 20,000 a day 15 years ago, now is between 36,000 and 37,000.

The newspaper was founded in 1913 when a vigorous battle was being fought to protect the rights of the French-speaking minority in Ontario.

Conscious of this background, Mr. Gratton two years ago launched an edition specially designed for the French-language population in Northern Ontario. This edition will not become self-supporting for several years but it was considered necessary, he said.

FEW FRENCH PAPERS

Mr. Gratton is particularly interested in the expansion of French-language newspapers in Canada. He said it is inconceivable that French Canada, with one - third of the population, should have only 10 daily papers while English-speaking Canada has 90 or more.

President of the French-language Canadian Daily Newspapers Association, he is working toward establishment of a journalism school for French Canada. A school with a French-Canadian and Roman Catholic outlook is necessary, he said and the owners of newspapers must contribute financially to it.

Newspaper publishers are sympathetic, he said, and he has hopes the project will materialize within a year.

WATER SKIS

Although Mr. Gratton spends 13 or 14 hours a day at his work, he remains active in a variety of fields. He is involved in countless civic activities and helps with many welfare groups.

Member of the town planning commission of Hull, where he lives, he is also secretary-treasurer of the Hull Chambre de Commerce.

A sports enthusiast and a capable swimmer, he packs a trim 150 pounds into his five-foot-six frame. He was among those who introduced water skiing to the Ottawa area about 30 years ago. He was one of the founders of the Hull Ski Club and still skis.

His wife is the former Germaine Trepanier of Hull and they will celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary in April. They have two children, Michel, a civil engineer in Toronto, and Lise, a student.

Lord Snowdon Starts Work On Sunday Paper

LONDON (Reuters) — Lord Snowdon started his first paid job yesterday since his marriage to Princess Margaret—a controversial post as artistic adviser to The Sunday Times.

Snowdon was first taken by Sunday Times Editor C. D. Hamilton to see Roy Thomson, the Canadian millionaire owner of the newspaper.

Afterward he was taken to his private office on the editorial floor, where he is expected to study the first issue of The Sunday Times color supplement, an innovation on Fleet Street, the British newspaper capital.

Snowdon, who before his May, 1960, marriage was society photographer Antony Armstrong-Jones, aroused more criticism than support in taking the newspaper post.

Many newspapers deplored the enlistment of a royal personality in a "circulation war" of Sunday papers.

Others said the appointment of the Queen's brother-in-law to the staff of the Conservative newspaper was involving the Royal Family in politics.

Thomson said the 31-year-old peer was selected on the basis of his ability and will receive a regular executive's salary.

MAIL SUPPORTS TONY

The Daily Mail comments today that much of the storm of criticism over Snowdon and Margaret was "unjust."

The Daily Mail, which carries the masthead slogan "for Queen and Commonwealth," says Snowdon had been urged to find a paying job and now that he has done so it is "unjust" to criticize him for it.

NEW USES FOR COAL — Dr. Norman Berkowitz, head of the Alberta research council, says new uses for coal byproducts will revitalize the coal mining industry. For the last nine years Dr. Berkowitz has been studying new applications for coal which include its use in plastics, fertilizers, graphites and filters. He works in the council's laboratory at Edmonton. (CP Photo).

Alberta's Coal Industry After Long Downhill Run May Be on Verge of Boom

By JIM WHELLY

EDMONTON (CP)—Alberta's coal industry, heading downhill like a runaway mine car for the last 10 years, may be on the verge of a gigantic boom.

Dr. Norman Berkowitz of the Alberta Research Council says last year's 2,100,000 - ton production could be boosted to an annual 25,000,000 tons within 10 years.

"We have just begun to realize the value of coal as a non-fuel raw material," he says. "New deposits have been discovered which could be easily and economically strip-mined, and industry is turning an interested eye on research findings."

Dr. Berkowitz, head of the ARC's coal research division, recently announced the successful development of a method of transporting coal in existing oil pipelines.

"Coal is not obsolete as was thought 10 years ago," he says. "Lack of foresight has caused the industry's decline."

Alberta once boasted 399 operating coal mines that employed more than 10,000 men and, in 1946, extracted nearly 9,000,000 tons — more than four times the estimated production of some 60 mines and 1,500 men last year.

RESEARCH OVERDUE

"We are doing work which should have been done 20 years ago," Dr. Berkowitz says. "We now must change the idea that coal is simply a fuel."

Instead, he says, Alberta coal (formed from buried tropical plants more than 70,000,000 years ago) may produce graphites for rocket research and by-products for use in rocket propulsion and nose cone construction.

"I foresee dozens of other uses, uses which will attract many allied industries to the province."

Coal, says Dr. Berkowitz, is an ideal source of tremendous quantities of carbon required by modern industry. Carbonized coal is used in filtration plants, and this use could provide an annual market for 300,000 tons.

Cheap plastics for the building industry could be developed from coal. Humic acids, derived from the oxidation of coal, could be used to turn barren wastelands of clay soils into rich agricultural areas.

"My head is not in the clouds on the subject of coal," says Dr. Berkowitz, who has made a life - long project of coal research, for the last nine years with the research council.

U.S. STEEL PLANS

Industrial planning bears him out. Coal - burning power stations expected to be operating soon at Edmonton, Wabamun and Forestburg will push Alberta's domestic coal requirements to more than twice today's annual production. The Edmonton station alone will burn 2,000,000 tons a year.

The possibility of a big jump in exports is seen in U.S. Steel Corporation's negotiations with the CNR on cost of a 100-mile branch line north from Hinton, Alta., to coal deposits at the possible site of a $50,000,000 coking plant and mine development in the Rocky Mountain foothills. Plans call for shipping coke to Japan and the company's plant at San Francisco.

Depending on the applications of nuclear power, Dr. Berkowitz says, Ontario's coal - burning thermal electricity plants will require 30,000,000 to 45,000,000 tons of coal a year by 1980 and Alberta could capture half this market. High-grade coking coal might also be carried eastward, he says, also by pipeline.

This year he plans to test pipeline transmission of coal near Edmonton with a two-to-three-mile loop of four-to-eight-inch pipe—a scaled-up versin of the laboratory model—and he sees no reason for failure.

USE OIL LINES

Carried forward by the oil, coal would be moved in the excess space in existing oil pipelines. Dr. Berkowitz says the spare capacity of the interprovincial pipeline could carry more than 6,000,000 tons of coal a year to Eastern Canada.

Alberta's coal reserves are even richer than explorer Alexander Mackenzie's notes indicated when he recorded deposits in the Peace River Block in 1793 and river banks farther north aflame with coal in 1786.

Principal deposits now are believed to underlie a broad strip from the Mackenzie district to the United States, paralleling the Rocky Mountains foothills and passing beneath Edmonton Known reserves total 48,000,000,000 tons, about one-half of all Canadian deposits and five per cent of the world's supply.

With the development of new coal uses, new markets and more efficient transportation methods, Alberta may soon employ far more men in the industry than lost their jobs when its mining centres became black - faced ghost towns.

Sunday School Lesson

Keeping the Sabbath Holy

By ROY L. SMITH

The blue laws enacted by the Pilgrim fathers for the government of the Massachusetts colony have been an embarrassment to later Christians for the reason that, in their effort to be consistent, they made themselves only a little less than ridiculous.

Actually, however splendid consistence may be as a virture, it often happens that it has the effect of misleading us, so that we end up in absurdity. This is apt to be the case with pacifism, and it has been the case with those who have demonstrated against nuclear testing, both of which causes have much good solid logic in their defence system.

SOLID GROUND UNDERFOOT

When all the mistakes of the Puritans have been admitted, it still remains true that there is good solid reasoning under the proposition that one day of the week should be kept holy.

> The Uniform Sunday School Lesson for February 4: "THE RIGHT USE OF THE LORD'S DAY," Exodus 28: 8-11; Mark 2: 23 through 3: 6; Luke 4. 16-20, 31-40; Nehemiah 13: 15-22.

In no way do the American people lack the essentials of a democratic philosophy than in their neglect of holy traditions. Something divine is apt to go out of our national life—something upon which our very survival depends—if we allow our Sabbath to be desecrated and destroyed.

We are not dealing with prejudices, bigotry, pettiness or narrow-mindedness when we deal with the question of Sabbath observance. Instead, we are dealing with awe, wonder, majesty, reverence, and respect for life and creation itself. This is good solid ground upon which to build an enduring civilization and is not, therefore, to be trifled with.

The "village" of La Jolla, California, which is a part of the city of San Diego, is located on one of the most beautiful sites anywhere up and down the California coast, and its people represent some of the most loyal Americans to be found anywhere on the continent. But at one point they have a blind spot.

One of the great events of the year is the "rough water swim," an aquatic event of great interest and a s[illegible] event of the first rank. Unfortunately, however, the affair is staged on Sunday, beginning about the time the church bells are ringing, summoning the people to worship.

On the occasion of the last observance of the sport, the newspaper reporters estimated that as many as 30,000 people were present, including thousands of children and youth, all of whom should have been in some Sunday school at the precise hour that they were frolicking on the beaches and in the parks along the coast.

Now there is nothing wrong with the rough water swim. And there is nothing wrong with 30,000 people gathered to cheer their favorites on to victory. But there is something wrong about taking 5,000 children and youth out of Sunday school for the sake of a sports holiday! This is especially true in view of the fact that Saturday (pretty generally a holiday) comes only 24 hours earlier

If a communist organization of some kind had staged a rally which took 5,000 children and youth out of Sunday school, the storm of protest would have been heard across the nation.

Not the least alarming aspect of the situation is the fact that several prominent churchmen of the community were listed on the Committee of Management.

CHURCH'S ONE CHANCE

Regardless of the fact that the churches generally are trying to spread their program of religious education throughout the entire week, it still remains true that the major task is reserved for Sunday. And in further view of the fact that the churches are expected to take a large responsibility in combatting juvenile delinquency, they are entitled to the help and support that community organizations can give them by joining in a protection of the Sabbath.

This is not a mere matter of doctrine, or of theology. It is a question of American survival.

Cuban Imports May Be Barred By U.S. Govt.

Tobacco and Fresh Vegetables Hard Hit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kennedy administration is expected to announce shortly a complete embargo on U.S. imports from Cuba amounting to about $35,000,000 a year.

The action will be the first here following the decision of western hemisphere foreign ministers earlier this week to exclude Cuba from the Organization of American States and to take steps to combat Communist subversion.

President Kennedy is reported to have made the decision to crack down on imports following the return of State Secretary Dean Rusk from the OAS meeting at Punta del Este, Uruguay.

Rusk has said Premier Fidel Castro has been using the dollars to finance Communist revolutionary activities in other Latin American countries.

U.S. imports from Cuba in the first 11 months of 1961 ran to about $32,400,000. About 90 per cent of this was tobacco for the cigar manufacturing industry in the Tampa, Fla., area. The remaining 10 per cent consisted of fresh fruit and vegetables.

EXEMPT FOOD

U.S. exports to Cuba in the same period totalled about $13,600,000 in food and medical supplies. It was understood that under the new decision Cuba would still be able to buy U.S. food and medicine.

The Kennedy administration has been reluctant to halt these exports lest such a move be interpreted as a blow at the Cuban people.

In another action aimed at the Castro government, the United States will press OAS members next week to agree speedily on joint security measures designed to defeat a Cuban-based "Communist offensive" against the western hemisphere.

The OAS is to meet here Wednesday to consider ways of carrying out the decisions of the Punta del Este conference.

The conference voted to exclude Cuba from the OAS, ordered an immediate halt in arms traffic with Cuba, provided for possible future economic sanctions and directed the OAS council to set up a committee on measures to counter a Communist offensive.

Former Premier Says Education Will Cost More

KINGSTON (CP) — There is no escape for Canada from the growing, expensive demands of education, former Premier Frost said Friday.

"To accomplish our objectives in education and to pay for them we are going to have to do without many things we would like," the recently retired premier told a gathering for the opening of an addition to the Queen's University chemistry building.

"It is good time for our people to assess what we have to do and what we have to do first, and then set aside the things we can do without."

Mr. Frost said the entire provincial bill for education in every phase when he became treasurer in 1943 was less than half the present provincial contributions to universities alone. By 1967, he added, the education department's budget will probably be $450,000,000.

He said the money needed for essential services should be raised without "injuring either our productive capacity or our competitive position."

TAXES TOO HIGH

"May I express the view that personal income and corporation taxes are already too heavy and that they are not the source from which to raise the amounts that are going to be required . . ."

Mr. Frost joined his brother, Professor Emeritus Grenville B. Frost, at the official opening of the $1,112,000 addition to the chemistry building.

Prof. Frost, head of the chemistry department until his retirement in 1961, was largely responsible for the design and planning of this and other chemistry facilities at Queen's. He was in the department 37 years.

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

FRIDAY, Feb. 2, 1962

The Commons, after three days of debate, approved the government appropriation of $40,090,000 for the winter works incentive program.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker declared firmly that Canada's approach to the Cuban problem will be based on policies she herself believes appropriate.

The Commons debated—but did not vote on — a proposed Liberal amendment to the Bill of Rights to give naturalized Canadians "complete legal equality" with native-born Canadians.

J. W. Pickersgill (L—Bonavista - Twillingate) said his amendment would achieve this equality by declaring that a naturalized Canadian could lose his citizenship only by renouncing it himself.

Government speakers said the bill of rights—termed a "sacred statement" by Robert S. MacLellan (PC — Inverness - Richmond)—should not be "cluttered up" with such amendments.

MONDAY, Feb. 5

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. to debate a proposed increase in the old age pension. The Senate is adjourned to 8 p.m. Tuesday.

TEMPERS FLARE IN QUE. HOUSE, CHARGES MADE

Nfld. Premier Answers Critics

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The weather outside was cold, but inside the Quebec legislature tempers were hot Friday as Premier Jean Lesage lashed out at opposition leader Daniel Johnson for a remark made during a debate on farm loans.

The Liberal premier rose after Mr. Johnson used a document in the debate which he said was contained in files which came from the office of former premier Antonio Barrette.

The Union Nationale leader didn't specify whether the document came from the office Mr. Barrette occupied as premier or from the opposition leader's office he later used before retiring from politics last year. However, Mr. Lesage took it to mean the former.

The premier angrily told the opposition that papers from files in the premier's office are the property of the office, "no matter who the premier is."

Mr. Johnson said what he had was a photostat. "Don't ask me where the original is," he said, then suggested it might be found in the offices of the Quebec farm credit board.

Teamsters and oilmen produced top news of the day in the other two legislatures in session.

BACKS REBELS

In St. John's, Premier Joseph Smallwood said that if Newfoundland's Teamsters Union locals pull out of their parent international he would, if necessary, guarantee the force of their contracts by statute.

The Liberal premier was replying to a question from A. M. Duffy, leader of the United Newfoundland Party, a renegade Conservative group. Mr. Duffy asked whether the Premier was aware of a threat by the locals to withdraw from the parent body.

The premier said that, if the locals do withdraw, it would be highly unlikely that any Newfoundland employer would refuse to observe contracts with the locals.

The premier has long been an outspoken foe of the Teamsters International, which he has said is controlled by gangster elements.

In Victoria, a Liberal backbencher filed a notice of motion calling on the legislature to set up a special committee to inquire allegations that exclusive government concessions have created fortunes for British Columbia oilmen.

The move by Alan Macfarlane, member for Oak Bay, follows a speech in the house Thursday by Alex Macdonald (NDP-CCF—Vancouver East).

Mr. Macdonald alleged that oil millionaire Frank McMahon and his Westcoast Transmission Company made $11,000,000 in stock profits on construction of a crude-oil pipeline from the Peace River area.

TCA, PILOTS AGREE

MONTREAL (CP) — Trans-Canada Air Lines and 250 pilots have signed a new labor contract providing for a 4½-per-cent wage increase it was announced Friday. The Canadian Air Line Pilots Association (CLC) said the contract, retroactive to last April 1, runs to June 30, 1963. Pilots will earn an average of $16,100 a year under the new contract.

Windsor Man Who Sold Heroin Given 12 Years

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A Windsor man who sold heroin to an undercover agent was sentenced Friday to 12 years in penitentiary on one of four charges involving narcotics and counterfeit money.

Mr. Justice Edwin Thompson of the Ontario Supreme Court imposed the term on Nicholas Cicchini, 67, for trafficking in heroin. Cicchini received another 12-year sentence for conspiring to traffic in heroin and terms of five years each for conspiring to possess counterfeit money and possessing counterfeit money. The sentences will run concurrently.

Macmillan Booed and Jeered By Oxford University Students

OXFORD, England (Reuters) Hundreds of Oxford University students booed and jeered Prime Minister Macmillan Friday night outside of a hall where he was due to address university Conservatives.

And elsewhere, a Conservative backbencher made a speech interpreted widely as a call for Macmillan's resignation.

The backbencher, Sir Harry Legge-Bourke, said that for men of the 67-year-old Macmillan's generation "the time is coming for you now to hand over the responsibilities to men whose fortune is not to have had to bear for so many grievous years the burdens you have borne."

When Macmillan arrived at the Oxford meeting surrounded by officials of the university's Conservative Association, he had to force a path through a cat-calling crowd of several hundred who had been unable to gain admittance and were barring his way.

When Macmillan tried to get in through the main door, officials inside could not open it. Then, amid an uproar mainly from persons holding nuclear disarmament symbols—he was escorted to a side door. Here officials shouted:

"It's the premier. Let him in."

Those inside, however, thought it was a joke and refused to open the door.

Macmillan then decided to try the main door again. He breasted his way through the crowd with the aid of detectives and finally succeeded in squeezing through the door to be greeted inside by thunderous applause.

Nick Peconi, Peterborough, Sent to Trial on Meat Charge

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—An undercover RCMP corporal testified Friday that a man, charged with selling meat from a dead animal for human consumption, told him he had a good market for horsemeat in Quebec.

Cpl. O. J. Lutes of Toronto was given evidence at the preliminary hearing of Nick Peconi, 47, who pleaded not guilty and was committed for trial at the next assize.

Peconi testified that Lutes and Cpl. Ed Drayton had not asked him about dead animal meat when they visited him twice last fall.

They had, he said, asked only for "good, lean meat."

Cpl. Lutes testified to meeting Peconi twice, telling him he was operating under the name of E and D Meat Market in Windsor and that the other officer was handling the business in Detroit.

They told Peconi the meat could be sold to the "colored people", in Detroit, the corporal said.

"We told him we wanted good, dead meat," he said, specifying "cheap, boneless meat."

At the time, Peconi was licensed under the Dead Animals Disposal Act to handle meat for non-human consumption.

The corporal said Peconi told them he was marketing about three tons of meat a week through one customer and was getting 27 cents a pound.

The policeman said Peconi told them his other customer was mixing horsemeat with meat from dead animals.

Cpl. Lutes testified that, as the agents were entering Peconi's dead animal receiving plant the owner remarked:

"You'd better have strong stomachs."

The witness said he was told some of the animals had died from mastitis—a disease of the udder—and that the meat from these was being mixed with meat from "downers" — dying animals collected while still alive.

Magistrate Robert Dnieper rejected a defence submission at the end of the Crown's case that the Crown had failed to prove type, condition or quality of the meat.

Accused denied telling the officers he had a ready market for meat at 27 cents a pound. He said that prior to the offer by the undercover agents of 30 cents a pound he had never received as much as 27 cents a pound. He had sold meat to a dog-food firm for 16 cents a pound but never received any higher price.

Special prosecutor Samuel Grange of Toronto asked:

"Did no suspicions arise in your mind that you suddenly got an offer of 30 cents a pound."

Peconi: "I did think it was odd—but they offered me 30 cents and I said I would take it."

Peconi estimated his gross turnover last year at between $60,000-$70,000 and his profits at "from $10,000 to $16,000 or $17,000."

Big French Armored Force Guards Paris From OAS

PARIS (Reuters) — A powerful armored force prepared to take up strategic positions in this tense capital today to counter any extremist bid to disrupt the government's plans for peace in Algeria.

The security move came amid reports that France and Algeria's Moslem nationalist insurgents might make a peace agreement soon. This would be bitter medicine for European extremists like those in the outlawed, terrorist Secret Army Organization, pledged to keep the territory "French" and thus bitterly anti-Gaullist.

Thirty-two light tanks, some heavy tanks and about 70 other armored vehicles were in the security force detailed here in advance of President de Gaulle's broadcast to the nation Monday.

The 25,000-strong Paris police force also has been reinforced to about 28,000 with some 500 armed motorcyclists, 30 squadrons of mobile gendarmerie and 1,000 riot police.

There was plenty of optimism here that an Algerian settlement was in sight. However, officials were saying de Gaulle's broadcast would not necessarily produce anything as dramatic as a cease-fire announcement for the seven-year Algerian war.

Many Frenchmen believed the insurgent Algerian provisional government meeting in Tunis, Tunisia, this weekend would decide about accepting a French cease-fire offer.

Early today an explosion apparently caused by a plastic bomb caused heavy damage at the Paris home of Sen Gaston Deferre, mayor of Marseilles and a staunch opponent of the secret army. Deferre was out at the time and there were no casualties.

Northwest Ont. Delegates To Present Brief to Premier

TORONTO (CP)—A group of northwestern Ontario businessmen will meet Premier Robarts and his cabinet Thursday to present a variety of suggestions on ways to improve their section of the province.

Mines Minister Wardrope, who will attend in the dual role of cabinet minister and member for Port Arthur, said today at least 39 resolutions will be presented to the cabinet when the delegation from the Northwestern Ontario Associated Chambers of Commerce makes its annual visit to Queen's Park.

The delegation of about 50 will gather at Fort William Wednesday to review their brief on subjects ranging from highway improvement to Ontario liquor laws. Then they fly here by chartered plane, headed by association President R. J. Flatt of Fort William and Secretary C. W. King of Port Arthur.

Most delegation members pay their own way and some must drive more than 300 miles before boarding the plane for the 600-mile flight to Toronto.

Also attending the Queen's Park meeting will be Robert Gibson, recently elected Liberal member for Kenora; John Chapple, Liberal member for Fort William; and William G. Noden, conservative member for Rainy River.

The northwestern members of the legislature will be hosts later at a lunch for the delegation.

Mr. Wardrope said resolutions concerning highways in the northwestern area make up an important part of the brief.

The delegates will ask for improvements in the Trans-Canada Highway in their area, completion of the highway from Fort Frances to Atikokan and improvement in grading on Highways 72 and 116, the minister said.

The northwest wants construction of an international bridge at Fort Frances and access roads linking Caribou Falls and Gordon Lake, Sioux Lookout and Savant Lake, and Pine Portage and Lake Nipigon.

It also seeks reconstruction of the Jackfish road and the road from Schreiber to Duck Lake.

In more general terms, Mr. Wardrope said, the delegates will seek improved highway signs and white lines on the outer edges of highways.

The minister said the chambers of commerce object to the leasing of Crown lands for logging and other operations, "preferring to see outright sale if possible." They also want removal of the provincial logging tax and construction of more boat ramps and landings on northwestern lakes.

Additional parks will be sought along Highways 17 and 11, and reciprocal licensing of trucks with other provinces. They will ask for improved airport facilities at the Lakehead and a reduction or cancellation of the tax on aircraft gasoline.

A long-sought objective, an industrial development fund for the northwest, will be put to the cabinet again along with a request for a review of provincial liquor laws.

And from the federal government, through provincial intercession, the chambers will seek satellite television stations at a number of communities now getting poor reception as well as a federal trade and commerce seminar at the Lakehead.

PC'S DEFEAT AMENDMENT TO BILL OF RIGHTS

Pickersgill Given Verbal Blasting

OTTAWA (CP) — The Progressive Conservatives are more than a little proud of Prime Minister Diefenbaker's Bill of Rights and any MP trying to change it runs a grave risk of a verbal stoning in the Commons.

J. W. Pickersgill (L — Bonavista - Twillingate), rushing in deliberately where an angel would fear to tread, attempted to amend the bill Friday but was hurled back by Conservative sharpshooters.

Terry Nugent (PC — Edmonton Strathcona) said Mr. Pickersgill was envious of the bill and was trying to "get some of the glory" Mr. Diefenbaker had achieved in 1960 with its passage.

F. J. Bigg (PC — Athabasca) said the former Liberal immigration minister wanted to amend a "great document" so he could get his own name in the history books.

Robert S. MacLellan (PC—Inverness - Richmond) declared that the Bill of Rights is a "sacred statement."

Mr. Pickersgill said he was seeking only to fulfil one of Mr. Diefenbaker's "unfulfilled promises."

MEASURE TALKED OUT

His amendment, in the form of a private bill, was allowed only the usual one hour of debate provided for such measures and sank like a stone to the bottom of the list, perhaps never to reappear at this parliamentary session.

The amendment proposed that naturalized Canadians be given "complete legal equality" with native-born citizens. It would have declared that a naturalized Canadian can lose his citizenship only by renouncing it himself.

Mr. Pickersgill said there should be no law making it possible to strip a naturalized Canadian of his citizenship "arbitrarily." A naturalized citizen can have his citizenship revoked if he remains outside Canada for more than 10 years and doesn't declare an intention of maintaining it. This doesn't apply to native-born Canadians.

Conservative opponents contended that Mr. Pickersgill was in effect trying to amend the Citizenship Act.

The proposed change provided a lively conclusion to an otherwise drab Commons day which saw passage of the first legislation of the session which began Jan. 18.

This was appropriation of $82,392,000 for acreage payments to Prairie farmers, the winter works program and aid to Newfoundland fishermen.

There was only one major government statement during the sitting.

Mr. Diefenbaker said there is

Say Lucky Luciano Had His Finger In New York Narcotics Conspiracy

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. treasury officials say exiled gangster Charles (Lucky) Luciano had his hands in a multi-million-dollar New York Narcotics conspiracy when he died last week in Italy.

In announcing this Friday officials also disclosed arrest was imminent for the 65-year-old racketeer when he died at a Naples airport Jan. 26.

The death of Luciano, reputed to be a leader of the Sicily-based crime syndicate known as the Mafia, was attributed to a heart attack. Treasury officials said they had no evidence to the contrary but noted that Italian authorities were investigating the cause of death.

The link to the New York narcotics conspiracy case was reported at a press conference by Henry Giordano, acting commissioner of narcotics, and Assistant Treasury Secretary James Reed.

The three men, who forfeited bail totalling $110,000 when they skipped the country last year, were described by Giordano as "the main ones in the conspiracy."

They were arrested by Spanish authorities a few days before Luciano's death and are due back in New York tonight to face trial. They were identified as Vincent Mauro, Frank Caruso and Salvatore Maneri, all one-time New York residents. They carried false Canadian passports.

The narcotics case was opened in October, 1960, when treasury agents and police arrested four men with 23½ pounds of heroin valued at $3,000,000 on the illegal market.

Eventually, 12 Americans and four Canadian residents were charged with narcotics conspiracy. Eleven were convicted Dec. 27, 1961, and await sentencing. Mauro, Caruso and Maneri jumped bail. Two other defendants were murdered.

William (Shorty) Holmes of New York was found dead on a Bronx street Aug. 8. Albert Agueci of Toronto was strangled and burned near Rochester, N.Y., Nov. 23.

Luciano emigrated to the United States when he was nine. He was convicted in 1936 of running a $12,000,000-a-year vice ring in New York and sentenced to 30 to 50 years. He served 9½ years, then was paroled on condition that he be deported.

Argentine Army Forces Switch In Cuban Policy

Frondizi Has to Alter Previous Soft Stand

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Bowing to military leaders, Argentine President Arturo Frondizi steered Argentina today into the ranks of western hemisphere nations that want Cuba put out of the organization of American States.

An Argentine break in diplomatic relations with Cuban Premier Fidel Castro's government appeared certain but informants said it would take some time. Frondizi Friday summoned home his ambassador to Cuba, Julio Amoedo, in an apparent first step toward a formal break.

A communique issued by the presidential palace Friday night made it clear Argentina would vote in favor of ousting Cuba from the hemispheric family of nations when the matter comes up before the OAS council.

At a meeting of the foreign ministers of OAS members in Uruguay earlier this week 20 American republics, including the United States, voted disapproval of the Castro regime. But Argentina, along with Brazil, Mexico, Ecuador, Bolivia and Chile, abstained on a resolution calling for Cuba's ousting from inter-American councils.

AVERTS CLASH

While Frondizi apparently had averted an open clash with his military leaders, the governments of neighboring Brazil and tiny Ecuador were facing criticism at home for favoring no action against Cuba.

In Brazil, conservatives denounced Foreign Minister Francisco San Tiago Dantas, who played a leading role in attempts at Punta del Este to go easy on Castro's government.

In the Ecuador capital at Quito, conservatives joined two other minority parties in criticizing President Carlo Julio Arosemena because his delegation abstained on the Cuban vote.

Former Rail President Dies

He was believed convalescing from surgery when he died.

Budd went to the Panama Canal Zone early in his career to rehabilitate and operate the Panama railroad while the canal was being built. In 1930 he went to Russia to survey the Trans-Siberian and Chinese Eastern railways.

Many Believe House Just Plain Haunted

JACKSON, Mich. (CP) — The superstitious shudder when they walk past the Victor Lincoln family's house. Even scoffers have been known to cross to the other side of the street.

According to them, dishes and bottles suddenly jump from shelves and hurtle through the air. Ghostly footsteps echo on the basement stairs. Water taps and gas burners turn themselves on. Carefully made beds get turned down.

Last week, Dr William Rowl of Durham, N.C., director of the Physical Research Foundation, and an associate spent many hours in the house. They refused to offer an explanation for the strange doings other than to comment: "The foundation is interested in the case."

Some Jackson residents believe that abandoned tunnels under the house have caused it to settle. Some think the tunnels could contain air pockets which send currents through the building.

Others blame a mischievous child or neighbor. And a few half-believe the house is just plain haunted.

For This Relief Much Thanks

Y's Men Given Talk on Art Of Scuba Diving

Local Y's Men were recently given a talk on the sport of scuba diving by Ron Chapman, an instructor of the Quinte Aquadivers Club and of the 10-week YMCA scuba and skin diving course.

Mr. Chapman outlined the features of the local "Y" course as well as the activities of his club during the past few years of its existence. He noted that local diving activity in the Bay of Quinte waters was hindered considerably by pollution. He expressed the hope that the establishment of sewage disposal plants at Belleville, Trenton, Deseronto and Picton would eventually cure this condition. If this is done it will open up a new era for divers in waters that are rich in history and booty to be found on the many sunken sailing ships which are reported to be in the area.

A short movie on the club's activities both recreational and educational, was shown at the end of his address.

President John Hayman conducted the meeting during which Bill MacKenzie, John Marshall and Ray Coulter were welcomed to the club as new members.

Dr. H. Craig Injured in Car Accident

A Belleville dentist, Dr. Harold Craig, 53 Highland Ave., was taken to Belleville General Hospital following a car accident which occurred at the intersection of Highway 401 and Sidney Street, around 2 p.m., Friday afternoon.

Dr. William Beattie, who attended Dr. Craig at the hospital ,said he was suffering from head lacerations, and that he would undergo surgery for head cuts.

It is understood Dr. Craig was proceeding south on Sidney Street, when he drove out into the path of a car eastbound on Highway 401, which was being driven by 45-year-old Douglas Murray Deakin, of Pringle Drive.

Both cars received about $400 damage.

Dr. Craig and Mr. Deakin were alone in their cars when the accident occurred.

Mr. Deakin escaped injury.

no possibility that dollars earned by Cuba in its trade with Canada are being used to foster Communist subversion in Latin America.

He showed by figures that Cuba has been earning many times more from trade with the United States than through trade with Canada.

Mr. Diefenbaker's statement was made in reply to Heath Macquarrie (PC—Queens) who asked for comment on statements made in Washington by U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk.

Mr. Rusk expressed hope Thursday that other countries would consider aligning their Cuba policies with those of the Organization for American States.

At its Uruguay meeting earlier this week, by the bare two-thirds majority required, the OAS voted to exclude Communist - oriented Cuba from its councils. Sponsors of the move —led by the U.S.—hope to isolate Cuba from the rest of the hemisphere.

Mr. Rusk said at a press conference that Premier Fidel Castro is using dollars and other foreign exchange to promote subversion in neighboring countries. Asked whether the U.S. planned to ask Canada to halt trade with Cuba, he indicated the matter would be taken up with Ottawa.

Mr. Diefenbaker noted that in the first nine months of this year exports to Cuba totalled $21,500,000 and imports from Cuba $4,600,000. In the same period, U.S. exports totalled $13,300,000 and imports $26,800,000.

Federal Force Allows Leeway Of Ten Per Cent

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP)—Suppose the speed limit is 60 miles an hour. How fast can the motorist go before the sirens wail?

RCMP Commissioner C. W. Harvison revealed Friday that a 10 - per - cent leeway is allowed by the federal force in "most areas" it polices. That would mean driving at 65 with impunity.

The RCMP acts as a provincial police force in all areas except Ontario and Quebec.

Commissioner Harvison made this point during a panel discussion at the annual meeting of the Ontario Bar Association. The panel had been asked whether police should prosecute traffic cases.

Most police forces would be glad to get rid of the job, he said. And if a person pleaded not guilty, then a trained lawyer should be brought in to prosecute.

MOST PLEAD GUILTY

But Commissioner Harvison said most people charged with a traffic offence plead guilty. Speaking for the RCMP only, he suggested that the main reason is that the citizen knows there is no room for argument.

Traffic charges are simply not laid by the RCMP unless the evidence is conclusive, he said. This explained the 10-per-cent leeway on speeding.

Panel chairman J. G. J. O'Driscoll, a Toronto lawyer, noted that a driver often is apprehended by a policeman, served with a summons by a policeman, ushered into court by a policeman, prosecuted by a policeman and then guided by a policeman to the spot where he pays a fine.

Magistrate J. L. Roberts of Niagara Falls said he doesn't like the idea of people coming into court and seeing it overrun with policemen, whether in in or out of uniform. He added that usually a police prosecutor is able and fair but "I just don't want him there as a prosecutor . . . it creates an atmosphere in the courtroom."

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Here Is Check List for Those Who May Retire to the South

By THOMAS COLLINS

"My husband and I both are 63. We want very much to retire South when the pension arrives for my husband in two years, but we are afraid.

"We don't know whether we can afford it. We are apprehensive about leaving a city that has been home for 30 years. We don't really know what retired life in a warm climate will be like.

"Could you give us a check list of things a couple like us should know before daring to plan a sunshine retirement? Could you tell how the check list would differ in Arizona, California and Florida?"

Many people ask these questions. Many people at 65 deny themselves the sunshine retirement they want because they can't get answers.

So...here is a check list. It has to be general, but it will give couples like this one a pretty fair idea of what they should know to make up their minds.

1. A couple with $200 a month assured income can live and die in modest comfort in many places in Florida and Arizona and in some places in Southern California. Couples by the thousands are doing it, often by living in trailers.

SEEK NEW FRIENDS

2. Moving from a home town in snow-country to a strange town in sun country is a wrench — no matter who you are. The unfamiliar street signs are no lasting problem; people are. A switch from old acquaintances who are comfortable to people who don't recognize you will mean that you must aggressively seek new friends, or resign yourself to isolation and loneliness. But people are more receptive to your advances in a retirement paradise than in, say, Hartford or Pittsburgh.

3. Living costs are about the same all over. One thing in this area will cost more, another in that. But the monthly costs will about balance out. The reason you can live more cheaply than where you are now is that you change standards and require less when you move away in retirement. Also, in the retirement areas you find your neighbors are living on pensions, too, instead of $10,000 a year. Contrasts aren't so obvious.

4. Retirement jobs .Don't expect any. The Southwest and Florida are booming areas. On occasion a retired man from the North can get a job. But the retired couple going to sun country without enough to live on, while expecting to pick up a job here and there, is headed for trouble.

5. You're not going to be completely satisfied with the climate, no matter where you go. No climate is perfect. Rain, intense heat, hurricanes, earthquakes, wind and fog can come in season in retirement country as surely as snow comes in Winnipeg. But you'd be bored if it were otherwise. Just don't put all your chips on the weather.

6. Housing in retirement land comes in all flavors. The purchase of a house and lot is all right if it can be done for cash, if it can be resold if the husband or wife dies, or if the husband or wife will want to live on there alone if one of them dies. Otherwise, rental housing, at about one-fourth the retirement income, is better.

COMMON-SENSE MISTAKES

7. Retirement couples choosing the areas where they will live frequently make some common-sense mistakes they didn't make when they chose their neighborhoods earlier in life, for they had such things as schools and transportation to the job in mind. There are essentials to a retirement neighborhood, too, such as bus service when you no longer can drive or can own a car; such as nearness to stores where you can get competitive prices, instead of isolation in a village where there are monopoly shots; such as the closeness of doctors who will make calls at home and at night; such as hospitals where your medical insurance is accepted.

8. The retirement couple choosing a retirement home is wise to look for a plot of ground where some beans and potatoes will grow. Food is the largest drain on a pension.

9. The couple trying to decide whether the Southwest or Florida will be best might figure the cost of moving their house furnishings to either area... might consider also which area is most reachable by their children in case of trouble...or at Christmas.

10. Finally, a couple should consider this before moving anywhere in retirement: You can have your cake and eat it, too. Rent, furnished, the home you have where you are now, move to the area you find best, rent furnished quarters there, and test. If at the end of a year you don't like it, you know what you can do. If you do like it, go back home, sell out and move.

Britain Ponders Conundrum Of Long Caribbean Policy

By DOUG MARSHALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ever since Jamaica said farewell to the proposed West Indies federation after a referendum last year Britain has been pondering the conundrum of a long-term Caribbean policy.

Basically Britain is anxious to reduce her overseas financial commitments and rip off the last labels of imperialism.

The federation would have been the ideal solution for the West Indies. As the new nation gained economic maturity the steady stream of grants and loans from Britain's purse would have dried up.

But by deciding to go it alone rather than risk playing the rich uncle to a host of poor relations, Jamaica has left Britain bereft of ideas about what to do with the islands in the sun.

The constitution, agreed on by government and opposition parties in Jamaica, is almost certain to be acceptable to Britain. The main problems are how the common services between independent Jamaica and the other West Indian islands will be organized.

Maudling, who recently completed a two-week tour of the British Caribbean, will be left with the problem of working out the political future of the other nine islands that would have been in federation.

Trinidad, as the richest of those left, has officially declared it will follow Jamaica's example, but the possibility of the other eastern Caribbean islands joining Trinidad and Tobago in a "unitary state" is left open.

Trinidad's government party has indicated it would want a much tighter union than the proposed federation would have produced. Politically and economically Trinidad is in a position to demand its own terms for a new federation.

In the meantime various methods by which the eight smaller islands could be welded into an independent and self-supporting unit are always being advanced.

The idea of turning them into the 11th province of Canada has often been toyed with. It has also been suggested that Canada, Britain and the United States float a joint financial scheme for the islands.

Now Barbados is talking of taking over the leadership declined by Jamaica and regarded warily by Trinidad. The probable result would be a political association with some form of customs union.

Maudling might accept an eight-island federation as a last resort. But because the group is far from being capable of supporting itself, he would prefer to see Trinidad in a complete east Caribbean federation.

RUNS FOR GOVERNOR

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Former Maj.-Gen. Edwin A. Walker, who has been aligned with groups considered extreme right-wing, filed Friday as a Democratic party candidate for governor of Texas. Walker resigned from the army and turned down a $12,000-a - year pension after he was relieved of command of the 24th Infantry Division in Germany in a controversy over indoctrination of troops.

Implement Co. Strike Expected To Be Settled

HAMILTON (CP)—A settlement based on recent pacts with Ford and General Motors of Canada is expected to bring a quick end to a strike at the Massey-Ferguson Limited farm implement complex.

Negotiators for M-F and the United Auto Workers (CLC) reached agreement Friday night within eight hours after the strike deadline passed at three Ontario centres.

The three-year contract will be presented tomorrow for ratification at membership meetings in Toronto, Woodstock and Brantford. Some 4,100 employees are involved

George Burt, UAW Canadian director, said the settlement essentially follows a pattern established at the big auto-making plants "with the UAW's flexible approach in bargaining meeting many of the special needs of these farm implement workers."

IMPROVEMENTS CITED

The big factors include:

Three annual improvement factors of six cents an hour retroactive to the Dec. 15 expiry date of the old agreement, with three cents diverted from the cost-of-living phase to help pay for improvement in fringe benefits;

Full funding of the pension plan, calling for the company to begin immediate amortization of a little more than $10,000,000 into the pension fund over the next 30 years;

Pensions of $2.80 a month for each year of service, as at GM and Ford, with the same $1.80 supplement between the ages of 65 and 70 but with a guaranteed $10 supplement beyond 70 despite the proposed increase in the federal old age pension;

Paid-up life insurance of $750 to all pensioners back to 1949, and payment of half the cost of medical insurance and Ontario hospital insurance by the company which will continue to pay the full cost for its present workers;

INCREASE BENEFITS

An increase in weekly sickness and accident benefits to $45 from $35 for 26 weeks and a boost in life insurance to $4,500 from $3,000;

Supplemental unemployment benefits identical to those of GM and Ford workers, covering both long-term and short-week lay-offs, with additional benefits to meet circumstances peculiar to Massey-Ferguson.

In addition, Mr. Burt said, many improvements were made in the body of the contract including increased protections for the skilled trades. There will be inter-corporation seniority, giving senior employees at Brantford and Woodstock preferential hiring in the Toronto plant along with complete interchangeability.

About 800 workers will get an "inequity" wage increase of five cents an hour. These are workers in classifications whose pay rates are considered sub-par.

Ratification meetings will be held at Woodstock Sunday morning, at Brantford in the afternoon and in Toronto Sunday evening.

Charges Against Rabbi May Be Withdrawn

TORONTO (CP) — Charges against New York Rabbi Dr. Norbert Leiner will probably be withdrawn in open court Monday so a judicial inquiry into his arrest can proceed, it was learned Friday.

The decision to withdraw the charges — scheduled to be heard in York Township court —was taken after consultation with Mr. Justice Dalton C. Wells of the Ontario Supreme Court, appointed by Attorney - General Roberts as a one - man inquiry into the case.

If the Crown proceeds with the charges, the judicial inquiry could be hampered since the case would be sub judice. It is understood the withdrawal may be "without prejudice"—that is, the charges may be laid again in the future should that action be indicated.

Mr. Justice Wells is expected to begin his inquiry next week.

The rabbi is charged with causing a disturbance and assaulting police.

Non-Capital Murder Charge Brings 18 Years

TORONTO (CP)—A Toronto man who killed his wife with an axe after a quarrel over her relations with a man boarding in their home was sentenced Friday to 18 years in penitentiary.

Anatole Puchalski, 54, was charged with the non - capital murder of his wife, Anna, 44, found dead in a blood-soaked bed in their Markham Street home last Sept. 27.

At the end of the Crown's case Puchalski offered to plead guilty to manslaughter. This was accepted by Crown Counsel Arthur Klein.

The assize jury returned a verdict of guilty of the lesser charge after Chief Justice J. C. McRuer had directed that such a verdict would be proper in view of the evidence of provocation.

IN MEMORIAM

AKEY. — In ever loving memory of our dear husband and father, Amab, who passed away February 4th, 1960.

Our family circle has been broken,
A link gone from our chain;
But though we're parted for awhile,
We know we'll meet again.
Some day we hope to meet you,
Some day, we know not when;
We shall meet in a better land,
And never part again.
We shall meet with many a loved one,
That was torn from our embrace;
We shall listen to their voices,
And behold them face to face.
Sunshine passes, shadows fall,
Love's remembrance outlasts all.

Bloody Algerian 'War' Continues Without Letup

ALGIERS (Reuters) — There was no letup today in Moslem-European communal clashes in Algeria that have taken a heavy toll of life daily since the New Year.

At least eight persons were killed by enraged mobs or gun and knife attacks.

In Oran, tinderbox city of both extremist European and nationalist insurgent sentiment, European civilians beat to death a Moslem who was with a man who wounded a European with a revolver.

Another Moslem was found stabbed to death in Oran, a western Algerian port city, and a third Moslem, described as a terrorist, was shot and killed by security forces in unspecified circumstances.

In one attack a Moslem driving a moving van and a laborer sitting near him were killed by unknown attackers when the man was machine-gunned in the Hydra district of Algiers.

In another part of the city a Moslem was stabbed to death. Moslem gunmen killed a French customs official and a wholesale dealer in the Algiers central market.

BLOW UP VILLA

Unidentified attackers held up a post in the eastern district of Hussein Dey this morning and grabbed 160,000 new francs ($32,000).

Men believed to be members of the outlawed European terrorist Secret Army Organization netted 620,000 new francs ($124,000) in a series of six hold-ups in Algiers Wednesday as part of an apparent "fund-raising" drive.

Eighteen persons, 15 Moslems and three Europeans, were killed in Algeria Wednesday as the right-wing European extremists carried out a series of "executions." They singled out their victims with the thoroughness of men following a master plan.

The killings were carried out by small bands of extremists who did their jobs quickly. All escaped captured.

In Oran, a squad of men walked into a downtown hospital, marched upstairs to the fourth floor and shot Mustapha Fodil to death. Fodil, 43, was a former Algerian Communist party member. His wife, at his bedside, was wounded.

A similar shooting in Algiers took the life of Moslem lawyer Mohand Aberkane, 61. Two young gunmen shot him down after walking into his law office.

Six TB Cases Are Discovered In Edmonton

EDMONTON (CP)—X-ray examinations of residents in a suburban Edmonton subdivision are continuing following the discovery of six cases of tuberculosis.

The six, five students and a teacher in Salisbury High School, have been placed in a sanatorium here.

About 85 other students showed a positive reaction to a skin test, Dr. H. H. Stephens, director of Alberta's TB control division, said Friday. The tests were made after the teacher last month was found to be an active carrier of the disease.

Dr. Stephens said a positive reaction does not necessarily indicate a person has contracted TB. He said those who showed positive reactions will be checked "every few months" as a precautionary measure. The students will receive no treatment and will continue attending school, he added.

The x-ray team is working in Sherwood Park, a residential area near the high school. About 1,500 persons in the area have been x-rayed, but results will not be known for several weeks.

Medical officials said the cases will be easily controlled because they were caught in the early stages when the disease is not contagious.

Magazine Tax Starts Furore With Importers

MEXICO CITY (AP)—A new tax imposed by the government on all newspapers and magazines imported into Mexico has touched off a furor among importers and distributors — and even some publishers.

The importers and distributors predict a drop in sales because of the higher prices. Publishers fear rataliation in the form of similar taxes by other countries on Mexican publications. Others are afraid books may be next on the list, with harmful effects on culture.

The tax, announced Dec. 30 with no previous notice, provides for a 10-per-cent levy on imported periodicals starting Jan. 1. An estimated 90 per cent of the periodicals come from the United States.

Distributors claim that in practice the charge can go much higher since they must pay tax on all periodicals they import whether they sell them or not. There's no rebate on unsold copies.

The new tax comes at a time when Canada also is planning tax and tariff measures affecting U.S. magazines.

But Mexico is not in the same position as Canada, whose publications face competition not only in circulation but also in the advertising field.

Many Canadian firms advertise in U.S. publications that have wide circulation in Canada. The proposed tax and tariff measures are aimed at cutting down this flow of Canadian advertising dollars to these magazines.

Few if any Mexican firms advertise in U.S. publications. In fact, the heaviest advertiser is the Mexican government, promoting tourism.

The money raised by the new tax is supposed to help susidize and improve Mexican publications, according to one view. Some publishers have favored the move but many are openly protesting.

The Association of Mexican Publishers met recently and voted to complain to the treasury ministry. It may even go to the president.

The publishers point out that imported publications sold in Mexico amount to about $1,200,000,000 a year but that Mexico sells to the rest of the world—mainly Latin America — about 13,600,000,000 worth.

The implication is that should there be tax retaliation Mexico would stand to lose more than it would gain.

Ferry Found Tangled in Log Boom

VICTORIA (CP) — A government ferry, lost nine hours in thick fog and heavy rain, was found early today, tangled in a log boom off the east coast of Vancouver Island.

The ferry, operated by the provincial highways department on a six-mile route between Thetis Island and Chemainus, had six passengers, two crew members and four cars aboard.

It was found by a search tug at 1.22 a.m., half a mile from the berthing dock at Chemainus, about 50 miles north of here.

The skipper apparently lost his way in the fog and nearly went aground at a beach. When he went astern the ferry tangled in a boom.

Efforts were to be made later today to free her and get the passengers ashore.

Bond Markets Mixed in Light Trading

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian bond markets were mixed this week in light trade.

Day-to-day money was in good supply at 2¼ per cent to 2½ per cent.

Treasury bills strengthened during the week and the average for 91-day bills was 3.07 per cent and 3.26 per cent for the 182-day bills.

On the mid and long-term government market the Canada 4½-per-cent 1966 issue was quoted at $101.25, the Canada 4½-per-cent 1983 issue at $93 and the CNR five-per-cent issue at $97.25.

On the provincial market Quebec Hydro issued $60,000,000 in debentures. About $20,000,000 of this was a five-per-cent, March 1, 1968, issue and the remaining $40,000,000 a 5½-per-cent March 1, 1980-1982, issue at $99.50 to yield 5.54 per cent.

The corporate and municipal markets were quiet.

Molotov Ill But With Flu

MOSCOW (AP)—Reporters located ailing V. M. Molotov Friday night and were told by a doctor that he is ill as reported earlier but not of heart disease. The doctor said he has 'flu.

The foreign office had refused to help locate the former Stalinist premier and foreign minister, but a hospital attendant reported Molotov's hospital portfolio, usually kept in Rolyclinic No. 1 in the centre of Moscow, had been sent out to Central Hospital 15 miles out in the suburbs Jan. 24.

On the gateway of Central Hospital was a notice that visitors would not be allowed until further notice because of an influenza epidemic. Molotov was reported in the infectious diseases section. Dr. Armeniak Ivanovich Khrimlian confirmed that he is in the hospital.

"With heart disease?" a reporter asked from the gate house.

"No," the doctor replied, "just 'flu."

"Is it serious?"

"I don't think it is serious at all."

When reporters asked to see Molotov the doctor replied:

Toronto Flying Enthusiasts Briefed on Survival Tricks

TRENTON — On Friday, 50 members of the Toronto Flying Club visited RCAF Station, Trenton, where they were briefed on survival procedures and techniques. The out-of-town pilots had planned to fly down, but weather conditions prevented the flight of their light aircraft and a chartered bus was used for transportation.

Dr. Walter Johnson, president of the Toronto club, and his fellow-pilots were greeted by Group Captain H. W. Lupton, senior air staff officer at Air Transport Command Headquarters, Trenton.

Lectures were given by Flt. Lt. G. Fosberg, Flt. Lt. K. A. T. Harper and other RCAF personnel.

The pilots were told of the importance of filing a flight plan. RCAF search and rescue operations which would be carried out should they be downed were explained.

Once an aircraft has made a forced landing, the pilot, if there are passengers aboard the plane and if he himself is not injured, should immediately apply first aid to any passengers who require treatment. Then, the oil should be drained from the aircraft. Next, comes the lighting of a fire and the building of a shelter. Great care should be taken in the rationing and preservation of food supplies. The pilot should then set about arranging various signals (fires and strips of material which contrast with the ground area), which can be seen from the air by rescue planes. If the party is not rescued within a specified time, the pilot and his passengers may attempt to walk out, and such things as trail blazing, direction finding and so on were explained in detail.

Great emphasis was placed on the slogan, "Don't get lost" but the pilots returned to Toronto armed with a considerable amount of knowledge about what to do if downed and lost and with the assurance that RCAF rescue aircraft would find them if humanly possible.

RCAF Plane Crashes in North

TRENTON — Air Transport Command Headquarters at Trenton announced Friday afternoon that an RCAF North Star had crash-landed near Station Fox on the Dew Line at noon.

All 15 passengers and eight crew members were uninjured and were taken to Fox by snowmobile to await evacuation to RCAF Station St. Hubert, P.Q.

The aircraft is reported to have experienced engine trouble prior to the forced landing.

The weather was clear at the time of the accident, with temperatures reported at 26 degrees blow zero.

Welfare Officer Suffers Cuts In Attack

TRENTON — Sidney Henry, 47, of Leopold St. in Trenton, pleaded guilty to the charge of assaulting welfare administrator Gordon Davis, before Magistrate T. Y. Wills, at Trenton yesterday. He was remanded for sentence.

Mr. Davis told the court that Henry had attacked him in his office on Thursday, following an argument over welfare payments.

Mr. Davis sustained cuts and abrasions as a result of the attack. He was X-rayed yesterday to determine the extent of his injuries.

Car Is Found Upside Down In Trent River

TRENTON — Shortly after 2 a.m. today, shift workers from the Bata Shoe Company plant, discovered a car upside down in the Trent River, just below No. 4 Dam almost directly across from the factory.

Doug Bamber of Frankford was the first to see car tracks in the snow, leading from the highway (33), down the river bank, which falls away steeply below the dam. The lights of the car could be seen shining brightly although they were submerged. Dan McCauley of Trenton called the Trenton police from a phone booth.

Provincial police from Belleville and firemen from Trenton were called to the scene. A large extension ladder was lowered and a fireman climbed down and fastened a heavy cable to the underside of the car. The ladder was removed and the car was pulled upright by a Quinte Machine Company tow truck. The window on the driver's side of the car had been rolled down, and the small rear window on the driver's side had been broken out.

Altogether, around 50 persons, police, firemen, Bata workers and people from neighboring homes, were gathered in the vicinity of the accident. A light snow was falling and the temperature was near zero.

Police said the car was registered to Reginald Elliott of R.R. 5, Belleville, and that as yet, he has not been located.

Many Americans Agitated By Rise of Right Wing Party, May Be at Its Peak

Has the American right-wing movement gone as far as it can go? This last of four articles on the ultra-conservatives considers their outlook for the future.

By RELMAN MORIN

NEW YORK (AP) — What lies ahead for American groups of the hard right wing?

The movement has risen rapidly, proliferating in hundreds of different groups, attracting thousands of Americans, acquiring huge sums of money. Is the tide likely to rise still higher? Or will it run is course and then evaporate?

One rightist leader urges a great coalition of all the various groups. Could this develop?

If it should, what are the political implications? A third major party? Permanent impotence for the Republicans? Or will the rightists, working through the existing parties, attempt to achieve their purposes by capturing enough seats in Congress and the state legislatures?

ARE "THE SICK"

"Don't let them (the rightists) worry you very much," said former president Truman. "They are so volatile they blow themselves out . . . the sick among us."

"I'd just say these people are self - defeating," said former president Eisenhower.

Robert Welch, founder of the John Birch Society, says the group is steadily gaining strength. His goal is 1,000,000 members. He doesn't disclose the total now.

Right - wingers readily tell you that it is not uncommon for a person to drop out of a group shortly after joining. A whole chapter of Birchers in Franklin, Tenn., disbanded last year after five months. An ex-member said: "We found there was a sharp difference between Welch's opinions and our own, and we got out."

On the whole, however, the bigger groups claim they are gaining members and this may be a fact. Observers disagree as to whether the movement has reached its high-water mark.

PLANS MADE

Rev. Billy James Hargis, leader of the Christian Crusade and We, The People, recently announced plans to form a coalition. But rightist leaders generally doubt that a grand alliance will ever come into being.

Representative John Rousselot (Rep. - Calif.), a Bircher, agreed. "They'll never unite," he said. "Conservatives are much more individualistic than people on the left wing."

The fact that so much money has flowed into the bigger groups could be another reason why their leaders would be reluctant to unite and put their separate funds in a common pot. Millions of dollars are involved.

As for the potential political effects of the hard right, some Republicans already view with alarm. Senator Jacob Javits (Rep.—N.Y.) says:

"To accept its philosophies . . . would result in causing the (Republicans) to lose touch with the mainstream of American life, ensuring permanent minority status, or total eclipse of Republicanism."

DOWNGRADES PARTIES

Welch generally downgrades both major parties. He said, however, that it may be necessary for the time being to work within them.

In the future, two areas of activity could serve as barometers of the gaining, or waning, strength of the hard right—pressures on congressmen via organized letter-writing campaigns, and on newspapers with several weapons.

Some observers say the hard right will simply wither away.

But others believe the movement grew out of the fears and frustrations inherent in the American struggle against Communism. Since they expect this struggle to last for years, they think the hard right will do the same.

Monty Points Out the Choice

One thing about Monty, Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, nobody can call him timid.

Some will say that that is an asinine observation, the truth of which was established almost two decades ago, at El Alamein.

Then, though, nothing he did was calculated to make him unpopular with the home folk. Even when he was conducting a two-front war, against Hitler and Eisenhower, he could count on considerable support for both projects from a large sector of his own people.

Of late years, though, he has more than amply proven that he is not playing to the home crowd.

He went into Red China and came out singing the praises of Mao and his works.

His latest thrust of the tongue came at Durban, South Africa. There he received a tumultuous ovation when he told a veterans' organization "If the black people north of this country united—if they find a leader and threaten the whites of South Africa—then I shall draw my sword and come to help you myself."

It will not only be in African lands that this pledge of support will be considered ill-advised.

Nevertheless, it may serve a good purpose if it alerts us to what might not unreasonably be considered the inevitable.

Some day, unless the white South Africans mend their ways and treat their own black and colored people fairly, there is going to be a showdown. One cannot go on arresting white brides of a month for living with their husbands, and charging them with immorality because their husbands are colored, as occurred at Durban the same day Monty spoke, without something being done about it. In the nature of things, anti-white violence in South Africa is going to be supported by neighboring black lands. The question is what we of the white world will do then? Shout "My color, right or wrong" and march off to make South Africa safe for apartheid, led by Monty's magic sword? Or tell the white South Africans that they dug their own graves and must now lie in them? Unless somebody can pound some sense into Verwoerd and company fairly soon, it doesn't appear that any other alternatives will be open.

Can You Trust Your Newspaper?

The concensus appeared to be that they could.

Of course, no rational newspaperman maintains that his paper always tells the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth. That is beyond the capability of mere humans.

On the whole, though, newspapers print what they believe to be true. It then becomes a question of how well informed they are.

We do not think they would be well informed at all if James Moore, public relations man for the Liberal party, were right when he said that 80 per cent of the news originates from public relations sources.

This claim, though, was disputed by other panelists, including Pierre Berton of the Toronto Star and Christopher Young of the Ottawa Citizen.

Mr. Moore appears to have some queer opinions about public relations men. He said that no ethical public relations man distorts the news. If this is so, then the only ethical public relations men are those in imminent danger of being fired. The whole function of a public relations man is to present the firm, organization or individual he represents in a favorable light. Firms, organizations and individuals being what they are, this can not be done all the time without distorting the news. Ethical public relations men, we suggest, are like ethical lawyers—they present their client's side of the case without prevarication. But not all public relations men, any more than all lawyers or all newspapermen, are ethical. No real newspaperman believes more than half of what a public relations man tells him until he has checked it.

Mr. Moore himself appears to have been aware that public relations men leave something to be desired as a reliable source of news, for he said that newspapers could be trusted as long as "we accept the fact" that four-fifths of their news originates from public relations sources.

If the proportion of news from these sources ever reaches that percentage, the person who wants the facts might just as well flip a coin—and then pocket it—as spend it on a newspaper.

A thankful heart is not only the greatest virtue, but the parent of all the other virtues.—Cicero.

The Burden of Command

BY RICHARD JACKSON

(from The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA — The political troops have been back in the Parliamentary trenches for two weeks now . . . and so, a good time, then, for a close-up on the High Command of the two main contending forces.

How have they stood up under the battering of the months since Parliament last met, and how do they shape up for this final skirmish of the current session before the last shoot-the-works battle of the General Election?

The biggest change seen in both, of course, is the unrelenting erosion of the pressure.

And this involves more than the mere wear and tear of time.

The crushing weight of responsibility . . . not only of their political parties, but of the nation itself, an obligation that the Official Opposition shares, in some degree, with the Government, has been bearing down heavily on the shoulders of both men.

The Prime Minister has been heard to speak openly, publicly, of the agony of big decisions.

CALM, NOT SLOWED

When so much depends on what is decided in a score of awesome issues, when so many people will be vitally, personally involved ,then the responsibility of decision can be a killing thing.

And there are such issues . . civil defence and the shelter program . . . nuclear arms . . . even trade and the future course of Canada and the Commonwealth if Britain joins the European Common Market . . . budget deficits and unemployment.

In fact, if there is one thing of which there is no shortage, it is basic issues, national problems.

Almost as if crying out for understanding of the merciless responsibility, the Prime Minister not infrequently has said openly that nobody who hasn't borne it can imagine the weight.

This does things to men, and the Prime Mnisiter has not escaped its mark.

The oddly striking "pompade" of his delight of all the caricaturists — that triangular wedge of once black wavy hair sweeping back over the crown of his head —has turned almost white.

Last year it was gray.

Now 66, but still remarkably vigorous, in the bloom of best health, possessed of a fierce energy and high spirits, he has calmed down in the year.

TIGHT REIN

Having learned to hold his driving nervous energy in close check, he now can remain unruffled — at least on the outside — in the face of circumstances which even as recently as last Session would have set him off like a Roman candle.

Of mercurial temperament and previously emotionally unpredictable, the Prime Minister seems now to be able to rigidly discipline his mood and manner.

So when Liberal Leader Pearson — and here is a changed and still changing man — needles and probably even nettles him, the Prime Minister can maintain what begins to look like almost a casual calm.

Outward appearances frequently are deceiving, and political friend and foe alike know that the old fires still burn within the Prime Minister.

And that, simply, is what is giving this Session its element of suspense — perhaps carefully contrived — the sure knowledge that the PM can, and very probably will, flare out at any moment, lighting the signal fire of Parliamentary Dissolution and the formal opening of an election campaign that has been going on these many months.

MIKE GETS TOUGH

And what about Lester Bowles (Mike) Pearson?

Mike seems to have swallowed his distate for the political infighting, and now can, and does, get in these and slug. With zest.

Underneath his new and thicker and tougher professional politician's skin, L. B. Pearson very possibly is the same international diplomatist, Nobel prizeman and very real and warm human being of old.

The Opposition Leader this session can do something he dared, only reluctantly and very uncertainly, attempted before—meet the Prime Minister eye-to-eye, toe-to-toe.

In their first encounter, in the Throne Speech, it was "Mike" on the attack, hitting hard, and for the first time in such a face-to-face match, not being badly mauled by the PM.

Just after he became leader, he was butchered and minced in the Commons by the Prime Minister. That was the day that Bert Herridge, the Socialists' feudal Lord-of-the-Manor in the B.C. Kootenays, accused the PM of converting the Commons, a forum of civilized debate, into a political abattoir.

That was a humiliating and very possibly even an almost physically painful experience that it has taken Mike Pearson four years to get over.

But now, not only has he recovered, but shows sure signs of even enjoying the political rough and tumble.

It looks like a great match. Both fighters in top shape, physically and psychologically —both one campaign and five sessions older and wiser—and both well knowing that this time it will be war and not a walk-over.

Wild Turkey Range Widens

Brandon Sun

Wild Gobblers Unlimited is conducting a Manitoba experiment now in its fourth year, that may provide original wild turkey dinners for Manitobans of the future.

This association of sportmen drawn from members of the various Manitoba Game and Fish Associations in the south-central area of the province, is taking the long-term view with this turkey-stocking experiment to increase the present geographic range of wild turkeys on the continent.

Manitoba is several hundred miles north of the present wild turkey range and to establish the wild gobblers here is quite a challenge.

The bird referred to here is the true wild turkey - a close relative of the domestic turkey. The bird usually referred to as the "wild turkey" on the Canadian prairies is actually the sandhill crane.

Earlier this month 46 birds from the largest flock of gobblers — released in Manitoba over previous years — were trapped with the co-operation of members of Wild Gobblers Unlimited and transplanted to two other locations in south-central Manitoba. It is hoped that these birds will form the nuclei of another two flocks to add to the three gobbler flocks already at large and making some progress in adapting themselves to Manitoba conditions.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

BUT WE WONDER

Tomorrow a most unusual astronomical occurrence will take place. Five planets (Mercury, Venue, Mars, Jupiter, and Saturn) will be in conjunction — that is, on a straight line out from the sun. At the same time a solar eclipse will take place observable in certain parts of the world. Conjunctions are not infrequent, but this is the first time in 26,000 years that these five planets have conjoined and that an eclipse has also taken place.

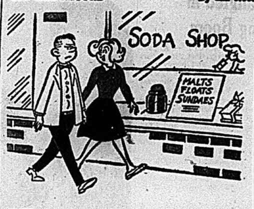
What will happen as the result of this conjunction? There is a wide variety of opinion. The astologers are in a dither. Some claim dire happenings such as the change of our planet's polarity. Others say that it will be the beginning of a golden age and that a great new teacher will emerge. Some say it will inaugurate an era of prosperity. Still others the opposite.

It seems reasonable to believe that inasmuch as heavenly bodies do exert powerful influences upon each other there may be an increase of earthquakes during 1962.

Recently I talked with a prominent astronomer. He claims it will make no difference whatsoever.

So there you have it. If one group is right it might mean practically the washing up of everything. If the astronomer is right, it will make no difference whatsoever. But certainly it is almost unusual astronomic pattern — once in 26,000 years.

As to results — "You pays your money and you takes your choice."



"Don't you think you're a little too young to start saving for your old age?"

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

February 3rd, 1942.

Potato prices held to the high mark attained last week on the local produce market when today vendors asked $2 per 75-lb. bag with increased offerings being quite evident as farmers were attracted by the better returns. Grade "A" eggs sold at 35 cents per dozen; a few specials sold at 40 cents per dozen. Butter maintained last weeks's level of 40 cents per pound, with a few vendors asking 75 cents for a two pound roll. Chickens sold at the usual 25 cents to 28 cents per pound, with well-finished birds bringing a top price of $1.90.

A copy of a recent issue of "The Tank", the official publication of the Canadian Armoured Corps, reached the editorial desk of the Ontario Intelligencer today. The publication is printed for the benefit of the armoured forces stationed at Camp Borden. Captain J. N. Yanover, formerly of this city, is the editor-in-chief and publisher of the paper which deals at length with articles of interest pertaining to the tank and armoured units of the Canadian Army.

Mr. W. T. Nugent son of the late former clerk for the County of Hastings, and Mrs. Nugent, of Lindsay, Ont., celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their nuptials on Friday of last week in the Benson House, popular Lindsay hostelry owned by Mr. Nugent. Some sixty guests assisted the hostess and host observe the day, and conspicuous among them were the "best man and bridesmaid" of that wedding day of years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Green, now of Toronto.

Letter To The Editor

Japanese Girl, 16, Seeks Pen Pals

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Please forgive me for my rudeness in bothering your busy hours, but I am a Japanese girl looging for a pen friend in your country.

I couldn't get any pen friend in your country because I didn't know how to. But recently I was told by the Youth Council for the International Contact (1-20 Jimacho, Chiyodaku, Tokyo) to write to you asking for some pen friend in your country, so I am writing this letter to you with a big hope.

Will you please pass this letter to someone you know who might be wishing to have pen-pals in Japan, or publish it somewhere on your paper?

Thanking you for your kind care, and expecting to have a good pen pal.

Yours sincerely,
Katsuyo Sato.

P.S. Now I am introducing myself. I am a Japanese girl, aged 16 and I am high school student.

My hobbies are music and to collect a picture post card. My address is:

1927—The United States appointed its first minister to Canada, William Phillips.

Only 8 Lands Pay UN Dues

Memphis Commercial Appeal

If the United Nations were a club with a bulletin board on which the names of delinquent dues payers were posted, most of the members would be posted now.

Or, if the United Nations had the once-standard requirement that a man must have a record of tax paying — at least poll tax paying — before he could get a ballot, there would be very few United Nations voters. As a matter of fact there is a United Nations procedure which cuts off the vote after two years of delay in paying on the regular budget but lets the assessment, like the Congo expense, go unpaid.

So there is a roll with 104 members. But the paid-up membership is a very exclusive and extremely short list.

The distinguished names are: Canada, Denmark, Ireland, Luxemburg, Netherlands, Norway, Turkey and United States.

To Your Good Health

The Mystery of Pony Tails And Baldness Is Unsolved

Dear Dr. Molner: What is tachycardia? Would it have any bearing on a breath problem? — Mrs. T.A.

It means a heart beat that is more rapid than usual. In a great number of cases it appears to be mainly a nervous reaction, and getting the nerves settled is the answer. (It can, however, be due to serious physical defects such as overactive thyroid or heart disease.)

As to a "breath problem," I presume you mean a feeling of shortness of breath, which can accompany a fast heart rate.

If, in any case, serious physical conditions are involved, they become readily apparent in an examination, so see your doctor.

If it is due to thyroid or heart disease, treatment should be started. If it is nerves, that too can be treated.

Dear Dr. Molner: Is it true that continuous wearing of pony-tail hair style by a child will result in baldness? Will it be temporary or permanent? How long would it take to get bald spots if such be the case? — M.S.

A convincing number of cases have been observed in which a tight — observe that word! — pony-tail has resulted in loss of hair. But many pony-tails show no such result.

Here's what we don't know: Whether it affects some people and not others; how long it takes; whether it is permanent.

My advice: Pony-tails are cute, and if you like 'em, use this hair-do but don't try to pull them so tight that they pull the hair strongly at the "wrong" angle.

Dear Dr. Molner: Since childhood I have had a deviated septum which hasn't bothered me too much. Two years ago I developed chronic pharyngitis. One specialist said to have the deviated septum corrected; another said not to have the operation since I still have plenty of air coming through the nostril. Have you any suggestion? — Mrs. S.N.

This is another of many instances of differing judgment; it isn't that the physicians are "right" or "wrong" per se. Two men of skill have differing opinions.

What's the patient to do? My only answer is to consult a third specialist.

I doubt that an operation is necessary so long as adequate air space remains. If the air space is obstructed, that's a different matter.

A good many things other than septal deviation can cause chronic pharyngitis; tonsils, infected adenoids or infected lymphoid tissue in the throat, smoking, allergy, dust, smog, fumes, etc.

Dear Dr. Molner: I recently had cobalt therapy and would like to know more about it. — Mrs. A.W.

To boil it down to the important facts, "cobalt therapy" is treatment with rays from metal (cobalt) which has been made radioactive. The rays are the same as from a high-voltage X-ray instrument. (Lower-voltage X-ray machines have "softer" rays which do not focus as sharply, but that's the only essential difference.)

Whether the source of the rays is cobalt (or cesium, or perhaps we'll have other sources presently) or from X-rays, the rays are useful, helpful, lifesaving and powerful. Where we obtain the rays is a technical question for the radiologists. The rays are the same, and we are devoutly glad that they have been discovered and put to use.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Driving on the snow-margined highway, I came upon a large flock of snow buntings that were scattered along the pavement apparently in quest of salt. I slacked speed the moment I detected the beautiful little white and buff birds; but even so, they swirled up painfully close to the car. And I was distressed to feel, rather than hear, a faint tap on the car hood.

I ran the car over to the shoulder, and my companion, a biologist by profession but a philosopher by vocation, got out with me while we walked back. On the side of the pavement was a dead bunting.

"It is a juvenile," said the biologist, picking it up and examining it. "You realize, of course, what you have done in killing this bird? You have brought to an end something that has survived from the dawn of time. If it had been an adult bird, you could have consoled yourself with the thought that it had probably nested last year and passed on the miracle of life. But this juvenile will now never transmit the mystery to future generations. In it, a million or a hundred million years of continuous life now abruptly ends."

It is disturbing to think of life as an endless chain in the one direction, backward.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

KEEP THINKING

The great fault of human beings is that they do not think! And often when they do think, they think upon trivial topics.

The mind is nourished in quite the same way as is the body. It must have a balanced and building diet. To think thoughts that give strength and courage to the mind is like taking into the stomach wisely selected food.

A purely "best seller" or novel fed mind is not a very well developed mind. A mind should have good fiction, biography, poetry, science, history, in fact everything that stimulates and enlarges its vision. For the mind can see, even without the eyes.

We are all placed each day in the position where we cannot read or converse with other minds. It is at such times that a well stored mind can still keep busy — thinking and thinking And the happy people are those who have learned how to think!

The inventor keeps thinking. He keeps turning, over and over, ideas that have come to him from suggestions, experiments, or observation.

The writer has to keep thinking all the time so as to present fresh viewpoints to his readers

The purpose of all writing is to stimulate thought.

People who keep thinking are the benefactors of the race. They are never the idlers and the complainers.

If you get into a difficulty, think your way out. Your first thoughts may be all wrong. Keep thinking until you see yourself coming out on top.

Train your thoughts to be your best friends.

A Lift For Living

Lifework Must Be Worthwhile

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

We live to work. Do you think that I have my words twisted and that I meant to say, we work to live? Some people feel that way about it. Not long ago I met a person who said, "Two years more and then I retire to start living." Such a feeling suggests there is something wrong with the person or his job.

If our work is looked upon as a grim duty to be gotten through with as quickly as possible, then we shall be seeking ever shorter hours. There has just been a strike in New York for a four-hour day. With that much time left on their hands, men would find idleness intolerable. They would want something else to keep themselves busy.

And what about our children? Can they be kept in school longer hours than their parents work? And if we shorten school hours, that will give the Russians another advantage. Thus our individual and national life will be weakened by longer leisure.

Work is necessary to life. Deprived of work people exhaust themselves like caged animals beating against the bars.

SEEKING HIS LIFEWORK

One Sunday evening a young man lingered after the vesper service for a chat. He had finished college. But he was not sure of his lifework. My sympathy went out to him for I spent two years in the same dark night of indecision. A man does not really find himself until he finds what he calls his lifework.

And how does a person find his lifework? One approach is to start with yourself. Study your own capacities. Ask others to help appraise your aptitudes. And try to discover what you can do best.

But another approach is by way of the question, "What is the best thing I can do?" I think the Master would have us study ourselves to see our aptitudes and talents. I do not believe He would have us try to fit a square peg into a round hole. But I think He would have us consider the hole even more than the peg. What need does our work fill? Would we be ulimately satisfied to do a thing well if it is not really worthwhile? The desire to make something of ourselves is good. But the desire to make something through ourselves is still better.

Christ said that a person does not really find himself until he loses sight of himself in something better than himself. So many of us today are restless and unhappy because we are looking at ourselves too much.

But we should thank God. He can put into our work larger purpose than our own little success. He can make us feel that we are workers with Him. And when we get that feeling, even drudgery has a meaning. We cease to be worried so much about the credit and reward of our labors, content to know that the work is done and done well.

When our work gives us something to live for, we are not so anxious about what we have to live on. Look at the scientiest, engrossed in some experiment. He almost forgets to eat.

If we are to have enough to live for, we must work for purposes and causes larger than our own lives. Then when retirement comes, we can rejoice that our own work goes on.

John Wood Carvings Given To Art Gallery

OTTAWA — Two magnificent wood carvings of Saint Peter and Saint Paul have been given to the National Gallery through the generosity of A. Sidney Dawes, Esq., Montreal.

Carved from pine, the figures which are more than six feet high, are by Louis Jobin, the last of the great traditional woodcarvers of Quebec.

"These figures are among the finest of this colorful sculptor's work," stated Charles F. Comfort, director, in making the announcement. "They make an impressive addition to the five smaller works by Jobin which are already in the permanent collection."

The figures are signed by the sculptor and dated 1884. Formerly, they stood in niches is front of a Quebec parish church.

Jobin was born in 1842 at St. Raymond. P.Q. He learned to carve during his boyhood years. One of his greatest works was a twenty-five foot high figure of the Virgin at Cape Trinity. He spent his later years in a little studio at Ste. Anne de Beaupre, where he died in 1928.

Railroader Honored on Retirement

A recent party was held in honor of Mr. Bert Morgan of Plainfield on the occasion of his retirement from the railroad, in the Plainfeld Hall.

During the evening the playing of cards and dancing were enjoyed by all.

Mr. Morgan was presented with a wrist watch on behalf of the family by the oldest grandchild, Douglas McKay, as well as other numerous gifts from friends. Mr. Walter Chumbley and Mr. Laurence Morgan each spoke briefly in addressing the honored guest, after which several selections were sung by Walter Chumbley, Morris and Betty.

POINSETTIA — Ralph Allen, assistant professor of art at Queen's University, with Mrs. Robert Williamson and Mrs. Lewis Andrews, local directors of the East Central Ontario Art and Crafts Association, discuss paintings at last night's art exhibit held at the Corby Public Library. Mr. Allen was the guest speaker for the occasion and assisted in choosing the paintings for the Art Show.

Many Attend E.C.O. Art Exhibit at Corby Library

Testifying to the deep interest in art the residents of the city and surrounding districts have, was more than exemplified in the fine attendance last evening at the annual Art Exhibit held in the Corby Library under the sponsorship of the East Central Ontario Art and Crafts Association. Among those noted were artists from Cobourg, Peterborough, Bowmanville, Port Hope and other nearby places.

The guests were received by Miss Helen Keeler.

Mrs. Lewis Andrews presided as chairman, and introduced Mr. Paul Bennett, Art Adviser, C.P.B., Toronto, who spoke briefly commending the Arts and Crafts Association for the fine work it is accomplishing.

The guest speaker, Mr. Ralph Allen, who was introduced by Mr. Don Maddocks, C.P.B., of Belleville, was born in England, has won many scholarships in art, and has held the position of art director at the Morart Gallery. In 1961 he became professor of art at Queen's University, Kingston, and also a member of the O.S.A. as well as winning the Baxter Award of $1,000.

Mr. Allen opened his brief address by mentioning the Renaissance in Italy and the birth of natural painting, due to religious ecstacy, having a new idea in the impression of space, with the outstanding artists, Leonardo and Michaelangelo, who excelled in this type. Space was the dominating factor.

With Cezanne a new idea of space was introduced by small spaces of color of graduating depth, and careful structure. The old idea of natural painting gradually has given place to the new way of looking at the world. Abstractions began to organize the color spaces, and gradually pure abstracts came into being.

TWO SCHOOLS OF ART

The two schools, the Natural and the Abstract continue to survive independently. Abstract expression is most difficult to achieve. Every painting must be an expression of the painter's thought, and the pigment the medium in which this thought is expressed as well as honesty of purpose to depict the special sensation which the scene or object makes upon the painter.

Mr. Allen concluded his remarks by commending the high quality of the paintings on exhibit, which he had selected from many which had been sent in. He also said it might be a good idea, if he had time to comment on an exhibit of those which were not selected, in order to point out the 'do nots' make the grade.

"Anna Jameson has said, in the art of design, color is to form what verse is to prose, a more harmonious and luminous vehicle of thought." In this the many guests were well rewarded in the exceptionally fine display of some 49 paintings. These included several 'abstracts', some more abstract than others.

NATURE SCENE

There were scenes of nature depicting woodland roads in summer, and in autumn, rich in coloring, faithfully portraying the peace and quiet of the woodlands; scenes of winter, and of spring: beautiful arrangements of flowers, among which was the "White Poinsettia," by one of the city's budding artists. This lovely piece of work showed wonderful and careful adherence to delicate details of this Yuletide plant, as well as showing the solidity of the walnut on which it rested.

Others included a painting of colorful maple leaves, a perfect symphony of color harmony; while yet another depicted a partial abstract of maple trees in vibrating autumn tints.

There were also paintings denoting use of the imaginaion, one of which was an old ramshackle 'hauned house', in a setting of scrawling almost leafless trees, giving a general eerie effect. Another painting which drew forth the imaginative impulse was that of an open doorway looking down an avenue of trees with sun splashed cobble stone walk and well-named "Doorway to Summer".

There was one nude painting, "Psyche", several portraits, and a blue-clad ballerina. Also one wood carving, depicting a Mandarin, most pleasing.

Mrs. Victoria Hall, president of the E.C.O. extended appreciative thanks to Mr. Allen for his concise and illuminating address.

Following the exhibit, coffee was served.

The exhibit will be on view in Peterborough during the week of February 17th-24th.

Women's Institute

PINE GROVE W.I.

MARSH HILL—The January meeting of Pine Grove W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. Henry Van Winkoop with ten members and four visitors present.

The president, Mrs. Charles Ross opened the meeting.

Several letters were read including one from the Provincial president, Mrs. Lymburner.

The standing committee convener reported and Mrs. Fred Campbell read an article from the Country Woman. The Canadian Association of consumers bulletins were passed out. Each member was asked to give a current event.

Mrs. Fred Campbell convener of education presided over the program and opened with the readings, "The Glad New Year" and "The Bridge Builder."; a reading by Mrs. Leslie Finkle, "A New Leaf."; a New Year's reading by Mrs. Alex Tanner; Mrs. Doornvos favored with a solo "He"; and Mrs. Ivan Clare read "From a Roadside Window," by Ethel Chapman.

Mrs. Campbell gave a paper on education. People are more education conscious these days. Educatin is a life's work and a nation cannot rise above the level of its homes and homes seldom rise above the level of the mothers in the homes. Every word spoken in the hearing of little children tends toward the formation of character. To be truly educated means to be open to new challenges of thought at all times.

Bonds of friendship with people of other lands have been tightened as people have learned of customs, cultural interests research in science and systems of education, from talks by new Canadians.

Premier Robarts has stated that the school population has grown two and one half times in 17 years partly due to larger families and partly due to students remaining in school for longer periods, and no other generation has had the privileges of a good education as the present one.

Mrs. Campbell conducted a quizz and refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Gary Duyzer.

BCIVS H-S To Hold Panel Discussion

The next meeting of B.C.I.V.S. Home and School Association will be held on Monday, February 5th at 8 p.m. dealing with the topic, "Finding Your Life's Work," presented through film and panel.

Daugherty, personnel manager, Northern Electric Company; Mr. C. Hiuser, Unemployment Commission; Mr. Max Watts, pupil at B.C.I.V.S.; and Mr. A. Wynne, president of the H. and S. Association (chairman).

The topics to be discussed are. the school guidance program — its aims and objectives; present reasons for the proper subject selection to be taken in High School; and to point out the opportunities available to young people at various levels of acquired education.

Following the discussion there is to be a question and answer period. Since this meeting will be of particular interest to the Grade 12 students, a special invitation is extended to them. It is hoped that the program will enable them to select courses for Grade 13 in keeping with their objectives.

Going Places

Famous Old Cities of Israel Still As in Day of Our Lord

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

Acre, Israel — From a bend on a blue crescent of Mediterranean, this ancient seaport shimmers in the sun like an illustration from the Arabina Nights.

Spires of minarets thrust into the blue sky, surrounded by the low domes of crumbling stone houses spreading across the horizon. Along the shore rise the massive bastions the Turks built atop the ruins of crusader walls which, in the classic pattern, had been set on the ruins of Roman walls. Greek and even earliest Egyptian writings mention Acre.

The road becomes lost in a maze of cart-wide streets and shadowed alleys where donkeys and goats meander. Suddenly it emerges into a courtyard enclosed by arabesque pillared arches. This is the Pillared Inn, an abandoned caravanserai that was once the crossroads of caravans from all the Near East. It takes little imagination to envision the square seething with loaded camels, hawkers, buyers and drovers.

ORIENTAL MELTING POT

Much of this atmosphere can still be seen in the stalls and bazaars of the market place streets — a brimming Oriental melting pot of Jews and Arabs, Turks and Druzes.

Black-eyed Bedouin sheepherders with fierce mustaches and flowing robes mingle with women in silk pantaloons, brightly embroidered gowns and velvet capes, their faces swathed in shawls.

Bright red Moslem fezzes and black pillbox headgear of bearded Greek patriarchs, voluminous Druze turbans and tiny knitted skullcaps bustle in and out of the shops. They haggle over oily cakes and fresh fish, pottery jugs and copper trays tapped out by squatting Iraqi; nuts and Persian rugs and a uaed raincoat peddled by a man chasing up and down the streets.

An Arab excitedly tries to force money for cheap trinkets on a Rumanian in baggy pants, groping for his hand in the timeless manner of Arab camel-trading, and a barefoot woman — so fat she cannot move — squats on a Persian carpet, ating her lunch and peddling vegetables Albeit, the scene has hardly varied since the Pharaohs rule.

Neither has Safad, except for the artists' colony now settled there. A town seemingly transplanted from the hills of Provence, it teeters on a mountaintop east of Acre, the highest point in Israel. Once a centre of Hebrew mysticism, today it is the centre of Israel's burgeoning art colony, famed for its vistas, climbing stone streets and perched houses, and the colorful signposts and doorways of the artists' galleries.

MYSTERIOUS AND BEAUTIFUL

On a clear day the Sea of Galilee is visible from Safad. It is as tranquil as when Peter toiled here, and it is not uncommon to see a graceful boat, quite like Peter's, glide along the lake. It is mysterious and astonishingly beautiful.

On the west shore of the lake rises the gentle slope of the Mount of Beatitudes, scene of the Sermon on the Mount, where the multitudes spread on the hillside on the day of the miracle of loaves and the fishes.

Nearby is the ruin of the synagogue at Capernaum where Jesus worshipped. Still visible are engravings on the columns of stars of David and candelabras, symbols of His own religion that were ancient before He was born. Visible to the south is the Via Mares, the mountain pass through which Jesus travelled here from Nazareth. Beyond, the River Jordan still flows through a green valley to the Dead Sea.

The historic paths lead southward, through Migdal whence came "a certain woman" named Mary to Nazareth, with the same well from which the Virgin Mary drew water, and the grotto where she first heard the angel Gabriel; nearby Kanna, a stone village that looks no different from the day Christ changed water to wine at a wedding feast, and where girls still draw jugs of water from the same well; and the strategic pass where"...the battle of the great Day of God Almighty...called in the Hebrew tongue "Armageddon" will take place.

CIVILIZATION ENDS

Far to the south in Beersheba Bedouins trade camels as Abraham did more than 3,000 years ago. Here civilization, both ancient and modern, effectively ends, for beyond lies nothing but the wastelands of the Negev desert.

Except for a few communal farms and an occasional incongruous factory, the Negev might be the wadies of Arabia or even the moon. Robed Arabs and bangled women lead camels and donkeys across the brown wilderness or tend flocks of sheep on the hills where only sparse clumps of scrub grow. Their black tents dot the scene, but on the next day they may be gone.

On solid stone cliffs stands the site of the prehistoric settlement of Avdat. Here the Nabateans cultivated the desert with an ingenious irrigation system, studied by today's scientists. Ruins of cliff dwellings and a mausoleum carved out of stone are perfectly preserved, as is a sixth century Byzantine church, built for some unknown reason in this middle of nowhere.

Climaxing this spectacular journey is the sight of the Ramon Canyon, and incredibly vast and sudden falling-off of the earth into a sprawling valley of brown and mauve wasteland. To the south lie King Solomon's mines and the end of this tiny but fantastic land.

"OLD GLASS"

"This is the blessing of the . . . heart: It puts together what was torn apart."—Ralph W. Seager.

Are you a collector? Say of stamps, fine china — or railroad engines?

Whatever you find interesting to collect, say the experts, you are lucky.

Why?

Because, by so doing they say one restores "moments whose lustre has survived the past" which the inroads of time threaten to obscure, perhaps, forever.

While some collectors know from the very start what they wish to collect, some stumble upon an interest quite by accident, and so find themselves collectors without design. Such was the case of a lovely collection we saw the other day, of old glass, known as "Band of Flowers," the possession of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Buchan, of 148 Bridge Street.

"Though I am not an authority, as is Mr. Buchan," declares Mrs. Buchan, "I will say that collecting early American glass can be anybody's and everybody's hobby. This is because the quantity of glass was so vast, and so generally distributed, that chances of discovering good pieces still, are prevalent almost anywhere.

"There is something very elusive and mysterious about the way old glass turns up in surprising places. Take this glass bowl, for instance. My husband and I happened to be at a small farm auction, where we noted it amongst some pieces of china. It seemed rather unusual and pretty, and knowing nothing about old glass, we bid for it, and got it for a few pennies. As we examined the bowl its intricate detail of design aroused our interest. We began to ask questions and to enquire, about this band of flowers (it has a frosted band about it with leaves and flowers in bas-relief.)

"This innocent beginning has begun to root and flourish and wherever we go we experience an element of the unexpected, for one never knows when a mold pitcher will turn up in a country home, or a cellar will yield a rare flask, or a goblet may be sitting in a half-hidden antique shop opposite from where the car is parked. Even our friends, now knowing our interest, bring pieces to our attention. To date we have collected thirteen pieces. We enjoy bringing out a piece or two at a time to place on display on the shelf or table, which makes for a note of change and of interest in a room.

Some glass collectors, it seems, perservere in their search, until they are able to set a whole table of matched pieces of early American glass. They find it still highly functional, yet beautiful. What romantic - sounding terminology; thumbprint, over-lay, opaque. Nor is there any dearth of color as in contrast to clear glass; fine blues, rich ambers, cranberry and red and amny shades of green. It is truly said that old glasses colections do indeed, give an excellent idea of the wondrous world of glass-making and opens a new horizon of interest.

"One way to become more familiar with the subject, we hear is to own a good book on old glass, with plenty of illustrations and read it thoroughly" declares Mrs. Buchan. "Sometime we hope to do, just that".

"We've noted an increased interest in old glass recently, with more and more call for these books", Miss Fisher, Librarian at the Corby Library told us and we are indebted to her for the following which she kindly listed:

Nineteenth Century Glass: It's Genesis and Development, by Albert Christian Revi. Published by Nelson. 270 pages. Milk Glass by E. M. Belknap. Crown Publishers. 328 pages.

5,000 Years of Glass by Rogers [illegible] Beard. Published by Lippencott. 314 pages. Old Glass Paperweights by Evangeline H. Bergstrom. Crown Publishers 182 pages. Early Canadian Glass by Gerald Stevens. Ryerson Press. 184 pages. (This mentions there was once glass making done in Nappenee. Do you possess any of this rare glass?)

Happy hunting!

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Maurice J. — The lady next door has confided to my wife that she's planning to take her younger children with her and run off to New Mexico to live with an aunt and uncle.

Her husband's a bus driver. He's worried about being laid off in a merger deal that's under way. So they fight a lot — he drinks, hits the kids, shouts and she screams. We hear it all.

They have five children, three of school age. Our neighbor figures her husband may quiet down once she leaves him. She counts on his minding the older kids. I say let her go ahead. Let her try that. But my wife thinks it's terrible and she thinks she can stop the trouble. I tell her it's none of her business.

Alberta J. — How can you stand by when a person is drowning and not even throw him a rope? It's the human thing to do.

My neighbor has been telling me her troubles for three years now and they've never been worse. Sickness and bills, worry about her husband's job, his drinking, her heavy work load — that's the picture. I've tried to help her with a few dollars here and there, some baby-sitting while she's at the dentist, a few words to jolly her up — little things. But now I know she can use some real help, some good advice before she breaks up her home. She's too upset to call in anyone herself. I want to do so for her, but Maurice calls me a buttinsky.

Still, someone must help her. He won't and I can't. Who will?

The Council: Now that the preventive approach to problems is becoming The Thing, as opposed to the patching-up-after approach, we wish to flash our green light at Mrs J. To prevent catastrophe, or to nip calamity while it's easily "nippable," one cannot wait for sirens and whistles. One must become aware of quiet ripples, under-ground rumbles.

Failing to do anything constructive for her beleaguered neighbor would amount to a sin of omission, the sin of not doing what can be done, what cries to be done. We'd ask Mr. J.: If you saw a fire, would you call the fire dept.? If you saw a man fall off a scaffold, would you call an ambulance? Here an emotional S.O.S. has come to your door. All that your wife proposes is to put in an alarm call in behalf of the victims who don't know, themselves, where to turn. Family service agencies are used to this method of invoking their help.

Aside from the human reason for intelligent intervention, there's a crass one which may appeal to Mr. J. as a taxpayer. This has to do with the cost of society, whenever a family unit disbands and dependent children must be distributed among foster homes and institutions. In New York City, for example, the care of about 200,000 abandoned and neglected children costs $39,000,000 a year in taxes, plus $12,000,000 more in private funds.

Yet, much of this expense and tragedy might be saved — it is pointed out — if, for example, a team of five social workers were enlisted in time, to help troubled families in a depressed area to overcome the problems which gnaw away at them. Such team would earn the equivalent of their salaries if they kept only six families a year from dissolving, say the statistics.

So, Mr. J., your wife won't be a buttinsky if she calls the Family Service Assn. of America, or the Salvation Army, or the counseling arm of your church to help her neighbor sort out the mound of troubles assailing the little home. She'll be the bridge that may well lead the next-door family to safe territory.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

IF YOU'VE GOT A COLD, MAKE YOURSELF SCARCE

You may think you're the life of the party, but when you've dot a dold in da nose, you may wind up being the death of some of the guests.

There's little that modern medicine can do about the common cold, but good manners on the part of the afflicted often can keep the germ from spreading.

The doctor is always the first to tell you to keep your flu symptoms to yourself and take to your cot till the chilblains are over. I'm sure that any number of sniffling hosts will gladly second the motion.

When you have a dinner date and a raging cold at the same time, it does create a problem about which should be shed first. Naturally, you cringe at the idea of calling at the last minute and cancelling a long-standing appointment. But common sense tells you that it's a far, far better thing to do to stay home and whoop it up alone.

Actually, it's no great social crime to call off a party or some other function when a virus strikes. As a matter of fact, your healthier hosts will be only too glad to excuse you from attending, rather than risk incubating an epidemic under their own roof.

Even if the symptoms are slight, and involve only a runny nose and a sneeze an hour, it's still a good idea to check with your host or hostess about whether you're socially acceptable at the moment. You may feel up to snuff, but they may have some small children they'd rather not expose to your brand of coughing. Then, too, there may be other guests who have a low level of resistance, and naturally they'd want to shield them from direct contact.

So when a heavy cold or a virus strikes, the first thing to do is admit it to yourself, then to any prospective hosts, and then call the whole thing off until the symptoms calm down.

In the meantime, there are a few other precautions you can take to prevent shoring your misery with others. If you can't stay home, and must go to the office, then try to isolate yourself from your co-workers as much as possible, even if all you can do is barricade yourself behind a clean handkerchief for the duration.

If you're addicted to borrowing, now's the time to break the habit. Stock up on paper cups, and resist using your neighbor's king-size one when the coffee pot is passed. You may think a quick rinse will disinfect it, but cold germs are notoriously hard to drown. Use of disposables, even if it won't prevent some contagion, at least will help keep the bug from running rampant.

It's never courteous to tie up a co-workers phone, and when you have a virus it's practically lethal, so remember to make calls only from your own desk, even if it's inconvenient at times and you have to zip around desks to get to it.

We wish we could claim that courtesy is a cure-all for the common cold, but even if it does nothing to help the symptoms, at least it's a stopgap method for keeping it in its place.

Readers' Saturday Column

by Mary Moore

LETTER:

I am sending you a recipe for Chinese Fortune Cookies which you requested. I enjoy your column very much and find it most useful, particularly your recipes "for two" — Mrs. J. C.

SATURDAY Dinner Menu

Shepherd's Pie (see Thursday); Large Tossed Green Salad; Sour Cream Garlic Dressing; Baked Apples (see Thursday); Top Milk; Tea.

FORTUNE COOKIES (courtesy J. C., Brandon):

2 eggs, well beaten, ¾ cup sifted icing sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup melted butter, ⅛ teaspoon lemon extract or ¼ teaspoon ginger, ½ cup sifted flour.

Add sugar to the eggs and beat well. Sift the flour into this and add melted butter and flavoring. Mix well. Drop by tablespoons on a greased, floured cookie sheet and spread to a thin 2½-inch circle. Bake four cookies at a time at 300 deg. Fahr. for 12-15 minutes. Remove one cookie at a time — fold in half, holding top edges together — then with joined edge up, place the centre of the cookie over your finger, and bring the points together. Set points down in cookie rack to prevent spreading. When cool, insert fortune written on small strips of paper.

ANSWER:

Thank you so much for coming to our rescue with such a graphic description of a difficult procedure. Thanks to all others too who sent recipe for Fortune Cookies

QUESTION:

Could you please help me by giving me a recipe for making puddings out of leftover cake, (if there are any:) I always have so much leftover and it seems a shame to have to throw it out — Mrs. E. S.

ANSWER:

USES FOR STALE CAKE:

Cake may be broken into a baking dish, a bit of fruit juice or jelly added, then a soft custard poured over it and a meringue added and the top browned in the oven. Serve it cold. Cake crumbs may be used for thickening in fruit pies, or they may be stirred into frozen or chilled desserts. Or soften cake in milk, add raisins, one or more beaten eggs, sugar to taste, and bake. Serve hot or cold with cream and sugar or any favorite sauce. A bread pudding recipe may be used.

Further I would suggest that you make smaller cakes (see below) and use half batter for a cake and other half for cupcakes and freeze them. When time comes to use them thaw and frost or thaw and use for individual strawberry or peach shortcakes with whipped cream.

SMALL PLAIN CAKE:

1½ cups sifted cake flour, 1 cup sugar, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1-3 cup soft shortening, 2-3 cup milk, 1 teaspoon flavoring 1 egg.

Sift flour, sugar, baking powder and salt together. Add shortening, milk, flavoring. Beat 2 minutes medium speed on electric beater or 300 strokes by hand. Add egg. Beat 2 more minutes. Pour into greased and floured square pan 8 x 8 x2" paper-lined on bottom. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 30 to 35 minutes, until toothpick stuck into centre comes out clean or bake half batter in small greased loaf pan, paper-lined on bottom. Turn remaining batter into 6 paper cups standing in 6 muffin tins, filling them half full. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 18 to 20 minutes. If desired, cool and wrap carefully so they are airproof and freeze for the future.

Garden Notes

About the Amaryllis Family

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

The Amaryllis family includes a large number of handsome plants. Most of them are suitable only for house plants or green house plants and are not winter-hardy in Canada. Their time of bloom is usually late fall or winter and this makes them all the more welcome in the home.

A few of the better known members are Amaryllis, Clivia, Crinium, Eucharis, Sprecklia, Hippeastrum, Nerine, Vallota and Zephyranthes. In the Hippeastrum, (Amaryllis) the hybridists have worked hard for years to get away from the harsh orange and the green shadings. Now you can have them from clear white through several delicate pinks and shrimp to deep crimson.

Most of these bulbs are listed in the spring bulb catelogues. When received they are potted up and then sunk in semi shade in the garden for the summer. The roots develop slowly and then they are ready to bloom in the fall or winter. Local dealers have the bulbs on hand in the fall and early winter and they may be potted up at that time. Growers tell us that those that have been slowly making roots through the summer do best over a period of time. They are never really dormant and do best if potted up early.

MAY NEED "A REST"

For those that bloom indoors in winter be sure to take them in before frost damages the foliage and the bulb. If the leaves have become brown cut them off and give the plant a rest in a cool semi-darkness. In November, December or January they should be brought to a light place with day-time temperatures of 70 degrees.

Set the pot in a pan of tepid water and allow the moisture to soak up until the top appears slightly damp. Set on saucer to drain. Do not allow pot to stand in water in the saucer. The roots need air as well as moisture. Too much water drowns the roots and causes decay. Water only when the soil surface feels dry.

Most of these bulbs resent repotting. They do best if kept in the same pot for several years. Feed with liquid fertilizers. You can use hyponix, rapid-gro or the tablets desolved in water.

POTTED IN SPRING

Nerines, Zephyranthes and Sprekelias are potted up in spring and grown in semi-shade. They will be ready to bloom indoors in early fall. Nerines have large umbels of ten or more pink blooms with crimped edges. . Bowdeni are about one dollar each while the smaller N. Undulata sells for about three for a dollar. Some members of the amaryllis family are quite expensive while others are very low in price. It is possible to add to these long lasting plants for a small sum each year and eventually have quite a collection.

Zephyranthes, known as Fairy lillies and Flower of the West Wind, may be used in the garden or as a house plant. They are lovely in colonies in the border or in the rock garden. They are modest in price so it is possible to have a variety. One of these, Z. Ajax, is a hybrid of Candida but has pale yellow blooms. It blooms several times a year if allowed to dry out and then is watered. Z. Candida is pure white with crocus shaped flowers and rush-like foliage. A prolific fall bloomer. Brachyandrus is bright violet pink and blooms several times a year. Clivias are old time favorites. They have 12 to 20 trumpets on each umbel with five or six opening at a time. They last a long time.

Agapanthus will break a clay pot. Plant them in tubs. The deep blue flowers keep opening from October to March.

Cash Income Of Farmers at All-Time High

OTTAWA (CP)—The cash income of Canadian farmers reached an all-time high of $2,928,900,000 last year, the bureau of statistics reported Friday.

A DBS survey revealed that farmers received more money for all major crops except potatoes, oats and barley.

Their total cash income from farming, excluding government supplementary payments, was 5.3 per cent higher than the 1960 figure of $2,781,500,000. The previous record of $2,859,100,000 was established in 1952.

The record national total income does not include $35,800,000 in federal payments to Prairie farmers under the Prairie Farm Assistance Act. This compares with federal payments totalling $77,200,000 in 1960, including $42,000,000 in acreage payments.

The DBS survey of farm income makes no allowance for costs incurred by farmers in the production of the items sold.

The boost in income was spurred by increased sales of wheat, livestock, tobacco, flaxseed, dairy and poultry products.

Cash income, excluding supplementary payments, for Ontario, with 1960 figures in brackets were $895,187,000 ($869,329,000).

Successful Living

Would Like to Run House

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—My mom and dad are going away for ten days in about a month. They say that if my brother, who is 18, and I, who am 13, want to stay home alone, take care of the house and ourselves, it would be up to us.

I know that I can handle the making of meals and whatnot and that my brother will co-operate. Also my grandfather is staying with us, but he is feeble and can take care only of himself.

I would like your advice on whether or not you think we could do it. I am very excited about it and would like to try.—MOTHER'S HELPER.

DEAR MOTHER'S HELPER:— Go to it!

I have a sister who at thirteen took care of two younger ones, including me, and got the meals for a household which included two boarders and her father as well. This was for two weeks when Mother had to go to the country to nurse Grandmother.

She got along fine—and we didn't have to dodge any brickbats. If your brother is helpful, you should do fine too. Grandpa will be a nice older person to have around for company.

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—Could you please tell me how to lose weight from legs?—I am not overweight but my calves and ankles are quite large and out of proportion. —ARDENT READER.

DEAR ARDENT:—Write to the Queen's Printer, Ottawa, Ontario, and ask for "XBX Plan for Physical Fitness," enclosing 35c.

This is the RCAF plan. Gives routines for smoothing out calves and ankles—and some other things, if you know what I mean.

• • •

DEAR DORIS:——I can't control my temper. I've talked it over with my doctor but nothing seems to help.

We have four children. I love my husband very much but when we fight, I say terrible things to him and throw things at him. He has tried to reason with me when I am in this mood, but this makes me worse.

Please don't suggest a psychiatrist because my greatest fear is that I am going insane. And I can't afford such a specialist.—HIGH STRUNG.

DEAR HIGH—Anyone who can write a straightforward letter like yours need not fear insanity. A psychiatrist could help you understand your own actions, which is the beginning of being able to control yourself.

You can't afford not to have help. The happiness of your family is at stake.

• • •

(If something is troubling you, there's help to be had. Write to Doris for another slant on your difficulty.)

Electric Heating Safe, Healthier for Children

The clean, even warmth of flameless electric heating is designed to protect the health of the whole family.

Because nothing burns with electric heat, no smoke, soot or fumes can circulate through the home. Children playing in an electrically-heated recreation room breathe pure, fresh air.

With proper insulation and a vapor barrier, an electrically heated home is not "dry." Excess moisture generated in washing, cooking and other activities in the home is more than sufficient. Conventional fuel-fired systems require artificial humidity because they rely on combustion of air to operate efficiently.

No room need be too warm or too cold with electric heat. Individual thermostats in each room permit regulation of temperatures to personal tastes. The baby's room can be kept at 78 degrees and the living room at 70 degrees. For greater economy, the thermostat in spare rooms can be turned down when not in use.

Children can't burn themselves on electric heating units approved by the Canadian Standards Association. They are designed so that free air flow through the heating elements keeps the surface temperature to level which will feel hot to the touch but no warmer than conventional steam or hot water radiators.

Even if toys or blankets accidentally restrict the air flow, the unit will not overheat. Heating units manufactured to Triple Seal standards incorporate safety cut-offs which shut off the equipment.

WONDERS of NATURE
by Salan
When about a year old, he heads down river to the sea, where he continues to grow and soon becomes fully developed.
High up in the mountains, where melting snow starts a swift-running stream, the salmon is born.
When mating season arrives, the salmon heads back to the same river and upstream to his birthplace.
While swimming against the current, he will overcome incredible obstacles with huge jumps, such as severe rapids or waterfalls.
Salmon seek the ice cold water of mountain streams for their breeding grounds. It is thought by some that they originally came from the North Pole area, having been driven south during the ice age.

Pinch Hitting

A SHOOTING STAR

That "shooting star" you see blazing its way across the National Hockey League horizon these cold winter evenings should be easily recognizable from this section of the country without the aid of a telescope.

Bobby Hull, 23-year-old left winger of the Chicago Black Hawks, who calls Point Anne his home, is the star we are talking about.. And it's pucks he's shooting, Aunt Emma, not a super-sonic ray gun or some such Buck Rodgers' gadget.

Hull, like the rest of the Stanley Cup winning Hawks of last spring, has had his troubles this season. The Hawks hovered around the NHL's fourth and fifth spots for some time and there was a good deal of discussion as to whether they would make the playoffs or not, come March.

While Chicago was finding it difficult to climb higher than fourth in the league standing, Mr. Hull was also down in the league scoring race. Less than a month ago Bobby was in 19th place in the overall point race, far below Andy Bathgate, Gordie Howe, Claude Provost and Frank Mahovlich, fighting it out for the Art Ross Trophy and the scoring title.

Finally, the Hawks began to hit their stride and now appear to be firmly entrenched in third place, nine points up on the Rangers and ten ahead of the Red Wings.

The leader over this period has been Hull.

He has been scoring at a terrific pace of late, has taken over third position in league scoring and the lead in goal scoring. Hull potted one goal in a 2-1 win on January 28, two in a 5-3 loss last Saturday, two more in a 3-0 win Sunday, one in a 4-1 win Wednesday and capped the spree with four goals in a 7-4 victory on Thursday.

It adds up to ten goals in the last five games and a grand total of 30 for the season. He has 51 points, ten less than league-leading Andy Bathgate.

Local fans will be rooting for Hull to add to his total in games against Boston and Toronto over the week-end.

BOOSTERS AND BIRD-BELTERS

The boosters and the bird-belters will be out in full force this evening as the powers-that-be of the Belleville Pepsi Booster Club and of the Belleville Garrison Badminton Club have separate shin-digs planned for members of their organizations.

Down at the Wharf Street Debating Club, Jim "Snipe" Matthews and his merry lads and lassies of the Booster Club will hold forth with a gala skating party.

We don't know how "Snipe" got his inside information but he must have an "in" with the weatherman, to have picked the coldest week of the year for this "do." The harbor ice should be natural ice at its best, what with Old Man Winter sending the temperature plunging way-y-y-y down below the zero mark every evening.

Don't get the idea you will suffer in the cold, however, because the Wharf Street Debating Club building has been secured for the warm comfort of changing your skates, giving the "twist" a try, nibbling a sandwich or two and downing a cup of hot java.

All-in-all, it looks like a fine "do." There will be a couple of motorized sleds for those who want a fast ride. There will be cards, games, dancing and refreshments inside.

The Pepsi team members and their attractive ladies will also be in attendance so you can get your fill of hockey chit-chat, too. There is said to be no truth in the rumor that other team players will present Lionel Botly with a gold-plated puck in honor of his Wednesday-night goal here. It was his second of the year, by the way.

The party is limited to Booster Club members and your card will get you in at the clubhouse door.

Don't worry if you don't belong, however. Membership cards will be on sale at the door.

The "Do" starts at eight o'clock.

Meanwhile, over at the Belleville Armouries, the Badminton Club, which has been busy with a top-flight mixed tournament all day today, will wind up with finals play and a dance this evening.

Players from Oshawa, Peterborough, Bowmanville, Picton, Whitby and Napanee, as well as a large number from the local club, are taking part.

Trophies will be handed out to winners, runners-up and consolation players following the completion of play.

Then comes the social part of the evening with varied refreshments to be served in the officers' mess. A dance will top off the entertainment.

If the Garrison Badminton Club lives up to its past performances as a host, and there is no reason why it shouldn't, this will be one fine evening over around the armouries way.

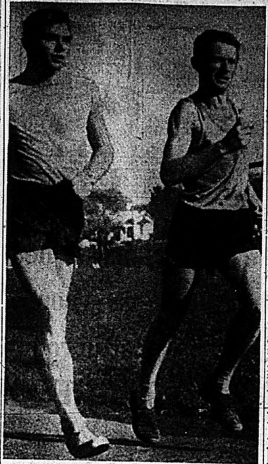
New Zealander Breaks Two Records



RECORD HOLDERS— Peter Snell of New Zealand, left, works out in Auckland, N.Z., with fellow-New Zealander Murray Halberg. Snell last Saturday set a new world record for the mile with time of 3 minutes 54.4 seconds and yesterday set a new mark for the half mile. Halberg holds the two and the three mile world records. Note Snell's heavily muscled legs which caused some to believe he would never excel at the half mile and mile. (AP Wirephoto).

Peter Snell At It Again

CHRISTCHURCH, N.Z. (AP) Peter Snell, 22-year - old New Zealander with a tremendous finishing kick, bettered the listed world records for the 800 metres and half-mile today — the second and third he has broken in eight days.

His graceful, rhythmic stride carried him to a time of one minute, 45.1 seconds in the half-mile and 1:44.3 for the 800 metres, bettering the old marks by more than a second.

Only a week ago the curly-haired surveyor, a virtual unknown despite his 1960 Olympic victory in the 800 metres, clipped one-tenth of a second off Herb Elliott's world mile standard. Snell covered the mile in 3:54.4 over a grass track, considered slower than other surfaces.

Today's records were established in a half-mile race over a composition course at Lancaster Park, one of the fastest tracks in New Zealand. Since the 800 metres (874 yards, two feet, eight inches) is shorter than the half-mile, Snell was able to break both in one race.

The previous 800-metre mark was 1:45.7—1.4 seconds slower than Snell — set by Belgium's Roger Moens in 1955. The half-mile standard was 1:46.8 — 1.7 seconds slower than Snell—set by Tom Courtney of the United States in 1957.

PACED BY ROBINSON

Snell was pointed toward the records by Barry Robinson, a New Zealand Olympic quarter-miler, and was chased—though hardly pressed—the last half by Jim Dupree of the U.S.

Robinson reeled off a 49.3 quarter. Snell was content to hold second for the first half of the race and hit the quarter in a blistering 50.5. Dupree trailed.

Snell made his move going into the stretch for the second lap. Speeding effortlessly, he passed Robinson and drew away to lead in the back stretch by nearly 100 yards.

Dupree also passed Robinson but was about 30 yards back at the finish. He was second in 1:49 and John Bork of the U.S. third in 1:53.5.

Seniors Win 61-31

BCI Twists Tigers Tail

By PETER CARVER

The Collegians from BCI, making their initial home start, grabbed two games from the Tigers of Trenton High School in a COSSA tripleheader played last night.

In the second game the local bantams dropped a 36-23 decision to a taller Tiger team.

Led by Murray Swan, the BCI juniors copped their third victory of the campaign by a 44-33 score.

SENIOR GAME

Both teams seemed to go "hot and cold" on the night's play but there wasn't much doubt as to BCI's superiority. The first quarter was mediocre with BCI holding a 16-6 edge. Trenton passed the ball well but erratic shooting coupled with close checking and good shooting on BCI's behalf limited their scoring.

The teams picked up in the second stanza. Trenton found a weakness in the winner's defence and drove down the centre with regularity. The collegians, tightened up, however as their offensive backboard control and good set-shooting enabled them to click for 14 poinst to Trenton's eight.

The third quarter proved to be the most loosely-played of the night. Neither club could control the ball with Trenton just throwing it away on many an occasion. The shooting and checking were sub-par as the visitors managed to hoop 10 points to Belleville's half-dozen.

BCI cut loose in the final period, however, as the Trenton defences collapsed. The collegians' shooting, passing and poise showed a goodly portion of their potential. A strong offensive movement and a tight defence enabled them to score 25 points, while the Trentonians were held to a mere 7.

Terry McCabe sparked the winners with a 17 point effort. Next were Peter Weston with 12 and "Soup" Campbell with 13.

Paul Clarke led the losers with 12.

Far From Over

Clancy Sure Leafs Can Make It

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens have opened up a six-point lead in the National Hockey League, but the race for first place is far from over.

Take it from King Clancy, the assistant manager-coach of the second - place Toronto Maple Leafs.

"I know we have a lot of ground to make up, but I'm convinced it can be done. The race between the Canadiens and Leafs is going to be a tight one and won't be decided until the last few games of the season, just like last year."

Each team has 22 more games to play, including five against each other.

But Clancy admits the Leafs' task is not going to be easy. Injuries to some of the team's first-line players are his main worries.

"Without Bobby Baun, our defence is just not the same," he was saying after the Leafs took a 5-2 pasting from Canadiens Thursday night.

"And without Dick Duff our third forward unit has no more speed. Still I think Eddie Shack is the player we're missing most."

Duff and Shack are nursing leg ailments and both are not expected back in action before mid-February. Baun can skate but has an arm in a cast.

Centre Red Kelly, voted to the first all-star team in mid-season balloting, also is a cause for concern.

The Montreal Forum physiotherapist examined Kelly this week and said the redhead may have a slight shoulder separation.

But Punch Imlach, the Leafs coach, doesn't believe it.

"Our club doctors assure us it is nothing more than a bad bruise and that is good enough for us," says Imlach.

The Leafs have a couple of tough games coming up this weekend. They meet the fourth-place New York Rangers at home tonight and Sunday night go to Chicago for a date against the red-hot Black Hawks.

The Rangers have a lineup problem of their own, caused by the absence of Camille Henry, the club's leading goal-scorer, who has missed two games because of a gastric disorder and is out indefinitely.

Henry, who scored his 20th goal Jan. 1 and hasn't found the mark since, is under orders to take it easy. Club officials say his condition is aggravated by extreme nervousness.

The Canadiens take on fifth-place Detroit on home ice tonight and play the Rangers at New York Sunday. The last-place Boston Bruins play at Chicago tonight and at Detroit Sunday night.

40 Skaters To Complete For Titles

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Joe Huibers of St. Catharines, convenor of the first Ontario speed skating championships held in at least 25 years, said Friday approximately 40 skaters from skaters from eight centres have entered the meet Jordan Harbor today.

Entries have been received from London, Kitchener, Dundas, Toronto, Barrie, Port Colborne, Beamsville and St. Catharines.

A total of 19 events are slated for juvenile, junior, intermediate and senior men and two events for senior women.

As all past performances in Ontario speed skating championships have long since disappeared, all times in the races will be registered as provincial records.

Aitken Gets Nine Points For Maroons

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Aitken collected nine scoring points, including three goals, as the Maroons blasted Windsor Bulldogs 12-5 in an Ontario game.

In another scoring spree, Strathroy Rockets moved into fourth place, one point ahead of Waterloo Tigers, by turning back the Indians 9-2 at Stratford.

The fourth - place Maroons, now within four points of the Tigers, ran up a 5-0 lead before the second-place Bulldogs could get on the scoreboard in the second period.

Jim Connelly and playing coach Ted Power duplicated Aitken's goal - getting feat while Bob Pole tallied twice. Joe Malo rounded out the scoring. For Windsor it was Walt Pawlyshyn with a pair, Tommy Walker, Ed Switzer and Jack Costello.

Only 500 were on hand at Stratford as the Tribe blew a chance to clinch the sixth and last playoff spot. They aren't in immediate danger, however, leading the last - place Sarnia Rams by 11 points.

In tonight's games the Maroons are at Strathroy while the third-place Woodstock Athletics, who hold a four-point edge over the rockets, visit the Rams.

Sunday the Bulldogs, three points behind the now - touring Galt Terriers, are hosts to the Tigers.

Bob Cleroux Now 7th In Standings

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (CP) — Montreal's Bob Cleroux, Canadian heavyweight champ, is ranked seventh behind champion Floyd Patterson in the National Boxing Association's ratings for January announced Friday.

Bantamweight Eder Jofre of Brazil, rated by some fistic observers as the ring's best fighter pound-for-pound, was named boxer-of-the-month. He was honored for his 10th-round knockout of Ireland's Johnny Caldwell that gave him undisputed claim to the world bantam crown.

Dick Tiger of Nigeria, runner-up in the voting for the month's award, advanced to the No. 1 contender's position in middleweight division as a result of his kayo triumph over Florentino Fernandez of Miami Beach. Fernandez dropped from the top spot to third.

Braves Lose Money for First Time

MILWAUKEE (CP) — Milwaukee Braves lost money last season for the first time since they came here from Boston nine years ago, president John McHale said Friday.

McHale didn't say how much the Braves lost but said the club spent $500,000 operating an 11-club farm system.

"We needed about 1,500,000 people to break even, and we drew only 1,100,000" McHale said. "If it hadn't been for the expansion draft, we would have lost a lot more."

The Braves collected $425,000 for players taken by the new Houston and New York clubs which will join National League play this season.

McHale said that as to the regular payroll, "we definitely had the highest priced club in the National League."

Boom Boom Given Honor By the Fans

MONTREAL (CP) — Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion, high scoring right winger with Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, Friday night was named Montreal's professional athlete-of-the - year for 1961.

The award is based mainly on Geoffrion's fine performance during 1960-61 when he scored 50 goals, 23 in his last 22 games, to tie retired Maurice (Rocket) Richard's record for one season.

Geoffrion also won the NHL individual scoring championship and was selected in the league's most valuable player last season.

The award will be presented Feb. 14 at the 29th annual Montreal Sportsmen's Association banquet.

MEGEVE, France (AP) — Karl Schranz of Austria won the grand slalom of the Emile Allais Cup Friday.

Schranz was timed in two minutes, 26.37 seconds, edging France's Michel Arpin, who was clocked in 2:26.94 for the two-kilometre run as Austrian and French skiers took the first nine places.

The top Canadian skier in the event was Jean-Guy Brunet of Ste. Agathe, Que., who completed the run in 2:39.86, finishing 35th.

OUTSTANDING SPORTS CELEBRITIES—Three outstanding youngsters received plaques at the annual Sports Celebrities Dinner held at the Royal York Hotel in Toronto. Ontario Sportswriters and Sportcasters Annual Celebrities Dinner Aids Crippled

TORONTO (CP) — The 11th annual Sports Celebrities Dinner went on as scheduled at the Royal York Hotel Thursday night and in order to be there, some of the organizers had to cross their own union's picket lines.

The Toronto local of the American Newspaper Guild (CLC) sent pickets to the hotel for the big dinner, sponsored by the Ontario Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association. They joined pickets from the International Typographical Union (CLC) along with the regular lines formed by the striking Hotel and Club Employees Union.

Clem Shields, a Guild steward said the union came out in support of the strikers because "there is absolutely no need of this dinner being held here." "While the whole idea of helping crippled children is very very good, the money that is being spent on bringing these athletes here could very well be sent to crippled children. Why can't these people just donate $25 to crippled children instead of paying it for a meal at the Royal York?"

Guild spokesman said there will be no official action taken against any members who attend. "It's simply a matter of conscience," one picketing member said.

Temperatures dipped close to zero as the guests stepped from cars and walked through the reinforced picket lines into the Commonwealth's biggest hotel. There were no incidents.

The organizers, which have so far raised $209,169.03 for crippled children, expect to turn over $24,000 from the dinner for construction of a swimming pool at Waterloo.

The event went off without a hitch.

Attendance was 1,076 compared with 1,092 last year. All of the approximately 1,100 tickets were sold.

Only one table was vacant but it was paid for by comedians Johnny Wayne and Frank Shuster, who were originally scheduled to be masters of ceremonies but bowed out when the strike remained unsettled.

Swimmer Mary Stewart of Vancouver received another plaque for her choice as Canadian woman athlete of 1961 in the annual Canadian Press poll.

A third plaque went to track star Bruce Kidd of Toronto as Ontario athlete of the year. He also was chosen Canadian athlete of the year in the CP poll.

JACK DEVINE

When it comes to aiding crippled children, the members of the Ontario Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association, of which Jack Devine sports editor of Radio Station CJBQ was the 1961 president, are celebrities in their own right. The members had a lot of company when they gathered at the Royal York Hotel in Toronto, Thursday for their annual dinner to raise funds for the Ontario Society for Crippled Children, the function was the last item on the year's program under Mr. Devine's presidency.

Attending the dinner were 1,076 persons, who paid $25 a plate to help crippled children and to enjoy a unique opportunity to hear and meet sports celebrities in many fields. The celebrities came from many places and from different eras, too. They ranged all the way from hockey's Cooney Weiland, who was first grabbing the headlines back in the twenties, to 16-year-old Mary Stewart, swimmer from Vancouver. Among those present were soccer's legendary Stanley Matthews, basketball's Abe Saperstein, horse-woman Gail Ross, Frank Hatashita, the soft-spoken master of judo who is well - known in Belleville, Big Daddy Lipscomb and Bernie Faloney from the gridiron wars in the U.S. and Canada, Brian Timmis, a grid great of another era, Dale Alexander one-time baseball star, Wally Stanowski and Turk Broda, Maple Leafs of other winters, the sensational young Canadian runner, Bruce Kidd, Gerard Cote, four-time winner of the Boston Marathon and Whipper Watson, a wrestler who is as well-known for his work with crippled children as for his activities in the ring.

All greeted "Timmy", ten-year-old Larry Maloney of Brantford, who said: 'Crippled children like myself are lucky to have such friends". Larry, the last speaker on the program, was given a standing ovation as he addressed the celebrities in a smiling and confident manner. Not the least of the thrills in being selected as Timmy for 1962 was that of "enjoying a wonderful meal" said Larry.

Masters of ceremonies were Milt Dunnell of the Toronto Star and Phil Stone of Radio Station CHUM. Grace was said by Rev. Donald Amos, former pastor of Bridge Street United Church in this city.

Penalty Shot Great Play Says Voss

TORONTO (CP) — Carl Voss, referee - in - chief of the National Hockey League, thinks the penalty shot is a spectacular play that can become even more so with some rule revisions.

"There are untold thousands of spectators today who never have seen a penalty shot," Voss said Friday in an interview. "I think we can dress it up beyond what it is now and revisions will be discussed during the annual meeting next summer."

Voss said he would suggest the puck, now placed on the offending team's blueline to start the play, be moved back to the centre line or even the blueline of the team awarded the shot. It would give the shooter more time to gain speed if he desired.

The shot may be taken from any distance the shooter chooses.

Complex rules cover penalty shot situations but broadly speaking, the shot is to be awarded when in the referees judgment a goal might have been scored but for certain rule infractions by the defending side.

Win Number 15

Macs Whip Cobourg 12-1

COBOURG — The Belleville Macs, with four players doing all the scoring, whipped Cobourg 12-1 here last night in an OHA Eastern Junior Hockey league fixture for their 15th victory in 20 games this season.

The victory hoisted the Macs back into the league's top spot, two points ahead of Kingston. The Frontenacs have a game in hand however.

Belleville had only ten players dressed for the game, one less than Cobourg, but Mac coach Gordie Bell moved defenceman Larry Mavety up on the team's front line with Dave Smith and Pete Weston and the move paid off handsomely.

Mavety paced all goal-scorers by triggering four of the winners' markers and adding one assist. Centre Pete Weston led the club, pointwise, with three goals and four assists, good for seven points, while left winger Dave Smith also had the three-goal "hat-trick" plus one assist.

Bobby Boyle scored the other two Mac goals. Gary Reid had two assists with one each for Graydon Scott, Pug Kellar, Paul Zakos and Ted Rowland.

Gordie Parker played goal for the loop-leaders and turned in a solid performance, as well as drawing a misconduct penalty.

Dave Doyle scored the lone Cobourg goal, at 10.59 of the third period after Belleville had opened up a 10-0 lead. Paul Terbenche drew an assist on the play.

The Macs led 4-0 in the first period on two goals by Smith and one each by Boyle and Mavety.

They made it 6-0 after two periods with Weston scoring both second-period goals. Weston, Boyle and Mavety, with two, had built the 10-0 lead before Boyle saved Cobourg from a shutout. Smith and Mavety added the final two markers.

Only nine penalties were handed out in the quiet game, including the misconduct to Parker. Belleville drew five of the eight minor sentences.

BELLEVILLE: Parker, Zakos, Reid, Weston, Smith, Mavety, Scott, Kellar, Boyle, Rowland.

Wrong to Mix

CAHA Prexy Wants E. Germany In

MONCTON, N.B. (CP)—Jack Roxburgh, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said Friday night politics and sports shouldn't be mixed.

He was commenting on the refusing of the Allied Travel office in West Berlin to give the East Germans travel permits to go to the United States for the world hockey tournament in Colorado Springs, Colo., March 8-18.

"NATO may have a solid reason for not granting the permits to the East Germans because of the Berlin crisis," said Roxburgh. "... however, the action isn't helping the goodwill we (Canada) fostered while our teams competed in play behind the Iron Curtain."

In Melville, Sask., Gordon Juckes, CAHA secretary - treasurer, urged the president of the International Ice Hockey Federation to take all steps to ensure that all teams will be able to participate in the tournament. He made the statement in a telegram to Bob LeBel of Montreal, IIHF president.

"Juckes said: "We would greatly regret any outside action which would injure the present good relations between all hockey federations in the world. We strongly urge IIHF to request decision regarding East Germany team to be reviewed and that all member federations support this action."

Meanwhile, state department officials in Washington say a ban on travel by East Germans in NATO countries probably will also apply to amateur wrestlers.

Unless there is a change for the better in the Berlin situation, the restrictions apparently will apply to East Germans who want to compete in the world wrestling championships at Toledo, Ohio, June 21-27.

State department officials asked about Cuban wrestlers, noted that several Cuban baseball players have been granted visas by the United States even though it no longer recognizes the regime of Fidel Castro. They see no reason why individual wrestlers also cannot enter the United States.

But if they try to compete as a Cuban team — "that would be an entirely different question," said one official.

Another Small Crowd

Pepsi's Dump Waterloo

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Writer

Belleville Pepsi's may not be too popular with the local hockey fans, judging by a slim crowd of slightly under 400 who took in last night's game here, but they at least proved themselves to one OHA Senior "A" club when they downed the visiting Waterloo Tigers by a 10-5 score.

Last night's game was much better entertainment than the score indicates.

It was a 2-2 score after one period and 5-3 for the Pepsi's at the end of the second. Waterloo cut the margin to 5-4 early in the third and later trailed by a 7-5 count before J. P. Lamirande's Redshirts sewed the game up with three goals in the last two and a half minutes of play.

While the game gave the slim crowd plenty to roar about, the Waterloo club failed to impress in the popularity department. The Tigers' manager, Phil Vitale, got himself escorted from the player bench by a police officer on orders from the game officials, at 7.49 of the middle heat.

Then the Waterloo club refused to take the ice to start the third period until they received their guaranteed amount of the gate. It was enough to hand the Pepsi's another financial loss and left coach Lamirande wondering just what he can do to boost attendance here.

A queer bounce off the backboards left Pepsi goalie D. Barclay stranded behind the net while Waterloo's Kosowan tapped in the game's opening goal at 1.10 of the first heat. Taylor, on a breakaway from centre ice, tied the score two minutes later.

Lou Smrke, who was talked into donning a pair of skates for this exhibition game only (he claims), put Belleville ahead at 3.28, sinking Taylor's pass with a quick snap shot. Frank Bathgate, who once played senior here, tied it 2-2, driving one between Barclay's legs at 18.07. The period was fast with end to end rushes featuring the play.

Taylor scored on a rebound to put the Pepsi's ahead to stay at 4.13 of the second. Smrke bagged his second goal on a 25-footer at 11.11 and Hull made it 5-2 when he rapped home Goyer's rebound at 17.00. Litzgus got one back for the Tigers with Goyer in the penalty box at 19.30.

Plaff sank a screened backhander to cut the lead to 5-4 early in the third. Jones and Baker widened the Pepsi margin before Bathgate got his second for the losers. Jones, O'Meara and Goyer completed the scoring in that order.

Dave Jones, with two goals and two assists, Bob Taylor, with two and one, and Lou Smrke, with two goals, paced the Pepsi attack. Ron Hull, Gary Goyer, Tom O'Meara and "Shaker" Baker each had a goal and assist. Defencemen Lionel Botly and Floyd Crawford each drew three assists while Chuck Rowbotham and Flori Goegan had two apiece. Ed Marineau picked up one helper.

Frank Bathgate scored twice for Waterloo while Larry Litzgus had one goal and two assists. Ralph Kosowan and Larry Plaff had the other goals.

Record Will Not Likely Be Allowed

NEW YORK (CP - AP)—John Uelses, a German-born marine from Quantico, Va., topped the 16-foot pole vault barrier Friday night in a highlight event at the Millrose Games in Madison Square Garden. But a hitch may hold up recognition of Uelses' leap as a record.

Official Dan Ferris said "the crossbar was knocked down by a photographer before we had a chance to remeasure it." The bar was picked up again and set at the 16 feet, one-quarter inch, where it stood before Uelses' final vault, but the technicality may mean a delay in recognition of the indoor mark.

Indoor performances are not eligible for world records.

Uelses set the previous best jump last week with a leap of 15 feet, 10 inches.

Canadian competitors had a couple of seconds to show for their evening performance.

Ireland captured the two-mile relay run, getting the usual fine performance from anchor man Ron Delany. Their winning time was seven minutes, 38.4 seconds.

A Toronto team made up of Bill Crothers, Jim Irons, Stan Worsfield and Steve Ball was second in 7:46.6. Delany had a fast 1:53.1 for the anchor lap.

Crothers pressed Jerry Siebert, the top U.S. half - miler, in that event but would up in a tie for second place with Frank Tomeo of Fordham, a step behind the winner.

Siebert's time was 1:53.9. Crothers and Tomeo were caught in 1:54.1.

Moore Must Make Choice Very Soon

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Archie Moore said Friday night he wants to fight middleweight champion Gene Fullmer in a light - heavyweight championship bout.

"I'm willing to fight Fullmer for the title after my fight with Alejandro Lavorante," Moore said. That fight will be a heavyweight but in Los Angeles March 30.

Moore said he discussed the possibility with a Los Angeles fight promoter Friday but nothing definite was decided.

Moore, who holds a share of the world light - heavyweight crown, was given another week to sign for a title defence by the New York State Athletic Commission Friday.

Moore, recognized in New York, Massachusetts and Europe, previously had been warned to have signed contracts by noon Friday. The commission conferred by telephone with Moore and his attorney in San Diego, Calif., and gave him the reprieve.

He has not defended his crown since last June when he defeated Giulio Rinaldi of Italy here.

The New York Commission also said that Moore's opponent must be either Harold Johnson of Philadelphia, the NBA champion, or Doug Jones of New York.

Moore said he could not negotiate with either Johnson or Jones until they meet each other in the ring.

Tom McVie scored two goals and increased his league-leading total to 34 as Portland Buckaroos edged Vancouver Canucks 4-2.

Billy McNeill paced the Flyers with two goals. Larry Jeffrey, Tom Burgess and Howie Young added singles. Ron Leopold, Norm Johnson and Lou Jankowski scored for Calgary.

The Bucks increased their Southern Division lead to 14 points by defeating the Canucks at Vancouver. Arnie Schmautz and Art Jones scored other goals for Portland. The Canucks got goals from Barrie Ross and Eddie Dorhoy.

Quinte COSSA Basketball

By BILL BURLEY

Quinte played host to Napanee last night in a COSSA Bay of Quinte Basketball triple header. The Saints, L'l Saints and the bantam Saints had easy wins over the visitors. he juniors and bantams had little trouble in winning, and took clear-cut decisions over Napanee. The Quinte bantams, trying to hold on to their second place position, took a 22-point win, by a score of 48-26. The seniors cleaned up the evening's shuffle with a 72-42 landslide.

SENIOR GAME

The first quarter saw Quinte taking immediate possession of the lead and holding it by 15 points throughout the quarter. Napanee crept up slowly in the third with the help of Don Paul's 8 points, but this threat was turned back by Quinte with Burley scoring eight points and Gilroy five in the same quarter. At the end of the half Quinte led by 10 points.

In the third, Chatland and Fair of Quinte, showed how to shoot long set shots by popping in four from way out. Don Paul of Napanee once more began to buzz, scoring seven points. Hall and Latchford of Quinte pulled the Saints into a 14 point lead, with six points.

Quinte's vastly improved fast break, showed its worth in the final quarter by pulling the Saints ahead by 30 points. Scores by Pringle and Thurlow of Napanee were equalled and surpassed by Mariott and Hatch of Quinte with Onderdonk pitching in. In the last few seconds of the game, Dave Fisher of Quinte put the stopper on the scoring by tipping in an amazingly long set shot. Thus the Quinte seniors won the event by a 72-42 score.

Hard Pressed

Galt Terriers Withstand Third-Period Pressure

MONCTON, N.B. (CP)—Galt Terriers, Canada's hopes in the world ice hockey tournament, withstood terrific third - period pressure Friday night to defeat Moncton Beavers 7-6 in an exhibition game before 1,650 fans.

The game was the second of three for the Terriers against Nova Scotia Senior Hockey League clubs. Tonight they meet the league - leading Amherst Ramblers—the team they defeated in the Eastern Canadian Allan Cup final last year.

Despite their third - period lapses, the Terriers had the edge throughout the game, outshooting the Beavers 37-24.

The Beavers led 3-2 after the first period but Galt was ahead 5-4 going into the third.

John Hawryluk put Moncton ahead in the first period when he deflected a 35-foot shot in mid - air. Bob Mader's 25-foot blast at 12:16 tied it for Galt. Vic Howe put the Beavers ahead again at 15:09 when he deflected Claude Bechard's shot into the net while Pete Kowalchuk of the Terriers was serving a minor penalty for tripping.

HITS EMPY NET

A sensational save by Galt goaltender Harold (Boat) Hurley led to the Beavers' third goal. Hurley tumbled far from the net after knocking down a blazing shot by Moncton's Yves Sarrazin. Phil Doiron popped the rebound into the gaping net at 18:35.

Galt tied it at 2:30 of the second when Moncton goalie Ron Boomer fanned on Maki's blooping 40-footer.

Moncton had two men in the penalty box when ex-NHLer Tod Sloan scored on a close-in drive. Howe knotted the score at 12:31 when he fired a rising 20-footer over the sprawling Hurley. Harry Neale fired into the top right - hand corner to give Galt a 5-4 margin.

MAKES TOP PLAY

Bob Brown scored early in the third to make it 6-4 for Galt. Moncton's Charlie Poirier made the best play of the game when he outraced two Galt defencemen, deked Hurley out of the net and slipped the puck into the corner as he crashed into the backboards.

Maki scored the winner at 16:43 when he rattled the puck off the post from a goalmouth scramble.

The Beavers roared back and had Galt reeling. Doiron scored his second at 17:55 and for the next minute Moncton greatly outplayed the Terriers. But the threat was cut off when Sarrazin was given a boarding penalty with just over a minute to play.

At the Park

(In Technicolor)
"The Devil at 4 O'clock"

Spencer Tracy and Frank Sinatra, two of the screen's most important actors, are paired for the first time in the Mervyn LeRoy — Fred Kohlmar production. "The Devil at 4 O'Clock", opens Monday in Eastman Color at the Park Theatre. Playing a Pacific island priest and a cynical convict, respectively, the stars reportedly give performances so filled with entertainment fireworks that they almost outshine one of the most explosive of all possible natural phenomenon: an earthquake and volcanic eruption which completely destroys the South Seas island of the film.

"The Devil at 4 O'clock" is set in the South Pacific, on the island of Talua. Here, on the side of a dormant volcano, Tracy has built and is maintaining a jungle hospital: here, as a stopover while en route to an island prison elsewhere in the Pacific, Sinatra arrives with two other convicts. The criminal's every meeting with the priest strikes fire; they join forces only when the earthquake presages latter, more violent, volcanic action.

The priest and the convicts parachute to the rescue of the hospital's staff and child patients. Their party fights its way against time, through raging forset fires, landslides, rivers of mud and other perils created by nature gone berserk. The children and the hospital workers reach the beach in time to board a waiting schooner; they are carried to safety as Talua blows itself up.

According to Hollywood report, Tracy and Sinatra are equally superb in their characterizations of priest and criminal, bringing to the screen performances which are made the more meaningful by the way they work together.

Among the other colorful characters of "The Devil at 4 O'Clock" are Kerwin Mathews as a priest come to relieve the aging Tracy; Jean Pierre Aumont as a seaplane pilot; Gregoire Aslan, as a criminal; Alexander Scourby as the island's cruel governor and Barbara Luna, as a blind hospital worker who brings total enchantment to her love scenes with Sinatra.

Written for the screen by Liam O'Brien. "The Devil at 4 O'Clock" is based on Max Catto's exciting novel. Mervyn LeRoy directed and Fred Kohlmar produced the Columbia release. Complete shows are at 7.00 and 9.10 p.m. Doors open at 6.30 p.m.

Stan Leonard Drops Out Of Race

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (CP) The $50,000 Palm Springs Open golf tournament hit the stage of pressure and drama today with a host of professionals in position to grab the big prize money. But Stan Leonard of Vancouver, leader after two rounds, had putted himself into near obscurity.

The 90-hole event headed into its fourth round with Gardner Dickinson, a power-packed 130-pounder from Crystal River, Fla., in front with what he termed a "perilous" two-stroke advantage. There were two 18-hole rounds to go and such seasoned campaigners as Gene Littler and Arnold Palmer were in the thick of the battle.

Leonard, a co-leader after the first round and alone in top spot after the second, exploded to a six-over-par 78 at the difficult Tamarisk course in Friday's third round with a putter that was ice cold.

The veteran Canadian, celebrating his 47th birthday, three-putted five greens. He was so dismayed that he flipped his putter to a friend and said: "Be my guest."

Leonard entered the third round with a two-stroke edge but his 38-40 sent him plunging. Dickinson had a 54-hole total of 200, Leonard 210.

Littler, winner of the recent $50,000 San Francisco Open, and Palmer, seeking his first victory of 1962, were two strokes off the pace with 202s. Littler stormed into contention with a seven-under-par 64 and Palmer fired a 66. Both toured the Thunderbird Country Club course.

Five courses are being used for the marathon tournament—Tamarisk, Thunderbird, Indian Wells, Eldorado and Bermuda Dunes. Thunderbird is par 71 while the others are par 72.

Bermuda Dunes is being reserved for the final round, when the field, originally crowded with 128 pros and 384 amateurs, will be cut to the low 60 men and ties. NBC will televise the windup Sunday from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. EST.

Al Balding of Toronto carded a 37-35—72 Friday for a 14 total. Al Johnston of Montreal and Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg were at 216. Johnston had a 36-40—76 and Homenuik 40-36—76. George Knudson of Toronto shot 35-35—70 for 219.

Margin Dwindles

Hamilton Red Wings Scorched by Flyers 7-4

Hamilton Red Wings' margin in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A race dwindled again Friday night when they absorbed one of their worst defeats of the season at the hands of Niagara Falls Flyers.

The Wings lost 7-4 before 2,800 fans, biggest crowd of the season at the Falls. Second-place Montreal Canadiens, who have a game in hand, narrowed the gap to two points by downing the last - place Peterborough Petes 4-1.

The third - place St. Catharines Teepees, sparked by defenceman Bill Speer's two goals, downed Guelph Royals 5-3 in the night's other game.

The Wings, beaten for the second consecutive night, got only 27 shots at Wayne Rutledge in the Flyers nets but Hamilton's Buddy Blom was tested 40 times.

Bill Glashan scored the Flyers' first and last goals. Ron Hergott, Billy Knibs, Wayne Maxner, Jack Nairn and Howie Dietrich added the others as the Flyers moved within three points of the fourth - place Royals.

Howie Menard and John Gofton scored for Hamilton in the second period. Bob Wall and Bob Dean in the third.

At Montreal Yvon Cournoyer, Jacques Laperriere, John Taylor and Norm Dennis provided the Canadiens' margin while Lorne O'Donnell broke goalie George Holmes' bid for his fourth shutout from a goalmouth scramble late in the third period. Holmes stopped 29 drives compared with 24 by Peterborough's Chuck Goddard.

The Teepees were down 3-1 at Guelph but scored four unanswered goals in the third period. Ray Cullen, Phil Esposito and Fred Stanfield scored in addition to Speer. Dave McComb with two and Borden Smith tallied for Guelph.

Guelph, outshot 37-27, drew six of the 11 penalties.

Gets So Sick When Team Is Defeated

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) — The assistant trainer of British Columbia Lions told a county court judge Thursday he gets so sick when the team loses that he appears to be impaired.

But county court Judge Bruce Fraser imposed a $50 fine against Ernest Ferguson Stansfield for impaired driving.

Stansfield, 36, was arrested Nov. 5 after the Lions lost 43-7 to Calgary Stampeders in a Western Football Conference game at nearby Vancouver.

The trainer agreed with Judge Fraser that a banquet he attended after the game might be more accurately described as a wake.

"We lost by quite a margin," said Stansfield.

He admitted having four drinks of rye whiskey before and after the banquet.

The impaired charge had been dismissed by a police court magistrate and the case was appealed by the Crown.

Watch Out, Television, Here Comes Stan Freberg

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Watch out, television, here comes Stan Freberg.

The kookie character from Pasadena, Calif., makes his jump into TV with a special on ABC Sunday night. If there are any sacred cows in sight, they had better run for cover, Freberg being Freberg.

Stan is one of the ace lampooners in an era when sensitivities prevent free exercise of the art. His touch is sometimes heavy, but more often deft and delightfully irreverent.

Until now, his principal fame has been in records, notably St. George and the Dragonet and his raucous recounting of American history. Now he is transferring his touch to TV.

Critics will no doubt compare him to Ernie Kovacs, since the latter's loss is still fresh in mind. But the comparison is no more than superficial, each having his own nutty style.

Freberg showed me some of Sunday night's show and it appeared to have great promise. He was nervously editing the tape and said:

"This is the crucial time "My kind of show hovers between being extremely funny and a complete disaster. It could go either way."

Freberg is a TV pioneer—he was the original voice of Cecil the Seasick Sea Serpent. He has done guest shots but waited until now to do his own show.

Astrological Forecast

For February 4

By SYDNEY OMARR

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Unusual celestial phenomenon today finds five planets plus eclipse of Sun grouped in section of your chart ruling ability to move with the times. Today, broaden outlook. Listen and learn.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): No time to shirk responsibilities. Do duy in connection with home, community, church activities. Put aside personal ambition temporarily in favor of greater good. You will be amply repaid.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21): Great conjunction today falls in section of your chart dealing with long journeys, ideals, communicating, publishing. Basically, you should use day to communicate with loved ones. No more delay.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21): Now is time to outline plans for a new start in a new direction. Gather family, friends around—let them know what it is you desire. Help could be forthcoming. Security is key word. Go forward!

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21): Seek spiritual guidance . . . you will find that opposition melts. Take special care to make right impression. See situation as fluid one. Situation can change overnight . . . be prepared. And alert!

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Tendency to wear yourself out by trying to do too much. Finish one project before embarking upon another. Maintain sense of humor. If anyone comes up with dire predictions . . . see funny side.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Mass of planets is favorable aspect to your sign. Your vitality up . . . you can sell yourself to loved one or future employer. But take time out for attending spiritual side of life.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Trying to force your way through may cause emotional bruises. Instead, be willing to exchange views . . . and to modify your own claims. Could be valuable time for cementing permanent relationships.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Key word for you today is think. You can win your way through the toughest situation . . . if you take time to think. Take care during short trips. And try to stick close to your own home.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Big planetary build-up and Solar eclipse occurs in your section of chart related to personal possessions, income. Good day to take inventory . . . both spiritual and physical.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Much stress on your natal Sun; the Solar System puts on its greatest show to date in your sign. Take double precautions. Be honest with yourself. Express love. Be diplomatic.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): If you seek things to be afraid of, you very likely will find them. Instead, come to realization that you have great deal to offer . . . give of yourself. Toss away false modesty.

• • •

If today is your birthday . . . remainder of year should find you striving for harmony, love. You need this as a basis for future accomplishment. This month and October should prove oustanding. Once you make up your mind to accomplish something . . . very difficult to thwart you.

• • •

General Tendencies: With five planets in Aquarius plus an eclipse of the Sun . . . tendency is for general pressures which could result in the tearing down of the old, the established, in order to rebuild the new and modern. Much speculation on the subject of speculation itself.

Monday, February 5

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) — Tendency is to exaggerate, to build up incidents out of proportion. Take it calm, easy. Let others make strident claims, statements. By remaining "cool", you gain admiration.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20) —Now you can seek greater freedom of thought, action. Others will come to you for advice for friendship. Your pride is regained . . . you hold upper hand. Remain sympathetic . . . but authoritative

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) —Strike out on your own. Let others choose their own paths . . . your way is best for you. Advice from various quarters proves contradictory. Utilize powers of reason. Draw upon sense of humor. Stand pat.

Cancer (June 22 to July 21) —Too much concern about the past . . . about what might have been . . . could actually mar future opportunities. Resolve to be mainly concerned with the present . . . then the future. Go to it!

Leo (July 22 to Aug 21) — Spotlight may be tempting. But if you reach too far and too hard . . . you could be accused of being overbearing. Best to go easy . . . and to let others discover you. Keep eye on budget. Be diplomatic.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) —You could come into your own today by revealing some small, but important factor which was generally over-looked. Keep eyes, ears open. Do more listening than talking. Make future plans.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)— Restless urge dominates. Allow creative tendencies to hold sway . . . make changes, innovations. Excellent for self-expression, romance. Time to investigate probe, ask questions.

Scorpio Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — Emphasis on future security. There could be opportunity today to get something in black and white . . . which could benefit you greatly. Carelessness greatest enemy. Be alert, observant.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Could be very active day. Be willing, ready to make changes, take short journeys. Keep mind open . . . new information could be made available. Use it. Tendency to be stubborn about change.

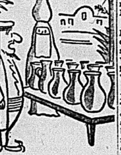
Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — This could be banner day. You are able to make moves which put financial house in order. Question of acting or waiting should be answered by action. Push hard . . . now! Avoid brooding.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Penty of attention in your direction. Much pressure . . the trick these days, for you, is to relax. Otherwise, you court trouble. Be willing to give of yourself. But also ask a fair return.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20)— Wonderful day for digging out old volumes, for writing to friend known in childhood . . . rediscover yourself. Take new action toward fulfillment of ambitions. Be independent, prideful. Think!

If today is your birthday . . . you often are accused of being "too deep". Tendency is for you to go into projects, subjects with complete abandonment. This leads others to believe that you are often "out of this world". This year finds you going through period of rediscovery. October outstanding month.

General Tendencies: Much that had passed for fact is apt to be challenged today. Science does a double-take. Cycle remains up for Capricorn, Aquarius, Pisces. Do not refuse to change with times.



"What's wrong with the one you've got on?"

PROPOSE BIG PROJECT

TORONTO (CP) — A downtown Toronto waterfront area project estimated to cost $150,000,000 was proposed Thursday by a Toronto group to the harbor commission. The project, which would cover 40 acres, calls for a marina, a 3,000-suite apartment block and a 1,000-unit motel on part of the present dock area.

Tod Sloan has a special reason for hoping the world amateur hockey championships come off as scheduled at Colorado Springs, Col., March 8-18.

They'll provide him with a unique opportunity to be a member of both the professional and amateur champions of the world within a 12-month period.

The veteran centre was with Chicago Black Hawks when they won the Stanley Cup last spring. Now, reinstated as an amateur, he's with Galt Terriers who will represent Canada in the international tournament.

The Slinker, who scored 220 goals and 262 assists in 12 seasons in the National Hockey League with Toronto Maple Leafs and the Hawks, is an obvious asset to the Terriers.

In eight games he picked up 11 goals, pretty impressive when you consider that he's just getting his hockey legs back after a long layoff.

PLAYS FOR FREE

The 34-year-old 175-pounder from Vinton, Que., was so eager to play in the world tournament that he made his services available to Galt without pay.

He's in the renovating business with his brother in-law in Toronto but readily returned to hockey just for travel costs—seven cents a mile — and the outside chance that he'll wind up with $7 or $8 a game after the tourney. That's a far cry from the $15,000 or more he got from Hawks last season.

In the face of such enthusiasm, it would be a shame if East Germany's visa problems were to result in withdrawal of the Russians, Czechs and Swedes from the competition.

GOT MCLEOD

Along with Sloan, they have acquired Jackie McLeod from Moose Jaw of the Saskatchewan League who joined them just before they took off on a three-game Maritime exhibition tour this week. McLeod is an old hand at world play, having topped the scorers with 10 goals as playing - coach with Trail Smoke Eaters when they won the world title last year.

Defenceman Harry Smith of Trail will join the Terriers at Colorado Springs. They've also got Jack Douglas from Chatham Maroons and Bill Mitchell from Windsor Bulldogs to strengthen them where they needed it most—on defence. The defence also will include Ted Maki and either Harry Neale or Bobby Robertson.

Butch Martin of Johnston Jets, Joe Malo of Chatham and Bobby Brown of Windsor are acquisitions to the forward lines that include Bill Wylie, Bob McKnight, Don Rope, Bobby Mader, Joe Hogan, Pete Kowalchuk, Sloan and McLeod.

Harold (Boat) Hurley, who played in the last Olympics with Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen, is in goal. The club also has Al Cullen but would like another netminder with more experience.

The Terriers, who play University of Toronto Blues in an exhibition game Feb. 6 and head west Feb. 13, had also hoped to pick up another former NHL star in Fleming Mackell. But they found he was still a pro and that the deadline for reinstatement was Jan. 1.

Don Larsen Is Member Of Giants

NEW YORK (AP) — Don (Perfect Game) Larsen, the fireballing right - hander San Francisco Giants acquired during the inter - league trading period in a major youth-for-experience swap, has signed for his 10th season in major league baseball.

Larsen, 32-year - old retread preparing to continue a successful comeback started with Chicago White Sox of the American League last season, signed with the Giants Friday.

The Giants, who traded young pitchers Ed Fisher and Dom Zanni and first - baseman Bob Farley to the White Sox for veterans Billy Pierce and Larsen, are counting on the six-foot-four hurler to be a big man in the bullpen.

With the White Sox, Larsen compiled an 8-2 won-lost record while appearing in 33 games, mostly in relief. He had spent a portion of the 1960 campaign in the minors following a dismal 1-10 record with Kansas City Athletics.

The former glamor boy of baseball reached the top perch in the baseball world when he pitched the only perfect game in world series history for New York Yankees against the old Brooklyn Dodgers in 1956.

Another signee Friday was Reno Bertoia, a reserve infielder for the American League Detroit Tigers. His signing was announced simultaneously with another announcement that Bertoia's wife had given birth to a daughter, Ruth Lynne, in Windsor, Ont.

Could Win Two

Halifax, Quebec Rinks Have Chance to Click

QUEBEC (CP)—Jacques Girard of Quebec Curling Club and Hugh Little of Halifax Mayflower were the only skips today with a chance to win more than one trophy in the 49th Quebec international bonspiel.

Both were eligible for one top prize and for the grand aggregate trophy—for the team that wins the most games.

Little was in the semi-finals of the bonspiel's championship playoffs and Girard, winner of the Chateau Trophy last year, won the Omega Trophy Friday night with a 15-7 victory in an all-Quebec final against Quebec Cambrai's Gaston Asselin.

The win left him with a record of seven wins and one loss.

Little, last year's runner-up in the bonspiel championship, entered the semis of the championship playoffs with a 10-6 victory over Oscar Parker of Oshawa, Ont., and had a string of seven victories, a loss, and two games to play.

OSHAWAN LOSES

In the Francois John Trophy, the third top event, D. A. Evans of Bradford, Ont., beat Parker 15-12 in the final.

Buchowski had to fight hard for his win in the Chateau.

He took an early 5-1 lead over Blackadder, but the Quebec rink went ahead 7-5 before Buchowski evened it 7-7 and went on to win.

Nels Findlay of Galt won the Holt - Renfrew Trophy for the second year in a row when he licked Dr. R. M. Pendrigh of Saint John, N.B. 14-6.

Other trophy winners:

Wen McLaine of Charlottetown beat Sam Weinmaster of Gravenhurst, Ont., 13-9 in the Cambrai Trophy finals.

Fred (Boots) Butorac of Kirkland Lake beat Fredericton's Alden R. Clark 12-3 in the Royal Bank Trophy finals.

Parker had gone into Friday's play with a record of six wins and one loss, equal to Little's record. But the losses to Little and Evans eliminated him.

Driving Habits Often Affect Oil Mileage

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Before convincing yourself that you're stuck with an oil burner, take a good look at some of the things which affect your buggy's thirst for engine lubricant.

Speed is a big factor. Believe it or not, a car will burn more than twice as much oil at 60 mph than at 40 mph.

No matter how good piston rings are, sudden deceleration — on hills for example — will cause oil to be sucked up into combustion chambers and burned off rapidly. Although not as common, loose spark plugs will have a similar effect.

A defective cooling system can cause the engine to run hot so that oil will be thinned out too much and thus burn off at an abnormal rate. Overchoking or an over-rich carburetor mixture will cause raw gas to get into the crankcase, diluting oil so that it burns off more rapidly.

And, of course, if you buy oil that's too light or of poor quality, don't expect to break any oil mileage records.

• • •

(A) Some tread designs will normally squeal. Other causes are underinflation or cutting wheels too sharply.

• • •

R.T. writes: "Last week, my car wheels became very hot and the mechanic who fixed them said my brakes were dragging. He didn't charge much and I'm not complaining, but the only information he offered was that a little dirt caused the trouble."

(A) The air vent in the brake master cylinder filler was probably clogged.

• • •

From A.McN.: "What do you mean — automatic transmission fluid leakage can be caused by careless filling? Do you mean using the wrong type?"

(A) No — the wrong amount. Overfilling will cause fluid to foam and break through oil seals.

• • •

L.C. writes: "After my engine has been running for 10 or 15 minutes, the oil pressure dash signal lights up whenever the engine idles. If low pressure is to blame, why doesn't the red light go on as soon as the engine is started?"

(A) Sounds like the oil is diluted and is thinning out too much when heated up, thus cutting pressure.

Senator Strom Thurmond May Be Choice of Rightists If Political Party Formed

Strom Thurmond of South Carolina is a leading Senate exponent of the right - wing view. In this third in a series of four stories on U.S. ultra - conservatives, his theories and background are examined.

By RELMAN MORIN

NEW YORK (AP) — Senator Strom Thurmond of South Carolina is an intense, nose-to-the-grindstone man with convictions that parallel, to a considerable degree, the doctrines of the many new groups on the far right.

"I'm not a member of the John Birch Society or any of those organizations," Thurmond says. "I understand they are against communism and I'm for any group that's against it."

Hence, the voluminous literature of the far right often quotes the Democratic senator. His mail bags bulge with applauding literature. He is in great demand by them as a speaker. If the hundreds of new rightist organizations ever unite and form a major political party, Thurmond might well be their first choice for president.

INQUIRY SET UP

Thurmond was the prime mover in the present Senate investigation into charges that U.S. military men have been "muzzeld" from speaking out against Communist influence in the United States.

This lies near the core of the beliefs that agitate the rightist groups and the senator.

They assert that Communists have infiltrated the federal government.

Thurmond says: "I'd just say it would be amazing if some of them hadn't gotten into positions in our government." But he prefers the term "silent socialists."

Working in the second echelons of government, he contends, "these people exert a tremendous and undue influence on policy."

SEEN AS CONSPIRACY

The far rightist sees a great conspiracy to deliver the United States into Communist bondage. Thurmond sees what he calls a "no - win policy," and he says left - wingers in government have sold President Kennedy on it.

The basic proposition of this policy, he says, is that the United States cannot win a total victory over the Communists in the cold war. His face flushes as he barks, indignantly, "Why not? Why should we start off with a defeatist proposition like this?"

Even more indignantly, he says a leftist - inspired "policy of paralysis" prevents the United States from taking action against the Castro regime in Cuba, and from having achieved a clear-cut victory in the Korean War.

"We could have won that war and we should have won it," he says. "But (former president) Truman wouldn't give (Gen. Douglas) MacArthur or the other American commanders the authority to win it."

"That was the state department policy — not to go ahead and win the war for fear it would antagonize somebody and spread to a bigger war. That's our policy today — don't do anything for fear of antagonizing somebody.

"We are trying to win a popularity contest in the world and instead losing the respect of the world."

SHARED BY MILITARY

Many U.S. military men share this view. Thurmond is a military man.

He volunteered for the army on the day the U.S. entered the Second War. He went in as a lieutenant of infantry and came out a lieutenant - colonel. He was wounded in Normandy on D-Day. He has 16 medals, decorations and awards for military service. He now is a major-general in the reserves.

In 1948, when southern Democrats split from the party over the civil rights issue in the platform, they chose Thurmond to be their candidate for president. He carried four states. He was elected to the U.S. Senate in 1954.

Nearing 60, he still resembles a fighting soldier. He is stiff-backed, with steely eyes and a chin like a rock. He neither drinks nor smokes. In his office, he exercises with a pair of barbells weighing 50 pounds.

Thurmond says he has no political ambition other than to stay in the Senate. But if the far right ever starts looking for a presidential candidate, his ideas, on the whole, would dovetail with theirs.

RULES VIOLATION

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The reading of the Christian Bible in Pennsylvania's public schools violates religious freedom, a federal court said Thursday in ruling a 1959 state Bible-reading law is unconstitutional.

The case was brought by Edward L. Schempp, a member of the Unitarian Church, who lives in suburban Roslyn. Two of his children attend Abington High School.

Pet Crow May Be Grounded By Legislation

KEWAUNEE, Wis. (AP)—Blackie, a pet crow, may gain the doubtful distinction of being grounded by legislation.

The Kewaunee city council is drafting an ordinance to prevent Blackie from leaving the home of her owner, Mrs. Paul Mutchow, and flying around this east-central Wisconsin community of 3,000.

Mrs. Mutchow raised the bird as a pet after it had dropped from a nest. Then it began to swoop around the city.

People at first chuckled at the familiar sight of Blackie but they soon became concerned when the bird stole clothing from wash lines, caps from the heads of youngsters and children's toys. In fact, Blackie picked up and took home just about anything that was brightly colored and movable.

Police Chief Lavern Gier wanted to make Mrs. Mutchow liable for her pet's escapades. She refused, pointing out that the city had an ordinance which controlled dogs — but none that covered crows.

The council then decided that it needed an ordinance to cover Blackie.

The writer of this weekly advice column is a 12-year-old boy. The advice he gives is strictly his own. It has not been changed by his parents or the editor. He welcomes letters from parents. If you want him to discuss your problems write to ASK HENRY, in care of this newspaper.

Dear Henry:—I hate staying in after school. When I am bad I would rather get the strap. My teacher has a strap but makes me stay in instead. How can I make him know I would rather be strapped.—LIKE THE STRAP BETTER.

Dear Like the Strap: — The best and only way not to stay in is to stay out of trouble.—HENRY.

Dear Henry:—I am a 9-year-old girl and my feelings are hurt easily. My sister has company almost every day and I get my feelings hurt because she leaves me out. I tell my mother but she says I have to learn to take it. What can I do?—BRENDA.

Dear Brenda:—Your sister doesn't want you tagging along. She has personal things to discuss. If your sister has guests, so can you. I hope I didn't hurt your feeling but your mother is right.—HENRY.

Dear Henry—I am 13 years old and I have a boy friend problem. I met this boy, whose name is Danny, skating one Saturday. Over the Christmas holidays I was with him all the time. On New Year's Day his friend Wayne took a liking to me. Wayne asked me to the show and Danny asked me too. I want to go with the both of them but they don't want that. Could you please tell me what to do.—WORRIED GIRL.

Dear Worried Girl:—If they don't want that, it's better you don't go with any this week. Next week go with the first one that asked. If wondering what you can say to the second caller, you just say: "This Saturday I am booked, but there is an opening on next Saturday."—HENRY.

Dear Henry—The majority of people I know think that the make-up of a child can be directly traced to their parents and the kind of homes they live in. I am not quite convinced about that as it is not difficult to find examples of great people who have risen from unhappy homes. What do you think?—A READER.

Dear Reader:—Much of the child's thinking is based on what he has heard and seen at home. But not all. If he doesn't know table manners, or says bad words in public, it is the parent's fault. If he is ambitious, courageous and has imagination, qualities that come from deep down inside, the home has nothing to do with it.—HENRY.

Dear Henry:—My son doesn't obey me. He gets mad and loses his temper. Should I hit him or try to understand him?—A MOTHER WHO GETS MAD.

Dear Mother Who Gets Mad:—You get mad and Jim gets mad. (A mad house.) Make a compromise. You try to understand Jim half way and in exchange Jim understands you half way, and I hope you meet in the middle.—HENRY.

3 Asphyxiated In Panel Truck Near Bancroft

Believed to Have Died Of Monoxide Fumes

BANCROFT — Believed to have been victims of asphyxiation as they rested in their panel truck after attempting to shovel the vehicle out of the snow, three L'Amable district men died some time late Sunday afternoon.

Dead are: Edward J. Parks, 43, of Detlor, owner and driver of the panel truck in which the three men were found; John Clifford Gaffney, 39, of Detlor, and Charles Edward Martin, 46, of L'Amable.

The three men were found in a sitting position in their truck on what is known as the Bush Road leading off 62 Highway in Limerick township, about 12 miles south of Bancroft.

Mr. Gaffney and Mr. Parks were both married, with Mr. Gaffney stated to be the father of five children. Mr. Martin was unmarried.

Provincial police at Bancroft who investigated the triple fatality, said the panel truck had apparently become stuck in the snow.

The three men had apparently attempted to shove the vehicle free and becoming tired from their exertions had gotten back into the truck to rest and keep warm when they were overcome by carbon monoxied fumes.

The three men had been working in the bush as pulpwood cutters and had come to Bancroft Saturday afternoon. It was believed they were on their way back to the bush when they became stuck in the snow.

The men were found about 7 o'clock Sunday evening. Mr. Parks was behind the wheel and the other two men in sitting positions beside him.

PENSION HIKE TO GET AIRING IN COMMONS

Debate Likely To Go on for Days

OTTAWA (CP) — The battle of the pension plans gets under way in the Commons today.

Up for debate is the government proposal to increase the old age pension to $65 a month from $55, in the form of a resolution preliminary to introduction of the actual legislation.

All parties represented in the Commons have been pushing their own old age pension plans—each involving an increase in the present $55 paid to all at age 70 and a new contributory feature.

Therefore the debate undoubtedly will feature a lot of comparisons. Pensions being a major platform plank of all parties, the debate opening today could be one of the most crucial for the parties in this preelection session. It likely will go on for days.

EXPECT ELECTION

Some observers, particularly those who lean to an early election, suggest the government may dissolve Parliament for a general election once the pension legislation goes through.

This will be the second increase in the pension by the Conservative government since it took office in 1957. The former Liberal administration instituted the universal old age pension, at $40 a month, in 1952. The Liberals increased it to $46 just before the 1957 election and the Conservatives boosted it by $9 to $55 later that year.

Officials have estimated that the $10 increase to $65 now proposed by the government will cost the federal treasury $120,000,000 annually.

The Liberal party unveiled a new pension plan Jan. 9, promising that if it were elected it would introduce a $20 supplement to the present $55, payable after one year during which contributions from employees and employers would be built up in a special contributory fund. The New Democratic Party program promises a basic old age pension of $75 a month to all at age 65, and a contributory plan on top of this.

ANNOUNCES INCREASE

A few days after the parliamentary session opened, Mr. Diefenbaker announced the government would increase the basic pension by $10 to $65 monthly. This prompted the Liberals to patch up their new pensions plank about a week later.

The Liberals now are promising that if elected they will pay a $10 monthly supplement to the $65 pension immediately legislation can be passed.

Former Health Minister Paul Martin, MP for Essex East, told the party's national council meeting Jan. 30 that the Liberals could make this new promise because the increase in the basic pension to $65 would come out of general tax revenues. Therefore, it would be unnecessary to wait a year while contributions for the pensions supplement were built up in the special contributory fund.

THREE ESCAPEES CAPTURED AFTER WILD CAR CHASE

Arms, Ammunition Found in Car

COOKSVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Three escaped prisoners were recaptured Saturday night after a wild car chase during which police fired three shots.

The men, Thomas Thompson, 24, Fred Segriff, 26, and Paul Mueller, 21, had escaped Monday from the minimum-security Joyceville institution near Kingston.

The chase began after a stolen car was spotted on Lakeshore Road by Toronto Township detectives William Teggart and William Snarr. Snarr was the man who arrested Segriff on the holdup charge for which he was serving five years.

As the police cruiser pulled abreast Snarr recognized Segriff. The stolen car sped away.

It went through 10 red lights before turning off onto a side street. The car skidded off the road and onto lawns, through hedges and fences, then struck a tree, bounced back onto the road and kept going.

The fleeing car then sped back along Lakeshore Road at speeds of up to 95 miles an hour, passing two westbound streetcars on the left.

When the chase reached a clear stretch of Highway 2 Teggart opened fire, two of his shots hitting the car. The car slowed down and Snarr rammed it with the cruiser.

Both officers suffered bruises in the collision.

Three .22 - calibre rifles and 400 rounds of ammunition were found in the stolen car

The men had escaped from Joyceville by sliding four stories down knotted bedsheets. Mueller was serving three years for breaking and entering and Thompson three years and eight months for robbery with violence.

Seven Secret Army Members Seized by Police in Paris

PARIS (AP)—Security officers announced today the arrest of seven secret army members caught with plans to overthrow the government. The development came as France awaited President de Gaulle's speech tonight on Algeria, which may touch off more violence.

Authorities said the arrest of the men, identified as members of the secret army's operational headquarters, was the most severe blow to date against the terrorist underground in France. The secret army is sworn to prevent Algerian independence.

At the same time, a bomb believd placed by the secret army damaged a television tower in the northern city of Lille. Transmission at Lille was not interrupted, however.

A bomb also blew in the doors and smashed windows at the regional administrative headquarters at Grenoble, in the Alps, and there were scattered outbreaks of violence in Algeria.

The blows of the secret army came despite elaborate security measures in both France and Algeria against violent reaction to de Gaulle's radio and TV speech. He is expected to make some report on progress toward

Thomson Willing to Release Snowdon if Wish of Family

LONDON (CP) — Canadian publisher Roy Thomson said Sunday night he would release the Earl of Snowdon from his job as artistic adviser to The Sunday Times "without demur" if there were any objections from the Royal Family itself.

During a television interview Thomson described himself as a monarchist who "would never do anything detrimental to the monarchy. He said it was not his idea originally to employ Lord Snowdon, husband of Princess Margaret, but that he agreed with it.

Lord Snowdon, formerly Antony Armstrong-Jones, took up his appointment with The Sunday Times—owned by Thomson—last week amid controversy over whether the Royal Family was being used for commercial purposes.

Thomson, interviewed by John Freeman, editor of the New Statesman, on the BBC's Face-to-Face" program, said he took Snowdon on his staff because he knew of "no other unemployed journalist" with his qualities.

The hiring of Snowdon was decided by the editor of The Sunday Times, Thomson said. "He has carte blanche to engage anyone he feels can improve the paper."

Thomson was asked whether he agreed that the royal family could only maintain its position if it was kept apart from controversy. He replied:

"I don't think, strictly speaking, that Lord Snowdon is in the immediate Royal Family."

On Snowdon's ability to handle the job—dealing primarily with The Sunday Times' new color supplement—the Canadian publisher said:

"I don't think his qualities are confined to being a photographer.

"I think he is a very talented young man. He is the type of

Rule Change Brings Life, Variety to House Debate

OTTAWA (CP) — An experimental rule change put into effect by the Commons this session is bringing new life and variety to the parliamentary day.

Although Parliament has been in session only a fortnight, debates on private members' resolutions and bills are producing greater variety of topics and greater participation by speakers.

Responsible is the rule change, which sets aside an hour every day for debate on the resolutions and bills of the back-bench MPs during a major part of a normal session.

Th rule has done away with the day-long, and often dreary, flow of words on a single topic that marked private members' debates of previous sessions.

Formerly, eight full days plus one hour on two weekdays were devoted to back-benchers' proposals. The result often was that only a dozen or so motions or bills ever came up for debate during a session. Scores of others on the order paper never saw the light of debate.

The new rule spreads the 40 debating hours of the old one-day debates over the first 13 or 14, weeks of the session. For the remaining weeks, an hour on two days a week is allotted as in the past.

In conjunction with this rule change, another was put into effect reducing to 20 minutes from 30 the time allowed each speaker. For some unexplained reason, MPs who used to think nothing of taking their full 30 minutes now are taking less than the permitted 20 with the result that more speakers get a chance to advance their viewpoints in the hour.

It seems probable that, given a session as long as the 160-day average of the last two, there will be a far greater number of topics discussed.

So far there have been six private members' hours with six different topics, ranging from hospital sweepstakes to the national flag issue, with 35 speakers participating.

Votes on private members' proposals are rare. They generally are "talked out" in the hour allotted. This drops them to the bottom of a long list of resolutions and bills, bringing up a new debating topic the next day.

A big gainer under the new rule is the private member's resolution on which debate was infrequent under the old rule. Back-benchers' bills were debated more frequently than resolutions.

Now resolutions get two-thirds of the 40 one-hour debating periods.

Government legislation now can be brought up for study earlier in the session because the full-day debates, which all came in the opening weeks of previous sessions, have been eliminated.

Evil Serpent Rahu Swallows Sun But Calamities Fail to Follow

NEW DELHI (AP) — Serpent Rahu had his fun but the world remained intact today.

"Doomsday weekend" passed without the horrible calamities predicted by Hindu soothsayers that sent millions of frightened Indian and Nepalese believers to prayer meetings.

Th evil Rahu "swallowed the sun" as predicted. But things came back to normal after an eclipse lasting about three minutes.

Hindu astrologers had predicted great calamities when six planets — Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn and Earth —moved into conjunction with each other and the sun and the moon during the wekend, something that happens only every century or two.

For astronomers it was an intriguing scientific phenomenon. But for millions who believe in the influence of the stars it was frightening. And some fear the worst may still come.

Keith Robertson, director of Britain's 1,000-member Aetherius Society, spent a cold and rainy night with scores of his followers atop a mountain praying and came down to warn:

"I believe that very soon the world will do a 'big flip' when the poles will change places with the equator. And mind you when the 'big flip' comes, 75 per cent of the world's population will be killed."

The path of the eclipse lay over the South Pacific. "It was so dark I could not see the numbers on my camera," said Jim Huxley, editor of the New Guinea Times.

Dogs barked, roosters crowed and native Papuans on the island hid in their huts until the sun shone again.

Indian Airlines operated one flight to Bombay without a single passenger and other planes in the area flew almost empty.

Thousands of Nepalese took shelter in tents.

TRADE DEFICIT OF $36,600,000 SEEN IN NOV.

Drive for Trade Surplus Slowed

OTTAWA (CP) — Record-breaking imports last November slowed down the country's drive towards a trade surplus last year.

Imports in the month outpaced exports for a $36,600,000 trade deficit, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today. A trade surplus, accumulated in the first 10 months of the year, was trimmed to $27,000,000.

Government spokesmen, including Trade Minister Hees, have estimated that the year ended with a commodity trade surplus. Final official figures won't be available for another month.

Exports in November totalled $540,200,000, an increase of 13.6 per cent from the 1960 level of $475,700,000. There was a gain of nearly 20 per cent in sales to the United States.

But the record high of $576,800,000 in November imports—up 12.3 per cent from a year earlier—produced the month's deficit.

BLAME DOLLAR DROP

Exports for the first 11 months of 1961 rose eight per cent to $5,350,400,000 from $4,953,800,000 in the corresponding period of 1960. Imports were 5.2 per cent higher at $5,323,400,000 compared with $5,062,200,000.

The 11-month trade surplus of $27,000,000 compared with a $108,400,000 deficit in the like period of 1960.

The bureau said part of the increased export and import values reflects the reduced foreign exchange value of the Canadian dollar. This reduction has resulted in a higher price—in Canadian dollar terms — for imports and a larger Canadian dollar return for exports sold for U.S. dollars and other foreign curency.

Station Plans Readings From Blue Book

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Radio station KPFK, which plans to broadcast readings from the blue book of the John Birch Society, says it was warned by an anonymous caller:

"If you Commies broadcast the blue book, we're gonna bomb you out of business."

And the wife of actor Robert Ryan said someone called their home Sunday and warned "something might happen" to Ryan if he participated in the readings. Ryan is in Europe. His reading already is recorded on tape.

Mrs. Ryan hired two guards to watch her home.

KPFK, a listener - supported station which carries no commercials, said it will begin a week-long series of programs about the Birch Society tonight. The blue book, a primer of the society, will be read by Hollywood personalities and sections will be discussed after each reading.

The homes of two San Fernando Valley ministers, one a Lutheran and one a Unitarian, were bombed Thursday night while they participated in a panel discussion of right-wing movements at a Jewish synagogue in the Westwood section of Los Angeles. The bombs did not cause serious damage and no one was injured. The bombers have not been apprehended.

See Canada-U.S. Split On Cuban Trade Widening

U.S. Freeze May Reduce Cuban Purchases Here

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States plans to step up its diplomatic offensive against Cuba while attempting to choke off the flow of U.S. dollars to Premier Fidel Castro's regime. One result may be a widening Canada-U.S. split on Cuban policy.

A U.S. trade freeze, which President Kennedy announced Saturday, goes into operation Wednesday, designed to reduce Castro's financial ability to export revolution in the western hemisphere.

But its main effect may be to reduce Cuban trade with Canada and other Western countries.

Cuba has been using some of her U.S. dollar earnings to increase purchases from Canada. This source of earnings, largely through the sale of tobacco, will be dried up under the extended U.S. embargo, forbidding imports not only of tobacco but all other Cuban products.

Sales to Cuba were banned last year with the exception of food, medicine and medical supplies which will be continued.

CANADA BALKS

The U.S. has indicated it would like to see Canada and other countries impose similar embargoes on Cuba but Canada has refused to go along, with the exception of arms and other strategic goods.

Canada believes in reducing the impact of Communist propaganda in Latin America by raising living standards.

While Kennedy is trying to do something along these lines the issue has become charged with emotion in the U.S. and patience with Castro appears to be wearing thin.

Cuba still does important trading not only with Canada but with Britain, West Germany and Japan.

These countries have a major stake in Kennedy's proposals before Congress to engage in big reciprocal tariff reductions. The Americans may hint to their allies that Congress might be grateful if their attitude on Cuba was more in line with U.S. objectives.

Says Kingston's Slum Problem Is Ignored

KINGSTON (CP) — Kingston people largely ignore the matter of public welfare and shut their eyes to the fact the city has a serious slum problem, J. Allan Judd, director of the Kingston Children's Aid Society, told a Unitarian fellowship meeting Sunday night.

"Kingston people are reluctant to spend more time on the less fortunate," he said. "It's difficult to find people to serve on board committees. It's just as difficult to get public acceptance of auxiliary services."

Mr. Judd said such services include visiting homemakers service, a small detention home for children not delinquent but not wanted, more foster homes, Big Brother and Big Sister organizations, school social worker, family service bureau.

Mr. Judd said:

"Kingston has some of the worst slums in Canada. People know they are here, but they hide the fact to themselves. . ."

West in Grip of New Cold Wave After Blizzard Sweeps Prairies

SASKATOON (CP) — Clear, cold weather settled over the Prairies today in the wake of a blizzard that raced through parts of the area during the weekend.

The blizzard struck hardest in the Saskatoon area, where it was the worst in seven years. Drifts were four to eight feet high.

The storm raged on a 100-mile-wide front through Whitecourt, Edmonton and Vermilion in Alberta, Saskatoon and Yorkton in Saskatchewan, and then into southern Manitoba.

The storm resulted in snowfalls of 9½ inches at Edmonton, 13 inches at Saskatoon and five inches at Winnipeg. The heaviest fall, 17 inches, was recorded at Whitecourt, 100 miles northwest of Edmonton.

No fatal accidents were reported. A bus and dozens of motorists were stalled overnight from Saturday to Sunday in an area about 30 miles north of Saskatoon.

A. F. G. Carroll, Saskatoon city engineer, estimated it will take two weeks to dig the city out of the drifts that block lanes and streets.

The blizzard followed a warm spell on the Prairies in which temperatures soared well above normal and featured a 59 at Medicine Hat Saturday, six degrees higher than the previous Feb. 3 high in 1931.

Drivers Warned Against Driving Close to Plows

A grave warning to motorists was issued today by the Department of Highways, Ontario, following a series of collisions, which have taken place this winter between motorists and department snow plows. Forty-two of these accidents have occurred since the start of the winter. Last week, a man was killed when the truck he was driving hit a snow plow and overturned it on Highway 401, near Port Hope.

"There is no explanation for the sudden rash of snow plow accidents," says Hugh Adcock, Chief Highways Engineer of the Department of Highways, "the plows and sanders travel very slowly and during periods of poor visibility, motorists should remember that lurking ahead in a storm on a highway there is likely to be one of our plows."

The well-known, powerful flashing blue light which the plows cary in front and behind, is often only visible at short distances in snow storms.

On four-lane highways plows sometimes work in tandem, the lead plow on the left and the other trailing approximately 800 feet behind it, clearing the righthand lane. Trucks and other large vehicles must allow for cutting between the two plows. Several accidents have occurred through trucks clipping the side of the lead plow.

Other accidents have been caused by motorists failing to realize the slowness of the plow ahead and hitting the rear end of it.

In some cases the plows have been stopped suddenly by a heavy drift and the car behind has been too close to pull up safely.

Often, the wind, coupled to the snow blown from the plow obscures visibility behind the plow for some distance, says the Department of Highways.

"The situation is one which motorists must be alerted for," says Adcock, "and we, in turn, will do everything in our power to avert all possible danger.

Around The Tee

One of the better games of curling was played over the weekend and a mild upset occurred when a rink of Ben Corke, Al McCallum, Cec Kirkwood and Tom Carruthers defeated Dr. McCorquodale, Dave Brown, William Riley and Mac White for the right to represent the Quinte Curling Club in the British Consuls playoffs to be held at Kingston this Wednesday. At present there are seven rinks entered and Gananoque has drawn a bye in the first round. The Belleville entry will play an RCAF rink of H. Latreille, Dick Frampton, Grant McCauley with Bill Lewis as skip in the first round at 9.30 a.m. It will be a knockout draw.

Getting back to the game played at the local rink. The rinks had played two games, each winning one game and this was the final.

The rinks battled up to the 8th end all even at 6-6. Carruthers went ahead by two in the seventh, when he took out the shot rock of White's and then won the second shot on a measurement. Bill Rilley killed pair on the eighth but Carruthers cleaned the house. White drew behind a long guard and when Carruthers missed with his last stone, White drew to the button for two to even the count. On the ninth end, White scored one but in the tenth, Carruthers with his last rock split a pair of opposition rocks taking both out and laying for shot. He also had two 'bites' which gave him a count of three and a 9-7 win.

The White rink won their way into the Ontario finals at Ottawa last year and here's hoping the Corke rink will make it to Owen Sound for the finals this year. Mr. Corke is skipping the rink and playing lead stone, while Tom Carruthers is throwing last rock. Al McCallum is second stone and Cec Kirkwood is delivering third rocks.

The beautiful Dunlop Rubber Tire Company trophy, replicas and accompanying prizes will have a place in the trophy case of the Quinte Curling Club for the next year. On Saturday a rink of Dr. McCorquodale, Dave Duffy, Bill Riley with Charles Lovett as skip journeyed to Whitby and brought home the trophy. They had three tough games defeating Clare Rich of Whitby 15-3 in the first game, Jack Beaton of Whitby in the second 12-7 and the third from Bob Michael of Oshawa 9-8. The rink won the trophy by one point over a rink from Unionville.

The hospitality and prizes were outstanding said one member of the rink and due to the popularity of the spiel 55 rinks were turned down. Only 24 rinks competed and next year it is planned to run the spiel for three days to accommodate a large entry. Rinks from the Quinte Club are no soft touches when they go after the prizes at outside spiels.

young man we are anxious to have in our business."

Freeman, noted for his blunt questions on the program, also prodded Thomson on several other points.

"Would you agree the major purpose of your life so far is making money?" Freeman asked.

"Yes, completely," was the reply.

Thomson, who controls nearly 100 newspapers on four continents, said most—but not all—of his papers make money.

Some unprofitable ones, such as one evening paper in Florida and some British morning papers, are kept going because the Thomson organization thinks this is in the best interest of the public.

Freeman mentioned the anti-integration stand taken by some of Thomson's Florida publications and suggested: "You are prepared to make a profit out of something you consider morally wrong."

Thomson said it is up to the editors and local publishers in each region to judge what is in the best interests of that region.

SEVEN

ending the seven-year Moslem rebellion in Algeria.

In Paris a plastic bomb, favorite weapon of the secret army, exploded in front of the apartment of a journalist. No one was injured, but damage was considerable.

Guards were increased around the Paris city hall, post offices and a building containing television network offices.

French authorities said the seven members of the secret army were five officers and two lawyers. Among them was a retired colonel. None is well known. They were arrested while meeting in an apartment building on the Avenue Franklin-Roosevelt in downtown Paris Saturday night.

FIND DEATH LIST

Authorities said documents seized included a list of police officers to be assassinated before the launching of an anti-government plot. National security police who studied the documents have begun a series of follow-up investigations.

Thousands of riot police, 32 tanks, 100 squad cars and light armored vehicles waited on the outskirts of Paris. Troops took over strategic positions in key Algerian cities to counter the threat of an uprising by the underground Secret Army Organization of Europeans fighting to keep Algeria French.

For days high sources have leaked the word that secret negotiations between de Gaulle and the Algerian rebels toward a cease-fire are well advanced. But few observers believed the time had arrived for announcing a peace settlement.

There was growing speculation that de Gaulle will express guarded optimism about prospects for an Algerian settlement.

He is also expected to denounce the rightist secret army and make another call for support by declaring his Fifth Republic, which grew out of the Algerian crisis, has brought the country stability and prosperity.

One of the secret army's favorite tactics is to sabotage radio and TV transmitters during important government broadcasts and then run in secret army broadcasts on the same frequency.

A heavy guard was posted on the base of the Eiffel Tower, which has an important television relay installation atop it, and guards were doubled around radio and TV installations in Algeria.

Leaders of the Algerian rebel government were meeting in Tunis to study rports of its emissaries, who for the last two months have held secret sessions with the French on a cease-fire and steps toward independence after 131 years of French rule.

Chinese Throng Streets Outside Peking's Gates

PEKING (Reuters) — Tens of thousands of Chinese thronged the streets outside Peking's Gate of Peace today as the toy bazaar returned to its traditional place in China's spring festival.

The bazaar, held for centuries, was dropped without explanation last year but today big balloons and multi-colored banners and slogans hailed the opening of the Year of the Tiger.

Families wearing their brightest clothes crowded the streets in the warm sun or attended special theatre, movie and circus performances. Firecrackers popped throughout the city as children used up those left over from Sunday night's New Year's Eve parties.

White's Rink Wins Spiel At Local Club

Sixteen rinks from the Quinte and outside clubs enjoyed a one-day spiel at the local club on Saturday and Mac White, with 'Bud' Drury, Fred Deacon and Abe Tobe won the event with a score of 49 points. Another three-game winner was Ed Woodward, Jim Coverdale, Orva Mussel with A McCallum, as skip, of the Quinte Club with a score of 45.

The two-game winner was a rink of Jack Olaveson, W. Spinelli, Ernie Jones with Ken LaPalm, skip, also from the Quinte rink, with a score of 31. The one-game winner was also a local rink of Ernie Wilkinson, Jack Murphy, Art Bannon with Don McNevin as skip with a score of 21, while a Cobden rink skipped by Howard Moffatt took the consolation.

There were eight rinks from RCAF, Trenton, Kingston Curling Club, Kingston Ontario Hospital, Napanee and Cobden and eight rinks from the local club in play.

Murray Johnson, in his usual fine manner, conducted the draw and the boys had an excellent day of curling. The members of the women's section served light lunches and a full course meal and ample justice was done all the good things provided. These one-day spiels throughout the district are becoming quite popular and no doubt members of the Quinte Club will be in action on many Saturdays from now until the end of the season.

At the conclusion of the games the prizes were distributed and a social hour spent before the boys wended their way homeward, tired but happy. On the 24th of this month a mixed spiel with outside rinks will be held and the members are requested to enter their rinks as it is expected this spiel will not take long to fill up.

Guild Presents Two Classics, Old and Modern

The workshop blossomed out in two productions designed for what it achieved — an evening of dramatic contrasts.

Presented for public viewing were "A Marriage Proposal" by Anton Chekov and Samuel Beckett's "Krapp's Last Tape"

The Chekov play, a brief romp in farce indulged in by the Russian master of theatre, proved a full-flavored pastiche for the curtain-raiser. Phil Flagler, Bill Goldie and Lorna Prins, as the three members of the cast, played the situations for all they were worth, achieving a climax of breathless hilarity.

The setting of this classic was lifted from its original interior and set outdoors by director Harry Mulhall and the change was effective. It gave not only wider scope for business, but allowed designer Nora Butler full play for colorful sets.

The cast was markedly efficient in the technique most important to this play-pacing. Notable was the final scene where all the cast hit a peak of delightful lunacy.

The final production of the evening saw the first presentation in this region of Ontario of another classic, this time of modern theatre.

STORY OF DECAY

"Krapp's Last Tape" is the story of human decay—mental and physical. The quiet terror of the piece is one that demands much not only of the actor, but the audience. Its psychological impact is tremendous as any who saw its production here will readily testify.

Such a play can only be presented one way—well, there is no out for amateurishness. For 45 minutes Harry Mulhall as Krapp held the stage alone, equipped only with a tape-recorder, and involved his audience in a traumatic exploration.

At once set in the present and the past it forces the spectator to involve himself in his own future.

Mr. Mulhall's presentation of the aging Krapp, directed by Margaret Jardine, was all the more effective for its restraint. Again, designer Norah Butler set the theme perfectly. The lighting, by Ted Kuchta and Roger Greig, was keyed well to the mood of this modern classic.

Overall, the workshop, although viewed by small audiences, was a notable presentation for the Guild now in the midst of rehearsing a festival play for production in coming weeks.

School's Initial Effort At Variety Show Success

With all the trepidation that must inevitably accompany the opening of any show and especially a first-time effort, the performance of Moirantics held at the Moira Secondary School got off to a good start last Friday evening. When the final curtain was rung down to the applause of a thoroughly and well-entertained audience it was evident that the school's initial effort to present a well-rounded variety show was indeed a success.

A high degree of originality and hard work was evident throughout the many acts by both individeul performers and by group presentations. From the opening number by the Glee Club right through to the final, full-cast, closing chorus the production maintained a steady pace of light entertainment.

Opening with 'Hi Neighbor' the Glee Club cast any possible suspicions of a weak variety show down the drain. Although there was a lack of deep-voiced males in this choir, the sopranos and altos combined to produce a different but excellent sound in choral singing.

One dab of originality in the program was provided by a group of girls demonstrating their calisthenics routine. Their simple costumes of black leotards stressed their perfectly timed movements.

Ralph Boomhower, featured in a trampoline routine, managed to draw gasps of exclamation from the audience as he deftly went through his daring but skillful number. The quality of the other performers was also high.

MANY ANIMATED SKITS

The fast-moving program of Moirantics kept its pace because of many animated skits that popped up every now and then. The composition and delivery of the scripts strengthened the potential of these anecdotes, although in some spots stronger material would have led to an even better performance.

Iris Sexsmith effortlessly sang "He" and "It's A Most Unusual Day." For a girl of her age, she possesses a very mature, mellow voice.

The next act had a dramatic beginning - - - the continual strumming of the drummers reminded one of the cold notes thumped out on a battle field. Then the precision squad made their entrance and carried through a well-polished and entertaining drill.

Obviously Jackie Cook has had many years of experience in performing. Her tap dance routine emphasized the control that she has over her body.

The modern dance routine by the Moira cheerleaders was an almost professional display of a precise, well-rehearsed number.

The unusual black and white costumes were also an interesting feature of this performance.

NUMBER STOOD OUT

The Brant Boys rock and roll number stood out also. Playing 'Walk Don't Run' and 'Sleepwalk', they delivered a superb performance which easily equaled that of any paid recording artist.

Pat Lovett provided a refreshing interlude of culture as she played Chopin's C sharp minor Waltz.

To finish the show, the Glee Club, backed by the full cast sang a medley of goodbye songs.

In addition to the above numbers the display of talent Friday night ran from baton routines to vocal solos. Anecdotes colored the program with humor while ballet and waltzing numbers provided an agreeable break from the other brisk rapid dances such as the Charleston, the jive and the square dance. A well-acted pantomime and a light dashing piano solo contributed even further to the variety of the show.

Separate School Parents Complain of Supervision Of Children at Lunch Hour

TRENTON — A delegation of parents whose children attend St. Peter's separate school in Trenton, came before the Trenton separate school board Sunday afternoon to demand that something be done about the present system of keeping the school doors locked until just before school opens in the morning; locking the school up at noon and closing the school before the bus which transports out-of-town students to their homes, arrives at night.

Parents claim that the children, some of whom arrive by bus shortly after eight o'clock in the morning, are kept outside, no matter what the weather conditions are, until almost nine o'clock. Then, say the parents, the children, who must take their lunch, are rushed through the noon-day meal and put outside to play. The irate parents allege that the doors to the school are then locked and remain locked until afternoon classes commence. Board members were told that many children became soaked through by rain or snow and sat in their seats throughout the afternoon in this condition, then wait outside, for more than an hour, in near-zero temperatures, for the bus to arrive at night.

"If we don't get some action in a week", said one parent, "I will take my child out of this school."

Her sentiments were echoed by others in the group.

Dr. J. V. Byrne, chairman of the board, explained that this was a seemingly insolvable problem. The board is faced with a teaching staff, which, some time ago, indicated its unwillingness to spend the extra time necessary to supervise the children in out-of-school hours. Even if adequate supervision were assured, playroom area in the school itself, already bursting at its seams, is at a premium.

200 BRING LUNCH

"More than 200 students bring their lunch," said the chairman, "It's not part of the teacher's job to provide supervision for the entire lunch hour. The children are supervised at their lunch period, which takes up to half an hour and then they are put outside to play. Two hundred children could do a great deal of damage to the school if they were allowed inside at noon or any other time without supervision."

One member of the delegation, Mrs. J. A. Graham, said that the children often become thirsty and cannot get into school to get a drink of water. She said that she had seen one child dipping out holy water in the church and that three children had been playing on top of the altar at the same time.

"The children should not be encouraged to go into the church to get warm," said Mrs. Graham, "We can always get another school but we can't get another church." (St. Peter's Church stands beside the school.)

Mrs. Graham contended that the children are not supervised in the playground. She said that if a child were hurt, he or she would be unable to get help.

"What if that atomic bomb they talk about fell?" queried Mrs. Graham, "Our children wouldn't know what to do if a warning siren sounded.

Another delegate, Sidney Vickers, said that the children could not even get inside to go to the washroom.

A suggestion that older students could perform monitor duty was vetoed by the chairman. Dr. Byrne said that supervision must be provided by an adult.

Another suggestion, advanced by Len McGaughey, that a film could be shown in the gymnasium during the lunch hour, was vetoed also, as the gym is set up with lunch tables and is also used as a music room.

Rev. J. G. Clancy, who attended the meeting, said that he felt the situation was "mushrooming" out of all proportion.

OFFER ACCEPTED

Father Clancy said that he had encountered the same problem in a former parish and that it had been solved through the co-operation of the board with the teaching staff.

In an effort to give the board members time to investigate the situation and explore ways and means of solving the problem, William Menzies offered to supervise the lunch hour periods this week, He asked that two doors to the school be left open and that the children be free to come and go. Jack Graham, another member of the parents' delegation, will supervise lunch hour periods next week.

Dr. Byrne said that the board would be happy to accept these offers, and that while he "wasn't making any rash promises," the problem of supplying a system of supervision for off-school hours would be investigated.

"There's no use of getting angry about this," said Dr. Bryne, "We haven't come up with the answer yet, but we'll meet again in two weeks' time and the board will report."

Dr. Bryne said that at least 45 children were attending the school whose parents do not go to the trouble of seeing that their school tax allowance goes to the separate school.

"We don't want to deny any child a good Catholic education," he said.

Dr. Byrne was asked why a school guard could not be provided for the Queen-King Street crossing and he said that this would have to be taken up with town council. Dr. Byrne also said that the school board could take no steps to provide a bus for students who come in from the Wooler Road area. He said that the school grant would not provide for this transportation.

Dr. Byrne told the group that the school inspector, E. J. Neville, had recommended a two to four-room addition to St. Mary's school on the east side of the river. Floodlights will be placed on three sides of this school to discourage vandalism.

John Young, 94, Recalls When Town a Swamp

TRENTON — Today, John Young, York Road in Trenton, is 94 years old.

Mr. Young, who can recall when "Trenton" was barely more than a cedar swamp, was born on what is now the William Black farm, on the Carrying Place Road. His mother was Catherine Weaver and his father, John Young.

As a young man, Mr. Young worked as a dredge operator for the late Robert Weddell and his father. In fact, four of the Young boys (there were 11 children in the family), operated dredges at one and the same time for the Weddells. Many of the waterways in the Quinte area were cleared out, deepened or widened by the dredging efforts of the Youngs.

Besides dredging. Mr. Young has worked for 50 years as a farmer, specializing in apple farming.

Mr. Young has been married twice; his late wives being Comfort Potts of Smithfield, and a Mrs. Montgomery of Hilton, who died six years ago. Still living are Mr. Young's brother Wallace of Portage La Prairie and his sister, Mrs. Ethel Sutherland of Toronto, who is in her 70s, and has just embarked on a trip around the world.

Since his retirement from farming, Mr. Young has made his home with his cousin, Reeve Douglas McMaster of Murray township.

ENJOYED IT ALL

"Sure I've had a long life," says Mr. Young, "but I've enjoyed every minute of it. I've seen a lot of changes hereabouts, mind you. I can remember when Trenton wasn't much more than a mudhole. I've lived in Murray township all my life and I've always voted Tory."

Mr. Young has one complaint, however.

"There just aren't any horses anymore," he says. "Everything is mechanized. I've always loved horses. I like to go up to the Toronto Ex. and I make straight for the stables where they keep the horses."

Mr. Young, who is in the best of health, takes an active interest in the world of 1962. He keeps up with the latest political news from Ottawa through the newspapers; listens to the radio and watches television programs. He particularly likes dance programs on TV. "I've always been very fond of dancing," he says.

Hees Is Right

The Hon. George Hees' address at the Chamber of Commerce's annual meeting was an unusual one. The federal Minister of Trade and Commerce did not engage in political sallies, which would be most understandable in view of the current election-pending atmosphere, nor did he engage in any double-talk or pacifying platitudes. His refusal to do is very much to his credit.

Instead he said that everything was going to be just as rosy and comfortable in the future as we cared to make it, through our own hard work. Strange talk, indeed, in an era in which most everyone is expecting the government to subsidize his every action and provide for his every need.

Mr. Hees put an "if" into his statement when he said that 1962 was going to be one of the best years for Canada and that there would be greater employment. That "if" might have been pulled from the word "life," for it was an active life which Mr. Hees was prescribing for all Canadians if they were to realize this better life ahead.

There is a great deal of value in his thinking In the world of today, there is a desperate need especially for Canadians who have prospered long and well under the aegis of the Commonwealth and of the United States, to realize that those who sit on their "you know what" (to use Hees' phrase) cannot move forward.

So many have achieved this status whilst at the same time they have enjoyed the fruits of others' labors that it has been accepted as the status quo by too many Canadians of both the younger and older generations. Too many have been content to reap the harvest of the seeds planted by their predecessors and have not made any significant effort to sow a few seeds themselves excepting, perhaps, the wild oats variety.

The time is overdue for Canadians to realize that to reap we must sow and that this sowing process must be a continuing one if we are even to maintain our present level of life. This is certainly even more applicable if we ever hope to advance.

Mr. Hees' words were hard words, perhaps, but they were as honest as they were hard. Perhaps if the country's leaders were to cast aside the politician's cloak of entangled verbiage for the pioneer's garb of simple but forthright action, the people of the nation would realize how precarious our position is and get down to work for the benefit of all, without worrying and fretting about the privileges of a few.

Out of all the tumult heard around and about Parliament Hill, Mr. Hees' voice is one that strikes a sound note and we hope that it will not be lost in the wilderness out of which we Canadians must pull ourselves.

Why No Net?

Those who love a circus—and who does not?—ought to be searching their consciences.

This is the question each should be asking himself or herself: "Was I an accomplice before the fact in the deaths of Dietter Schepp and Richard Faughnan?"

Schepp and Faughnan were members of the famous Wallendas, a family high wire troupe. They fell to their deaths in Detroit Tuesday night, hurtling to the sawdust-covered concrete of the Coliseum.

A net would have saved them. A hastily-rigged net saved the life of Schepp's sister, 17-year-old Jana, who was held dangling by the Wallendas clinging perilously to a wire, while attendants turned a tumbling mat into a makeshift net onto which she could be dropped.

But there was no time to rig a net for the two who died.

There was, of course, lots of time to rig a net before the Wallendas went aloft. But no net was rigged. The reason? There is only one—it would have reduced the "thrill" for members of the audience.

The fact that the Wallendas and other aerialists display amazing balance high in the air is only part of their attraction. The other part is that they "defy death." Death cannot be indefinitely defied with impunity. The price was paid by two men in Detroit.

Isn't it time circus-going audiences should demand that the graceful and skilled men and women who thrill them cease defying death and safeguard their lives with nets?

Be always displeased with what thou art, if thou desireth to attain to what thou art not; for where thou has pleased thyself, there thou abidest. But if thou sayest, I have enough, thou perisheth. Always add, always walk, always proceed. Neither stand still, nor go back, nor deviate.—Augustine.

'Badness' As Explained To Children

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

How does one explain "badness" to a small child? Badness, that is, in the adult world. It is not an easy problem to handle, by any means.

A child can understand naughtiness in children; it is because they are young and inexperienced and "their brains are still small." But how do you explain about adults who rob, rape, kill and lie and make the world a nightmare of confusion for children who are old enough to read?

Perhaps my own solution to this vexing question may be of some use to other parents. I explain to the children that "bad" adults are those who grew up without enough love, or with the wrong kind of love.

This is not the whole truth, of course; but it contains enough truth to give the child a valid insight into the dynamics of personality.

When a child is provided with enough of the right sort of love, a certain confidence is instilled within him, a certain trust is generated within his nature. Whatever problems he has he can work out within this firm framework of inner security — he will not need to project them upon the outer world.

The robbers, rapers and killers are venting their early frustrations upon the world — are "getting back at" society for what it failed to give them in their early years.

Even the less extreme cases — the mean people, the deceivers, the liars, the closed and embittered natures — are explainable to children by this same recipe. They are taught to be wary of such people, but sympathetic at the same time. They recognize that growing up "underprivileged" is more of an emotional than an economic state.

And, of course, not getting enough love (understanding love that is) lies at the roots of most personality disorders. There is evil in the world — in a metaphysical sense which children cannot grasp — but much of what we call "badness" in people is the thwarted ability to give and receive love. The lines of emotional communication have become clogged at an early age.

When the children ask — as they do so often these days — why adults continue to have wars and to do all the things that children are prohibited from doing, the only honest answer we can give is that most adults have not grown up properly, and they have not grown up properly because their parents did not love them creatively and intelligently.

Nor are their parents to "blame" — for they themselves were suffering from the same lack; it is in this psychological sense that "the sins of the parents are visited upon the children." For if we do not know how to love those closest to us, how can we possibly love our neighbors?

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

PICK-UP DAY

Pick-up day comes about once every three weeks according to my schedule. That is a day of errands to be run. Books must be returned to the library and borrowed articles to anyone from whom we have borrowed them. The phone call which should have been made long ago must be made that day. Letters must be written. It was only a ten dollar check, but how could I forget to cash it? I have carried it now until its about falling to pieces. Wonder if the bank will accept it? And so we go again and around furiously. Then when the day is over the desk looks a little better (or at least it should), the bank accounts balance. We breathe more deeply and with an easier conscience because certain neglected matters have been attended to.

Pick-up day — and aren't we glad to get through with it! There are pick-up days, or at least pick-up periods in our spiritual lives. Once in a while we need to look at ourselves and ask the question, "What does God think of me anyway?" We need to stop once in a while and reflect on the divine truths set forth in the Bible. We need to say to ourselves, "We have done those things which we ought not to have done and we have left undone those things we ought to have done." Then we need to become specific and really get down to business.

Pick-up day!

Why English Drive on Left

Woodstock Sentinel-Review

Prospects of a tunnel under St. George's channel linking those ancient enemies, England and France, seem to have prompted the British government to study the possibility of moving traffic from the left hand side of the road to the right.

Canadians and Americans, accustomed to driving on the right side of the road, are often puzzled by the British practice. For some of them visiting Britain, adjustment to this practice is difficult.

Why, anyway, have Englishmen for centuries stuck to the left side of the road while people of most other countries did the exact opposite?

An intriguing explanation, propounded by the Guardian of Manchester, dates the British practice from the era when impecunious individuals "collected their rents on the highways."

To defend themselves from highwaymen, travellers found it wiser to ride so they could draw their swords with the right hand and have their unguarded left flank protected by a hedgerow.

A more likely possibility is that wagoners and coachmen sat on the right side of their vehicles so they could wield their whips without interference from the load behind them. When they met another vehicle, it was normal to pull to the left because this position gave the drivers a better view of their clearance.

On the continent, coach teams were usually driven by riders, or postillions, who sat astride the left rear horse, this being the most convenient position for controlling the animals. When they encountered another vehicle, it was natural for them to pull to the right.

There is still another possibility.

Englishmen, stubborn and independent, may simply have wanted to be different.

Socialists Squeezed

It is hard, let it be granted, to be a Socialist, when the two old parties are bidding competitively to supply Canadians with more welfarism.

Another View Of Chinese

Vancouver Province

The few professional newspapermen to have visited Red China, and Lord Montgomery, also, seem to have missed a significant point, unless an extremely intelligent observer has been seriously misled after a brief journey through the country. The Chinese peasant, it seems, believes all visitors to be Russians. Usually they are, but every conducted party receives a vociferous welcome anyway.

This is the view of an unlikely reporter — the daughter of Calouste Sarkis Gulbenkian, "Mr. Five Per Cent" himself, reputed to have been the richest man in the world. Madame Rita Essayan went to Canton, Shanghai and Peking in 1960, and reports what she saw in The New Yorker. It is a refreshing comment from a visitor who says she refused to pay any attention to collective farms and factories, since she didn't understand anything about them, but chose instead to practise her own kind of "observation" as she wandered the streets of the big cities.

Madame Essayan found the discipline fightening. She took candies along to give the children but they were always refused. When she left them in her hotel room, they were returned with considerable trouble. The child labor consisted of children sorting machine parts after school hours, and teaching their parents.

"One sees no old people left to be taught," she states. "I suppose Mao Tse-tung has murdered 20,000,000 people." She observed that the cities were "marvellously clean" and there was no begging. "We must not fool ourselves into believing that those left are miserable in their new religion. Indeed, they seem so devout that it is a strain to watch them."

Madame Essayan proves herself a talented observer. It has always seemed to us a pity that more visitors to Communist China do not share her unwillingness to be conducted in docile procession round the factories and start looking at the human beings.

Vaccination Story Told

Hamilton Spectator

The smallpox scare in Britain caused by a few Pakistani immigrants falling victims to the disease, has now died down. While it lasted, hundreds sought vaccination. Perhaps more than half the people of Britain are not vaccinated. Whatever individual reasons, the right to refuse is vigorously defended as one of an Englishman's inalienable rights.

Smallpox was once the scourge of the world. In eighteenth - century England few escaped it.

Lady Mary Montagu, eighteenth-century England's acid-tongued blue stocking and eccentric, was, in a way peculiar to herself, a pioneer in the fight against smallpox. When, in 1717, Lady Mary's husband took up his post as British ambassador to the Sublime Porte, one of her first acts was to have her son "engrafted" with smallpox.

In those days Turks, Greeks and Armenians made a ceremony of engrafting. It produced a mild attack of the disease and thereafter the victim was immune. In September, when hot weather was past, parties would gather for engrafting. An old woman with a rusty needle and a nutshell full of lymph, performed the operation.

Lady Mary was attacked by London society as a "monster mother". Pulpits thundered and doctors execrated her. But for once she was right. Two years before she had suffered smallpox herself and had been left pock-marked and without eyelashes. She wanted to save her son, and she did.

When the family returned to London, Lady Mary, an overpowering woman convinced George II of the efficacy of engraftment. He took out "insurance" by having three men and three women under sentence of death in Newgate Prison engrafted. This was successful so the Princess of Wales had her two daughters engrafted and engraftment soon became a craze.

Edward Wortley Montagu grew into a rascal, eccentric, clever and unscrupulous. He was the first Englishman to be "vaccinated" against smallpox —'cicek hastalgi", "the flower sickness" the Turks called it. And he never forgot it.

To Your Good Health

A Sprain May Not Heal As Rapidly as a Broken Bone

"Dear Dr. Molner: What about sprains? Some people say to soak it in hot water, others advise ice water. — Mrs. B.B."

Some people have said optimistically after an injury, "It isn't a break; it's just a sprain." And others, having had experience with a bad sprain, have said, "A sprain is worse than a break."

The word sprain comes from the root meaning "to press out." It is a wrenching and twisting of a joint. The bone doesn't break, but ligaments or cartilage can be torn; ligaments can be pulled loose from the bone to which they are attached; the joint capsules, consisting of fibrous tissue, can be stretched.

Such an injury may not heal as rapidly as a broken bone. Besides, there invariably is some inner bleeding at the injured place, and hence swelling and pain.

The degree of sprain makes a difference, of course. It also makes a difference whether the joint is one which is under pressure. A sprained ankle, which has to hold up the weight of the body, may thus be more serious than a sprained wrist, which doesn't have to bear such weight.

From a surface examination it is often hard to tell whether a case is a fracture or a sprain, but it's important to know, and if there is the slightest doubt, an X-ray will show the answer. Indeed, I'd say that if there is any swelling, tenderness or black and blue mark under the skin, it's wise to X-ray.

Treatment of a sprain is more than just heat or cold. With an ankle, a light cast may be needed to carry the weight while letting the sprain heal. Dr. M.H Leonard, an orthopedist, says comparative trials show that use of such a cast results in much quicker healing, as well as less disability (stiffness or weakness) afterward.

In mild sprains, simple taping and immobilization — not putting any strain or weight on the joint — may be enough. Sometimes injection of an anesthetic drug is necessary to subdue pain.

Basically, the joint must have rest and time to heal — a lot of time. If it's an ankle — keep off it! It may take four to six weeks to recover.

Elevate a sprained ankle.

As for cold or heat, in this case, cold may lessen the pain and minimize the swelling at first

"Dear Dr. Molner: With all the talk about lung cancer and cigarette smoking, what about the effect on non-smokers. I attend social gatherings about once a week where the air is clouded with smoke. I hate to give up this recreation, but don't want to impair my health. — C.A.S."

Go to the meetings and relax. The relative ratio of concentration of smoke in the air and the smoke drawn into a smoker's lungs is probably 1,000-to-1, or more. So if it takes 25 years of smoking to cause lung cancer (if it does) it would take 25,000 years of breathing the air at a party. My advice is not to start worrying until 24,000 years have passed.

Note to A.R.M.: Yes, the tranquilizer drugs are often very helpful in relieving the discomfort of tic douloureux. The one you are taking is quite mild and I'm sure your doctor would approve taking more than one a day to keep you comfortable. The art of medication is to give enough to do the job without (in this case) causing drowsiness or lethargy. It's a fine art and it often requires some trial and error.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

At an old-fashioned tea party the other afternoon, which is like a cocktail party without the cocktails, and far more fun, since everybody does not always talk at once, our hostess climaxed the occasion by producing a family album. It was a beauty, and even had a plum colored plush cover. It had been begun around 1860 and had been abandoned around 1900, the last entry being a soulful upward-gazing profile of a lady in a large pompadour.

"Everybody in this book," said our hostess, "was a character. Some were dotty. Some disappeared, never to be heard of again. They were full of spite, mischief, fun and exuberance. Some of these prim dark-eyed ladies were filled with rectitude, but started feuds in the family that lasted generations. They were individuals, determined to be themselves even if that only meant failing to turn up at the church for their weddings. There is not one person in this book about whom a ridiculous, discordant or scandalous story cannot be told.

"The reason family albums have gone out of fashion," she suggested, "is that we haven't got any characters among our relations any more."

That could be.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE OTHER FELLOW

You are your brother's keeper only as you can help him.

To speak ill or falsely about another, or to circulate mere hearsay is to pour poison into your own life. Most people have a hard enough time to extract happiness from their efforts without having someone else adding to their struggle with idle and pernicious gossip.

Think of the other fellow as yourself and you will not go far wrong in your estimate of him.

The other fellow is always needing a friend. At its best this is a friendless world. The child feels it — and the grownup does, too.

Nothing inspires like the friendly pat on the back, the small word of encouragement, a little thoughtful gift, or an unlooked for service rendered.

Try always to imagine yourself in the shoes of the other fellow!

The other fellow is watching you and you are watching him. You are possible friends.

By putting yourself in the other fellow's place you often change your whole attitude toward him, and he toward you.

No man is fit to pass judgment upon another. It's because no one as yet has ever been able to accurately read another's heart. A man is his heart.

What a world of other fellows! Each one hoping, striving, praying, believing — and working on and on.

Project yourself into the shoes of the other fellow and you won't have much trouble in this world!

Cross-Canada Survey

Sportsmen Proved Big Game During 1961 Hunt Season

By CARL MOLLINS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Canadian sportsman was big game during the 1961 hunting season in fields and bushland across the country.

Eighty - seven hunters fell prey to fatal hunting accidents and hundreds more were wounded, a cross-Canada survey by the Canadian Press shows. Shooting accidents figured most prominently in the toll, a slight drop from 1960's tally of 98 dead.

Quebec supplanted Ontario as the province with the highest number of hunting fatalities. Newfoundland was alone among the provinces in recording no deaths in hunting accidents in 1961 compared with a single death the year before

Twenty - six hunters were killed in Quebec, an increase of 10. Manitoba, which credited an intensive safety program for a record low of two killed in 1960, slipped back to a toll of seven in 1961, worst in four years.

BIG ONTARIO DROP

Ontario showed the greatest improvement of any province, recording 22 firearms fatalities against 36 the previous year An Ontario lands and forests department spokesman said the improvement resulted from a hunter safety training program and new legislation providing a maximum penalty of $500 fine and six months imprisonment on conviction of careless hunting. Thirteen hunters were prosecuted and 10 convicted.

The department reported that of 30,000 Ontario hunters who have passed the safety training course, only four were involved in accidents in 1961. Despite a heavy influx of Americans, only one was involved in an accident in Ontario and it wasn't fatal Women hunters had an accident-free record.

Saskatchewan halved its hunting fatalities, recording seven deaths compared with 14 in 1960. A summer drought discouraged game birds and hunters in the province.

Alberta's record remained steady with six killed both in 1960 and 1961. British Columbia improved from 12 deaths in 1960 to eight.

MORE HUNTERS

In the Maritimes, New Brunswick's toll dropped to four from seven. Nova Scotia's jumped to six from four. Prince Edward Island reported one hunting death after a fatality - free year.

Government game officials in provinces where hunting fatalities declined or remained steady said the figures show a gradual improvement in safety since the total number of licensed hunters grows annually in most places. An estimated 1,500,000 hunters were licensed in Canada last year.

The officials stress the importance of common - sense precautions. They say many serious accidents result from stupidity and carelessness.

Ontario's safety drive, which requires sportsmen applying for their first hunting licence to pass tests in hunting safety and weapon handling, has paid dividends in reducing the tally of serious accidents from 153 in 1960 to 119 last year.

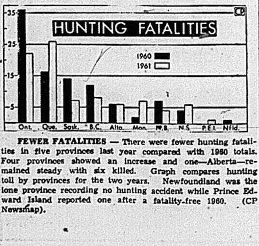
ORANGE VESTS

A. B. Young, head of the Ontario lands and forests hunter safety program, said more hunters last year adopted safe hunting procedures such as wearing fluorescent orange vests.

But bright clothing alone will not save hunters from those who fire at anything that moves or makes a noise in the bush.

A British Columbia forest ranger fatally wounded by a young hunter near Port Alberni was wearing a red checkered jacket and a white hat when he was shot.

A Northern Ontario hunter drew the fatal gunfire of another sportsman who shot blindly at the sound of a moose-call the victim was blowing.



FEWER FATALITIES — There were fewer hunting fatalities in five provinces last year compared with 1960 totals. Four provinces showed an increase and one—Alberta—remained steady with six killed. Graph compares hunting toll by provinces for the two years. Newfoundland was the lone province recording no hunting accident while Prince Edward Island reported one after a fatality-free 1960. Terrorist Gunmen Shoot Up Railroad Car, Seven Injured

ALGIERS (Reuters)—Terrorist gunmen today shot up a self - propelled diesel railroad car filled with civil servants.

First reports said seven of the occupants were wounded by the men, believed to be agents of the right-wing extremist Secret Army Organization.

The attack came at a level-crossing between the small towns of Roubia and Menerville as the civil servants were heading to work from Algiers to the French administrative headquarters at Rocher Noire. The gunmen fired from a car.

The train makes regular trips between Algiers and Rocher Noire, about 40 miles away, where French Delegate-General Jean Morin and his department chiefs moved their headquarters last fall to avoid political disturbances in Algiers.

Meanwhile, in suburban Maison Carree, men reported to be Moslem extremists entered the office of Dr. Maxime Fleck, former president of the Union for the New Republic Federation, which supports French President de Gaulle, and opened fire, seriously injuring him.

The latest incidents came as 20,000 security guards were posed in the trouble-torn country as a new campaign to "keep Algeria French" was under way.

The security forces stood by as Algerians and Frenchmen awaited a speech tonight by de Gaulle expcted to touch on new steps to end the seven-year war betwen Moslem insurgents and Europeans over Algeria's future.

Riot police fought a gun battle with supporters of the secret army at a villa outside Algiers early today. A government spokesman said the villa occupants opened fire and tried to escape as it was surrounded and the riot police shot back, killing one man and wounding another.

Sixteen persons were killed and 20 others wounded in secret army and Moslem terrorist attacks throughout Algeria Sunday. Eleven of the dead and 12 of the wounded were Moslems.

First Winter Ascent Made Of Matterhorn's North Face

ZERMATT, Switzerland (AP) Braving gales, two young Swiss mountaineers conquered the icy north face of the Matterhorn in the first winter ascent of "the tall killer."

They won the race Sunday to the summit of the 14,328-foot peak against five Austrian and German climbers who were swallowed up by storm-swept clouds and still were unreported today.

Veteran alpinists said the missing five—led by two experienced guides—may have given up their attempt to scale the peak and worked their way across the rocks to the wall's eastern edge and safety.

They were last seen about 500 feet from the top of the pyramid-shaped summit on the Swiss-Italian border just before darkness fell and a westerly gale turned into a blizzard.

The two Swiss—Hilti von Allmen, 27, and Paul Etter, 23—reached the top after a two-day climb.

The Matterhorn's north face has been climbed about 20 times in the summer, but the ice-slicked, almost vertical front has beaten back all previous attempts to scale it in the winter.

The two Swiss forged out front on the second day in a race against a storm blowing up, switching their course to the more windproof cracks in the western part of the wall. Austrians Leo Schloemmer and Erich Kremplek, climbing as partners, and Germans Peter Siegert, Rainer Kauschke and Werner Bittnr, chose to try the more direct route toward the east.

Peruvian Plane Crashes in Rain, Eighteen Killed

LIMA, Peru (AP)—A twin-engine Peruvian airliner crashed and burned during a heavy rainstorm in the mountains of central Peru Sunday, killing all 18 persons aboard.

Two U.S. scientists and their wives were aboard. They were reported returning from a trip up the Amazon River and were identified as Dr. and Mrs Jerome A. Uram and Dr. and Mrs. Richard Block.

The Faucett Airlines DC-3 crashed 10 miles northwest of the village of Tingo Maria on the Huallaga River about 215 miles from Lima.

Farmers in the area reported they heard two explosions at the time of the crash. Some expressed the belief the plane was struck by lightning.

Witnesses Fail To Take Fight Before Court

OTTAWA (CP)—A member of the Jehovah's Witnesses failed today in a bid to take his sect's fight against blood transfusions before the Supreme Court of Canada.

The court rejected an application by Ronald Fenn Wolfe of London, Ont., for leave to appeal lower court decisions upholding the verdict of a coroner's jury which investigated the death of his infant son in London April 15, 1960.

The court's decision was announced by Mr. Justice C. H. Locke, one of the three judges who heard Mr. Wolfe's application last wek. The other judges were Mr. Justice Wilfred Judson and Mr. Justice Roland Ritchie.

The court does not give reasons for judgment in applications seeking leave to appeal.

Mr. Wolfe's infant son died after contracting haemolytic disease of the newborn. Standard treatment for the disease is transfusion of new blood.

Mr. and Mrs. Wolfe refused consent for a transfusion on grounds that blood transfusions are against their religious beliefs as Jehovah's Witnesses.

The Jehovah's Witnesses sect bases its objections to blood transfusions on a number of biblical quotations, one of which states in part "Ye shall eat the blood of no manner of flesh."

Prime Minister Opens Meeting On Fitness

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker today opened the inaugural meeting of the new National Advisory Council on Fitness and Amateur Sport, calling for a bold program to "raise Canada to new standards of fitness and achievement."

The council was set up a month ago by the federal government to administer a $5,000,000 annual budget earmarked for the development of a national fitness scheme.

All but one of the 30 members showed up for the start of a two-day meeting. Maurice Richard, former Montreal Canadiens hockey star, was unable to attend. He is on a business trip.

Mr. Diefenbaker and Health Minister Monteith outlined the government's hopes for the council before Chairman Ken Farmer of Montreal launched the closed business session.

The prime minister paid tribute to a list of former athlete-MPs who had advocated some type of federal plan to boost amateur sport.

LAUDS PAST VICTORS

He dwelt on the history of Canada's contributions to international sport and the 23 Olympic gold medals won by Canadian athletes.

"I think this organization will in the years ahead produce more amateur competitors of this calibre," he said. "They will develop even though this program does not concentrate all its energies . . . on the making of champions."

He said the program must embrace both competitive and non-competitive sports, information services, training courses and the provision of facilities.

Mr. Monteith stressed it was essential to build soundly even at the cost of speed.

He said the government is advertising for a full-time director to head a small federal staff in administering council decisions.

Blame Children For Ottawa Fire

The fire started in the clothes closet of one of the homes in a five-home row on Booth Street. The interiors of two of the houses were destroyed and a third suffered water damage.

Firemen said three boys were lighting birthday candles and dumped them flaming into the clothes closet when they heard the father of one of them approaching.

Eight persons were forced from their homes Saturday night when fire broke out in a centre-town plywood shop, then spread to adjoining apartment buildings. Cause of the blaze, which caused an estimated $15,000 damage, is under investigation.

At nearby Hazeldean, fire heavily damaged a rural public school Saturday. Damage was estimated by firemen at about $5,000.

Briton States Czechs Jailed Him 18 Weeks

LONDON (AP)—The foreign office is investigating charges that a Briton was jailed for 18 weeks in Czechoslovakia without the British government knowing about it, a spokesman said today.

William Barton, a 32-year-old draftsman, returned to Britain Sunday and said he accidentally crossed into Czech territory while out for a vacation stroll in the Austrian border town of Drosendorf. He said:

"I was arrested by two Czech border police with tommy-guns and was questioned for nearly five hours. They seemed convinced I was a spy."

The next morning he was taken to Brno and put into jail.

"The Czechs refused to let me see the British consul or even notify him that I was a prisoner. Then, after 3½ months, when I had all but given up hope of ever coming out, they suddenly told me they were satisfied I wasn't a spy."

He was freed Friday and handed to West German police at the Czech border.

He claimed the Czechs also confiscated £60 ($168).

"They said I owed it to them —for my keep. But the food was filthy and the only meat I ever got was horsemeat."

Wolfe Island Ice Bridge Disintegrating

KINGSTON (CP) — With temperatures in the mid-40s today the ice bridge between Wolfe Island and Kingston is showing signs of disintegrating.

While Islanders continue to drive the three miles across the frozen harbor melting ice is creating heavy going.

Today one car began to sink just off a city street leading from the water front and the four occupants had to make a dash for it.

In the car were Rev. Fred Love, United Church minister of Wolfe Island, and his infant child and Mrs Norma Edwards and her daughter Jean

A team of horses was engaged to drag the car out of the pool of water and to better ice in the harbor so it could be driven back.

Congregational Meets Report Large Bequests

PICTON—Encouraging news is contained in reports presented at annual church meetings. St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Picton, learned that the new church is now free of debt, thanks to bequest of $10,000 from the estate of the late Harvey R. Stark.

At the Church of St. Mary Magdalene vestry meeting, the rector, the Rev. R. B. Wright, commented on the year in which records in givings and attendance were noted, the $10,000 bequest by Harvey Stark, plus a recent bequest by James P. Makher, for a similar amount are to be used to renovate the church's parish hall.

When modifications to Picton disposal plant, to increase the capacity and improve the quality of treatment, were under consideration by Town Council, Engineer Herb Gray came up with a new plan which would cost $50,000 less than one proposed by the Ontario Water Resources Commission. They claimed it would also give better results.

A delegation from the Town Council presented the proposal to the Commission for approval but it did not appear to go along with the idea and asked for more time to consider the plan.

Engineer Gray said the design is one accepted in many places in the United States but would mark a new departure in Ontario.

Six Provinces Accident-Free, Canada Toll 18

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Accidents claimed 18 lives in Canada during the weekend—one of the lowest tolls in many weeks.

Six provinces reported no accidental deaths in a Canadian Press survey for the period from 6 p.m. local times Friday to midnight Sunday.

Traffic accidents took 12 lives, four each in Quebec and Ontario, three in Nova Scotia and one in British Columbia.

There were six deaths from asphyxiation, two in Quebec and the rest in Ontario. Three Ontario men were found asphyxiated in a truck parked on a deserted road. Another was asphyxiated in a basement apartment fire.

The figures do not include natural deaths, known suicides or industrial accidents.

Ontario dead:

Doris Loke, 61, of Toronto, struck by a car in Toronto Friday night.

Donato Dimola, 28, of Toronto, struck by a car as he climbed out of another vehicle in Toronto Saturday.

Const. Dennis Winstanley, 30, of Stamford Township Police, struck by a car as he was checking another vehicle near Niagara Falls Saturday.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Kiwanis LA Enjoys Slides Of Europe

Last Thursday evening the members of the Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary met at the Kiwanis Centre for their February meeting. Despite the extreme old weather, there was a good attendance.

President, Barbara Floyd, welcomed the members and introduced three new members, Isabel Fuzzen, Ida Godden and Marg Doidge.

A Valentine dance will be held later this month by the Kiwanis men. The ladies are supplying the lunch.

Carm Mott reported the marathon bridge is in full swing and plans were made for a St. Patrick's dessert bridge, to be held at the Centre in March.

A blood donor's clinic will be held at the Centre on February 7th; some of the Kiwanis ladies will assist at the Clinic.

SLIDES SHOWN

With the completion of the business part of the meeting, Edna Hume introduced the guest speaker for the evening, Mrs. Donald Joss. Mrs. Joss showed the ladies some interesting colored slides she and Mr. Joss had taken when on a trip to Europe and behind the Iron Curtain in Russia, during the summer of 1961.

Mr. and Mrs. Joss had their own car shipped by boat to London, England, then airlifted to France. They travelled through France to Trieste, Italy, down the Dalmatian coast, through Yugoslavia, Hungary, Roumania, and to Russia's Ukraine. From there to Moscow, Russia and there visited Red Square and saw the Kremlin.

From Russia they travelled on to Poland and crossed into Germany and on to Berlin. They also visited Prague in Czechoslovakia. The colored slides showed many beautiful old world buildings and cathedrals and scenery of the surrounding country through which they had travelled.

POOR ROADS

Mrs. Joss said many of the roads were rather poor by Canadian standards as quite a number of them were gravel surfaced and rather narrow. Some roads in Russia were hard surfaced but rough to travel on. Most of the hotel accommodation was not too good, many of the hotels lacked running water.

Through parts of their journey the absence of cars was noted along the highways. In Germany cars seemed more plentiful but mostly the smaller European built cars. The presence of the Canadian built car travelling in Europe created much interest to the natives of the various countries Mr. and Mrs. Joss travelled through.

On behalf of the Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary, Mary Denton thanked Mrs. Joss for her interesting talk on her trip and showing her lovely slides, and preesnted her with a small gift of appreciation.

Lunch was served by Lilliane Walton and her group and a social half hour followed.

Pointed-Toe Shoes Still Best Sellers This Season

MONTREAL (CP) — A year ago pointed toes were on their way out. Now they're still "on their way out, but lasting much longer than shoe manufacturers had anticipated.

Malcolm C. Knox, chairman of the Shoe Information Bureau of Canada, told a press conference that two-thirds of the spring shoes will have double or triple needle toes.

As for the square toe that was supposed to set the market afire, Mr. Knox said "the reception was lukewarm . . . and I'm being generous."

The success of the crescent toe was somewhat better than the square.

"Nevertheless, the crescent toe is the toe of the future because this is the natural development of the last," he said.

Asked when he thought the crescent toe would overtake the pointed toe, he said "perhaps in spring, 1963!"

He also said that, despite fashion reports to the contrary, almost 50 per cent of the shoes in the United States still are being made with pointed toes.

WEST LAGS

In Canada, their reception varies somewhat between East and West. In Quebec, 95 per cent of the spring and summer shoes would have very pointed toes.

But Western Canada, which never accepted the pointed toe with the enthusiasm of Quebec, is quicker to welcome the crescent toe. Ontario still prefers points, but in the double needle rather than the triple needle adopted in Quebec.

Mr. Knox said the open look is prevalent for spring, but was quick to interject that by the "open look" he didn't mean the sandal or the sling-back shoe.

Reintroduced to Canada last year, both the sandal and sling-back "laid an egg," he said. The new open look is achieved with large perforations in the vamp.

In color, black, particularly in patent leather, is expected to represent 50 per cent of all spring shoe sales. Browns, beige and bone are expected to represent 25 per cent, with another 10 per cent taken up by blue. Red, mesh and fabrics would account for the remaining 15 per cent.

Mr. Knox said each year sees more shoes being made on illusion heels and 1962 will be no exception. The stacked heel was particularly popular.

Meaning of Eucharist Explained at WA Meeting

The regular monthly business meeting of the W.A. Afternoon Branch of Christ Church was held February 1st with a good attendance. The president, Mrs. H. Pitt, opened the meeting, assisted by Mrs. W. Ashton.

For the devotional period, Mrs. G. G. Wright read from St. John 8: 12-20 and closed with prayers.

As educational secretary, Mrs. Wright briefly discussed the "Study Book," "Jesus Christ, the Light of the World".

Special speaker for the meeting was the Rev. M. Caswell, Curate of Christ Church, who took as his subject, the service of Holy Communion. Mr. Caswell traced with clarity the background of the Euchtrist and stressed there are things the reality of which is unquestioned and which are not material. Christ is ever present, a real presence. But in the Eucharist, His Presence is manifested in a sacramental manner. The speaker placed special emphasis to Christ's command, "Love Thy Neighbor," and together with regular and consistent examination of ones self, as the true basis on which the Holy Sacrament brings one closer to God and gives peace and refreshment.

Mr. Caswell was warmly thanked by Mrs. C. Hayes on behalf of an interested and appreciative audience.

TRAVELLING BASKET

Memebrs are reminded to bring articles for the "Travelling Basket." This project has been faithfully and efficiently in charge of Mrs. J. Chapman and the proceeds have added substantially to the funds.

Business was discussed and money, voted for financial assistance towards education of a boy in Palampur, India.

On the evening of January 31st the Evening Branch W.A. entertained the residents at the County Home. The Afternoon Branch is keenly interested in these senior citizens and was pleased to provide fresh fruit for the residents on that evening. Mrs. W. Kempston reported it was a wonderful, happy time for all.

Plans are under way for the annual W.A. (Afternoon Branch) tea and bazaar to be held later this month, 2-4.30 p.m. Mrs. G. O'Brien and Mrs. R. Godden are conveners.

Following the benediction, the meeting adjourned and refreshments were served by Mrs. C. Hayes and Mrs. W. McLaughlin.

Congregational Meetings

CHRIST CHURCH

The annual vestry meeting of Christ Church took place recently, with Archdeacon J. B. Creeggan presiding as chairman. The meeting was opened with prayers and the singing of the hymn "Breathe on me Breath of God". The reports of the organizations of the church were read and all in their respective fields have done much to further the work of the church.

Mr. James Wright, chairman of the Sidesmen, reported that during the year 172 different men of the congregation have been asked to serve as Sidesmen at the services or Sundays' A vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Wright and his assistant, Mr. Richard Bedford, for their splendid work during the year.

The rector's report showed that during the year there have been 397 services held in the church on Sunday and week days; 67 private services of Holy Communion for shut-ins; 8 services in the Hastings County Home; and 51 services of Holy Communion in the hospital chapel. (Rev. E. P. Smith, celebrant) 111 baptisms; and 100 candidates for confirmation.

The Rev. M.J. Cashwell came on the staff of Christ Church in June, as Curate. This past year Christ Church has been host to the annual meeting of the Diocesan Woman's Auxiliary, and, the Provincial Servers' Conference.

Archdeacon Creeggan thanked the staff for their assistance during the year; the Church Wardens for their untiring efforts for the welfare of the parish; the Lay Delegates to Synod; the organizations and committees for their efforts in promoting the interests of the parish.

As some parents were under the impression that Sunday School started much later, the Archdeacon pointed out that the time was 9.30 a.m., and the first period of instruction commenced, for the juniors, in the church and for the senior classes in the Sunday School auditorium. At 10 a.m. the classes change, the junior classes into the Sunday School auditorium and the senior classes into the church. The rector reminded members that the church is the body of Christ, to carry on His work in the world among people and it is the parents' responsibility to see that children are given proper instruction. It is an important task today when one experiences so much laxity in moral values and institutions and when people show so much disrespect for standards that once were recognized as essential.

Property Committee report given by Mr. E. E. Palmer in the absence of Mr. Ross Rowe the chairman showed that a number of improvements have been made. The floor of the church and the upstairs hall of the Parish hall have been painted; the Vestry renovated; lighting on the Everett St. entrance; and the superstructure and floor on the north side of the church.

The Wardens in their report thanked the organizations and the congregation for their financial assistance to the church and in presenting their budget for 1962, anticipated the same support of the appeals that will be made. The Wardens said, "We believe that the parishioners of Christ Church have a far greater potential than a mere $52,000 annual budget" (which is the figure anticipated for 1962) This goal can be accomplished by the ABC's of Christian stewardship: attend, believe and contribute.

The appreciation of the congregation was expressed by Mr. J. Fletcher for the work of the retiring Warden, Mr. Orval Thornton, and a suitable gift was presented. Mr. Thornton in replying mentioned his pleasure in serving the congregation.

ST. ANDREW'S PRESBYTERIAN

CAMPBELLFORD — The annual congregational meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was held in the basement of the church on Thursday evening, with Rev. A. E. Toombs acting as chairman, and Mr. G. G. Stephens, as secretary.

Minutes of the annual meeting were read and approved and the financial report of the Board of Managers showed a small balance after all expenses were paid This included the cost of a new cement floor in the church basement.

REPORTS SHOW PROGRESS

The reports of the various church societies as given, showed progress. The W.M.S. exceeded their allocation and both Seymour West and St. Andrew's Ladies' Aid groups had a busy year, the proceeds being used to purchase the new folding doors in the church basement and a sizeable contribution to the board of managers.

The choir showed a healthy financial position and the Sunday School increased attendance and activity.

The amout of $2,500 received for the General Assembly budget although an improvement, did not meet the allocation for 1961. An allocation of $2,813 for this purpose for 1962 was accepted by the congregation. One hundred dollars was voted from the church funds for the Synod Corporation Fund for the new church building and extension.

MANAGERS RE-ELECTED

Mr. G. G. Stephens was reelected secretary-treasurer for 1962. Retiring managers R. G. Pettey, Fred Adamson and Allen Curle were re-elected for another three year term. Auditors Thomas Mein and R. J. Locke were re-appointed for 1962.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Randall C. — I don't want to be a cloak-and-suit man.

Mr. H. C. — There's always a chance he can be a better one than me.

• • •

Randall C. — I'm 17 and about to graduate from high school. I plan to attend a New York college next fall and it's on the matter of my major that Dad and I keep arguing.

He wants me to sign up for Business Administration and I'm voting for English Literature. So you see, we're world's apart. And behind it all, of course, is the fact that he's still hoping I'll take over his cloak-and-suit business some day. I've tried to convince him I'd be no good at it. My interests lie with the arts and with communication skills. My dream is to be a reporter or a writer.

The most that can be said for Dad's business is it's a living. Aside from that, cloak-and-suit men like butter-and-egg men are the subject of cheap jokes by supper club comedians.

• • •

Mr. H.C. — I run a good family business, started by my father. He was a tailor in a small shop and he was so skillful that he was hired by a designer. The two of them took in a third man as a partner and opened a manufacturing plant. Before he died my father had bought out the others and he and I ran things together. It's been my fondest wish that Randy would take some interest in this fascinating industry, learn it from the ground up and eventually wind up as my associate. I'd love to add "£ Son" to my letterhead!

But he thinks the place is poison. I try to tell him that a few good business courses would open his eyes. They might even help him do a better job with cloaks and suits than I have done. I wish he was not so narrow-minded. I hope he changes.

The Council: Ah, callow youth, to think of the huge fields of Industry and Communications as mutually exclusive, tightly compartmented and "worlds apart!" Perhaps a few years of up-to-date college courses will make clearer to Randy the intricate interdependence of all fields of human endeavor. Then he may relax his rather immature attitude that a predilection for English Literature dictates a cold shoulder to Business Administration.

At this early stage, anything Randy studies will be grist to his mill — whether he winds up grinding out communiques or cummerbunds.

There are wisecracks, Randy, about all lines of work. The reason you hear so few about writers may be that most cracks are composed by writers. But what's wrong with being the tired businessman for whom the entertainment world tries to give its all? You may wind up an absent-minded professor (of English Literature or something else) and, Lord knows, there's no end of jokes about them.

May we suggest that Randy register for whatever major appeals to him now, but also looks in — during summer vacations and midyear holidays — at the ancestral cloak-and-suit business. This need, not be as the potential "next in line." It may be as a loyal, grateful son trying to understand the burdens (and joys) of his father. Perhaps during the next few years a flair, dormant and hereditary may reveal itself to him and he'll apply himself — communications skills and all — to being a bigger and better c.a.s. man..

Otherwise, he should have no trouble starting as a reporter on — say — "Women's Wear Daily" and doing Dad proud from that end.

I Was Young Then

By GENEVIEVE FOURNIA

PICTON — How have you been enjoying the bitterly cold weather, ice and storms? I live in a suburb, some distance from the shopping district. In any direction I have to go down a long hill when I leave my house. These hills have been glare ice at times and I have been terrified to trvael over them. However, we have no mail delivery, and my post office box fills up, and I have to go. I' remembered using a ski pole years ago under such conditions and wished for one in vain. The other day my sister-in-law, who lives out of town, came to visit me. She handed me a parcel that looked like a window blind neatly wrapped. It was a sort of adopted ski-pole, my brother had made me. It started out as a broom handle that was stained dark walnut and waxed. The end had an oversize screw that was screwed in, and the head of the screw buffed into a sharp point almost an inch long. Leather was neatly tacked around the other end of the pole and a leather strap attached.

My confidence, when travelling, had been restored and I even venture out evenings to play bridge in the neighborhood and to help at quiltings.

When the weather is too cold for going out, I have been reorganizing my recipe books and using materials stashed away in cupboards to make some old favorite dishes. One was.

ECONOMY PUDDING:

2 cups rolled stale cake or cookie crumbs; 2 teaspoons instant coffee, stirred into one cup boiling water; ½ cup corn syrup or light molasses or ¼ cup of each; 1 teaspoon nutmeg; ½ teaspoon cinnamon; 1 teaspoon baking soda; 1 teaspoon vanilla; 1¼ cups of flour; ½ cup chopped dates and ½ cup seedless raisins.

Sift the flour, spices and baking soda and stir into the cut-up dates and raisins. Pour the hot coffee and molasses over the cake crumbs and mix well. Combine the flour mixture and the crumb mixture, add a pinch of salt and a teaspoon of vanilla. Pour into a buttered pudding pan and steam 2½ hours. Serve with hard sauce, or lemon sauce or carmelized brown sugar sauce.

"I tied two thicknesses of heavy waxed paper over the pudding pan and set the pan on the rack in my canner and added two or three inches of hot water to the tightly covered canner. I also made some homemade vegetable soup."

A fairly meaty medium-sized beef soup bone. Add two quarts of cold water, salt and pepper to taste. Cook two hours at "simmer" after it comes to a boil. Skim it well. When cooked strain broth adding a little hot water to bring it up to the two quarts. Cool and chill in the refrigerator. The next morning skim off all the hardened fat. Add 4 carrots and two onions finely chopped or put through the food grinder and 1 cup of pearl barley. Boil slowly, covered for 2½ hours.

SALMON CASSEROLE

½ tin canned salmon, 1 small raw onion, 3 medium raw potatoes peeled, 2 tablespoons of flour, butter, ⅔ cup of milk, salt and pepper.

Shred the salmon and put a layer in a buttered casserole. Add a layer of thinly sliced raw potato and half the onion, thinly sliced. Sift 1 tablespoon of flour, salt and pepper to taste over this. Dot with butter. Repeat the three layers. Add the milk and cover the casserole. Set it in a pan of hot water and bake 1 hour at 350 degrees. It can also be cooked in the top of the double boiler for one hour over hot water. It makes a nourishing dish for a person cooking on a hot-plate.

TAPIOCA CREAM

Soak 1-2 cup pearl tapioca in water to cover over night. In the morning, drain. Add the tapioca to 2 1-4 cups of milk and a small pinch of salt in the top of the double boiler over hot water. Cook until the tapioca is clear about 1-2 hour.

In a bowl beat the yolks of two eggs with 1-2 cup white sugar. Stir in some of the hot milk until blended. Add to the hot milk in the double boiler and cook until thickened. Remove from heat. Fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the two eggs and 1 teaspoon of vanilla. Cool, serve in sherbet glasses topped with a red maraschino cherry for each glass.

ARMY COLONEL DIES

CLEVELAND (AP)—Everett C. Williams, 73, retired army colonel who participated in negotiations for the surrender of Bataan to the Japanese during the Second World War, died Sunday. Williams had been vice-president of the Security National Bank and Trust Company in Lawton, Okla., since retiring from the army in 1951. He was born in England.

BRINGS YOU BIG NEWS NEXT THURSDAY

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

DO YOU SEND AS MANY LETTERS AS YOU GET?

Mail is always fun to receive, but, for some reason or other, hard to answer.

Letters and notes from friends often are shunted aside with a mental promise to answer it tomorrow. But "tomorrow" never comes, and they wind up in your own "dead letter office."

Invitations get the most shameful treatment. Some never are acknowledged and it takes a frantic last-minute call from an expectant hostess to get a simple "yes" or "no" to her innocent invitation to dinner on the fifth.

We suspect that one reason it's hard to take pen in hand is that many would-be letter writers simply forget to keep stationery on tap, or if there is any in the house, then it's the wrong type for the letter to be answered.

Actually, there are two types of stationery that take care of most writing requirements: a good-quality letter paper in either single or double sheets, and personalized note paper. Letter paper may be engraved or imprinted with your name and address at the top, while note paper may be engraved with your initials or with your full name on the first sheet.

Double-sheet stationery is often used for dashing off short letters, while the single sheets take care of virtually all your other business and social correspondence. Note paper, of course, is used for short messages of the "thank-you" or "get well" variety, and are equally handy for issuing informal invitations or accepting of declining those sent to you.

Aside from lack of proper stationery, though, we suspect another reason so much correspondence goes unanswered is that too many people just don't know what to say.

Take that letter from Aunt Martha: What can you possibly say to her, except that the children are fine, your back is better and the oil burner finally has a new relay switch?

Well, instead of sticking to business, you could tell her about the circus the kids gave in the back yard and what a marvelous tea you gave for the new neighbor up the road. These are the things she'd much rather hear, and if you brighten up your language a bit, your letter will make you and your family come alive for her on paper.

Mundane missives like "thank-you" notes can also be given a bright touch. In response to an anniversary present, don't just say, "The painting arrived, and thanks so much." You might try a breezier approach: "We unveiled the Picasso last night and are enchanted with the new glow it gives the room. John and I can't wait 'til you see the effect for yourself. Many, many thanks for making this anniversary so memorable."

It's not necessary to be picturesque when accepting or declining invitations. The important thing is to acknowledge them as soon as they're received. Informal invitations, can be answered on note paper and worded thusly: "John and I have circled the fifth and are looking forward to dinner." Formal invitations, however, should be answered in the third person, the same way they were issued, and on a plain piece of fine white paper.

TRUCK DEMOLISHED

SUDBURY (CP) — A section of Highway 17, 10 miles east of here, was turned into an outdoor soft-drink cooler Saturday when a heavy moving van slammed into the rear of a pop-laden truck and sent it toppling over a 200-foot embankment. The truck which was described by provincial police as a total loss. Damage to the moving van was estimated at $8,000. The drivers were unhurt.

Women's Activities

HOLLOWAY ST. U.C.W.

The first general meeting of the Holloway Street United Church Women was held the evening of January 30.

The meeting opened with the singing of "The Church's One Foundation" and greetings from the president Mrs. C. Holmes, who expressed her thanks for being given the privilege of this position in the new organization and for the wonderful executive the nominating committee had supplied. She closed her remarks with the hope to go forward together and do great things and repeated the U.C.W. purpose.

The evening's devotional was led by Mrs. L. Digby, with the Scripture, taken from Mathew 25, read by Mrs. G. Coulter. Mrs. Digby's theme on parables of the last of great judgment, reminded of those who are condemned for doing nothing — the Levites, who passed by on the other side — the rich man who did nothing — the servant who did not use his talent, but hid it — and so on — Then there are those who never want to help for reasons of safety, those who are condemned for carlessness. "We are saved to serve, and , we should go and bring forth fruit — a church is never overstaffed — "go and tell, go and do"!

The offering was received by Mrs. K. Dickens and Mrs. H. McCorquodale.

Mrs. A. Daniels rendered a beautiful and appropriate solo "This is My Task", accompanied at the piano by Mrs. T. F. Townsend.

The speaker, the Rev. Mr. M. G. McFarlane of Tabernacle United Church, was introduced by Mrs. C. W. Coleman. Mr. McFarlane spoke on the missionary work done by the church in Canada — in the northern sections as well as through the many homes and schools throughout all of Canada — Homes for unwanted children, — for boys— for girls —for elderly people and reminded all of the great opportunities that there are for this social service and evangelism.

Then showing slides of the Cedarvale School for Girls at Georgetown, Ontario, where he spent many years on their Board, gave a stirring word-picture of the life within the school and the beauty surrounding it.

Mr. McFarlane was thanked by Mrs. A. C. Campbell.

A short business period followed and the meeting was brought to a close with prayer by Mrs. T. F. Townsend.

Lunch was served and a social half hour spent together.

Banana Cake with Crunchy Topping

by Mary Moore

Eleanor figures that it was years since she made this cake. When I returned from Brandon she was bubbling over with enthusiasm about it and declared I did not have to try it again because she had done the testing .

Bruce said it was the best cake he had tasted for six years, so that ought to be enough recommendation for you. It is delicate and the topping is applied just after it is baked, then broiled and the result is rich and crunchy.

This is at its best served warm and ideal for those folks who do not like orthodox icing. "Too sweet" they say.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Devilled Broiled Lamb Patties; Fluffy Boiled Rice; Creamed Broccoli; Celery and Apple Salad; Pumpkin Pie with Honeyed Whip Cream; Coffee.

BANANA CAKE WITH CRUNCHY TOPPING:

2 cups sifted cake flour (or all-purpose flour sifted 4 times, 1½ teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon baking soda, ¾ teaspoon salt, 1 1-3 cups granulated sugar, ½ cup soft shortening, ½ cup sour milk or buttermilk (or ½ cup sweet milk soured with ½ tablespoon vinegar), 1 cup mashed ripe bananas, 2 eggs, unbeaten, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Sift flour, baking powder, soda, salt and sugar into mixing bowl. Add soft shortening, ¼ cup of milk and mashed bananas. Mix until flour is dampened, then beat 300 strokes by hand or 2 minutes in mixer at low speed. Add eggs, remaining ¼ cup of milk and vanilla, beat 150 strokes by hand or 1 minute in mixer at low speed. Spread evenly in 8 x 10" oblong pan or 9 x 9" square pan, greased on bottom only. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 35 to 42 minutes. Remove from oven, turn oven control to broil. Cook on rack five minutes. Spread hot cake evenly with Crunch Topping: Cream ¼ cup of butter or margarine and ¾ cup light brown sugar together. Add 1½ tablespoons of cream or evaporated milk or whole milk, beat until smooth. Add ½ cup shredded cocoanut and ¼ cup chopped nuts. Place low under broiler and broil until sugar is bubbly and topping is deliciously browned. For serving, cut into squares with sharp knife, in pan.

Eleanor says for her purposes this cake is ideal. It is comparatively easy to make, and the batter is so beautiful she was tempted to taste it and did. It is perfect for a late evening snack when your husband craves "something warm from the oven".

W.I. Holds 'Family Night'

REDNERSVILLE — Recently the members of Rednersville W.I. entertained at a Family Night.

About 65 persons enjoyed the banquet at seven o'clock, this followed by a rousing sing-song conducted by one of the members.

The short business session followed with the president, Mrs. M. Wallbridge in charge. Everyone was reminded to attend the Farm Forum meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil McFaul on February 5th. The guest speaker is from Moira Secondary School in Belleville.

The program, convened by Mrs. C. McFaul was much enjoyed. The Doxtator sisters favored with two lovely duets accompanied by Mrs. MacKay at the piano.

The highlight of the evening was the pictures shown by the guests Mr. and Mrs. Jack Parrott of their recent trip around the world. They showed some excellent photography and truly delighted the audience in the pleasing way in which they told of their experiences.

Following the program Mrs. H. Weese thanked the guests and any others who helped with the program.

Noted Canadian Geneticist Says New Look Should Be Taken at Soviet Theories

By JOHN E. BIRD

OTTAWA (CP) — One of Canada's most prominent geneticists says Western scientists should take a new look at current Soviet theories in the field of heredity before rejecting them.

Dr. J. Wallace Boyes, chairman of the department of genetics at McGill University, makes his suggestion on the basis of information he fathered during a six-week visit to the Soviet Union.

Western and Russian geneticists differ sharply on whether acquired characteristics can be passed on from one generation to the next.

Geneticists in the western world say that acquired characteristics cannot be inherited. They contend that if environment or other factors produce changes in a parent these cannot be passed on to his children by means of the genes—part of the hereditary material in the reproductive cells of the parent.

PERMANENT CHANGE

The theory in the west is that the genes undergo permanent physical changes and are reproduced thereafter in a new form. Such changes are called mutations and are recognized through their effects on specific characteristics of the individual.

Mutations are caused by a variety of agencies, including certain chemicals and even radiation produced through atomic means. Where mutations occur in the reproductive cells they may be transmitted from parent to offspring for many generations.

However, Russian geneticists contend that acquired characteristics can be inherited.

Dr. Boyes says in an article in the National Research Council News he believes that the "ideological philosophy of Russian scientists is partly responsible for their attitude toward the inheritance of acquired characteristics."

REJECTS THEORY

The Russians believe that communism is superior to capitalism. They feel that if a Russian can be taught to believe this then this will be passed on to succeeding generations, he writes.

While rejecting the Russian theory, Dr. Boyes said he feels that certain experimental results in the Soviet Union are "sufficiently significant, taken together, to suggest that we should check these particular experimental results on a strictly scientific basis before we reject them."

"There is a certain common denominator running through their results which suggests the existence of some general principle that Western geneticists should examine carefully," he said.

"In view of many recent advances in western genetics I suspect that our present experimental programs should provide us with more critical data on the basis of which we can reassess our positions and perhaps find some points of agreement."

David Niven Wants Military Discharge From Movie Films

By RAYMOND E. PALMER

LONDON (AP)—David Niven thinks it's about time the movie industry gave him his military discharge.

"I've had enough of real war and of the movie wars," he said. "The British army has retired me to the officer reserve. But the movie business keeps me on the active list."

Niven played an ensign in Charge of the Light Brigade, a Philippine constabulary lieutenant in The Real Glory, an RAF officer in Stairway to Heaven, an army captain in Appointment with Venus, a retired major in Separate Tables, a U.S. cavalry lieutenant in a number of westerns, and a corporal in The Guns of Navarone.

He is a civilian in his latest movie Act of Mercy. But he still gets involved—this time in a South American revolution.

SAME NEXT TIME

"It's the same in my next movie, The Captive City," said Niven.

"I play a member of a do-good mission doling out blankets during the Communist drive to take over Athens after the Second World War.

"Then I find I'm sitting on a former German arms cache and I get mixed up in the fighting again."

At one time Niven planned to make the army his career—and along with movies it has been.

He entered Sandhurst, Britain's military college and spent two years there. Then as an officer he spent 4½ years in the British army before bowing out.

He was on a machine-gun course at the time and at one lecture on ballistics he was worried about getting away to keep a date. Gen. Sir Hereward Wake, who was giving the lecture, finally asked if there were any questions.

"Yes, sir," piped up Niven. "Can you tell me the time?"

NOT FUNNY

He was promptly placed under arrest with a fellow officer and friend guarding him in his quarters. The guard sent out for a bottle of whisky and by the time they had finished it the guard was suggesting he would go to the washroom while Niven escaped.

From his hideout—in the Naval and Military Club in London—Niven at the suggestion of friends resigned his commission.

His resignation letter read:

"Dear Colonel—Request permission to resign commission. Love, Niven."

Col. Telfer-Smollett told Niven years later that he was so intrigued with this document that he framed it and kept it on the wall of his house in Scotland for years.

Niven swapped his vintage auto for a round-trip ticket to Canada and then sold the return half to raise funds to stay there. Later he went to The United States, made his way to Hollywood and began working as an extra.

REJOINED ARMY

He was right at the top in Hollywood when the Second World War broke out. Niven hurried back to England and rejoined the army.

He dismisses his war record with a shrug.

Niven led a squadron of 160 officers and 20 men in what amounted to a private army. It was an offshoot of the Commandos.

During the invasion of Europe its operations consisted of going beyond the front line so that Field Marshal Montgomery would know what was up ahead.

"Now I want to forget war for a while," said Niven.

"What I'd really like is the comedy part. I love comedy. I love making people laugh."

Head of American Motors Pushing Ramblers to Third Place in Industry Sales

By A. F. MAHAN

DETROIT (AP)—Between 5 and 6 a.m. on summer days, George Wilcken Romney frequently steps on to a golf course that adjoins his $100,000 suburban home, tees up three golf balls and whacks them down the fairway.

Then, as rapidly as he can, he follows them up—keeping all three balls in play separately for six holes.

"A compact 18," the father of North American compact cars calls his accelerated version of golf.

He's busy as usual as chairman and president of American Motors, whose Ramblers are pushing for third place in auto industry sales and whose Kelvinator division makes household appliances.

He works hard at his position in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon) —a post equivalent to that of a bishop.

He organized and heads the non-partisan Citizens for Michigan, aimed at reforms in the state government, and he's plumping for a similar Citizens for America organization.

MAY ENTER POLITICS

And he's seriously considering a bid for the Republican nomination for governor of Michigan. Even before definite word on that from Romney, there was speculation that the springboard for a try at the White House. The governor's term ends in 1964, a presidential year, and he's been tabbed as a promising prospect by such Republican chiefs as Richard Nixon and former president Eisenhower.

SPEAKS OUT

At 54, Romney is a handsome man with dark hair becoming grey at the fringes. He weighs 175 pounds, stands 5-11½, has grey eyes and grins broadly and often.

His political attitudes are flexible and he believes in speaking out.

One of Romney's favorite topics is what he considers today's undue concentration of employer, union and governmental power. "We need laws to prevent the aggregation of excessive power in any segment of our society," he said.

URGES REFORMS

He suggests that union bargaining on an industry-wide basis be barred. He would also require, in effect, the break-up of any company engaged in any one basic industry (autos, for instance) and doing more than 35 per cent of the total business (as General Motors and Ford).

The profit-sharing plan he introduced at American Motors—the first of its kind in the industry — received wide attention. The plan was praised by United Auto Workers chief Walter Reuther but coldly received by some of Romney's fellow industrialists.

WAS MISSIONARY

Romney has two daughters, both married, a 20-year-old son now a Mormon missionary in England as was his father before him, and a 14-year-old son, Mitt.

The Mormon Church has no paid clergy. Romney, as do others, gives his time and in addition he is a tither—one who donates 10 per cent of his income to the church. In recent years his earnings have gone as high as $250,000.

He doesn't smoke, drink or swear, and his physical pace is such that a close associate comments: "I've had to mention it on occasion when he had me worn out. I might add, I'm younger than he is."

MUTINEERS ON TRIAL

LISBON (Reuters) — Capt. Henrique Galvao and other members of the band which seized the Portuguese liner Santa Maria in 1961 will be tried in their absence by a Lisbon court, starting next Wednesday, it was announced Saturday. No details of charges were disclosed.

Small Bomb Explodes At Gardens

TORONTO (CP) — A small bomb or giant firecracker was tossed at the Maple Leafs player's bench as Saturday night's National Hockey League game was about to start. It singed the clothing of a player and an official.

The blast came in darkened Maple Leaf Gardens as the national anthem was being played before a game with New York Rangers.

Linesmen Matt Pavelich, standing at the south gate of the Leafs' bench, said the object grazed his nose, hit his forearm and exploded. There were holes in the right sleeve of his sweater from wrist to elbow, the front of his sweater was seared and powder marks stained his clothing.

It knocked me off balance," Baun said, "and both Pavelich and I had trouble seeing for a minute or so."

Detectives could find no trace of a wrapper or casing but gathered up ice scrapings from the scene and sent them to the crime laboratory along with Pavelich's sweater, Baun's glove and the towel the linesman used to wipe his face after the blast.

Village Mayor Dies Suddenly

ZENON PARK, Sask. (CP)—The 61-year-old mayor of this Saskatchewan village, 80 miles east of Prince Albert, died early Sunday while he warned residents of a fire which destroyed most of the community's main business block.

Mayor Armand Lalonde, knowing he had a serious heart condition, ran to upstairs suites to warn three families and called the fire brigade. Then, realizing he was having a heart attack, sent another man to rouse a fourth family. The mayor died in the street, a hero to the village's 100 residents.

The fire destroyed a pool hall, plumbing store, butcher shop and locker plant, and an empty building. It damaged a pharmacy, doctor's office and co-op store. A number of upstairs suites in the buildings were destroyed or damaged.

Mayor Lalonde is survived by a wife and seven children, the youngest 13.

French, Aussies and English Worry About Dirty Money

By GEOFF ALLEN

LONDON — While this is not a matter which need occasion you great alarm, the notes in your wallet (or bag) and the coins in your pocket (or purse) are covered with all manner of viruses and germs, many of them deadly.

They include (almost for sure) those of golden staph, tuberculosis, venereal disease, and many other dangerous, or at least, frightening diseases.

But a Bank of England official told me that there was no higher incidence of illness among their staff handling and sorting used currency than is noted in other departments.

So the chances are heavily against your dying or becoming ill through handling a $1.00 bill or picking up a .25c piece from a store counter. But they are not entirely non-existent.

The French (a logical people) have recognized that there is some measure of danger by a recent decision to issue bank notes on paper so treated chemically that the notes will remain sterile throughout their life.

SUGGESTS PLASTIC

Perth, West Australia, man seized with the same general idea, suggested plastic money, which would not readily harbor germs or serve as a breeding ground for them.

All germs flourish best in warmth and most of them in darkness. Paper and metal (especially paper) have added advantages as breeding grounds for germs. Paper holds moisture — another necessity for germ culture. It also absorbs grease (in restaurants, for example) which serves as a medium for germ growth. Grease will also adhere to coins.

There is quite a lot to be said hygienically, against paper money, unless you can keep it sterilized, and quite a lot to be said for plastic money, because there are ways that plastics can be made repugnant to most germs.

The French authorities have disclosed that their decision to issue sterilized money was made after the recent influenza epidemic in Europe and Britain.

Influenza is caused by viruses that are so small they have only recently been isolated and identified by the electronmicroscope. But great colonies of them can be carried on paper money.

QUESTION OF INK

The idea of printing plastic notes was put forward by Hugh Dunn; who works in the West Australian Lands and Survey Department. His task there is to prepare and distribute maps. Anxious to find a method of making long-lasting maps, he thought of printing them on plastic with the same ease as printing on paper and it had to be an ink that would not wash off in any circumstances.

A large chemical firm said it could not be done but Dunn got to work and devise the type of ink he required. Then he started to get the maps printed.

Plastic currency notes would have a lot of advantages over paper money, says Dunn. They would not harbor germs as readily as paper and could be washed, they would not tear, would be cheap to make and would baffle forgers as they could not obtain the secret ink.

The Bank of England has suggested that notes could be made of some kind of drip-dry fibre cloth, but little progress has yet been made with this line of enquiry.

Apart from carrying germs, our paper money has to be destroyed when it becomes too worn. A bank teller who, when counting money, sees one that is tattered, flips it aside. The torn notes are bundled together and sent to the Bank of England's massive building in the City of London.

Bank officials state that the life of today's one pound note is a little over 12 months. The ten shilling note rarely lasts longer than six months, but on the average a fiver will stay in circulation for two years.

The Bank of England employ a staff which runs into three figures to cancel and check soiled and worn notes as well as to deal with the production and distribution of bank notes.

The bank official told me that after checking the notes are destroyed by burning.

There is another section of the bank where notes already partly destroyed are handled.

In this office skilled note surgeons piece together fragments of notes disgorged from washing machines, retrieved from fires and rescued from rats and mice.

Owners usually get something back from such monetary debris after the bank officials have completed their painstaking work. Ex-gratia payments are made by deducing such things as the weight of ash when banknotes have been mistakenly burnt.

EXPORTS TRIPLED — Canadian exports to Cuba in the first nine months of 1961 totalled $21,492,000, almost triple the nine-month total of $7,502,000 in 1960. But exports dropped sharply in September, 1961, to $1,080,000 from $2,104,000 in the previous month and a high of $3,401,000 in April.

Inventors of RPC 4,000 Try To Teach Machine How to Compose and Write Poetry

By CHARLES MAHER

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP) — RPC 4,000 is the latest terrifying example of what can happen when you don't keep computing machines in their place.

This one writes poems.

What's worse, it does such a lousy job of it they may sell.

Sample:

"That sweet moustache's bill behind a clod did bump.

"Lastly, its teeth were broad and plump."

Or:

"Oh, panic not to this docile juice.

"Finally, few of my jackets did distrust the goose

"Ah, to tectify is black; to refute was nourishing.

"Butterflies."

GET COMMON TOUCH

RPC 4,000, as you can see, may never be nominated poet laureate. But, as a matter of fact, RPC 4,000 is not being groomed to drive Robert Frost into the hardware business. Its developer, the Librascope division of General Precision, Inc., is simply trying to teach computers not to be such snobs, so ordinary people can understand them.

As it stands now, these sophisticated contraptions wouldn't give the formula for hard-boiled eggs to an ordinary layman.

But the gang at Librascope would like to share their pleasant association with RPC 4,000. So they're trying to teach it to understand, and to write, everyday English.

If they can do this, businesses will be able to take advantage of the enormous brainpower of such machines without having to hire mathematics professors as interpreters.

TAUGHT IT GRAMMAR

Frank Bristow of Librascope explains the project this way:

"Our ultimate aim is to sit down and converse with the computer by voice or by typing into the machine, using the same language we would in ordinary conversation.

"We programmed an earlier machine with the basic rules of grammar, as taught in high school. Then we gave the machine lessons in simple sentence structure. Then we gave it a little vocabulary.

"The machine was told that if it was going to write a sentence it should use a subject, a verb and so forth. It would pick the words at random, writing a sentence loosely keyed to a given subject."

The eventual application?

"Well, suppose you have a chain of food stores," says Bristow. "You want to keep track of all the food you buy, what you sell, how much perishes, how much money you're paying each man. This can all be collected by the computer system. But, today, you have to have a code worked up by a specially trained man to ask the computer questions.

"What we're aiming for is the way you can just sit down and ask the computer how many apples you sold and—just like that—the computer tells you 30,000,000.

"The scientist sees the computer as an extension of man's mind. It takes a genius to hold 12 different variables in his mind at the same time. The machine, of course, can hold thousands."

BEATNIKS FLIPPED

Librascope scored its first success in the field of mechanical poetry with one of RPC 4,000's predecessors.

"We had a verse typed out by the machine and one of the guys took it down to Venice West, where the beatniks hang out," Bristow said. "He stood up and read it and they listened to it all. And then he told them it was written by a machine and they almost flipped."

Thank you. And now for a final word from RPC 4,000:

"Ode to a Newt"

"Ah, there plunders their frayed floor's twine

"So, because of frost, a figure is fine.

Encore:

"Lament for a Daughter

"Not for whimpering iceboxes could I truck.

"Lastly, their sardines are gentle yet awestruck.'

Stately Nelson Courthouse Is Damaged

NELSON, B.C. (CP) — The stately Nelson courthouse felt the sting of terrorists Sunday night.

Incendiary devices, crudely made from half - gallon cans filled with oil, were burned in the building's entrance.

A stairwell was destroyed and walls were scorched. Damage was estimated at more than $1,000.

The three-storey stone courthouse has been the site for trials of some members of the radical Sons of Freedom Doukhobor sect, charged with acts of terrorism in the Kootenay area of southeastern British Columbia.

About 80 of the Sons have been arrested, 13 convicted and 10 sentenced to prison.

Mr. Justice Harry Sullivan of the B.C. Supreme Court, presiding at the trials now, said court would sit today. Three of the Sons — Lon Legebokoff, Fred Jmaeff and John Labakaeff— are to be sentenced.

Buster Wigg, driving his taxi past the building, heard a report inside and leaped from the car. He smashed his way inside through a glass door and, with his hands, cut off the air supply to the burning cans.

J. Bowen-Colthurst, prosecuting attorney at the trials, said Sunday night's action "was a gesture of utter contempt for he whole structure of our society."

Mayor Tom Shorthouse said the incident "should be treated as civil war."

Trawler Found

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Search officially ended at dusk Saturday for the St. Pierre-Miquelon trawler Ravenel, missing more than a week with 18 men aboard.

The last trace of the vessel, apparently the victim of stormy weather a week ago, was found Friday in the form of a pilothouse door, lifejackets and other gear on the shores of the Burin Peninsula, where wreckage was found earlier in the week.

AGE 105, SIPS GIN

HERSTAL, Belgium (AP)—Offered champagne on her 105th birthday, Mrs. Marguerite Vieillevote disdained it and asked for a drop of gin instead. Mrs. Vieillevote, Belgium's oldest citizen, sipped the drink with a steady hand after climbing the steps of the Herstal town hall and refusing the help of the burgomaster. She has sound hearing, doesn't need eyeglasses and still digs in her garden.

Successful Living

Objects to Women Smoking

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—I cannot find a wife that does not have the filthy tobacco habit.

First kids start smoking to be one of the crowd. They are not taught to stand on their own feet. So when they become mothers they wonder why they drop their baby's weight two or three pounds, on an average, as compared with the no-smoking mothers.

I think it is a tragedy of our so-called civilization, that a total abstainer has to go to the Soviet Union to find a wife who is satisfied to be one of the nation's mothers.—RED DOUGLAS.

WELL RED:—Hope you enjoy the trip!

(P.S.—My medical consultant does not believe it possible to tell from examining babies whether their mothers smoked during pregnancy or continued to smoke after their babies were born).

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—Please suggest how I can get things going at a party. That first half hour while people are still coming is often awkward. My crowd are all between 18 and 21.—SMART SET.

DEAR SMART:—To set the pace—as it were—music is a great help. Have some records of the tunes you all like best. Even if you have to borrow them, and a record player.

Ice-breaker games are great fun. Write me for a few variations. Don't be so pseudo-sophistocated you scoff at games which can make people forget themselves.

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—I am partially crippled with arthritis and can only work at home. I do hand sewing on such items as quilts and cushion tops; also crochet work. I should like to be free to sell this work. I should also like to handle greeting cards, stationery and religious books.

What permit do I need, if any, to do this? If I give the place a name and put up a sign, would this make a difference?—SUE.

DEAR SUE:—The world is your oyster! There are no curbs nor cramps on free enterprise in Canada, with or without a sign. Good for you for earning money in this way!

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—I have been going with this boy two months. I love him and he says he loves me. About a week ago we were sitting in the car when my mother came out and told me to get in the house and for him not to come back down again.

I haven't seen or heard from him since. Every time I call his home his mom says he isn't home because he doesn't want to talk to me. We were only sitting in the car and we weren't doing anything to be ashamed of.

I'm 19 years old but I still go to school. Everyone says if he thinks enough of me he'll come back, but I'm afraid he won't and I really love him. What shall I do?—MIXED UP.

DEAR MIXED UP:—In my book 19 is old enough to be trusted. What's bothering your mother? Take it up with her; not with him.

And to her I would say: If you don't like car sitting, invite him in. Your daughter needs help in picking a mate and time is flying. Ask him to dinner—and show you are sorry for your rudeness.

Non-Union Musicians May Be Enjoyed

TORONTO (CP) — Manager Angus MacKinnon of the Royal York Hotel said Sunday the hotel will hire non - union musicians to play for dinner-dancing next week.

On Saturday Mr. MacKinnon told J. Alan Wood, president of the Toronto Musicians Association, that the hotel would hire non-union musicians if the association continued its boycott of the strike-bound hotel.

He said Sunday he had been told that Mr. Wood had been in touch with Walter Murdoch, Canadian executive officer of the American Federation of Musicians (CLC), but had received no direction.

"I told Mr. Wood we couldn't wait any longer. We're putting in non-union musicians by Friday at the latest and paying union scale."

Mr. Wood said Saturday a serious rebellion had developed within the ranks of Toronto's union musicians. He estimated $90,000 in fees and wages had been lost to musicians since the boycott began.

When the Hotel and Club Employees Union (CLC) went on strike April 24, 1960, 1,188 workers walked off their jobs. Since then 521 have returned to work and the number still on strike is disputed.

Indonesian Students Raid U.S. Embassy

JAKARTA (Reuters)—About 100 Indonesian students today attacked the U.S. embassy here in protest against a reported American decision to allow Dutch troop transport planes to land in U.S. territory.

The demonstration came before reports reached here of the Dutch government's announcement that the U.S. would not allow charter flights carrying Dutch troops to West New Guinea to stop at American territory.

The riot alarmed officials in charge of arrangements for a visit here next week by U.S. Attorney-General Robert Kennedy and his wife.

The students tore down the U.S. flag and ripped it to pieces, damaged eight cars, smashed windows with a barrage of stones and plastered the building with anti - American posters.

Several members of the embassy staff were reported hit by flying glass.

A hail of stones landed near Ambassador Howard Jones while he was inside his office but an embassy statement said he was not injured.

Messages by JFK, Fleming Big Morale Boosters to Men Striving for Trade Markets

By DAVID OANCIA

LONDON (CP)— Two messages—one delivered in Washington, the other in Winnipeg—appear to have been big morale boosters to the men who are striving for Western European integration.

The messages were major world trade policy pronouncements by President John Kennedy and Finance Minister Donald Fleming.

Both emphasized the need for dramatic moves to cope with the international trading revolution precipitated by the creation of the European Economic Community and Britain's decision to try to join it.

President Kennedy's message to Congress was an appeal for authority to negotiate a sweeping agreement with the Common Market "that will pool our economic strength for the advancement of freedom."

Fleming noted that effective ways of dealing with the rapid changes "cannot be found by Canada or any other single country acting alone, but will require the collective efforts of all principal trading countries."

The Canadian finance minister then added that Kennedy's trade - liberalization program "is in line with the sort of solution to current world economic problems we have been consistently advocating."

GOOD NEWS TO U.K.

This was music to the ears of the British negotiators, now deeply immersed in the complex negotiations aimed at membership in the community formed by France, Germany, Italy and the Benelux countries.

Lord Privy Seal Edward Heath, chief of Britain's Common Market team, described the American proposals as "bold, imaginative and ingenious."

High - level British sources viewed Fleming's statement as confirmation that a period of strained relations between Canada and Britain had indeed ended.

One direct result of the better relations is the presence of two senior Canadian officials in Brussels helping the British and Common Market teams of experts studying the Commonwealth trade problem.

Perhaps the most important aspect of the recent speeches and developments is what they foreshadow. They envisage a strong, united Western Europe working in a close partnership with the United States, Canada and other nations of the non-Communist world.

ACTION INEVITABLE

Kennedy's program is based on the premise that Britain and other European nations ultimately will be members of the booming Common Market.

He wants vastly increased authority to negotiate tariff cuts of up to 50 per cent over a five-year period, particularly with the European Community.

Most of the tariff concessions would be extended to other nations coming under the most-favored-nation category of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

Other countries, however, will be expected to play their part in the liberalization of the free world's trade.

The president said that on some items on which tariff cuts could possibly be made by the U.S. and the Community "compensating concessions from other interested countries should be obtained as part of the negotiations."

Much could happen to stymie the moves to freer trade. Britain's negotiations to join the European Community could fail. The U.S. Congress could hedge the authority the president wants with so many qualifications that he could not carry out the sort of tariff-slashing program he envisages.

But if Kennedy is successful, his policy should remove some of the fears aroused by the Common Market. The chief one is that the Community will develop into a tightly-knit grouping in Europe sheltering behind its external tariff wall.

This possibility will be remote if the president can get his proposals through Congress, says the Manchester Guardian.

"Instead of an introverted and high-tariff organization, the Common Market will become, under American pressure, low tariff and outward looking."

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO H. CARVER, Sports Editor

A lot of water, muddy and otherwise, has flown under the boxing bridge since the Patterson-McNeeley sideshow in Toronto. And after the wise ones' I-told-you-so's had died down came the cries from the fistic mob wanting Sonny Liston as the next punch-mixer for the champion.

Liston's supporters included a lot of boxing's VIP's, headliners, all the way down to the punch-wobbly hangers-on. True, Sonny was at the moment under a cloud, mixed up with the mobs, the law and all that, but, the wise ones said, he could fight and what's more he could take Patterson.

Then out of the blue, so to speak, came a voice that differed with the clamor. It was a voice that should know of what it speaks. It has had experience both inside and outside the ring. It belongs to the Ole Manassa Mauler, the one and only Jack Dempsey.

Dempsey said at a service club dinner that "I'm not sure Liston is the great fighter some crack him up to be. Let him have a year to rehabilitate himself and prove that he can behave, then it's time to talk about a championship fight."

"I'll admit I haven't seen him personally," Dempsey said, "but I've watched him on television and he doesn't impress me. He looked slow against Eddie Machen. I didn't see him kayo the German his last time out, but that wasn't any competition."

Dempsey says the main point against Liston is he hasn't. beaten anybody. "He may be great but how can we tell until he beats somebody and proves he can take it as well as dish it out."

"Patterson," Dempsey said, may not be able to take a punch too well, but he's a pretty good champion—and I'm not sold that Liston is any better, or as good."

Dempsey jolted his listeners with the statement. "There is no fight game today. It is something that has been killed by television but can be revived if small promoters are given a chance."

Dempsey said the small promoters have to watch expenses, adding that judges in prize fights are not necessary. "Only one man can judge a fight and he's the referee who sees it from all angles."

The Ole Mauler also decried the system of points in determining winners. "Go back to the Marquis of Queensbury rules," he argued. "The winner should be the fighter who was the most aggressive, has done the most damage and was the stronger at the end."

"If you and I ran around the block ten times and you led me until the last lap, when I beat you, I'm the winner. That's the way it should be in fighting, too. I insist that a fight can be won in one round and you don't need an adding machine to decide it either."

"As things are now," the former heavyweight champion pointed out, "a fighter can pile up a lead in the early rounds and then coast—knowing he has the points to win."

Dempsey recalled the old days. "That would never have happened with Hardy K. Downing of Salt Lake City, who did so much for the fight game," he said. "He was promoter, referee and announcer. His wife sold tickets."

Downing would tell us—yes, I used to fight for him—in the middle of the ring, 'I want an honest fight, giving your best all the way'."

"If not, I'll throw you out. Then don't stop for your money. Just be sure and be out of town before nine o'clock in the morning, or you'll land in jail."

"Small clubs, not the big monopolies, are the backbone of the fight game," Dempsey said. "They must be brought back if it is to survive."

Wings Move Up

Hamilton Increases Lead Over Idle Junior Habs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Red Wings rammed in four first - period goals; then drew a superlative performance from goaltender Buddy Blom Saturday night to defeat St. Catharines Teepees 6-3.

The victory, in which Lowell MacDonald shared the limelight with a three-goal effort, moved the league - leading Wings four points ahead of the idle Montreal Canadiens in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A Series.

The Wings, who drew a season attendance record at Niagara Falls the night before, did it again at St. Catharines as they snapped out of a two-game losing streak. Some 2,630 sat in at Garden City Arena as the Teepees dropped their first game after five straight wins.

The Teepees dominated play after the first 20 minutes, outshooting the Wings 15-5 in the second period and 14-7 in the third, but Blom held them off. He made 38 stops compared with 25 for Roger Crozier of the Teeps.

MacDonald, who brought his season output to 40 goals, scored his last with 29 seconds left while Crozier was benched for an extra forward. Pit Martin, Paul Henderson and Roger LaFrenier got Hamilton's other goals. Phil Esposito, Jim Sanko and Ray Cullen scored for St. Catharines.

In the OHA Metro Junior A circuit, Unionville edged Whitby 6-4 Saturday night. Whitby lost again Sunday, 6-1 to Toronto St. Michael's College Majors.

Brampton and Toronto Marlboros tied 3-3 in Sunday's other game.

RETAINS TITLE

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Britain's Stirling Moss won the international 100-mile road race at Warwick Farm Track for the second straight year Sunday, averaging 81.49 miles an hour in his Cooper Climax. Bruce McLaren of New Zealand and Bob Stillwell of Australia, also in Cooper Climaxes, finished second and third.

Black Hawks Crowd Second Place

Fifth Straight Is Registered

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens ran into a red - hot substitute goaltender and were beaten for the first time in a month Sunday night.

But they were able to hang on to their six - point lead atop the National Hockey League because Toronto Maple Leafs failed to hold a mighty - mite defenceman.

Marcel Paille, an emergency replacement for the injured Lorne (Gump) Worsley in the New York Rangers nets, brought about Montreal's downfall.

Paille came up with a superb 40-save performance and led the Rangers to a 2-1 victory over the Habs at New York.

About an hour later, Pierre Pilote, who does a terrific job for Chicago Black Hawks despite his 165 - pound frame, killed off Toronto's hopes of gaining ground on the league leaders.

ENGINEERED PLAY

Pilote engineered a power-play goal, then stole the puck for an unassisted tally and the Black Hawks went on to edge the Maple Leafs, also 2-1, for their fifth straight victory.

Elsewhere Sunday night, Detroit Red Wings snapped a five-game winless streak after shaking up their lines and replacing the slumping Terry Sawchuk with Hank Bassen in goal.

Bassen, playing only in his eighth game this season, stopped 21 drives and shut out Boston Bruins 6-0.

Montreal, Toronto and Chicago all won in rather easy fashion Saturday night.

The Canadiens, in one of their best home displays of the season, got three goals within one minute and 29 seconds early in the game and went on to smash the Red Wings 8-1.

The Maple Leafs dumped the Rangers 4-1 at Toronto, scoring three times on an untested goalie after Worsley hurt his elbow early in the second period.

Chicago got two - goal performances from Stan Mikita, Ron Murphy and defenceman Elmer Vasko and slapped down Boston 6-3, also on home ice.

END THREE STREAKS

The Habs hadn't lost in 12 NHL starts, winning 10 and tying two. They also hadn't lost to Rangers in nine previous games this season and New York had not beaten Canadiens with Jacques Plante in goal since the last game of the 1959-60 campaign.

The Rangers managed to beat the Canadiens a couple of times in 1960-61, but they did it at the expense of Charlie Hodge.

Rookie Dave Balon and defenceman Al Langlois, an ex-Hab, scored the New York goals. Dickie Moore scored for Montreal.

At Chicago, the Leafs and Hawks battled through two scoreless periods. Then Pilote and Bill Hay set up rookie Chico Maki for the game's first goal at 4:44 of the third period.

The Black Hawks were shorthanded about nine minutes later when Pilote intercepted a pass by Red Kelly in Toronto ice and beat Leaf goalie Johnny Bower from close-in.

SPOILS SHUTOUT

Toronto got a goal back with less than two minutes to go when Frank Mahovlich wrecked Chicago goalie Glenn Hall's bid for a shutout.

Norm Ullman led the way for Detroit with two goals, his 18th and 19th of the season. Alex Delvecchio, Gordie Howe, Claude Laforge and rookie Chuck Holmes bagged the other goals.

Claude Provost's 28th and 29th goals paced Montreal's win over Detroit Saturday night.

Other Montreal scorers were Gilles Tremblay, Dickie Moore, Ralph Backstrom, Bobby Rousseau, Don Marshall and Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion.

Laforge scored Detroit's only goal.

WORSLEY HURT

At Toronto, Worsley was hurt just before George Armstrong put Toronto into a 1-0 lead at the 27 - second mark of the middle period.

Dave Dryden, goaltender with Toronto Marlboros of the Metropolitan Toronto Junior A League, took Worsley's place and was beaten by Allan Stanley, Dave Keon and Eddie Litzenberger.

New York's lone tally was by Andy Bathgate.

The Hawks grabbed an early lead against the Bruins. Mikita scored twice in the first period and Murphy and Vasko made it 4-0 in the second.

Then the Bruins went to work in the third with Johnny Bucyk, rookie Tom Williams and Jerry Toppazzini cutting the deficit to 4-3. But Murphy and Vasko wrapped the game up for the Hawks with goals in the final minute.

Barons Close In

Cleveland Gets 13th Win In Last Sixteen Outings

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The rampaging Cleveland Barons are closing in on first place in the Western Division of the American Hockey League.

The runner - up Barons trimmed Springfield Indians, eastern leaders, 5-1 Sunday night for their 13th victory in the last 16 outings. Cleveland trails the leading Buffalo Bisons by three points.

Buffalo blanked Quebec Aces 3-0, Providence Reds beat Hershey Bears 8-4 and Rochester Americans nipped Pittsburgh Hornets 5-4.

In Saturday's action, Cleveland crushed Providence 9-2, Hershey defeated Rochester 4-2, Springfield trounced Buffalo 9-2 and Quebec beat Pittsburgh 4-2.

John Ferguson powered Cleveland with a pair of goals against Springfield alternate goalie George Wood, replacing regular netminder Marcel Paille, called up by New York Rangers of the National League as an emergency replacement. The other three Cleveland goals were scored by Bill Sutherland, Bill Needham and Cal Stearns.

Springfield's Bruce Cline spoiled a shutout late in the third period for rookie Al Cullen in the Barons' net.

CULLEN GETS 33RD

Netminder Denis Dejordy produced his seventh shutout for Buffalo, most in the league, and Barry Cullen registered his 33rd goal of the season in the Bisons' triumph over Quebec. Wayne Hicks and Art Erickson were Buffalo's other marksmen.

George Ranieri collected four goals for Providence as the Reds moved into a tie for third place in the east with Quebec. Jim Bartlett, Ed MacQueen, Bob Beckett and Zellio Toppazzini scored the other Providence goals. Hershey's goals were fired by Ray Kinasewich, Les Duff, Al Johnson and Hec Lalande.

Larry Keenan and Alex Faulkner tallied two goals apiece in Rochester's squeaker over Pittsburgh. The other Rochester goal was scored by Wally Boyer, Gene Ubriaco scored twice for the Hornets, while Larry Regan and Norm Corcoran collected one each.

THREE FOR MIKOL

Cleveland forward Jim Mikol scored three goals Saturday night against the Reds, while Wayne Larkin fired two. The other four were accounted for by Fred Glover—his 13th of the season—Hank Ciesla, Eddie Mazur and Stearns. Pierre Brillant and Stan Baluik each scored once for Providence.

Johnson got two goals for Hershey, the second after Rochester's Gerry Ehman and Steve Kraftcheck each scored during the game's last five minutes to save the Americans from a shutout. The other Hershey scorers were Jack McKenzie and Willie Marshall.

Bill Sweeney and Jim Anderson paced Springfield's barrage against the Bisons with two goals each. The other Indian scorers were Floyd Smith, Dennis Olson, Cline, Bill McCreary and Kent Douglas. Barry Cullen and Dave Creighton got the two Buffalo goals.

Quebec snapped a first-period scoreless tie with Pittsburgh with three straight goals in the first eight minutes of the second period by Michel Harvey, Ed Hoekstra and Guy Black, and Skippy Burchell added another in the third. Pittsburgh scorers were Regan and Jack McIntyre.

BANFF, Alta. (CP)—University of Washington Huskies, with a weekend domination of all but one event, captured the team title at the 16th international collegiate ski meet Sunday. The defending titlists, Montana State College, finished the meet with 364.3 points, 19.5 back of Washington. University of British Columbia was third with 327.5 points, followed by University of Alberta 318.9, McGill University 313.9 and Montana 213.6.

Has Brilliant Finish

Palmer Wins At Palm Springs

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (CP) The great Arnold Palmer exploded from his slump Sunday to capture the $50,000 Palm Springs Open tournament with a brilliant final round.

Palmer picked up his first tournament win in seven months by firing a string of five birdies on the first nine holes and going on to register a three-under-par 69 at the Bermuda Dunes Country Club. His 90-hole total of 342 was 17 under par and three strokes better than the second-place finishers, Gene Littler and Jay Hebert.

Palmer, who swept the Palm Springs classic three years ago, pocketed $5,300. But the big money went to Dick Mayer, who grabbed a $50,000 bonus for a hole-in - one Saturday's fourth round. Mayer ended up in a tie for 10th place and won an additional $1,050.

The 32-year-old Palmer put together rounds of 69-67-66-71-69 and forged in front in the final 18 holes after trailing Littler by three strokes and Gardner Dickinson by one.

LEONARD FADES

Stan Leonard, who led the marathon event after two rounds, finished in a deadlock for 25th place and won $405. He started with rounds of 65-67, but tumbled far down the list with 78-72-71 for a 353 total.

Al Balding of Toronto was 32nd, winning $164.44, with 73-69-72-72-69—355.

Three other Canadians failed to make Saturday's cutoff of 287. Wilf Homenuik of Winnipeg had an 80 Saturday for a four-round total of 296, George Knudson of Toronto had 79 for 298 and Al Johnston of Montreal had 74 for 290.

First in 25 Years

Speed Skating Titles Decided at Jordan

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Ontario speed skating championships, held for the first time in at least 25 years, were completed under almost ideal weather conditions Saturday at Jordan Harbor, eight miles west of here.

Class championships in the men's divisions were divided between Toronto and St. Catharines.

Robert Elford and Steve Kovacs of Toronto won the juvenile and senior men's divisions respectively while Peter Martineau and Rocky Jodoin of St. Catharines claimed the junior and intermediate titles.

Dale Bobette of Barrie won the only two races for junior ladies, the 220 yards and 440 yards, while Rena Graefner, former British champion now living in Toronto, took first place in a special 220-yard senior ladies race.

In winning the juvenile men's title, 13-year-old Elford finished in front in both the 440 yards and 880 yards while Martin Weber of Barrie won the 220-yard heat.

SCORES CLEAN SWEEP

Martineau swept all three events, the 220, 440 and 880 in junior men's and Jodoin also scored a grand slam in intermediate, winning the 220, 440 and one mile.

Kovacs, former Hungarian national champion, won the 880 and one mile and placed second behind Harley Nichol of Dundas in the 440. Other senior winners were Chuck Hatfield of Toronto in the 220 and Hank Kalaver of Kitchener in the two-mile.

Previous records are unknown, due to the long lapse since the last championships were held, and times registered will be recognized as Ontario records.

Official times will not be released until checked at Ontario speed - skating headquarters in Ottawa.

Unofficially, two of the better marks were turned in when Klaver completed the two miles in 6:57.2 and Kovacs won the mile in 3:12.

Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings gained another point on New York's Andy Bathgate in the race for the National Hockey League scoring title during the weekend. He scored his 25th goal and also drew two assists for 60 points, just three behind Bathgate's total of 63.

The leaders:

PAPAL ELECTION

"Conclave" is the official title of the meeting in Rome at which cardinals of the Roman Catholic Church gather to elect a pope.

Ralph Dupas Beats Scott By Decision

NEW YORK (AP) — Ralph Dupas left his dancing shoes behind as he promised he would and pounded out a close but unanimous 10 - round decision over Charley Scott in a televised boxing match here Saturday night.

For Dupas, the No. 2 welterweight contender from New Orleans, it was his sixth consecutive victory and third in a row over Scott, unranked Philadelphian. Scott beat Dupas in the first of their four meetings.

Dupas, a 2 - to - 1 favorite, weighed 148, Scott 146½.

Known for his footwork and boxing cleverness, the 26-year-old Dupas had said he was going to turn slugger in an effort to please the fans more and get bigger paydays.

He did just that and met Scott, a stiff puncher, toe to toe for most of the exciting bout. There were no knockdowns.

Referee Teddy Martin gave each boxer five rounds but had Dupas ahead on points, 6-5. Judge Artie Aidala scored it 6-3-1 for Dupas and judge Rossi gave it to Dupas 6-4.

Won't Lift Travel Ban

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — Hopes that the world Alpine ski championships would surmount the political barriers threatening their existence have all but disappeared in the face of an inflexible travel ban by the NATO allies against East Germany.

The executive council of the International Ski Federation gave the Western powers 37 hours Sunday to lift their travel ban and grant Communist East Germany's skiers entry permits and visas to the championships, scheduled to begin Saturday in Chamonix, France.

The council said if this is not done by noon today the championship will be cancelled and the event reduced to a mere international ski week Feb. 10-18.

In Berlin, the three - power allied travel permit office said there is no possibility the East Germans will get their permits in time.

Rollins Edge Booth's; Joyces, Napanee Tie

Napanee Pringle's Falcons overcame 4-0 and 5-2 deficits to earn a 5-5 tie with Joyce Real Estate and Rollins Construction edged Booth's TV's 4-3 in a pair of nip an' tuck Industrial Hockey League games last night.

Both games presented a good crowd with fast, end to end hockey, and left the four top teams bunched in their race for the loop title.

The first-place Joyce club appeared to be well on the way to a lop-sided victory when it built an early 4-0 lead against Napanee. It was 4-1 at half-time. The Falcons scored early in the second half but Joyces potted their fifth goal for a comfortable 5-2 lead after seven minutes had been played.

Then Napanee took over to earn the tie on a goal by Maracle and two by Jerry Brady. Brady potted the equalizer with Joyces a man short and with about five minutes left to play.

Jerry Brady had three of the Napanee markers while Don Aylesworth and Pat Maracle [illegible] the others. Harvey Rombough and Dave Brady had two assists each, Lou Fish and Aylesworth one.

Hylie Bryant, Jim Sheridan, Jackie Elliott Doug Moreau and Bert Faulkner scored for Joyces. Huck Reeves and Sheridan had two assists apiece with Elliott, Bryant, Faulkner and Ruffert getting singletons. Joyces had all of the game's four minor penalties.

Rollins opened the scoring in the other game but Gill tied it and a pretty end to end rush by Skelly put Booth's in front 2-1 at half time.

McMillan tied it for Rollins in the second half and Green put this club in the lead 3-2. Gill's goal tied it 3-3 before Waite bagged the deciding marker for Rollins. The construction crew held Booth's at bay while two men shorthanded to hold on for the win. Booth's lifted goalie Claude Carr with 15 seconds left to play but only the [illegible] prevented Rollins from scoring into the open net.

Jackie Gill, with two goals, and Howard Skelly, with one, looked after the TV scoring. Phil Cornell and Bob Hughes had assists.

The winners drew six minor penalties and Booth's had four, plus a game misconduct to Don Bishop.

Following is the complete team standing, including all games played to date.

Ont. Rinks Take Home Most Prizes

By GEORGE FRAJKOR

QUEBEC (CP)—Ontario rinks took home most of the important prizes in the 49th Quebec international bonspiel Saturday.

Four of the bonspiel's five important trophies went to Ontario.

Carl Bastedo was the big winner, leading his Burlington rink to the bonspiel championship and simultaneously winning the Grand Aggregate Trophy for the rink that gets the best won-lost record in the upper-bracket competitions.

Newcomer John Buchowski of Coniston won the Chateau Trophy and D. A. Evans of Bradford the Francois Jobin event.

The only Quebec rink in the top winner's circle was Jacques Girard's Quebec Curling Club quartet, which wound up with the Omega Trophy.

RETAINS TROPHY

The Chateau, Omega and Francois Jobin are the bonspiel's three top events and the rinks getting as far as the quarter-finals in them qualify for the bonspiel championship playoffs and for the Grand Aggregate.

Bastedo beat Jean C. Labelle of Rosemere, Que., 10-8 in Saturday's final for the Lieutenant - Governor's Trophy, representing the championship. The victory gave him a tournament record of eight wins and one loss.

Buchowski took a 5-1 lead over Quebec Victoria's Ernie Blackadder but Blackadder fought back to tie the game 7-7 before the Coniston rink's last-rock advantage won the game in the final end.

Evans won the Francois Jobin event 15-12 over Oscar Parker's Oshawa rink and Girard took a decisive 15-7 victory over Gaston Asselin of Quebec Cambrai for the Omega.

The Royal Bank Trophy went to F. (Boots) Butorac of Kirkland Lake.

Breaks Record

Uelses Soars Over 16-Foot Mark

BOSTON (CP-AP) — Pole-vaulter John Uelses soared over the 16 - foot mark for the second time in two nights Saturday to confirm himself as the greatest pole - vaulter in history after his first vault was questioned on a technicality.

Uelses' feat overshadowed a sterling display by Toronto runner Bill Crothers, who came within one second of breaking the world record for the 1,000-yard run at the Boston Athletic Association Games.

Uelses, a 24 - year - old marine corporal from Quantico Va., set a world record of 16 feet, three - quarters of an inch. He also topped the 16 - foot mark at the Millrose Games in New York the previous night, but the crossbar was knocked off in the ensuing excitement before officials could make the required second measurement after the vault.

Crothers, a senior from the University of Toronto, missed the indoor record by seven-tenths of a second in winning the 1,000 - yard race. He went on to outsprint Irish runner Ron Delany in the final leg of the two - mile relay, but the effort wasn't quite enough as his East York Track Club team was beaten by two feet.

GAME LEG HELPED

Uelses' record leap came on his first shot at the mark. And, a game leg helped him to make it.

"I felt a pull in my right leg while I was going down the runway," he said. "I was going to stop and quit and I actually broke my stride. But I figured I was this far along so I might as well go through with the vault.

"I think breaking my stride gave me a little extra lift when I went up and over."

Crothers, Canada's top half-miler, ran the 1,000 in two minutes, 8.6 seconds to beat Jim Brown of New York University and Frank Tomeo of Fordham.

He held back in the pack until only 1½ laps remained, then broke loose and won going away.

In the two - mile relay, the strong Irish team — which also won the event at the Millrose Games Friday night — led at every baton change.

EXTENDS DELANY

Crothers, running after Stan Worsfold, Dave Bailey and Jim Snider, started the final leg far back. But he put on pressure and passed Delany with a lap to go, forcing him to put on a final burst for the narrow win.

Crothers time for the last leg was 1:48.8 compared with Delany's 1:50.9. The Irish team's winning time was 7:34.2 — a meet record — and the East York squad was clocked in 7:34.6.

Bruce Kidd, Canada's outstanding middle - distance runner, was held to a third - place finish in the international two-mile race.

The 18 - year - old Toronto ace held the lead for 20 of the 22 laps — at one point he was 40 yards ahead — was passed in the late going by winner Tom O'Riordan of Ireland and Charles Clark of California.

O'Riordan's time was 8:53.5. Clark finished two yards behind him in 8:53.8 and Kidd was another two yards back in 8:54.0.

Another Toronto runner, George Shepherd of East York, finished fourth in the 600 - yard run, won by Jack Herman of the U.S. Army in 1:10.1. Shepherd's time was 1:12.6.

Rams Are Out

Bulldogs Only Point Behind Galt Terriers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The playoff picture in the Ontario Hockey Association senior series is settled as far as Sarnia Rams are concerned — they're out.

The Rams, who have won only four of 29 games, were consigned permanently to last place for the 1961-62 season when they were beaten 7-3 by Woodstock Athletics Saturday night.

They now trail Stratford Indians by 11 points with only five games left and have no hope of making the sixth and last playoff spot.

Windsor Bulldogs maintained their pressure on first place by defeating Waterloo Tigers 6-4 Sunday in a game marked by 60 minutes in penalties and three goals by Tommy Walker. They are now only a point behind Galt Terriers with two games in hand.

Chatham Maroons rounded out the weekend action with a 7-4 victory over the fourth-place Strathroy Rockets Saturday night.

The Bulldogs, six points ahead of third-place Woodstock, got goals from Irwin Gross, Joe Klukay and Lou Bendo at Windsor in addition to Walker's trio. Charlie Brooker with two, Larry Pfaff and Nick Rintche tallied for the fifth-place Tigers.

GETS GIFT GOAL

Gross owed his goal at 19:46 of the final period to Tiger goalie Chuck Jewell, who was on the bench as Waterloo fought for a tie. Gross fired a weak shot toward the open net that never made it but was ruled a goal when Jewell fired his stick from the bench.

Waterloo's Tom Micallef drew a game misconduct penalty in the first period which also saw two other misconducts and a pair of majors.

The Maroons didn't go ahead to stay at Strathroy until the 22 second period. Dave Luciuk scored twice while Ernie Dick, Ted Power, Bob Seymour, George Aitken and Jack Douglas got singles. For Strathroy it was Walt Williams, Ray Moffitt, Jack McCreight and Paul Oliver.

Point Spread Unchanged In League

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The point spread at the top of the Senior Intercollegiate Basketball League remained unchanged after Saturday action.

Assumption University, beating McMaster 99-48 at Windsor, kept a four-point edge over University of Western Ontario, which downed Waterloo 65-51.

In Montreal, McGill Redmen scored an easy 79-48 win over University of Toronto in a game which did not count in the standings.

Three games are slated for Wednesday — Western at McMaster, Toronto at Ontario Agricultural College in Guelph and Queen's at McGill.

IMPROVE FINE RECORD

Assumption Lancers racked up their eighth win in nine starts as 11 players shared in their scoring spree against McMaster. Bob Moore and Bill Brown topped the list with 14 points each. Mike Schertzer was top man for McMaster with 16.

In London, the Mustangs fought off a last-half drive by Waterloo. The Warriors never made it to the front in their drive but, after trailing 40-23 at the half, cut Western's lead to eight points at one stage.

Western guards Leo Innocente and Tom Williamson each collected 18 points to lead the scoring. Harlan Krier was tops for Waterloo with 14.

In Montreal, centre Bob Berkman scored 29 points for the Redmen. Toronto's high man was centre Dave Ouchterlony with 15.

Marlene Streit And Partner Runners-Up

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Deane Beman and Ann Casey Johnstone won the United States amateur mixed foursomes golf tournament by three strokes Saturday. The runner - up pair was Jack Penrose of Miami, tournament manager, and Marlene Stewart Streit of Toronto, Canadian amateur women's champion.

Beman, a 22-year-old insurance executive from Bethesda, Md., and Mrs. Johnstone, of Mason City, Iowa, had a four-round total of 292. The Penrose-Streit duo finished with a 295 to beat out two other duos which had entered the final round in the lead.

DEXTER LEADS ENGLAND

KARACHI (Reuters)—A double-century by captain Ted Dexter helped to place England in a commanding position by the close of the third day of the third and last cricket test against Pakistan Sunday. At stumps, England, which is one up in the series, had scored 453 for four in reply to the Pakistan first innings total of 253 to lead by 200 runs. Dexter was out for 205.

Toronto Team Told Must Play Int. 'A'

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Hockey Association executive Saturday rejected a bid by Toronto Macedonians for a berth in the Allan Cup playoffs.

The Toronto team sought to meet the winner of the OHA Senior series, a western Ontario circuit, but league.

"If they had shown any good faith early in the season there would have been a senior group in eastern Ontario," he said. "They didn't even bother to attend the last two meetings and because they dropped out, the whole thing fell through."

The executive, after an examination of playing cards and qualifications, rejected a Napanee Comets complaint that too many imports, waiver players and former seniors were playing on the Belleville team.

It shelved for a week, pending further evidence, an appeal by Albert (Red) Creighton of Peterborough against his suspension for using a midget player under an assumed name in a game at Kingston.

It upheld a protest by Trenton juniors and declared Ron Hess of Trenton, a member of the Picton team, ineligible. The result of a Dec. 17 game was reversed, giving Trenton two points and leaving the team tied with Cobourg for the last playoff spot.

Gaels Lose 2 Games to McMaster

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Queen's Golden Gaels picked either the wrong place or the wrong time to go visiting during the weekend.

The Gaels visited McMaster University Marlins for a two-game Senior Intercollegiate Hockey Series. They lost both to the Western Division defending champions—4-0 Friday and 6-3 Saturday.

In other league action University of Toronto Blues downed University of Montreal Carabins 11-6 to hold their four-point lead in the Eastern Division while McGill downed Laval 5-3 in an Eastern game.

The Marlins were sparked by Jimmy McLellan's five goals Saturday.

In Toronto, rookie Steve Monteith collected three goals for the Blues. Linemate Bill Kennedy counted a pair, as did Bob Awrey. Singles went to Jesse Weller, George Hicken, Mike Elik and Jim Murchie.

Michel Jarry got three for the Carabins. Andre Boucher hit twice and Jean-Claude Therrien once.

In Quebec City, right winger Jim O'Reilly's two early goals made the difference for the Redmen. John Gilfillan, Rich Juliani and Ewing Attridge got one each. Claude Duguay, Yvon Paquet and Gratien Roy scored for Laval.

Montreal plays at McGill Wednesday.

Two Players Would Buy Hockey Team

VANCOUVER (CP) — A hockey group headed by former NHL greats Clint Smith and Babe Pratt said Saturday it will make an offer to buy the luckless Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League.

Smith and Pratt, both now in business here, previously indicated they would make an offer for the club owned by the Pacific National Exhibition but nothing came of it after the PNE put a $150,000 price tag on the Canucks.

Smith did not indicate what the group is prepared to pay for the club.

Fans Get Into Act By Jumping the Rail

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Even a fan got into the act Sunday when a stick and a fist-swinging fight broke out on the ice in an Eastern Professional Hockey League game between Hull-Ottawa Canadiens and Sudbury Wolves.

The fan jumped over the rail in the second-period donnybrook and staged an impromptu wrestling match with Sudbury coach Chirp Brenchley.

The fan was ahead, too, until three ushers came to the rescue of the coach and hustled his assailant out of the Hull Arena before he was identified.

When the smoke cleared the Canadiens went on to skin the Wolves 7-1.

It was the second weekend loss for the Wolves, who were trimmed 5-3 by Kingston Frontenacs in Kingston Saturday.

Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds nipped North Bay Trappers 3-2 at North Bay Sunday, but went down 4-2 at the hands of Kitchener - Waterloo Beavers Saturday in Kitchener.

KINGSTON ON TOP

Kingston remains at the top of the standings with 59 points, trailed by Hull-Ottawa with 55 and Kitchener with 54. Bringing up the rear are Sudbury with 39, the Sault with 36 and North Bay, 33.

The Hull fight started when Habs' playing coach Bob Armstrong and Wolves' goalie Carl Wetzel started swinging after a collision at the nets.

Sudbury defenceman Jack Hendrickson came to Wetzel's aid and Hull goalie Cesare Maniago flashed down the ice to make it a foursome.

Then the entire Sudbury bench swarmed onto the ice. Canadiens' general manager Sam Pollock restrained the Hull-Ottawa bench from entering the fight.

The four combatants were handed majors.

Barclay Plager led the Canadiens with three goals followed by Fred Hilts with two, Bill Masterton and John Rodger. Ted Wright scored Sudbury's lone goal.

TESSIER TAKES LEAD

Orv Tessier of the Frontenacs took over the lead in the scoring race in the game at Kingston Saturday when he collected three goals. He now has 72 points.

He and teammate Tom McCarthy were tied at 68 at the start of the game. Other Kingston scorers were Pete Panagabko and Lorne Ferguson. Don Cherry, Ed Stankiewicz and Sam Bettio scored for Sudbury.

Goaltender Gerry Cheevers made the difference as Thunderbirds collected their Sunday win. He stopped 28 of the shots fired at him by the Trappers.

Two goals by Milan Marcetta, including a tie - breaker in the third period, also helped. The other Sault goal was notched by Rich Healey.

North Bay scorers were Don McGregor and Doug Senior.

Northern Electric Hockey

The Hornets battled their way into the Northern Electric hockey league finals over the weekend when they defeated the Comets 3-1.

Hornets won the semi-final round two games to one and will meet the Indians in the finals, beginning next Sunday morning.

Smith scored two Hornet goals with Semark getting the other. Assists went to Day, Hull and Carr.

Skelly potted the lone Comet marker with Petrie assisting.

At the Park

"THE DEVIL AT 4 O'CLOCK Now Showing

Two of the screen's greatest stars, Spencer Tracy and Frank Sinatra, are spectacularly teamed in the Mervyn LeRoy-Fred Kohlmar production, "The Devil at 4 O'Clock," new Columbia release in Eastman Color now showing at the Park Theatre. A drama of violent emotional and physical conflict between men and nature, "The Devil at 4 O' Clock" presents Tracy as an aging, irascible Pacific island priest and Sinatra as a cynical convict who respects nothing and nobody.

Equalling the fireworks of the stars themselves, is the slumbering volcano which comes to earth-shaking life to motivate this absorbing, exciting new film and, in time, to blow itself completely out of existence.

The scene is the idyllic little Pacific island of Talua, where Tracy has been devoting his life and his energies to the maintenance of a jungle hospital high on the volcano's side; Sinatra is temporarily landed on Talua, with two other convicts, during the flight to their permanent prison island. Opposites in every way, he and Tracy clash at their every meeting, only to join forces when a major earthquake presages later, violent volcanic eruption.

The priest and the criminals parachute to the rescue of the hospital's child patients and staff, and lead them down the mountain. The party is threatened by roaring landslides, streams of mud and of molten lava, raging forest fires and, always, by the driving need to reach the beach and the safety of a waiting schooner before the volcano destroys itself and Talua.

Tracy is superb as the uncompromising priest who never doubts his own ability to do whatever he sets out to do. As the cynical criminal who discovers reserves of courage and self-sacrifice within himself, Sinatra has one of the most colorful roles of his career.

Kerwin Mathews is cast as a young priest who has been sent to the island to succeed the aging Tracy and Jean Pierre Aumont also is co-starred as a care-free seaplane pilot. Greggoire Aslan plays one of Sinatra's companions in crime and Alexander Scourby is the cruel governor of the doomed island. As a blind young hospital worked Barbara Luna lends enchantment to her romantic scenes with Sinatra.

Safe and Sane Oscar Race Plea of Picture Academy

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The motion picture academy's plea for a safe and sane Oscar race appears to have paid off.

Last year's race was a debacle of campaigning that left Hollywood appalled at the exploitation of what was designed as the industry's highest honor. The academy issued a statement recently asking for possible nominees to use good taste in plugging themselves.

The 1962 campaign is in full swing with the usual flood of trade paper ads on behalf of the hopefuls, but most of them use the soft sell. Academy voters are offered free seats at showings of outstanding films. But all is being done decorously.

The only controversy is caused by the academy itself—in its interpretation of the supporting category for Splendor in the Grass, when nearly everyone realizes he played a starring role. The obvious reason for the switch is that Beatty would have a better chance in the support race.

And Judy Garland and Montgomery Clift are allowed to run for support in Judgment at Nuremburg, though both drew star billing.

The campaigners with the biggest headache this year are the multiple brothers Mirisch. They have three, possibly four, films that they consider strong contenders. How to campaign for each of them and still keep all the principals happy is a king-sized chore.

Here are the Mirisch targets for nominations:

West Side Story — best picture; directors: Robert Rise, Jerome Robbins; actress: Natalie Wood; support: Rita Moreno, George Chakiris: writer: Ernest Lehmann.

One, Two, Three — best picture; director: Billy Wilder; screen play: Wilder, I. A. L. Diamond: Actor: Jas. Cagney.

Children's Hour—best picture; director: William Wyler; actress: Audrey Hepburn, Shirley Maclaine; support: Fay Bainter.

The Mirisches are also plugging Kirk Douglas for best actor in Town Without Pity.

Roth estimated the company would pay out $10,000 to $12,000 for the campaign.

Western Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Veteran defenceman Bill Davidson of Portland Buckaroos found himself in a new role in the Western Hockey League Sunday night.

Davidson, 35, was the only volunteer for the netminding chore when Don Head was injured late in the first period in a game against Vancouver Canucks.

Davidson made 14 saves in his first time in goal as the Bucks fought to a 2-1 overtime victory.

In Seattle, San Francisco Seals beat the Totems 6-1 while Edmonton Flyers edged Spokane Comets 3-2 at Spokane.

The Flyers beat Calgary Stampeders 9-2 Saturday night. The Comets downed the Canucks 8-1, Los Angeles Blades belted San Francisco 11-4 and the Totems defeated the Bucks 5-4 in overtime.

Head suffered a pulled hip tendon when he stretched to block a shot. He will be out for an indefinite period.

Terriers Win Third Game In Maritimes

AMHERST, N.S. (CP) — Galt Terriers, Canada's contenders for the world amateur hockey championship, wound up a three-game Maritimes tour Saturday with a 7-0 win over Amherst Ramblers, league-leaders of the Nova Scotia Senior League.

The Terriers made their best showing of the tour before 3,040 fans, the biggest crowd ever to jam the two-year-old Amherst Stadium. The Terriers easily whipped Halifax Wolverines 8-1 Thursday and edged Moncton Beavers 7-6 Friday.

The ramblers, defeated by the Terriers in the Eastern Canadian Allan Cup final last season, suffered from weak goaltending, a problem all season for the defending Maritimes champs. Galt showed sharp passing and good speed.

Emery Cormier gave up four goals in the first period and was replaced for the second and third by Paul Morissette who allowed three, both in the second frame.

Cormier stopped 12 shots and Morisette 30. Galt's Harold (Boat) Hurley stopped 30.

Veteran Don Rope scored twice for Galt in the first period. First-period singles went to Tod Sloan and Pete Kowaichuk. Bobby Brown, Bobby Robertson and Bob McKnight shot the three other goals in the second.

The Terriers took command about mid-way through the first period after an initial flurry by the Ramblers.

Galt's only apparent difficulty in its warm-up Maritimes run in preparation for the world amateur hockey tournament at Colorado Springs, Colo. March 8-18, was, with Moncton Friday.

In a dressing - room interview following that close win, Galt coach Lloyd Roubell said "we were strictly lousy."

At the Belle

"La Dolce Vita" is Called Federico Fellini's Masterpiece

Federico Fellini's "La Dolce Vita" called his masterpiece, is now playing at the Belle Theatre and is a sensational and shocking motion picture which easily will turn out to be the most exciting film of the year.

A tremendous hit abroad, where it won a score of coveted awards, "La Dolce Vita", is enjoying an equally wild success everywhere it is being shown in Canada. Audiences found that the film deserve all the hurrahs and the impressive honors it has received.

The title, translated, "The Sweet Life", is meant ironically, of course. With no punches pulled, the film explores the evolution or rather involution of a gossip-mongering Rome newspaperman to his decadent finish. The dozen sequences run swiftly and logically together, exploring deeper and deeper into a bored fashionable, unmoored society.

This sensational representation of certain aspects of life in contemporary Rome is brilliantly graphic of a whole sweth of society and sad decay and eventually, a withering commentary upon the tragedy of the over civilized.

Signor Fellini is nothing if not fertile, fierce and urbane in calculating the social scene around him and packing it into the screen. This comes through with devastating impact in an episode wherein two frightened kids are used to whip up a religious rally for the benefit of television. It is crystal clear in the crazy experience of his questioning newspaperman (played brilliantly by Marcello Mastroianni) with a visiting Hollywood movie star played with personality and punch by Anita Ekberg. It comes home to the hero when he sees his own pack of voracious photographers trying to make a sensational of the suicide of his most respected friend. It is surely evident at a mammoth orgy the hero attends with a gang of depraved sensation seekers who face their loneliness and emptiness in the dawn.

In sum, it is an awesome picture, licentious in content but moral and vastly sophisticated in its attitude and what it says. It is a masterpiece of movie making, done with the understanding of an artistic genius.

All movies are best when seen from the beginning, and "La Dolce Vita", will be presented twice daily. The matinee begins at 2.00 and the doors open at 1.30. The Evening performance begins at 8.00 the doors opening at 7.30, at the Belle Theatre in Belleville.

PRESIDENT AILING

ROME (AP)—President Giovanni Gronchi, 74, came down with the flu Sunday and doctors ordered him to stay in bed several days. His illness will delay formation of a new government, in which Premier Amintore Fanfani hopes to include the far-left Socialists with his own Christian Democrats, probably until the end of the week.

NBC Show of the Week Not Up to Usual Style

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The Forgery, Sunday night's NBC show of the Week, was based on the 1947 trial of Hans Van Meegeren, the Dutch artist accused of forging a series of "old masters" so perfect in style that he was able to pass them off on collectors and art experts alike.

Van Meegeren's alleged imitation of the styles of Vermeer and others is so fascinating it is a shame the subject was not made into a documentary.

As a drama it was less than satisfactory because it got all tangled up in observations on the fallibility of art "experts" and the philosophical question of whether a painting, held to be a masterpiece when it was believed to be by Vermeer, became a worthless daub when its real origin became known.

Arthur Kennedy, played the artist with intensity and others in the cast acted with fire and conviction. But the drama itself was flabby.

Stan Freberg is a brash, bright young man who has been making a name for himself turning out TV and radio commercials. By basic occupation, however, he is a comedian and he became a sort of instant TV star Sunday night with his own ABC special.

As comedy, it was a long, slow 60 minutes although occasionally there was a slight suggestion of the outrageous, irreverent humor that was the late Ernie Kovacs' hallmark.

Freberg was at his sharpest when roasting TV, but this followed a familiar path—the usual spoof of Mitch Miller and kidding commercials. Strangely enough, the most original parts of his show were the commercials.

Recommended tonight: About Time, NBC, 8:30-9:30 EST — part of a science series with Dr. Frank Baxter, Arsenic and Old Lace, NBC, 9.30-11 — Boris Karloff, Dorothy Stickney, Tony Randall in TV adaption of the Broadway comedy show.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of even 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Pr. Ed. Curling Club Plans To Build Rink

PICTON — Prince Edward Curling Club is investigating plans to erect a curling rink this summer. For the past three years the game has been played on ice in the County Agricultural and Recreation Centre at the fair grounds, two days a week. With the game growing in popularity, directors feel a separate club is feasible. It would be built next to the Agriculture and Recreation Centre and use the same ice plant.

India's Ruling Congress Party Is Directing Appeal In Election to Villages

By SIDNEY WEILAND

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — India's ruling Congress party is directing its main appeal to the villages as it campaigns for a new term of office in general elections to be held Feb. 18-25.

The key to success in any Indian election lies in the villages, many of them remote from any town or city and only dimly aware of the problems facing the country.

As part of its campaign, the Congress party has promised a new deal for the inhabitants of the country's 550,000 villages.

The party's election manifesto promises that by 1966 every village will have adequate water supplies, a primary school and a proper approach road instead of the bullock-cart tracks which now straddle the Indian countryside.

More than 210,000,000 Indians are entitled to vote in the third general election since India became independent in 1947. Only about half are expected to use their ballot, but the elections will still be the biggest in history.

The Congress party, in power since 1947 under Prime Minister Nehru, is confident it will retain control, not only of the central government, but also of 14 of the 15 state legislatures.

At least 16 parties will contest the elections, but none of the opposition groups believes it can make any serious dent in the Congress party supremacy.

In the last election in 1957, the Congress party won 371 of 494 contested seats in the Lok Sabha (House of the People), parliament's lower house, and 1,893 of 2,906 contested seats in 13 state legislatures.

This time, voters will re-elect the Lok Sabha and will choose new legislative assemblies in all but two states in which mid-term elections were held since 1957.

Polling will be staggered over eight days, ending Feb. 25, except for some snow-bound constituencies in the Himalayas, where voting will be postponed until April. All other results should be known by March 1.

Apart from its heavily-emphasized appeal to the peasants, the Congress party is fighting the election campaign largely on a "no change" policy.

Economically, the party promises to continue India's chain of five-year plans aimed at raising living standards and developing industry. In foreign affairs, Nehru says the party will remain faithful to a policy based on non-alignment and friendly relations with all nations.

The Congress party will face a challenge from the right-wing parties over its attitude to China and Pakistan. Both neighboring countries are accused of encroaching on Indian territory and there have been strong demands both in public and in the press recently for more determined efforts, including military action, to eject them.

Nehru's decision to use force to "liberate" the former Portuguese territories of Goa, Damao and Diu on India's west coast has increased the party's prestige. Although widely criticized in the West, Nehru's action was welcomed enthusiastically throughout India.

Standing in the last parliament: Congress party 365; Communist party 28; Praja Socialists 20; Jan Sangh party 4; Independents 36; others 42; seats uncontested 5; total 500.

Income Tax Explained

Written and designed for the taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

By C. A. Miller
Former Supervising Assessor
Income Tax Dept.

When a taxpayer has shown on his return, a sizeable amount as being dividends from taxable Canadian Corporations, and has not submitted a list of the Corporations from whom such dividends are received, or otherwise verified the amounts by T5 slips, the assessor cannot complete the return until this information is available.

The reason a list is required by the assessor, is that he must determine if the dividend paying corporations are one that actually pay tax in Canada. All dividends received from authentic taxable Canadian Corporations, have an effect on tax payable. The tax payer is allowed to deduct from his gross tax, 20 per cent of the amount he receives from such Taxable Canadian Corporations.

Although this has been in effect for a number of years and the return actually has a line especially provided for this purpose, there are still a large number of taxpayers who do not avail themselves of this credit. If the taxpayer has not taken the credit for 20 per cent of his dividends, the assessor will automatically allow it, once he certain the divider qualifies.

Another deduction that is allowed is any carrying charge pertaining to the purchase of the stock. Should the taxpayer have borrowed funds to invest in stocks, then the interest paid on the borrowed money is deductible from the dividends received. The onus is on the taxpayer to prove to the satisfaction of the tax department that money was borrowed to invest in the stocks and a receipt for the interest paid should be attachd to substantiate the claim for the carrying charge.

When in doubt as to the qualification of a dividend for the 20 per cent credit, consult your nearest Income Tax Office.

QUESTIONS

Question — I have stock in the International Nickel Co. of Canada. I received the dividends in United States funds. Is this dividend eligible for the 20 per cent tax credit?

Answer — Your question is a common one regarding this company. This is a taxable Canadian Corporation and you may apply the 20 per cent credit. The fact that the company pays its dividends in U.S. funds has no bearing on the tax credit. Before you show your dividends on your return, you should bring the U.S. funds to its Canadian currency equivalent.

• • •

Question — A number of us, where I work have purchased stock in a Canadian mine. Some are of the opinion we deduct the 20 per cent credit from the dividends. Others say we deduct it from the overall tax. Who is correct?

Answer — You are to deduct the 20 per cent tax credit from your tax, on the line provided for this purpose. There is also a depletion allowance which is deducted fro mthe dividend itself. Watch this column for an article on depletion allowance.

NEST ON MOTHBALLS

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP)—Note to the person who told assistant superintendent of schools R. V. Blomfield that mothballs would cause pigeons to leave: They won't. Blomfield put four moth balls in a pigeon nest outside his second floor office window Friday. A pair of pigeons began taking turns nesting on the mothballs.

KINGSTON—Dr. E. Harry Botterell, O.B.E., of Toronto, has been appointed Dean of Medicine at Queen's University.

Dr. J. A. Corry, Principal of Queen's, made the announcement following a meeting of the University Board of Trustees.

Dr. Botterell, who is Associate Professor of Surgery (Neurosurgery) at the University of Toronto and senior Neurosurgeon at Toronto General Hospital succeeds Dr. G. H. Ettinger as Dean of Medicine at Queen's. Dr. Ettinger who has been a member of the Queen's Medical Faculty for 42 years and Dean since 1949 is retiring at the end of June.

STIRLING — The Stirling Community Hall was a bower of beauty for the annual "Spinsters Dance," with a good attendance. The decorations centred around a south sea island theme and the various Hawaiian scenes were beautiful.

The Star-Lighters Orchestra of Trenton furnished the music. The speical prizes were won by Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Montgomery, Mrs. Albert Fraser and Mr. Bryce Philp and Miss Barbara Bradley and Mr. Paul Jeffs.

The event was sponsored by the Hon. J. R. Cooke Chapter I.O.D.E. and the members served refreshments at intermission.

Several Stirling residents are holidaying in Florida, namely Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Holt, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Reid, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Reid, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Baker, Mr. and Mrs. David Duffin, also Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rowe of Hoards Station.

Stirling I.O.O.F. and Laurel Rebekah Lodge No. 211 sponsored a card party Tuesday evening at the I.O.O.F. lodge hall in aid of the C.P. and T. fund. There were ten tables of euchre in play and the winners were: ladies' high — Mrs. Claude Tucker, Mrs. Ray Sine and men's high — Kenneth Hagerman and Claude Tucker. Mrs. James Bailey won the lone hand prize and Mrs. F. Bastedo won the high bridge prize. Lodge members served refreshments.

Messrs. Sid MacDonald and Gilbert Patterson attended special conferences at the O.A.C. Guelph this week which were based on farm management and farm business.

On Wednesday, Hastings County Federation of Agriculture sponsored a leadership training school in the I.O.O.F. Hall under the direction of president George Carlisle and secretary Wilfred Forrestell. In the afternoon the special speaker was Ray Hergott who spoke on the subject "Effective Meetings and Leadership". In the evening Ray Cunningham spoke on "Proper Planning". This was the first school held in this area and the attendance was good.

Federal Health Official Sees Need for Control In Food Drug Legislation

OTTAWA (CP)—Uncontrolled drug advertising which enters Canada through American periodicals and radio and television programs points up the need for international uniformity in food and drug legislation, says a senior federal health official.

Dr. A. C. Morrell, director of the health department's food and drug directorate, says uniformity is requirid not only in advertising internationally recognized quality and labelling standards.

Dr. Morrell, whose branch administers the Food and Drug Act, makes these recommendations in a special article in the official 1961 Canada Year Book published late in the year.

One of the directorate's main tasks is controlling advertising of drugs directed at the public which, Dr. Morrell says, "is rather easily deceived by clever advertising copy."

"People are conditioned to expect anything from science and at the same time are very conscious of their health. They make a receptive audience for almost any claim that supports to be based on laboratory or clinical research."

FATS CONTROVERSY

He says recent publicity linking certain dietary fats with high blood cholesterol and high cholesterol with atherosclerosis has tempted some manufacturers of vegetable oils and their products to capitalize on the public interest in this controversy.

"These manufacturers have been warned that such advertising is illegal and it has been stopped temporarily, at least, in so far as advertising originating in Canada is concerned."

Fair and impartial enforcement of this requirement, however, was difficult because the same prohibition does not exist in the United States, and American papers and periodicals and TV and radio are available to many people in Canada.

"This example points up the need for international uniformity in food and drug legislation.

"The conflict between national laws extends beyond the field of advertising for both foods and drugs. Different standards and different labelling requirements among countries engaged in international trade present obstacles to that trade."

Queen Observes 10th Anniversary Of Her Reign

Long and Happy Rule Toast in Many Pubs

LONDON (AP)—The second decade of the new Elizabethan era began today with artillery and flag salutes to Queen Elizabeth II and toasts in the pubs to a long and happy reign for the 35-year-old monarch.

Elizabeth was expected to spend the 10th anniversary of her becoming queen quietly with her family. It was a day of leave-taking for the monarch for her husband, Prince Philip, who leaves by plane tonight for a two-month tour of Latin America.

Telegrams flooding into Buckingham Palace indicated her place in the heart of the vast number of Britons is as strong as ever. Newspapers published royal toasts.

No sovereign, says The Daily Telegraph, has more completely realized the fusion of mystery, splendor and plain humanity than has the second Elizabeth

SEE HER FULFILL

"The Crown," it says, "can no longer provide a bond of union between the kingdoms and republics of the Commonwealth; the Queen can. In her they have seen courage, devotion to her high duty, radiant happiness in worthily fulfilling it. By such qualities hearts are won."

But there is growing public criticism of some aspects of Britain's ancient royal system. Some observers, noting the changing social habits of Britons growing ever more prosperous, say there must be some radical change in the Queen's own public expression of her historic role.

"She has been criticized for being unduly conventional, and too much withdrawn from the life of her subjects," says The Guardian. "And the criticism has substance.

"In her public role the Queen has cast herself as a carefully conventional woman of no known opinions; in her private life she pursues the traditional interests of a wealthy country landowner.

NOT GOOD ENOUGH?

"Is this good enough for the long reign that seems likely to stretch before her? The candid answer must be no."

The Guardian says that much more significant than the Queen's remaining political rights is her power to influence social attitudes.

"The Queen has neglected this aspect of 20th century monarchy . . . at a time when qualities of innovation, originality and daring are needed to regalvanize our society, the Royal Family ought to think of themselves as pacesetters."

Accused Said He Shot Wife Says Witness

TORONTO (CP)—"John told me he had shot his wife," a witness testified Monday at the non-capital murder trial of John Stillwell, 23.

Stillwell is charged in connection with the death last Nov. 16 of his wife Janet, 20. The woman died, court was told, from a single .22-calibre rifle bullet through the heart.

Ronald Pellegrini, Stillwell's landlord, testified at the jury trial Monday that he and his wife and father heard noises—including a bang — while they were having supper on the night of Nov. 16.

"Then I heard a scream. It sounded like a woman. We continued to eat," said Mr. Pellegrini, who said his father told him not to interfere.

He said then Stillwell came up to the Pellegrini quarters and said: "Help, help! My wife."

Mr. Pellegrini said he went downstairs and saw Mrs. Stillwell lying on the floor.

"I asked John what had happened. John told me he had shot his wife.

The trial is continuing.

Claim Assessor Set Values on Ability to Pay

WHITBY, Ont. (CP)—A three-man delegation appeared before Pickering Township council Monday night to demand the ouster of Assessment Commissioner D. F. Goslin and the resignation of Reeve Sherman Scott.

More than 100 ratepayers were present to hear the delegation air its claims that the assessment commissioner had reassessed township properties on a discriminatory pattern.

A brief, submitted to council by Kenneth Carr, Robert Roy and F. Labrie, said Mr. Goslin had based assessment "on the ability of the individual owner to pay rather than on any basis of property evaluation."

The brief also protested the cost of a township appeal against an Ontario County reassessment. The appeal was dismissed by Chief Justice J. C. McRuer, who said the township was "seeking to take advantage of what amounts to little less than a fraudulent advantage of the taxpayer."

Says Housewife Will Shop By Punch-Card

WINNIPEG (CP)—The housewife of the future will shop by inserting a punch-card in her telephone instead of going to the supermarket, a university professor predicts.

Prof. Jack Nesbitt, head of the University of Manitoba's dairy science department, said Monday the supermarket is destined to become as obsolete as the corner grocery it now is supplanting.

He told the Manitoba Veterinary Medical Association that some day the housewife will punch out her shopping list on a card and insert it into a special slot in the telephone. The order will be relayed to a warehouse, from where it will be delivered.

Menzies Plans to Cut Income, Sales Tax to Boost Economy

CANBERRA (Reuters)—Prime Minister Robert Menzies announced tonight plans to cut income tax and sales tax on cars and increase unemployment benefits to stimulate the Australian economy.

He also said the government will re-impose some import restrictions if necessary to protect particular industries and increase loans to ex-servicemen and promote bank lending to stimulate housing.

Menzies outlined a five-per-cent rebate on income tax for the current year and a cut in sales taxes on cars to 22½ per cent from 30 per cent.

He estimated that the income tax rebate would add £30,000,000 to Australia's disposable income over the next four months.

The sales tax on commercial vehicles would also be cut, he said.

VOTE-SEEKING MP'S WOO OLD AGE PENSIONERS

$10 Increase Will Be Paid in Feb.

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's 930,000 old age pensioners were wooed with jealous ardor Monday in the Commons.

The courting session took place as the government introduced its resolution calling for a $10 monthly increase—to $65—in the basic old age pension.

Members of all three parties —mindful no doubt that an election is coming—had nice things to say for and about the country's senior citizens, all of whom have the vote.

Another 100,000 elderly people also came in for some wooing. This is the group between ages 65 and 69 who have to pass a means test to get the pension, which in their case is called old age assistance.

A resolution was introduced to raise these payments to $65 from $55 also. Half the $14,400,000 increase would be borne by the participating provinces.

APPROVE INCREASE

The resolution calling for an increase in the basic old age pension — paid to everyone at age 70—was approved unanimously just before the house rose Monday night. First reading was then given the legislation, which makes the increase retroactive to Feb. 1 this year. Debate was to continue today on second reading — approval in principle.

The higher pension would start going out to elderly Canadians this month. The old age assistance resolution did not come to a vote and will be debated further.

Health and Welfare Minister Monteith started the parade of eager, often quarrelsome speakers in the old age pension debate

Demand Four Resign Posts After Mimico Report Given

TORONTO (CP) — Demands for the resignation of Building Inspector Jack Book have been made following a judicial report into building affairs in suburban Mimico — described by Judge Ambrose Shea as "very deplorable" between 1950 and 1960.

There was also a report of a threatening phone call to a key figure in the probe.

Councillors Laura Goodwin and Cecil Johnson said today that Mr. Book, whose powers were described by Judge Shea as "despotic, unrestricted and unsupervised," had little choice but to resign. They said this also applied to Councillors James Ferrie, Alex Halliwell and Murray Smith.

Mrs. Martha Jackson, who testified during the hearing that she offered Mr. Book $500 for a building permit for her property and once gave him a boat trailer, said today she received a threatening phone call Monday night.

"The caller told me to be careful. Keep your doors locked or else we'll fix you—the two of you."

In the report, product of a three-week judicial investigation last summer, Judge Shea concentrated most of his attack on Mr. Book.

The judge, who held the inquiry at the request of Mimico council, says Mr. Book played favorites in handing out building permits and "reaped some material advantage." However, any financial advantage was "insignificant."

The 80-page report says the inquiry was hampered by the fact "much of the evidence given could not be believed."

On two occasions Mr. Book gave false evidence, the judge says, "and on many occasions gave evidence that was intended to mislead."

Judge Shea found no evidence of wrongdoing on the part of Mayor Hugh Griggs in buying and selling a town lot. Although what he had done was contrary to the Municipal Act, the mayor had acted openly and had declared his interest at the time.

Judge Shea similarly rejected

Food Shortage Spreads To Restaurant in Cuba

HAVANA (Reuters)—A shortage of food that has been giving Cuban housewives trouble for more than six months now has spread to restaurants.

The restaurants, mostly nationalized and run by the National Institute of the Tourist Industry, previously enjoyed a privileged position. They had been guaranteed all essential supplies in order to maintain Cuba's reputation for catering well to tourists

Many foreigners in Cuba who lived in luxury hotels and dined only at main restaurants never saw the shuttered butchers' shops or the long lines of hopeful customers in the markets.

Then, just before Christmas, visitors began to find that the waiter at their favorite restaurant was apt to approach them with a long face—and no menu. "Only sea food today," he would announce. "I am sorry."

Now, for the restaurants, there is no chicken, no meat, no eggs.

A numbered card system ensures that the housewife gets half a pound of meat for each member of the family about every 10 days. She may get chicken at $1.60 a pound by standing in line at the market for two hours from 6 o'clock in the morning, and she counts herself lucky to get six eggs in three weeks.

At the restaurants, the only items available are lobster or Morro crab (a Cuban specialty), and shrimps or pargo — red snapper, the only fish in Cuban waters worth eating.

There is soup but no butter to put on the roll which accompanies it. Some restaurants offer cream cheese in place of butter, if they can get it

There are few green vegetables. Carrots are so scarce as to be a delicacy.

When the meal is over, there is plenty of fine Cuban coffee, but no milk.

Parliament At a Glance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Monday, Feb. 5, 1962

The government bill to increase old age pensions by $10 monthly to $65—effective Feb. 1, 1962—was given first reading after approval of a preliminary resolution.

Health Minister Monteith said benefits under the government's proposed contributory pension plan will begin at age 65 with actuarially-reduced pensions available as early as age 62.

Paul Martin (L — Essex East) described the $10 increase as inadequate and said it was a "political trick" to make Canadians forget the government's "ineptness."

Murdo Martin (CCF—Timmins), also terming it inadequate, said it was "not based on anything but an election promise, an election gimmick."

The Commons started debate on a government resolution to increase old age assistance for needy in the 65-69 age bracket from $55 monthly to $65 — half to be borne by the provinces.

Tuesday, Feb. 6

The Commons meets at 2:30 p.m. EST to debate second reading — approval in principle—of the old age pensions bill. The Senate sits at 8 p.m.

Tanks On Guard In Paris As De Gaulle Says Algeria Settlement Coming Soon

Secret Army Seizes Paper in Oran After Making Pirate TV Broadcast

PARIS (Reuters)—Troops and tanks today guarded Paris from any right-wing terrorist reaction to President Charles de Gaulle's speech Monday night that offered hope for a quick peace in Algeria.

"We are sailing at full speed toward the settlement of the Algerian problem," de Gaulle said. "I hope positively that a settlement will be reached very soon."

The president also promised to control "criminal" opponents of his self-determination policy to end the war with Moslem nationalists in the North African territory.

About 100 tanks and some 28,000 security personnel, mobilized in preparation for de Gaulle's speech, were expected to stay on guard in Paris for the next several weeks as peace negotiations hang in the balance.

The president's 23-minute television address to France and Algeria passed off without any major move in Paris by the outlawed right-wing Secret Army Organization.

SABOTAGE HITS

But the speech was blacked out by sabotage at Oran in western Algeria, while European settlers in Algiers, Constantine and Bone obeyed secret army orders to greet it with derisive noisemaking.

In other Algerian cities, Europeans crowded on to their balconies during the speech to sound the three short and two long notes of the right-wing Algerie Francaise slogan on pots and pans, whistles and bugles.

In Algiers, gunmen in a speeding car Monday sprayed machine-gun bullets at a train packed with civil servants as it set out for the new Algerian administrative headquarters at Rocher Noir, 40 miles away.

Seven persons were wounded in the train attack, while 16 persons were killed and 18 others wounded in terrorist attacks by Moslems and rightists throughout Algeria.

In Paris, there was no sign of the secret army move feared after last week's discovery of plans to bomb the Eiffel Tower's transmitting facilities and stage a night of plastic bomb explosions.

GOES OVER WELL

People deserted cafes and streets to hurry home for de Gaulle's speech, which seemed to go over well with the public and most newspapers.

De Gaulle announced his government shortly will publish in detail the proposals that have been offered to Algeria.

CANADIAN COST OF LIVING DOWN TENTH OF POINT

Cheaper Clothing, Cars Difference

OTTAWA (CP) — January clothing sales and cheaper automobiles helped Canadians enter the new year with living costs a shade lower than December's record high.

The consumer price index at Jan. 1 was one-tenth of a point lower at 129.7 from 129.8 a month earlier, the bureau of statistics reported today.

The yardstick of urban living costs — based on 1949 prices equalling 100 — declined in the face of higher prices for food, housing and reading material. The Jan. 1 index was a half-point higher than its 129.2 mark at the start of 1961.

The new year's decline ended a six-month uptrend in costs from last year's mid-summer low of 129.

Clothing costs turned sharply downwards, with the index dropping to 111.6 from 133.7 a month earlier. The index of transportation costs declined to 140.6 from 141.1 due to lower new car prices. Gasoline and tire prices were somewhat higher.

MEAT HIGHER

Price tags were higher on beef, pork, chicken, bread, coffee, oranges and a number of fresh vegetables. As a result, the index of food costs rose to 124.8 from 124.5 — still short of the record high of 125.8 in October, 1960.

The over-all decline in living costs followed a drop in industrial wages during Nobember. The index of average industrial wages and salaries at Dec. 1 — latest date available —was 183.5 compared with 183.9 a month earlier and 177.9 a year earlier. The index is based on 1949 wages equalling 100.

Housing costs — biggest item in the consumer budget—moved higher during December with new homes and repairs both remained unchanged. The index of housing costs advanced to 134 from 133.8.

The only other increase was in the recreation and reading costs index, which moved to 146.6 from 146.3. Newspaper prices in Montreal were higher, more than offsetting lower prices for radios and phonograph records.

There were no changes in costs of health and personal care, where the index remained at 156.8, or in tobacco and alcohol with an index of 117.3.

ORAN, Algeria (AP)—Anti-Gaullists seized the presses of the newspaper Echo d'Oran today and turned out their own pirate edition which they distributed by the thousands to the population.

The latest daring coup by former Gen. Raoul Salan's Secret Army Organization occurred at 2 a.m., only a few hours after the right-wing settlers' underground had forced President de Gaulle off the television screens of Algeria's second city by kidnapping seven radio technicians and making a pirate broadcast as the president spoke.

The printers of the Echo d'Oran were about to start the night's run when a group of about 30 armed men, their faces covered with scarves, hurried into the building.

Herding aside workers in the composing room, the raiders quickly recast the paper's back page, which is usually devoted to North African news. They inserted type and a big picture of Salan which they had brought with them.

TAKE OVER PAGE

In its new form the page showed:

1. A banner headline across the top of the page saying "Special edition of the OAS" (Organisation de l'Armee Secrete).
2. A two-column block of white letters on a black ground saying: "The OAS will win."
3. The text of the speech delivered by former Gen. Edmond Jouhaud in his pirate broadcast over Radio Oran Monday night. He had attacked de Gaulle and called on the people to fight to keep Algeria French.
4. A portrait of Jouhad working at his desk in a secret headquarters somewhere in Algeria.
5. A huge picture of Salan across the whole upper part of the page.

UNDER GUN THREAT

Under the guns of the raiders, about 20,000 copies of the new edition were run off.

Beginning at 7 a.m., runners went through the streets of the city, handing out the papers to early workers who eagerly snatched them.

It was probably the most daring propaganda coup Salan has yet pulled.

De Gaulle's speech buoyed Algeria's Moslems with new hope and optimism. Although he did not say agreement had been reached with the rebel provisional government, many saw an end of the 7½-year rebellion near at hand. "This time peace is really around the corner," said one.

AROUSES HATRED

The speech aroused new bitterness and hatred among the North African territory's Europeans.

Only three of the seven radio technicians kidnapped Monday had returned to their homes today. They said they had been picked up separately by men in cars at different points in town. There was no news of the other four.

The Algerian rebel regime after apparently weighing de Gaulle's speech, issued a terse three-line communique at its headquarters in Tunis saying it had examined the Algeri[illegible] problem and had "in consequence, taken decision."

There was no indication of

Big Arctic Air Mass Moves South, Producing Shivers Across Canada

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Where Saskatchewan had blizzards, Nova Scotia thunderstorms and British Columbia floods Monday Central Canada today is having a case of the skids.

Below-zero temperatures were general this morning all the way from Alberta to the Gaspe as a huge arctic air mass thrust its way southward, plummeting temperatures as much as 50 degrees in central Ontario.

At Killaloe, Ont., the reading at 7 a.m. was 13 degrees below zero—a full 55 degrees lower than the reading at the same time Monday when thermometers showed an unseasonably-warm 42 above.

During the same 24-hour period the mercury nosedived at Toronto's Malton airport to three below from 43 above, and at Muskoka a springlike 37 above was transferred to a brisk 16 below.

The cold air is expected to move into the Maritimes late today, providing a sharp contrast to the electrical storms and torrential rain that hit the Halifax area Monday night.

Above-normal temperatures also wrought havoc in the Quesnel, B.C., area Monday, where the Fraser River had to be dynamited to relieve flooding that forced some 100 persons to flee from their homes.

Today's expected sunny, cold weather in Saskatchewan will give residents of north-central portions of the province a chance to dig out from paralyzing blizzards that dumped up to 17 inches of snow on top of the winter's accumulation during the weekend.

A difference of 81 degrees between last week's low and Monday's high was recorded in Fredericton, N.B. The city shivered with a 35-degree-below zero reading last week. The temperature rose to 46 Monday equalling a record set in 1909.

At Halifax, the mercury reached 51 degrees, breaking the record for Feb. 5 of 47 set in 1909. The reading was within three degrees of the record high for February.

The committee in charge of the March of Dimes wish to thank the captains and marching mothers, who so willingly gave of their time on the night of the mothers' march. Members of the committee regret that the mothers had to face such inclement weather and hope that no one suffered any ill effects.

The receipts were very gratifying and totalled approximately $5,000 with many more returns to come in. The committee feels that the objective of $6,000 will be realized and final figures will be published when available.

Modern Motel Planned for North of City

Construction of a costly modern motel on the north side of 401 highway and east of No. 14 highway is planned by a Belleville businessman, city council learned yesterday.

Few details of the proposal were placed before council, but the local law firm of Pringle and Pringle, in a letter to council stated that Mr. Samuel Goodman was contemplating construction of the motel.

Purpose of the letter to council was to get council approval for the city public utilities commission to supply water to the project. The letter indicated the utilities commission were willing to supply water on condition that Mr. Goodman would sign an agreement that he would support annexation of the area by the city.

Under the public utilities act, the commission is unable to provide water service outside the corporation unless council consents.

Mr. Goodman was stated to be desirous of the property being annexed to the city.

Mayor A. M. Haig noted the request involved matter of policy and the request was referred to the finance committee.

Panel Discusses 'The Rotarian' At Luncheon

Local Rotarians were entertained by a very interesting panel discussion on The Rotarian Rotary International's monthly magazine at their weekly dinner meeting at the Hotel Quinte yesterday afternoon.

Rotarian Stuart Robb, chairman of the local club's magazine committee, conducted the panel with the able assistance of fellow club members Joe Demeza, Don MacKinnon, and Rube Freeman. The panel leader noted, by way of introduction, that the magazine is printed in both and English language and a Spanish language edition containing a wide variety of interesting subjects in each issue. The circulation of the magazine exceeds 500,000 people monthly.

Mr. Demeza, in commenting on the theme "What to do with The Rotarian," suggested that each Rotarian should read his copy thoroughly in order to broaden his scope of knowledge due to the many informative articles which it contained. He noted that the subject material varied widely and included such items as current affairs, history, medicine and modern living as well as news of Rotary Clubs and Rotarians from around the world.

Mr. MacKinnon suggested that the magazine be used by each Rotarian. Each issue contained many interesting, worthwhile and proven ideas which the individual member could apply to his own work or life. There were also many valuable suggestions which could be used for club projects, he concluded.

Mr. Freeman stated that he felt The Rotarian should be shared with others. It served as an excellent public relations messenger to outline the efforts of over 500,000 Rotarians from around the world to promote both international understanding nad community good will, he advised. Mr. Freeman suggested that the club donate subscriptions to outside organizations and persons in the community and that members share their personal copies with their friends.

In the open discussion which followed several members recommended that the club check and see whether there were additional institutions or organizations which could use a gift subscription to those already in force. It was also suggested that members donate their old copies for additional distribution in the community.

During the course of the meeting, conducted by president Virgil James, members welcomed guest student Don Keeley, student council president of Nicholson Catholic College; and a new member Robert Fyfe, associated with the British American Oil firm.

Factions Clash At Council Meet

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Police were called in to head off trouble in town council chambers Monday night when two factions clashed over location of a proposed new municipal building.

Residents of the former Trafalgar Township, amalgamated with the town Jan. 1, heckled attempts by council to change the proposed suburban site to downtown Oakville.

Prior to amalgamation, an arbitration report by Dr. E. G. Pleva, a Toronto town planning consultant, recommended a suburban site.

The motion to accept the downtown site was set aside pending a public meeting on the issue.

$736,242 Tender Accepted By Council for Construction Of Sewage Treatment Plant

The tender of Schwenger Construction Limited of Toronto for the construction of the Belleville sewage treatment plant and pumping station has been accepted by city council.

The amount of the tender, which was the second lowest of eight tenders received, was for $736,242.

The Ontario Water Resources Commission advised council that the lowest tender for the job submitted by Bedford Construction Limited for $724,501, should be rejected as it was not in accordance with specifications.

The recommendation to accept the Schwenger tender will now be presented to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval, following which it is expected work might get underway within the next two months.

Alderman Jack Ellis as chairman of the special sewage project committee, told council that the Schwenger tender was approximately 25 per cent higher than had been estimated, but noted this was due to costly site preparation.

BUILD ON DUMP

The sewage plant will be built east of Church Street in Foster Ward on the site of a former garbage dump and the old garbage will have to be excavated and new fill brought in before a solid foundation can be guaranteed.

Mr. Ellis said estimates for the project had been prepared without the site in mind. Also adding slightly to the cost was the decision to include a basement under the administration section of the building.

But despite the 25 per cent increase on the cost of the sewage treatment plant, the over-all cost of contracts for the sewage disposal system let to date was approximately 15 per cent under original estimates.

He said that sanitary sewer contracts had been considerably below the estimated costs.

NEARLY READY

Mr. Ellis said the new West Dundas Street sanitary sewer constructed by Beaver Construction was expected to go into operation early in the spring and he urged for early completion of details allowing for construction of collecting sewers in the Avondale district so streets in this area could be hooked into the new trunk.

Streets which will be serviced with sewers under local improvements include Avondale Road, Wright Ave., Glenn Road, Palmer Road, Selina Drive, Hutton Road and Sidney Street.

Lengths of the sewers range from 900 feet along Glenn Road to 3,200 feet on Wright Ave. Property owners share of the costs are to be paid in 15 annual installments. Overall costs of the various collection sewers, including the city's share and all administrative costs, is in excess of $300,000.

Tenders still to be called in connection with the city's sewage treatment project, include the pumping station at Fireman's Park; the outlet into the bay, and the force main from the park pumping station to the site of the sewage treatment plant in Foster Ward.

Council Votes to Re-Zone Two Lots on Hastings Drive To Allow Bank Building

City council yesterday voted to re-zone lots 147 and 148 on Hastings Drive to allow the construction of a bank building in an area originally zoned for residential purposes.

The matter was before council several weeks ago but was referred back for further consideration when it was learned there was objection to the proposed change by area residents.

However, residents have now been assured that entry to the proposed bank structure will be only from Dundas Street and to a great extent the objection has disappeared.

If further objections are registered the Ontario Municipal Board in all probability will call a public hearing on the proposed zoning change. The change would be from "A" (one and two family residences) to "C" (general business).

SOME STILL OPPOSED

Alderman Ben Corke said council should not get the impression there was no longer any objection to the proposed zoning change, claiming that there was still a group opposed to the move.

And Alderman Stuart Robb was worried about opening the door for further zoning changes in the area, and asked what protection there was against this happening.

Alderman George Wishart described the zoning change request as a "borderline case" claiming the area might be classed either as residential or general business depending on the direction from which a person looked at it. He said there were no other vacant lots in the area.

Alderman Whalen disagreed that it was a borderline case and suggested the fact there were no other vacant lots in the area was no guarantee there would not be other requests for zoning changes.

He said there was nothing to stop residences being purchased by business parties who could then request a zoning change.

PUC Recommends Vote On Fluoridation Question

Despite a city council directive members of the Belleville Public Utilities Commission feel that before fluoridation of city water is carried out the question should be submitted to a vote of the people.

This recommendation was contained in a brief from the commission presented to city council yesterday.

The commission noted in their brief signed by chairman Harry Rollins that while present buildings at the filtration plant were suitable for present needs they did not lend themselves to further installations or storage facilities.

The recommendation of consulting engineers Gore and Storrie was for a new building to house present alum and chlorine installations as well as the fluoridation equipment. The estimated cost was approximately $52,000.

ENQUIRIES MADE

The brief noted that enquiries had been made on fluoridation at many different places with total results and opinons received being very conflicting.

It was noted that at Kingston the utilities had been directed by council to install fluoridation but the equipment had never been used as a vote of the people had turned it down.

The brief asked why over 100 cities in the USA with a population of over ten million had voted out fluoridation, and also asked why Trenton, Renfrew, Fort William, Kitchener and Port Hope recently turned down fluoridation.

Extravagant and over-evaluated opinions had been received by the commission in regard to the merits of fluoridation and its hazards to health.

MANY CLAIMS MADE

Claims were made that adding fluorides to water would totally eliminate tooth decay and dentist bills, while it was also learned that fluoridation could result in a hazard to health.

The middle of the road view appeared to be that fluorides have some value perhaps eliminating tooth decay by 60 per cent in conjuction with good oral hygiene by brushing the teeth once or twice per day using a favorite brand of tooth paste — especially fluoride tooth paste.

Council ordered the brief filed.

Ask Committee To Take Second Look

The city council traffic and light committee has been asked to take a second look at a recommendation calling for certain parking meters along Front Street to be allotted to commercial vehicles for two hours during the mornings.

The idea would be to set aside four meters for the use of commercial vehicles to allow drivers to make delivery to Front Street stores.

Alderman Jack Ireland as chairman of the traffic committee said his committee were in unanimous agreement on the proposal and as long as the designated meters were used properly he could see no objection.

But Alderman Walter Elliott and Ben Corke were not so sure the idea was a good one, and asked that the matter be referred back.

Alderman Corke suggested the city could not afford to lose the four meters even for the morning period and went so far as to say that with the smaller buses now being used, space set aside for loading and unloading of buses might be reduced to allow for additional meters.

Aledrman Ireland said he would look into the question of reduced area for bus stops.

Witnesses Deny Taking Rake-Off From Game

Magistrate T. Y. Wills reserved judgment against two Belleville residents in a special sitting of county court on Monday afternoon.

Ernest Michael Lucas and Lawrence C. Lummis appeared before the magistrate on a charge of keeping a common gaming house, to which they pleaded not guilty.

Judgment against Mr. Lucas and Mr. Lummis will be handed down by Magistrate Wills on Thursday, March 29th.

Robert Temple appeared for the two men.

Evidence in chief was that the anti-gambling squad from Toronto, after arriving at the Lucas residence, east of Belleville, placed a ladder against a window where they took up observation as to what was taking place inside.

Constable Moore of the gambling squad, said while he was observing activity inside the room, that a card game was in progress and that money was being placed in the centre of the table and at certain stages taken out again.

The constable also said that Mr. Lucas continued to take money from the centre of the table after each hand was played, during his time of observation.

Both Mr. Lucas and three other witnesses denied that there was any "ante" or "rake-off" in any game, during the years their group had been playing cards.

Mr. T. Woodward told the court that this was just a friendly game of cards and they had been playing together for four or five years.

Mr. Lucas explained to the court that during the game if a player did not have the correct change he would draw from the pot, and make change then, or later on in the game. He said he was doing this during the course of the evening and that this was probably what the constable saw during his observation through the window.

Inspector Hatch of the Anti-Gambling Squad said that a total of $2,085.72 was collected after the raid was made on December 12, 1961.

Charges against eight other persons for being found in were enlarged to March 29, also.

Airman Fined On Two Charges

A Trenton airman, Joseph C. A. Dubby, age 19, was fined $100 and costs in city magistrate's court this morning when he pleaded guilty to a charge of failing to report an accident. He was also fined $10 and costs for consuming liquor under age.

Inspector J. McLauchlan told the magistrate that a complaint had been received from a Station St. resident, that a car and two men were at the rear of her property and they appeared to be acting in a suspicious manner.

Police proceeded to Station Street where they found Joseph Dubby and a fellow airman. Inspector McLauchlan said police noticed that Mr. Dubby had been drinking and found a bottle of liquor in his possesion.

Upon further investigation the inspector said, it was noticed that there was a considerable amount of damage to the right front fender of Mr. Dubby's car. He admitted to police he had been in an accident but he did not know the name of the street where the accident took place.

Sometime later while police were on cruiser patrol, they spotted a car parked on Market St. with the left front fender damaged. The car was owned by Mrs. Mabel Fleming of Springbrook.

Afer investigating, police found that this was the car Mr. Dubby had been in collision with.

City Budget May Be Ready For Council's Study Soon

The 1962 city budget could be ready for final consideration in about three weeks' time, members of council were told yesterday by City Manager J. R. Reynolds.

Mr. Reynolds said he had received most of the budget estimates from the various city departments but had so far received nothing from the schools.

He expected, however, that within three weeks all estimates would be available for consideration of the year's budget requirements.

Last year the total budget for the year was $3,802,019, the actual tax roll being reduced by the amount of grants and by revenue received from licences and other sources.

Last year's revenue and expenditure figures have been tabulated by city treasurer C. J. Bender, but until the official audit is received it is not known definitely whether the city will have a surplus.

Council Allows Sub-divider To Build Small Commercial Establishments on Division

TRENTON— During a three-hour session, Trenton town council reached a number of conclusions and passed a number of resolutions and by-laws, Monday night.

Still unresolved are agreements with the town's fire fighting department; the town's sole ambulance operator and the various federal and provincial bodies concerned with the installation of trunk sewers on Front and Sidney Sts.

In response to a petition from more than 50 per cent of residents living on the west side of Campbell St. not to install a sidewalk under local improvement taxation, council modified its plans and voted to install the walk on the east side of the street, and on the south side of the Broken Front Road. In the final analysis, the walk will be installed by the town, becuse it will serve students from St. Mary's school. A precedent was set when, through what Mayor MacDonald termed "a slip up", a sidewalk on Dufferin Ave., in the vicinity of Prince Charles School, was paid for by the town instead of being charged as local improvements to one owner and the Trenton Board of Education. However, the town's public and separate school boards will be notified that in the future, all such walks will be installed under the local improvement plan.

A request from S. Klemencic, that the zoning on two lots in the Stanley Heights sub-division be changed from residential to commercial, was granted. The sub-divider may build small commercial establishments on the lots, providing that the buildings conform with the architectural design of the surrounding buildings. There are 133 building lots in the housing development, and eventually, more than 400 persons will be served by the "neighborhood stores" proposed.

FOUR LOTS FOR SALE

Council also voted to make four lots in the Elmwood Acres subdivision "available for sale." The money realized from the sale of the lots will be used to improve existing parks in the immediate area. Originally, the four lots had been earmarked as parkland, but the Trenton board of parks management has indicated that there is no immediate need for a new park in this area; hence council in free to sell the lots.

And still on the subject of sub-divisions, council discussed at length the failure of W. Sidor, developer of the Westmount Park sub-division, to the west of the town, to produce a bond, guaranteeing "performance and maintenance" in reference to the installation of services.

"If this area were annexed, would we have a moral obligation to complete the installations if the sub-divider had pulled out?" asked Councillor Ross Burtt.

"You can't legislate on 'moral obligation'," town solicitor Roderick Campbell assured him.

Clerk-comptroller O. W. Larry said that "in fairness to the developer,' he (Sidor) was making efforts to procure a performance bond, and that, anyhow, the work should be completed before annexation takes place.

Council was told that James Day, Trenton realtor, will try to get the zoning changed on Lorne Avenue north, so that he can build a sixplex apartment. The lot on which Mr. Day proposes to build, backs on Mount Pelion. Last year's council alleged that Mr. Day excavated into town property when he sheared off the lot at the base of the mountain. Mr. Day has promised to build a retaining wall.

"Will this wall be built under the supervision of our engineer?" Councillor Ross Burtt wanted to know, "and how can we get our gravel back? He (Day) dug into our land 16 feet on one side and six feet on another. How do we get paid for our gravel?"

The public works' department will investigate.

TENDER ACCEPTED

The tender submitted by Mel Barriage of Belleville for the supply of 6,000 cubic yards of landfill for the sanitary fill area, south of the community gardens, at 46 cents a cubic yard, was accepted as being the lowest tender. Second lowest was a tender at an asking price of 60 cents per cubic yard, submitted by Carr of Trenton. The fill will be supplied once a week, for the balance of 1962. A tender, submitted by a Frankford firm, arrived too late to be considered.

Council voted approximately $300 for the removal or trimming of trees on town-owned land. Town engineer Eric Aldersey pointed out that it would be more economical to do this work in February than to wait until April, as has been done in other years, but he warned that some money for this type of work might have to be allocated at budget time.

Councillor Ed. Todd was appointed to examine the 1961 financial statement of the Rushnell Ambulance Service before a contract for 1962 is signed. Mr. Rushnell has asked for a renewal of contract with the payment of a $3,600 subsidy from the town.

"Do we give $3,600 away just like that?" queried Councillor James Duncan, "I feel that we should look into the matter."

Mr. Todd will ask to look at the firm's books and report to the mayor and comptroller. If they feel that the payment of the subsidy is justified, they have been empowered by council to sign the 1962 contract.

Gore and Storrie, consulting engineers engaged by the town, had written to say that they had recommended that the Ontario Water Resources Commission accept the lowest tender for the installation of trunk sewers on Front and Sidney Sts., ($159,000), submitted by Tatham of Belleville. This is the only one of the eight tenders submitted for the work that the engineers have recommended. Council did not comment on the letter.

MONEY ALLOTTED

Since OWRC has not awarded the tender for the work as yet, further correspondence, relating to the project (from Central Mortgage and Housing regarding a loan to the town for the work, and from OWRC authorities), could not be dealt with.

Council did vote to allocate $75,000 for the construction and maintenance of town streets in 1962, but this figure is tenative.

A recommendation made by Councillor Burtt as head of the protection to persons and property committee, that a contract with the town's fire fighting department be signed, will be considered.

Fire Chief Cecil Ellis has asked that two permanent men be hired, and that the work hours be changed from 56 hours a week to 48.

According to the terms of the proposed contract, the firemen would receive pay increases, and equipment (clothing) allowances.

Councillors feel that the pay structure in other town departments should be considered before any agreement is reached with the firemen.

There was a general agreement that if two men were taken on senior volunteers should be considered before inexperienced men.

Councillor Burtt also recommended that the department's pumper be repaired immediately and a decision on buying a new engine be postponed until budget time.

Driver Is Run Down By Own Transport

TRENTON — Ross Curry, 49, of Oshawa, was taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital last night following an accident near Port Hope. Provincial police at Brighton say that the man had alighted from the large transport he was driving and was crossing in front of the truck when the air brake on the vehicle slipped and he was knocked to the ground. The wheel of the truck ran over his arm. Curry got back into the truck and drove to Brighton where he asked a member of the provincial police detachment to take him to the hospital. He is being treated by Dr. W. A. Gray.

FOUR PERMITS ISSUED

TRENTON — Building inspector William Anderson reports that only four permits were issued during January. Values totalled $3,500. One permit was for the modernization of a store window; one for an addition to a house and two for repairs to houses. Mr. Anderson said that the January value was the lowest in a great number of years, but that he hopes, with the advent of warmer weather, building in the town will pick up.

Vote to Send Annexation Plans to Board

TRENTON — Last night, Trenton's 1962 council re-affirmed the decision made by the 1961 council to apply to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval of the annexation of approximately 750 acres of land in Murray and Sidney townships.

By-laws, outlining the town's intentions, were approved by council late in the year, and have now received approval from a Toronto legal firm, hired by the town for representation before the Ontario board.

Council voted last night to place the by-laws before the municipal board "immediately."

Commerce Body Will Move Soon To New Office

TRENTON — Nostrand Sprague, Chamber of Commerce secretary, reports that the chamber office will be moved in the very near future. Since September, 1961, chamber business has been conducted from an office at 74 Dundas St. W., but business expansion at this address has made it necessary for the space occupied by the chamber to be used. Rumor has it that a new office has been obtained and the location will be announced later.

Meantime, a committee has been set up to explore ways and means of providing a small, separate building for a permanent chamber office. This could serve as a tourist booth as well. The City of Peterborough is the first municipality in this region to provide permanent quarters for its chamber.

The secretary has issued a plea to town citizens to check with the chamber before entering into any contacts with door-to-door salesmen. These peddlers says Mr. Sprague, should have a licence from the town to sell their wares.

Jack Goldberg has been appointed membership chairman for the Trenton chamber and hopes to get a membership campaign in full swing soon. Associate memberships cost $1, while businessmen, factories, and so on are asked to contribute on a graduating scale basis.

Teacher Quits, Plans Alphabet For Eskimos

TRENTON — High school principal W. J. Houston announced yesterday that Raymond Gagne, head of French department at the school for the past two years, has resigned. Mr. Gagne's resignation becomes effective immediately and he had left Trenton to take up a position with the Department of Northern Affairs at Ottawa.

Last summer, Mr. Gagne, a linguistic expert, conduced a series of experiments with Eskimo children at Fort Churchill, Man. His aim is to formulate an alphabet in the Eskimo language which will be acceptable to the many Eskimo settlements spread across Northern Canada. Once an acceptable alphabet can be found, many of the race's legends can be recorded and the Eskimo will gradually become conscious of his own traditions.

Shortly after Mr. Gagne came to Trenton in 1960, the Minister of Northern Affairs, then Hon. Walter Dinsdale, requested that he be loaned to the department for two years. However, the Trenton board of education prevailed upon Mr. Gagne to remain at the school as the French head.

QUAKE HITS CITY

TOKYO (AP)—A sharp, rolling earthquake jarred Tokyo and surrounding communities today. The tremor frightened people but apparently caused no serious damage. The quake hit at 7:56 a.m. and lasted about a minute. Buildings swayed, windows rattled. Inside homes, furnishings wobbled, pictures tilted and water sloshed out of pots onto stoves.

Fire Chief's Report Urges New West-Side Fire Hall

TRENTON — In his annual report on fire department activity for 1961, presented to Trenton council Monday night, Fire Chief Cecil Ellis recommended that the present hall be demolished, the space be used for parking purposes and that a new fire hall be built on the west side of the river. The chief commented that this seemed "to be the only solution," to providing adequate accommodation for all fire equipment under one roof, where it would be immediately available and properly supervised. At present the aerial ladder truck is kept in the town shed in east Trenton.

"Due to the fact that the east side fire hall was defeated," (in the December elections), reads the report, "and an addition to the present hall would create a greater parking problem, the only solution seems to be a new fire hall on the west side, out of the downtown area."

Fire losses in Trenton for last year were $84,175, exclusive of loss of material worth $175,000 sustained at the Creosote plant fire, which was considered as a separate item, since no building loss was involved.

In 1960, property loss was $59,473; 1959, $122,464 and 1958, $862,430.

Considered as major losses were those incurred at the Bo-Peep Restaurant last January of $45,200 and the Creosote plant fire.

Properties where fire occurred were valued at $170,375 while actual losses were set at $61,241; contents value was $46,225, while contents loss was $22,934.

FIVE DROWNINGS

There were no deaths due to fire in 1961, while emergency calls, including five drownings, totalled 12. In five cases, the persons were revived.

In all, the department responded to 324 calls. The largest number of fires (44) occurred in April, and the department was called the least number of times (11) in August. East side fires numbered 113, while west side fires totalled 176. The department was called to 34 township fires in Murray, Sidney and Ameliasburg and responded to one mutual aid alarm (the recreation hall at Batawa). The Trenton department is a charter member of the Hastings and Prince Edward Mutual Aid Association and last year Chief Ellis was president and Inspector Robert Haker secretary-treasurer of the organization.

Fire department personnel includes Chief Ellis, Captain Gerald Lewis, Lieut. Gordon Coughlin, Engineers Elmer Stacey, Maurice Mitts and Duane Foshay and Inspectors Robert Haker and Francis Coleman.

LECTURES GIVEN

During the year, lectures on fire prevention and demonstration of fire-fighting equipment were carried out by department members in rest homes, the hospital and schools, and to factory employees, Guides and Scouts, Junior Farmers and other groups.

While every week is "fire prevention week" at the Trenton Fire Department, the national observance in October was marked by a parade and week-long inspections, school drills, etc., in Trenton.

In May, firemen staged a demonstration of fireworks on Mount Pelion, aimed at protecting the town's children.

In his report, Chief Ellis commented on the co-operation shown to the department by Mayor MacDonald, Councillor Ross Burtt, chairman of council's protection to persons and property committee, the police chief, F. J. Taylor, and his staff, the public works department, the public utilities, the RCAF, clerk-comptroller O. W. Larry, and the municipal office staff and the press.

jective," he said. "Within the shortest time we want to realize peace and to help Algeria take her destiny into her own hands by setting up soon a provisional executive and by being ready unrestrictedly to recognize what will not fail to result from self-determination, that is to say a sovereign and independent state."

De Gaulle said the greater part of the French Army, pinned down in Algeria by the Moslem insurrection, will be withdrawn to Europe by the end of this year.

He said the presence of 1,000,000 Europeans among 9,000,000 Moslems "and the attachment of many Frenchmen to this territory linked to us for 130 years renders its decolonization extraordinarily difficult. . . ."

WARNS CONSPIRATORS

But he warned that "criminal undertakings" by "unworthy Frenchmen" will get short shrift.

"Conspirators have tried and will no doubt try again to create disturbances in the shadow of which they imagine they can seize powers. They are attempting it at present through a system of blackmail, theft and assassination carried even into France.

"But once again they are making a vain attempt. The nation despises and unanimously condemns these people, their plots and their attacks. The government is there to deal with them. I have taken myself, and if need be I will take again, exceptional measures needed."

He referred to the special constitutional powers allowing him virtual dictatorial rule which he has assumed in the past to snuff out attempts to overthrow his government.

Paris newspapers paid most attention to the announcement that France's proposals to Algeria will soon be published. Some papers said this will form a sort of ultimatum to the Tunis-based Algerian provisional government, while others interpreted it as an indication that a peace agreement is virtually concluded.

AMONG HIS SOUVENIRS

NEW YORK (AP) — Joseph Martin found a potentially explosive situation in his home Monday night. Martin, who had just moved in, was plastering a closet when he came across a live hand grenade and a live bazooka shell. Police deactivated them.

Tensions Ease

The U.S. Army has announced that it will start this coming summer to cut back on extra overseas duty ordered for thousands of men during the height of the crisis over Berlin, now almost a year in the past.

The actual change in policy is still months away. Still, the Army would not have announced the planned change if it did not believe tensions had eased. One would not expect it to base such a judgment solely on superficial appearances, on the Kremlin's silence about signing a peace treaty with East Germany and about plans to withdraw Russian troops from Berlin and East Germany. In the absence of any statement to the contrary, we are entitled to assume that the Army's decision is the result of an assessment of the situation which convinces it that there has been a radical change from the conditions existing a year ago.

This raises an interesting point for speculation. Of what does this change consist?

One explanation could be that the U.S. is convinced Khrushchev has won a complete victory over his fire-eating rivals and is now immune to pressure which could make him act tough abroad in order to strengthen his position at home.

This explanation fits well with the visit to the U.S. of Khrushchev's son-in-law, Alexei Adzhubei, the editor of Izvestia, which is the voice of the government in the same sense that Pravda speaks for the Communist Party. It is interesting to note that Adzhubei has said that the times are not propitious for a sweeping rapprochement between the U.S. and Russia, but that rather what needs to be done to establish a favorable attitude for negotiations on world problems is to attempt to ease tensions in small ways. This almost sounds like an echo of official U.S. policy a year ago. It is not a path which promises anything spectacular, yet may well prove the most fruitful. In its advocacy is implicit a recognition of the subtle influence of time.

Though Khrushchev may have emerged completely victorious over the hard-line advocates, it is not reasonable to suppose that his position is impregnable, nor that he can ever make it so if he wishes to avoid using precisely those terroristic methods for which he has denounced Stalin and his regime. It is essential to him, therefore, that he precede slowly. Kennedy is under precisely the same sort of pressure, but from the right rather than from the left. If they can make concessions to one another large enough to win each other's confidence, but not so large as to galvanize their foes into action aimed at frustating their policies with the backing of an alarmed public, they may achieve what is at one and the same time the essential minimum accord and the maximum which can rationally be expected. This is an agreement that the struggle between the two contending philosophies shall be conducted without resort to arms which doom both sides.

Well Out of This

If any additional ammunition were needed by those who oppose Canada becoming a member of the Organization of American States, it has been provided by proceedings at Punta del Este, Uruguay.

There the United States has emerged victorious in a fight to have Cuba ousted from the Organization because of Castor's self-confessed communism. The U.S. mustered the necessary two-thirds majority, which on the face of it looks like an impressive victory. But lined up against her were the two largest powers in South America, Brazil and Argentine, as well as her North American neighbor, Mexico. The U.S. only succeeded because she got solid support from the "banana republics" of Central America.

Without in any way considering the merits of the dispute, imagine the position in which Canada would have found herself had she been a member of the OAS. She would have had the deciding vote. If she had voted against the U.S., consider the resentment which this would have evoked. If she had voted with the U.S., what could not a shrewd propagandist have done with the theme of a "gringo alliance?"

For the present, do not the United Nations and one "regional alliance," NATO, provide us with sufficient opportunities to get embroiled in international disputes?

For national leaders it is sometimes easier to fight than to talk. Impatient cries for total victory are usually more popular than the patient tolerance required of a people whose leaders are seeking peaceful change down the intricate paths of diplomacy.—Harlan Cleveland, assistant Secretary of State, U.S.

Plane Tickets Rationed

BY RICHARD JACKSON
(from The Ontario Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau)

OTTAWA—Yet another straw in the election wind—Members of Parliament, usually drawing tickets for two government-paid air flights between Ottawa and their constituencies each session, this time have been issued only one.

The undated trip tickets customarily are distributed in the opening days of each session.

But this session, the MPs have been given only one round-trip air flip.

And the inference, of course, is that some of those now sitting in the Commons won't be there next fall to pick up tickets for the second flight.

Next fall? Could be sooner. Much sooner. More than anything else perhaps, because it is personal and cuts close to the pocketbook, this rationing of the air tickets - one before, and presumably, the other after the approaching election - has brought home to the MPs that time, for some of them, is fast running out.

No matter how well they won last time out, how distinguished their performance in Parliament has been, no matter how rich their promise of real and worthwhile public service may be, there are in every House of Commons those MPs who won't be making the return trip after an election - and the time rationing of the air tickets is but a simple recognition of this hard fact of political life.

BUREAUCRACY INC

Making the rounds in the Federal Civil Service departmental headquarters offices here in the Capital is a sharp tongue-in-cheek treatise on How - to - Be - a - Big-Shot-in-Government.

Odd thing is, that there are some — not many, fortunately — in the bureaucracy who have made a career of doing all these things, which in the Stuffed Shirt Division of the Civil Service, are the accepted routine.

Here are some of the tips on How - to - Strangle - Yourself-in - Red - Tape - Without-Even - Half-Trying:

"Avoid making decisions.

"Set up a smoke-screen by referring to relevant, irrelevant and imaginary regulations.

"If this does not work, then form a committee.

"The really effective Big Shot has many committees.

Never tell your staff anything that might concern them which induces them to meet around the water cooler and in the washroom for discussion and speculation.

"Inaccessibility is synonymous with rank and status.

"See members of your staff only by appointment.

'Above all, be dignified. Say such things as.. 'We must take effective steps to initiate appropriate procedures to marshal and deploy our available resources by proper liaison and co-ordination at the working level, to produce meaningful integration under the team concept for research in depth on focal points to achieve ultimate break throughs within the broad picture.' "

The last sentence sounds alarmingly like something out of a government publicity department press release.

NEVER THE TWAIN

It was revealing, the other day in the Commons, to hear Liberal Leader Pearson try to soothe or even "shushhh" Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

There was the PM, vibrating, almost, with an over-charge of nervous energy. He was alive with animation, moving, restless. At times indignation seemed almost to boil over. At other times, he could roll back in his seat and laugh from the toes up.

Whatever was happening - and it was hardly more than routine, with the Conservatives and the Liberals exchanging fire across the floor of the Commons - the Prime Minister was aware of every word.

"Sit down, Mr. Prime Minister," counselled Mr. Pearson, like an indulgent school teacher to an obstreperous student, "sit down."

And then, as the Prime Minister, participating with every nerve and fibre of his being in the debate, continued to roll and bob and weave with each point made for and against the Government, Mr. Pearson further counselled:

"Be calm, sir, please be calm."

Now there was the difference between the two men, underlining their personal strength and weakness.

With the Prime Minister, his very intensity, his fiery personal involvement, his very caring about things, is both his strength and his weakness. But in the measure, one against the other, it is his strength.

With the Liberal Leader, his calm, his reasonableness, his detachment, is his strength - but it comes close, sometimes - to being so pronounced as to be almost an unconcerned uncaring.

Now, give Pearson the fire of Diefenbaker, or the PM the casual shrug of the Liberal Leader. . . .

'Take It Easy' Queer Advice

New York Herald-Tribune

Well-meaning acquaintances, on taking their leave, seem forever to be admonishing us to "take it easy." They have our good at heart, of course; they're not intentionally consigning us to a life of sluggish sloth. But we can't help wondering how the New Frontier's touting of the vigourous life can have so passed them by.

It's not, of course, as if the person who says it necessarily meant us to slip into an armchair and go to sleep. The phrase has become part of the American idiom, like that hazardous yet all-but-universal greeting, "How are you?" (It wouldn't take long to expunge that one from common usage if all who were asked it really answered. Still, it reflects a philosophy of life that's a bit unsettling.

It's as if childhood lessons of industry and diligence had been for naughts; as if Ben Franklin had never urged us to plow deep while sluggards sleep, or William Blake hadn't caught the vision that "energy is eternal delight." The singers of this siren song of lethargy must belong to that nation of spectators we've been hearing about. What they need is a good snappy game of touch football to get the blood circulating.

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

GREAT WORLD FIGURES

Some years ago an Arab boy walking in the vicinity of the Dead Sea threw a stone into a small cave opening in the side of a mountain and to his amazement heard a distinct "ping" as if the pebble had struck crockery. It had. The Dead Sea Scrolls were thereafter discovered and the world's best scholars are now working on them to find out their full significance.

Dr. Fleming, an English physician once left a saucer of fluid on an upper shelf in a laboratory and to his annoyance later found that it had developed a coat of mold. But at the moment he discovered the mold he also discovered penicillin, as a result.

Some years ago Albert Einstein asked himself whether or not the conclusions of Sir Isaac Newton were all sound and correct. He began to investigate and found that one was not correct. There-upon followed one of the greatest discoveries in human thinking. Albert Einstein, an unknown person, went to the head of the class. He will always be recognized as one of the twelve greatest human beings that ever lived.

The "ping," the mold in the saucer, the "I wonder" attitude of a mathematician toward the findings of the great mathematical idol Newton before whom the world had prostrated itself for generations! God moves in a mysterious way His wonders to perform. And so often the greatest results come from the most inauspicious beginnings.

Growers of raspberries and strawberries in this district are faced with a serious situation as a result of the proposed restrictions on the use of tin cans, Reeve H. S. Colliver of Picton told town council last night. He stated he understood that it was proposed that these berries would not be allowed to be canned in tin cans this year, but that peaches, pears and plums could be. Very few of the last named are grown here and he felt that the restrictions on the berries would be a real hardship for the farmers.

Knowledge And Power Not Teamed

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Apart from the great multitude who have neither, society is composed of men of knowledge and men of power. But the men of knowledge have little power, and the men of power have little knowledge.

This is the prime tragedy of our time, when knowledge has become so vast and power has become so concentrated. In the sciences, we are now beginning to have the means to fulfill the needs of all the people in the world; but our political and social arrangements are still in the medieval stage.

In biology, chemistry and physics, we are moving ahead at an incredible rate. Disease and starvation and all the ancient vexing problems of mankind can be overcome with the new tools of technology, which are universal in their application.

But the men with such knowledge are powerless; they are servants of the state; and the state is just as backward, just as fearful and possessive, as it was 300 years ago. We have made no advance in our social arrangements that is at all comparable to our increase of knowledge; this increase, in fact, is dominated and controlled by states everywhere.

What is so heartbreaking about the modern situation is that we are swiftly conquering the forces of nature, and are now nearly able to transform the earth into a decent habitation for all peoples. This is a fundamental revolution in man's relation to the world.

At the same time, the rival nationalisms are still employing the strategies of old, still playing the same old chess game of power politics, still suffering from the illusion that there will be "winners" and "losers" in the game. But the game has lost its meaning, and only the men of knowledge are aware of this.

The breakthrough in scientific development has been the real revolution of our time, and scientists everywhere know this. Science is international in its application; and unless it is used for the good of all, it will be used for the ill of all.

Never before has so much power been massed in the hands of states. It is interesting that those who complain about the political bureaucracy in civil matters are the same ones who keep calling for "greater defense" in military matters — as if a state could become all-powerful militarily without becoming all-powerful politically.

We are wrapped in contradictions and conflicts, desiring opposites at the same time, one foot in the past and one in the future. Little wonder that men of knowledge feel impotent, and men of power feel fearful.

Common Tradition

So long as the Commonwealth remains an informal grouping of nations with a common tradition, it will remain what its members want it to be.

To Your Good Health

Teen-Agers Prefer Discomfort Of Cold to Being Different

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any harm in going without a head covering in a temperature of 40 degrees?

"I told my son who is almost 14 that if it is cold enough to wear a heavy coat, it is cold enough for a hat.

"The other boys don't wear hats and naturally he doesn't want to be different. — Mrs. E.P."

None of 'em do at that age! I've seen 'em going to school — hands stuffed in their pockets, shoulders hunched in their jackets, obviously uncomfortable, but preferring discomfort to being "different."

That's the teens for you. Sort of silly, isn't it? (And aren't teenagers, silly or not, fun to have around us?)

As to health, I don't think they harm themselves. When it really gets cold enough to matter, they'll wear ear muffs or put scarves over their heads or something.

The immediate danger is frost bite — freezing of the ears or nose. However, this doesn't happen at 40 degrees.

Teenagers should keep their bodies warm. A sweater under a jacket, and a pair of gloves or mittens help avoid over-all chilling. Circulation of the blood will prevent damage to the exposed face and head.

If the temperature goes down to the point at which frostbite is possible, the discomfort is enough to impel youngsters to keep their ears warm.

Naturally I don't like to disrupt the arguments of loving mothers, but just the same I don't feel that any physical harm comes to a teenager from going bare-headed. Besides, nothing I write is going to persuade one kid to wear headgear if the others don't.

Teenagers may not use their ears to listen to you or me, but they do use their ears to know when they start to hurt, and it's time to get them covered up.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Can a calcium spot on the lung be dangerous? And does it show up on X-rays? — N.S.H."

Yes, calcium deposits show on X-rays, but they merely mean that some infection has healed — TB, histoplasmosis, etc. No treatment is necessary.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I am 15 and during my menstrual period I went swimming. My aunt said it wouldn't hurt me but my mother was furious. She said she once knew a girl who used to go swimming, as well as take frequent baths and wash her hair during this time. It stopped the flow and the girl died of cancer. Will swimming, taking baths or washing the hair do this? — M.A.S."

No — but it's a notion that is being repeated from time to time. I have no doubt that a tragic case such as your mother described probably did happen, but it didn't happen because of swimming, bathing or washing the hair.

My only words of caution are these: For the sake of daintiness, be cautious about swimming in a pool, if flow is heavy. The same for baths — but showers are an alternative. Washing the hair is perfectly all right. There is no health risk from any of these.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A policeman of my acquaintance is of the opinion that courteous people in traffic are more bother than they are worth.

"The whole practise of modern traffic," he says, "is based on the principle of the divvle take the hindmost. And when some genteel soul, full of Christian charity and the milk of human kindness gets into the act, it disrupts the whole business for maybe six blocks. Only last evening during the rush hour, I had to chase half way across my area to untangle a mix-up. It was caused by a fine old gentleman in a large 1952 model allowing a delivery truck to make a left-hand turn into the stream. This so unnerved the people behind him that there was a three-car rear-end collision, the kindly gentleman's car was bunted ahead into the path of the half-turned truck. The truck couldn't manoeuvre either back or forward on account of the downstream traffic, which, of course, wouldn't give him an inch, much less a yard. The truck driver was most indignant with the old gentleman. 'Did he think,' he demanded 'I needed to be given a break?'

"If you give anybody a break nowadays," reflected the policeman, they resent it as an aspersion on their ability to beat the game."

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

TO PLEASE

In a way, throughout life, we are attached to a kind of slavery — doing things we had rather not do but which we feel we must.

But in so doing we perform a double service — one to ourselves and one to someone else — for in nearly every case where we do something we would rather not somebody else is pleased — and then we ourselves get the pleasant reaction.

How many times the boy or girl goes to his or her work in pouting mood only to come out of it with red cheeks and a smiling face. The father, mother or teacher knew best. And so the boy or girl learned a lesson.

To please people is the job of all. The writer, the theatrical producer, the artist, the speaker, the maker of goods, the scientist, the inventor — all do their work that somebody else may be pleased in addition to themselves.

To please by your voice, your manner, your whole personality, is to increase your own happiness vastly.

Try to please — no matter what your work. And if something particularly unhappy seems to be roving around in your heart, don't let anybody know about it. Just try to give a glad front and do your best to please.

The employee who pays no attention to pleasing his employer soon goes out — not up.

I met a man some months ago and a group of us were discussing him later on. All agreed he was one of the most pleasing men any one of us had met in a long time. He bubbled with vitality, but it was all so quiet and calm and appealing.

To please — it goes so far

CAS Administration Costs Questioned by Finance Head

High administration costs of the local Children's Aid Society, said to make up approximately 50 per cent of the society's annual budget, have created a measure of alarm for Alderman Ross Bailey, chairman of the city finance committee.

Alderman Bailey said that despite the fact estimated CAS costs for 1962 were lower than for last year, he was still alarmed at the rate because of the high administration costs.

In comparison he noted that welfare costs in the city last year totalled about $440,000 of which only $19,000 was for administration. Eighty per cent of welfare costs are paid by the government.

He agreed that the CAS was doing a good job but felt that with such high administration costs there must be some duplication of service.

Ald. Bailey noted the proposed per diem rate for the local CAS for this year was $2.41 as compared with $1.46 in Prince Edward county and $3.37 in Toronto.

Alderman George Wishart came to the defence of the CAS by stating that the per diem rate as charged by the society was not a good criterion of its efficiency in operation.

He said the per capita cost of the society was a much safer yardstick.

"You just cannot look at administration costs or the per diem rate and get a fair picture," he said.

He suggested that one of the reasons the per diem rate for the Hastings County CAS was high was that the number of children in care was going down. As opposed to this administration costs remained constant.

Society officials will appear before Judge J. C. Anderson on February 12th to have the 1962 per diem rate approved. Mayor Haig appointed council representatives to attend the hearing.

Try to Get Good Price For Uranium

LONDON (CP)—A small but determined band of Canadians is mustering all the persuasive powers at its command in an effort to talk the British Atomic Energy Authority into paying what they consider a reasonable price for 12,000 tons of uranium.

The sessions, which started last week and still are continuing, mark another phase of Anglo-Canadian negotiations over a letter of intent given by Britain to buy the uranium between 1963 and 1966.

The talks are secret. All that the official spokesman would say is that they are going well and that Britain is willing to buy and Canada willing to sell the radioactive metal.

Spokesmen declined to say how big the Canadian delegation is or how long the current sessions are expected to last.

It is understood, however, that the price Britain is to pay is the big stumbling block. The British negotiators are taking full advantage of the fact that there now is a plentiful supply of uranium. They are doing everything they can to keep the price as low as possible.

The Canadians originally hoped to get $8 a pound for the metal—roughly the price the Crown-owned Eldorado Mining and Refining Limited is paying to uranium producers.

The British negotiators hope to push the price down to as little as $5 a pound, below the cost of production.

The Canadians may accept the lower price and take the loss as part of a program to keep uranium mines operating during the lean years immediately ahead for the industry.

In the talks, which have gone on intermittently during the last year, the Canadian negotiators appear to have established that the letter of intent was a contract to buy.

Kinsmen Told Boards Threat To Liberty

Today Canadians are losing many of the individual liberties which are considered basic to the democratic way of life and this trend could conceivably culminate in the individual working for a state society, Alderman Robert Temple told local Kinsmen at their weekly meeting yesterday evening at the Shrine Club.

In support of this statement Mr. Temple noted that there now exist more than 40 boards in Canada whose decisions are controlled by one to three people and from whose decisions the private citizen has no right to appeal.

The Ontario liquor laws were cited by Mr. Temple as an example of how the rights of the individual are being whittled away. Although the law requires that a warrant be issued before any premises may be entered for such major offences as murder, officers may enter a private residence at any time without a warrant in order to enforce the liquor laws of the province, he said.

He suggested that this type of law was not far removed from that of the sixteenth century when a person's innocence or guilt was often decided by immersing his arm in boiling water and judging him by the length of time it took his arm to heal.

Mr Temple urged that private citizens take an interest in this trend which was slowly and quietly destroying their personal liberty, and arouse public opinion against such a movement before it was too late.

Accompanying Alderman Temple were Alderman Les Digby and Recreational Director Lloyd 'Red' Doran, who accepted a cheque for $1,500 to help pay off the debenture on the Dundas Street East swimming pool which was built by the Kinsmen Club for the city.

The speaker was introduced and thanked by Kinsmen Rolly Belanger and Pat Shannon respectively.

Two Hospital Officials Return From Chicago

Mr. Werner Daechsel, Belleville General Hospital administrator and Frank Domenico, vice-chairman of the hospital board, have returned from Chicago where they attended a three-day conference on hospital administration.

The event was the 5th annual conference of the Professional Society of American College of Hospital Administrators, and was attended by 1,100 hospital administrators and presidents of hospital governors' boards.

During the meeting Mr George Romney, president of American Motors, was picked as the executive of the year.

Two days of the three-day conclave were devoted to an intensive examination of all facts of hospital administration with talks by six outstanding guest speakers being featured at general assemblies and at luncheons.

Twenty other guest lecturers speaking on educational and governmental topics were heard during management seminars.

Traffic, Flood and Fire Hazards Subjects of Council Inquiries

Road conditions on West College Street, the possibility of river flooding during the spring break-up period, and the dangers to pedestrians in being forced to use the street in front of the burned out Ben Safe block on Bridge Street, were the subjects of enquiries at yesterday's meeting of city council.

Alderman Les Digby asked if something could not be done to improve conditions along West College Street. He was told that street repairs were on the agenda, but in answer to a question posed by Alderman Jack Ireland, last year's roads committee chairman, Jack Ellis said with a sanitary sewer proposed for installation along the street it would be foolish to spend too much money until the sewer was in.

Alderman Walter Elliott wanted to know whether the coffer dam placed in the Moira River by Beaver Construction during the installation of the trunk sanitary sewer across the Moira, would be removed in time to avoid danger of flooding during the spring break-up.

Alderman Ellis replied the contract with Beaver Construction called for completion of the river crossing project by the end of February.

And it was also Alderman Elliott who brought up what he termed the dangerous situation on Bridge Street as the result of the fire at the Ben Safe building three weeks ago.

He said this was a "dangerous spot" and the city was only asking for trouble to allow it to continue.

Alderman Elliott said no time should be lost in having the debris removed so that pedestrians could again be permitted to use the sidewalk.

Mayor A. M. Haig said the point was well taken and directed the city manager to look into the matter.

Charge Against New York Rabbi Is Withdrawn

TORONTO (CP) — Charges against a New York rabbi of assaulting police and causing a disturbance were withdrawn by the Crown Monday.

But Crown Counsel Fred Bannon said the charges against Rabbi Norbert Leiner could be relaid following the attorney-general's investigation into the rabbi's counter - charges of police brutality.

Mr. Bannon said the court did not want to impede the investigation by the attorney-general. He said withdrawal was in no way a comment on the merits of the charges.

Rabbi Leiner was taken to police headquarters Jan. 26 after he was unable to identify himself on a suburban street. A resident earlier reported a man loitering in the area.

The rabbi complained that he was placed forcibly into a police cruiser. He said his orthodox beliefs prevented him from carrying a wallet after sundown Friday until sundown Saturday, or to use a telephone or ride in a vehicle.

VOTE-SEEKING

with a statement that dwelt more on the government's future plans than with the $10 increase.

"Our aim is to have an integrated program of old age income security which, in addition to the universl flat-rate benefit, will provide a graduated benefit for all those who can reasonably afford further provision for their old age and who have not already undertaken it under private pension plans or other contractual agreements," said Mr. Monteith.

MAY OBTAIN AT 62

Under such a contributory scheme benefits would be paid starting at 65, but it would be possible to obtain an actuarially-reduced pension at age 62. The minimum benefit would be "over and above" the non-contributory pension now in the process of being raised to $65.

Opposition leaders supported the $10 increase though they termed it inadequate.

Paul Martin, the former Liberal health minister, charged that the proposed $10 increase is a "political trick" to try to make Canadians forget the government's "ineptness and incompetence."

The member for Essex East talked glowingly of the Liberals' own proposal for a contributory plan, which they say would provide a $75 pension in the first year without increasing taxes.

Said Mr. Martin:

"More than any other scheme this one will have the effect of discouraging what I complained about last Tuesday, namely the obvious interest of certain political parties in competing with one another in this field, and particularly the temptation of this particular government to display its great interest in the social welfare or our people on the eve of a general election."

ESTIMATE COST

Mr. Monteith said the increase will cost about $113,400,000 a year. Total pension payments in 1962-63 would amount to $737,000,000. He also stated that the government will continue to pay half the cost of any provincial payments to elderly citizens beyond the basic pension.

Mr. Monteith noted that the government was seeking consent of the provinces to a constitutional amendment covering payments to widows, dependent children and disabled persons under its proposed contributory scheme.

J. W. Pickersgill (L — Bonavista-Twillingate) said the government's move to get a constitutional amendment was a "cheap smokescreen" to cover up the fact there was to be no contributory pension legislation at this session of parliament.

Mr. Pickersgill—in a speech that was constantly interrupted by jeers and catcalls from the government side of the House—accused Prime Minister Diefenbaker of breaking a "cast-iron promise" to institute a contributory plan in this Parliament.

READS SPEECH ACCOUNTS

The Liberal MP read from a series of newspaper accounts of speeches which he said the prime minister made prior to the 1958 election.

Murdo Martin (CCF — Timmins), though welcoming the proposed increase, said it "is not really based on anything at all other than an election gimmick."

It bore no relation to the needs of senior citizens, their present living standards, or their present salaries.

Eric Winkler (PC — Grey-Bruce) said the Liberal pension proposal is political plagiarism. Asked why Mr. Diefenbaker had not carried out pension plan promises in 1958, he said the government was too busy straightening out the mistakes of the Liberal regime.

'Bird' Tourney Success

The Picton Badminton Club walked off with the lion's share of major honors at the Central Ontario Class "B" Tournament held here over the weekend.

The Prince Edward players won the Men's Doubles and Mixed Doubles awards from a strong field with the Belleville Garrison Club taking home the ladies doubles top honors.

Jack Walters and John Parkinson of Picton won the men's doubles trophy with Parkinson teaming with Shirley Miller to win the Mixed Doubles award.

The Misses Loreen Potts and Billie Waldron of the Belleville Garrison Club were the winners of the ladies doubles competition.

Dave Pond and Dick Gelinas of Trenton won the men's doubles with Barbara Simpson and Barbara Refausse of the Garrison Club taking the ladies doubles. The mixed doubles award went to Jim Lorenz and Jenny Cotton of the Peterborough Badminton Club.

Clubs from Belleville, Trenton, Picton, Peterborough, Napanee and other centres sent representatives to the tournament.

Play started in the armouries on Saturday morning with the competition being exceptionally keen.

More exciting play took place in the evening when the finals of the varicous classes were played.

Officials of the host Garrison Club said the tournament was one of the best ever held here. Another tourney is slated for the city armouries sometime in March.

Visiting players were entertained at a post-tournament reception held in the officers' mess in the armouries. Garrison club officials and players proved as delightful as hosts socially as they were in tournament play.

Cuba and Soviet Bloc Try To Build Case Against U.S.

By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Cuba and the Soviet bloc appeared determined to magnify Cuban aggression charges against the United States into a major propaganda show in the United Nations designed to embarrass President Kennedy's administration.

—The Communist strategy became clear when debate opened Monday in the General Assembly's 104-country main political committee. Cuba, the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia delivered marathon speeches denouncing the U.S. government as the mastermind behind last April's abortive invasion of Cuba and accusing Washington of plotting new aggression against Fidel Castro's regime.

U.S. chief delegate Adlai Stevenson retorted that Cuba was trying to torpedo Kennedy's Alliance for Progress program and open the way for Communist subversion throughout Latin America.

Observers predicted the debate would develop into a week-long display of Communist oratory with the rest of the UN members sitting on the sidelines.

The Soviet bloc set the stage for a full-dress airing of Cuba's charges.

Soviet delegate Valerian Zorin attempted to manoeuvre the United States into the position of being on trial before the assembly with himself as chief prosecutor. Zorin posed a series of questions directly to Stevenson Monday dealing mainly with the United States' part in the April invasion.

Zorin also demanded to know if Cuban exiles are being financed and trained on U.S. soil and at points in Latin America for another invasion thrust. He expressed hope that Stevenson would answer his questions point by point.

Move to Censure Lord Home For Criticism of UN Beaten

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Macmillan has pledged Britain's continued support of the United Nations and dealt a resounding defeat to the Labor opposition seeking to censure Foreign Secretary Lord Home for a speech criticizing the world organization.

The Labor motion was defeated Monday night by a vote of 326 to 228 — a government majority of 98, just two less than the Conservative's nominal majority of 100 in the House of Commons. It showed Macmillan still is firmly in control despite some rumblings from his own party ranks.

The vote climaxed a tumultuous six-hour debate. Macmillan heard the results with a cheerful expression, then linked arms with Sir Winston Churchill. Together the 67 - year - old prime minister and 87-year-old former prime minister walked from the chamber surrounded by cheering Conservatives.

Macmillan had invited Churchill to sit beside him during the debate. It was the first time the wartime leader of Britain sat on the government bench since his resignation in 1955 following a stroke.

ATTACKS BOTH

Harold Wilson, the Labor party's foreign policy expert, bitterly attacked Macmillan and Lord Home in the windup speech for the opposition.

Wilson said among government supporters are "a group of aboriginal, true-blue, dyed-in-the-wool Conservatives who have never accepted the UN at any point in its history.

"For some of them, the trouble with the UN is that there is a majority of foreigners there."

He denounced Macmillan as a fumbling, indecisive prime minister.

WILL SUPPORT UN

Macmillan said that despite the UN's shortcomings and dangers of early bankruptcy his government will support the world body. He said the UN "can never be made to work" until East and West resolve their differences and begin working together.

At the same time the prime minister was indirectly defending himself against Conservative critics who claim his leadership is stale and tired.

But the Tories gave Macmillan a rousing reception, laughing at his quips, roaring at his sallies and applauding his statement of aims.

The UN is in deficit to about $100,000,000, Macmillan said, and added:

"Unless some disentanglement can be made fairly soon in The Congo, it may go to really embarrassing figures. It will probably rise, anyway, to $170,000,000 by the middle of this year."

He added solemnly:

"Unless member states face their responsibilities and pay their contributions the UN must go bankrupt quickly."

The company is engaged in the development of an entirely new concept in non-skid additives for a wide range of construction utilities, including but not confined to:—concrete sidewalks and roads, stair treads, inclined loading ramps, airport runways and industrial floorings. The use of such additives to create non-slip surfaces has shown a remarkable growth rate in recent years.

COR-O-TEX non-skid products (patent applied for) are designed to economically compete with imported natural minerals and domestic manufactured abrasives, currently enjoying almost a monopoly in these fields. The Company holds extensive areas in Eastern Ontario containing high-alumina content non-metallic minerals. Most of the company's holdings are former substantial producers for the abrasive industry. The nature of the deposits suggests they can be economically extracted by low cost open-cut mining methods. Due to this factor a broadening in uses for non-slip materials is envisaged.

Congregational Meetings

CHRISTIAN — MISSIONARY ALLIANCE CHURCH

An exceptionally well-attended annual business meeting was held last Tuesday evening at the Christian and Missionary Alliance Church, with the pastor, the Reverend Sackville Palmer, presiding.

The business portion was preceded by a delicious turkey dinner in the lower auditorium of the church, under the convenership of Miss Hannah Dyck, assisted by Mrs. J. Chumbley; Mrs. L. Daugherty, and Mrs. H. Millard with Mrs. Dan Benn, Mrs. W. Rodberg, Mrs. W. Simmons and Mrs. C. Ackerman, convening the kitchen. The waitresses included members of the Explorer Group who served efficiently at the attractively appointed and abundantly laden tables

Following the dinner, the assembly retired to the upper auditorium where the business was conducted, including the reading of the reports from the various departments of the church; each of which proclaimed a most gratifying year in the work of the Lord.

A few of the outstanding reports included that of the missionary giving for 1961, which amounted to $5,663.41; the enrollment of the Sunday School had attained to 265; 17 had been received into membership, making a total of 74 from 1956 to 1961 there had been 13 baptisms; ten children dedicated to the Lord; two marriages solemnized, and four funerals conducted. The over-all receipts had been $21,400.

A GOOD YEAR

The pastor, in his report of the year's work, mentioned the good year the church had enjoyed. A significant fact was the institution of a campaign to "Read the Bible through in 1962. "The Word of God is the banner under which we march, the focal point of all our endeavors; the text of our testmony. We are confident that this is the light, which, when held forth, will bring men out of darkness or sin and translate them into the kingdom of God's dear Son. To its proclamation let us all re-dedicate ourselves".

The Sunday School, under the 'Standard check', not only became a standard school but took home the district cup with a 95.5 grade, the highest mark in the history of the Eastern and Central Canadian district.

The Pioneer Girls and the boys Christian Service Brigade work has been the cause for great rejoicing as well as the Vacation Bible School, and their leaders are to be commended for devoted service.

He briefly summerized accomplishments over the past year and dealt in particular with the annual convention held in Toronto, last spring and also expressed sincere appreciation to Miss Dorothy Connor and her staff and, to each and every member of the executive for their co-operation. INTRODUCES SPEAKER

Mr. Follwell introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Friedel Bellstedt, projection manager associated with Corby's Distilleries, who spoke on the timely topic of "Life in Africa." The speaker was born in Germany and at an early age moved with his family to South Africa, where he received his formal education and graduated as a chemist from the university in Cape Town, South Africa. Forseeing the chaos of the political situation there, he, with his family, moved to Canada to reside in Victoria, before coming to this district.

The speaker in his opening remarks stated that despite the political strife, South Africa is a land with an extremely buoyant economy and manufactures almost every consumer article in large quantities (excepting the automobile). Its mines, including gold, diamonds and coal, are world famous. Agriculture is also thriving with tremendous strides in national parks.

"Africa" the speaker went on to say, "is a land of paradoxes. Today Africa is struggling to find its own feet but hampered by political boundaries."

POLITICAL PARTIES

He explained the functions of the three main political parties, the Nationalists, the Progressives and the Liberals, who are in a small minority. There is a continuous political battle going on in regards to the right to vote, as out of a total of 15 million people, voting is restricted to a mere three million whites. The white man's standard of living is comparable to those in other countries of the world (excepting North America but the Negro laboring forces live only on a subsistence with long work days, most working in a fenced in area, or compound where they work eat and sleep until their contract expires. The confidence and mutual trust which had been built up to the year 1948 has now been destroyed and the faith the black had in the white people has been lost.

Mr. Bellstedt concluded his talk by saying that Africa needs people who can rise above racial discrimination and with their efforts in dealing with this problem, "There might yet be our salvation".

EXPRESSES APPRECIATION

Mr. Taylor Franklin, on behalf of those present, expressed sincere appreciation to Mr. Bellstedt for a most informative and intelligent discourse in the situation as it is today in South Africa.

Derby Winner Wished for Big Family

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. John Franz, who won a stork derby because she had nine children in 10 years, was an only child herself. But she always wanted a big family.

"My husband is one of nine and he loves kids. I think people are happier with big families. I know we are."

She and her 34-year-old husband plan to buy bunk beds for their six sons, then put the rest of their $1,250 prize money away for the children's education.

The stork derby was one of four provided for in the will of former mayor Thomas Foster of Toronto. Only Toronto residents are eligible. The final derby will cover the 10-year period ending 1964.

Mr. Foster explained in his will that he approved of large families and wanted to "extend some benefit to the mothers of such families."

Mr. Franz, a delivery man for a bread company, was in Belleville, Ont., on business when his wife received the news. "I figured we'd win," he said.

The family lives with Mrs. Franz's widowed father in his eight-room house. The children are Johnny, 9, Peter, 8, Marilyn, 7, Norman, 6, Gary, 4, Ricky, 3, Cathy, 2, Jo-Marie, 1, and Patrick, two months.

Mrs. Franz's theory on child raising is to "love 'em and spank 'em."

Beauty, Charm of Women In Viet Nam, Cambodia, Laos Have Changed Little

By PETER SMARK

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (Reuters)—War, politics and internal tensions have made former French Indochina a tense, grim area. But one asset has changed little—the beauty and charm of its women.

Viet Nam, Cambodia and Laos, the three countries which make up the former Indochina, vary in many ways but in nothing so much as their women.

Vietnamese women, at least to the Western eye, are the most beautiful. They are slim, graceful and well-groomed and show to a marked degree the influence of the long years of French rule in the country.

Their lustrous eyes and long, black hair blend to perfection with the flowing silken robe, called the "ao dai," which they wear over long, silk trousers, in black or white, reaching to the ankle.

Whether they are schoolteachers, typists or shopgirls, they are all notable for the care they take on their hands, the immaculate painting of their long fingernails, and their carefully-groomed hair.

These Vietnamese women are often described as fragile and doll-like. But 1,500 of them recently joined the new women's para - military corps founded by Madame Ngo Dinh Nhu, first lady of the republic and sister-in-law of the bachelor president Ngo Dinh Diem.

Madame Nhu, svelte, well-groomed mother of four, is an enthusiastic champion of women's rights, and has dealt several deft blows to entrenched male privilege in the last few years.

Reports reaching Saigon from Hanoi, capital of Communist North Viet Nam, indicate that the northern sisters of these Saigon girls also are actively engaged in military training.

In North Viet Nam, however, the "ao dai" has been banned by the government as "frivolous." There, the women dress in short jackets with work-a-day utility over their long trousers.

Cambodian women, darker-skinned and more buxom than the Vietnamese, dress in sarongs of dark hue, with a brighter-colored blouse above.

They lack the grace and allure of the Vietnamese, but have a lighter attitude toward life, and can be seen everywhere in the streets, laughing and jostling each other.

Polygamy, forbidden in Viet Nam, is common in Cambodia, still very much a country of male supremacy.

Above Cambodia is the gentle land of Laos. Here are to be found the gentlest women in all Indochina, combining much of the grace of the Vietnamese with an even happier disposition than that of the Cambodian women.

The Lao dress is colorful and charming. The women wear sarongs in muted autumn tones bordered with brilliant gold embroidery. The sarong, which reaches to mid-calf, is topped by delicately-made blouses in pastel tones, often fastened with pearl buttons.

As in Cambodia, polygamy still exists in Laos, but the senior wife is dominant in the home.

Make Your Own Pudding Mixes

by Mary Moore

(In two instalments; second and last instalment tomorrow).

Late last summer I innocently gave you, in three instalments, a Basic All-Purpose Mix with Variations, and the number of request for repeats and extra copies staggered us.

Undaunted, I am about to give you another basic mix — this time for milk puddings. There are 3 variations: vanilla, chocolate and caramel. The total amount makes 20 servings. Or, to put it another way 6 servings of Vanilla pudding; 6 servings of Chocolate pudding and 8 servings of Caramel.

Remember that each basic mix may be stored in a covered container in a cool place.

The Basic Vanilla Pudding Mix is as follows One and one-half cups white sugar, 2 1-2 cups skim milk powder, 1 1-4 cups unsifted flour, 1 teaspoon salt. Stir the ingredients together until well mixed. Store in covered containers in a cool place.

But I am going to assume you will want to make up the 3 flavors all at once and here is how we did it.

Step 1: 2 1-2 cups skim milk powder, 1 1-4 cups unsifted flour, 2 teaspoons salt. Mix these 3 ingredients well. This amount measures 3 cups.

Step 2: Divide into 2 parts (which measure 1 1-2 cups each). To one-half add 3-4 cup of white sugar to the second half add 3-4 cup well-packed dark brown sugar.

Step 3: Divide first half (with white sugar)into halves again. (Each will now measure 1 cup plus 2 tablespoons). To one of these halves add 6 tablespoons cocoa.

You now have 3 variations: (1) Vanilla Pudding Mix (measures 1 1-8 cups); Chocolate Mix (measures 1 1-2 cups) and Caramel Pudding Mix (measures 2 1-4 cups). For future use put these away in 3 seperate covered jars in a cool place.

When you are ready to use a Mix here are the additional ingredients you will need:

VANILLA PUDDING

(Serves 6): Add 2 1-2 cups hot water and stir over boiling water until thick. Cover and cook 10 minutes. Remove from heat and add 1 talbespoon butter. Pour some over 1 (or 2) slightly beaten egg. Stir. Return to double boiler and stir 1 minute. Remove from heat, add 1 teaspoon vanilla. Turn into serving dishes and chill. Note: This Vanilla Pudding thickens more when chilled.

See tomorrow (Wednesday, February 7th) for second instalment giving directions for making up Chocolate and Caramel variations of Pudding Mix.

WHAT'S YOUR E.Q.?

2. The young couple next door are tossing a cocktail party to celebrate their first year of wedded bliss. Would a gift be appropriate?
3. A doting husband is planning a surprise birthday party for his wife, whom you don't know too well. Should you bring a token with you?
4. Good friends have invited you to dinner for the second time in a month. Is another hostess gift required?
5. A friend is soon to be married and you're invited to the engagement party. Should you bring a gift, even though you intend sending a wedding present shortly?
6. A friend from college just got married, and you were advised of the fact via a wedding announcement. Should you send something to the newly married couple?
7. Another close friend has invited you to her wedding and reception, but you won't be able to attend. Must you send a gift along with your regrets?
8. You'd like to attend a bridal shower for an old school chum, but you'll be skiing that weekend. Would it look better if you sent a gift, anyway?
9. Close friends have asked you to be godmother for their new daughter. Does this involve a gift for the baby?

6. No. You may, of course, but a note will suffice.
7. It's optional, depending on how close the relationship is and will continue to be.
8. Yes. A gift should be sent by a friend who can't attend a shower.

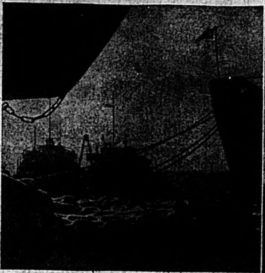
Canadian Icebreakers Crack Winter's Grip in Gulf of St. Lawrence

Two Inches of Steel Slice Through Ten Feet of Ice

As brittle February days slowly lengthen, ships of Canada's icebreaker fleet flex their muscles and head for thickening icefields athwart Gulf of St. Lawrence shipping lanes. Here, at the entrance to the world's most important inland waterway, the icebreakers — battering, crushing, slicing — attack solid ice barriers thrown up by nature, keep floes moving at congested points, rally to aid vessels beset by winter's grip. Icebreaking operations, stepped up to meet increased winter traffic in Gulf areas, now have resources of nine heavy and eight light icebreakers — giving Canada one of the world's three most powerful icebreaking fleets. Supporting the fleet in its formidable task is the "Ice Central" office, Halifax, and the ice information officer, Sydney. Data on ice conditions, gained from aerial surveys, ship observers, lighthouse keepers, are made into special ice charts by the Halifax office and radioed to vessels battling through icefields covering thousands of square miles of frozen sea. Newest icebreaker is the John A. Macdonald, with two-inch-thick bow plates, a bulk of more than 6,000 tons and a driving force of 15,000 horsepower. Other big, tough icebreakers are d'Iberville and Labrador — Canadian-built ships that smash their way into the far reaches of the high arctic during the summer northern season. Well-found and equipped, with upwards of a hundred men aboard each ship, these vessels are the backbone of Canadian patrols and supply runs into high latitudes. On these voyages the ships spend days at a time ramming the ice, swaying up and over solid arctic floes, lurching along self-made leads in 10-foot-thick icefields stretching as far as the eye can see or radar probe — a punishing test for Canada's strongest ships and the expert ice navigators who sail them.



Mooring lines of icebreaker in Halifax harbour are icicle-festooned as ship awaits call to action in icefields.

National Film Board of Canada Photos by Rudi Wolfe

Icebreaker Labrador makes clover-leaf patterns among giant ice floes during manoeuvres to free ice-trapped freighter in winter waters of Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Helicopter takes off from ship's stern. Ranging ahead of icebreaker, pilot reports by radio on ice jams, open leads.

Cutaway, armoured bow rides up and over heavy floes, lets full weight of vessel crack thick slabs which rear up protesting and grinding as ship batters through.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Elsa T. — I don't want to be a "mother" to my husband.

Allen T. — Now that we have a baby, she ignores me.

• • •

Elsa T. — Allen's mother died when he was 6 and it was easy for me to understand, when we were keeping company, why he sometimes acted like a little boy, talked baby-talk, wanted me to "mother" him. I enjoyed wrapping his scarf around him. I got a kick out of combing his hair for him. And when he pouted and sulked because I wouldn't play tennis, I took it all as a big joke.

Even his calling me Mommy during my pregnancy struck me as kind of tender. But now that we have a son, it all gets a bit confusing, if not sticky and disgusting. Whatever motherliness I have, I feel belongs to the baby. He really needs it, not Allen. But my husband seems to resent the baby and the amount of attention I give him. And he still calls me Mommy!

• • •

Allen T.: From the minute we brought our baby home, Elsa has had eyes for no one but him. She hovers over his bassinet, washes and rewashes his things, reads baby books, knits carriage covers, and is a 100 per cent Mommy. She certainly isn't my old gal Elsa who used to curl up on the sofa with me and listen to opera arias on our hi-fi.

It's true that I selected Elsa as my wife because, in addition to her beauty and talent, she had a certain softness. I felt she was basically a motherly person who would give me the sort of affection I craved, having lost my mother when I was very young.

Up to the baby's arrival, she was wonderful to me. Now I might just as well be a picture on the wall for all the attention I get. Where do I fit in?

• • •

The Council: Elementary, my dear Elsa! You must treat Allen, these early months of new parenthood, the way mothers are advised to treat Baby Number One when Baby Number Two arrives — with constant reassurance that he's inside, not outside, the charmed circle. Even more than most husbands and big brothers, Allen is experiencing the pangs of a displaced person. As with all displaced persons, the balm that heals must reek with welcome plus vistas of a new, and more glorious, place to fill.

Because of his early deprivation, Allen sought a unique "package deal" in marriage — a wife plus a part-mother. It may surprise both to learn that men do this, although not so consciously as Allen. Their need for motherly ministrations and softness is insatiable. Occasionally they marry mother-figures, — women much older than themselves. But numerous average wives learn that in additional to acquiring a pal, a contemporary and a husband, they also have in tow a man-child, — a vulnerable human who craves the comfort and warmth of maternal fussing.

Dr. Eleanor Hamilton, author of the current text, "Partners in Love," traces this need (even in people whose mothers did not die) to feelings of disapproval experienced from infancy on. The deprived baby, she says, needs "unusual amounts of approval from his mate in order to feel confident of his own worth."

So, Elsa, patience and compassion are in order. Certainly not disgust! Like Elizabeth Barrett Browning you can "count the ways" in which you love Allen — as a man, as your husband, as your baby's father and yes! as your "big little boy." None of these loves need exclude the others. In fact, one can feed the next and make it stronger.

As for you, Allen, one way to get Elsa to make room for Daddy is to jump plunk into the middle of those chores. Up to your elbows in soapsuds, you can show Elsa that things need only be washed, not rewashed! That should leave time for "La Donna Mobile."

Leading French Editors Show How Daily Deluge of Blood Sickens the Soul

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON (CP)—Angry words by two leading editors show how a daily deluge of blood in the streets sickens the French soul.

As the nation stirs in uneasy sleep, and the cult of violence luxuriates under a government that seems unable to distinguish friend from foe, writers are reacting with the kind of crusading passion that inflamed Emile Zola during the Dreyfus case.

In Le Monde, a Paris newspaper noted for independent reporting, Editor Hubert Beuve-Mery grimly challenges the assassins to come and get him.

After the second of two plastic-bomb attacks against his home, Beuve-Mery asks why the "fanatics" of the OAS, or Organization of the Secret Army, should strike when they know their intended victims are likely to be away from home.

TAUNTS TERRORISTS

"One hesitates to be personal. But if you judge, gentlamen, that my existence is so harmful . . . why pull your punches in this way?

"My hours are known, my habits have not changed and no 'gorilla' guards my steps. The deed, then, is easy, and impunity, as you know, is almost assured."

Beuve-Mery's paper has become a sharp but sorrowful critic of President de Gaulle's government.

The blind violence of the OAS, Beuve-Mery says, apparently dictates a strategy of planting plastic bombs just when children are going to school.

"Does not such cowardice sicken those of our officers who order and approve these criminal acts?"

WOMAN WARNS OAS

Tart talk also comes from Francoise Giroud, a handsome woman of intellectual tastes. She is co-editor with Jean-Jacques Servan-Schreiber of l'Express, the left-wing weekly magazine whose deep-rooted hostility to the Algerian war is expressed in every issue.

In short, harsh sentences, Miss Giroud warns that reprisals will follow if any members of l'Express are injured by the OAS. Addressing an imaginary member of OAS, she says:

"You, mister, are a member of this gang. You don't even try to hide it. Why should you? You know that if your friends win, you will get a few crumbs from the cake. If not, you know that a democratic regime doesn't liquidate its enemies.

"But you, mister, will be our hostage. Is that clear?

"For every successful act of violence committed against one of our staff, we will hold you, mister, responsible."

SAYS TEMPER BAD

This unusual public warning from a law-abiding citizen in the land of liberty, equality and fraternity is accompanied by a pugnacious threat that l'Express has a "bad temper" and a good organization.

"Reflect, mister: You are neither threatened nor condemned. You are merely warned."

A few days later, Miss Giroud's home was damaged by plastic bombs. An earlier attempt failed. And a bomb placed outside the house of Philippe Grumbach, also of l'Express, did not go off.

De Gaulle's government has declared war on the OAS, some 13 months after its formation. But critics are cynical. Premier Michel Debre, clinging to a policy of "political symmetry" which involves one blow at the left for every one at the right, has renewed his appeal against the two "extremes," Communists as well as the OAS.

One is as bad as the other, said Debre, who nevertheless called on all citizens to save France when a parachute coup on Metropolitan France was expected last April.

REDS ARTICULATE

Up to now, the only articulate and determined opposition to the OAS has come from the Communist left. The Gaullist government's obsessive fear of the Communists thus blurs resistance to the OAS.

Speaking of the government's seemingly equivocal attitude, former premier Pierre Mendes-France said:

"At a time when de Gaulle claims to be waging war against the extreme right, he plays into its hands by removing or suppressing the only force that could resist it, namely the mass of the people."

TWEED

Agricultural Society Lists 1962 Officers

TWEED—The annual meeting of Tweed Agricultural Society was held in the council chambers of the Municipal Building on January 24th, with a good attendance of officers and directors.

The meeting was called to order with the president, William McCrea, presiding. Secretary-treasurer D. E. Spencer read the minutes of the last annual meeting and also gave the financial statement. He reported that last year's receipts were $4,200, with $500 in grants still to be received. Expenditures were approximately the same as the previous year. Gate receipts were down somewhat this year, but it is believed that the plowing match which was held near that time was the reason for the decrease in attendance. He noted that two years ago there had been an overdraft of $808, but this had been reduced to $300. There had also been a number of outstanding accounts at that time which have been paid and had reduced the net profit considerably. Past president Ross Ketcheson suggested that a request be made to Huntingdon Township for a grant this year. He also noted that the 4-H Club exhibit last year was the largest ever held at Tweed Fair and that this was an encouraging note, inasmuch that members as they mature could well transfer their interest in agriculture to fair activities.

FINE EXHIBITS

T. C. Graham reported that the number of exhibits were comparable to previous years and that accommodation for new exhibitors was now at a premium, but did not suggest any additional buildings or other facilities to be added at this time.

It was suggested by Harry Coulter that the type crop in the field crop competition should be changed, which met with unanimous approval. John Wilkinson, director of the cheese department, reported that it might be necessary to make a new class for square cheese to keep in line with the modern method of cheese marketing. He felt that this was one of the reasons why the number of cheese exhibited was not as large as other years.

Once again it was decided to confine the horse races to two classes. At this time Mr. McCrea told the Fair Board that his three year term of office had been completed. He thanked the officers and directors for their co-operation during this time and wished the incoming officers every success.

LIST OFFICERS

Mr. Harry Coulter presided for the election of officers with Mr. Wilbur Bateman, R.R. 1 Tweed elected president. Warden Harold Varty was named 1st vice-president and will succeed the newly appointed president, while Thomas Lynn was elected 2nd vice-president. Secretary-treasurer Douglas Spencer will continue to act in this capacity until the next board meeting, at which time re-appointment will be discussed. Named to the executive were the following directors: Arthur Robinson and Stanley Lockwood, Actinolite, and Grant Elliott, R.R. 1 Tweed; honorary director — Warden Varty; associate directors — Milton McTaggert, Don Martin, Thomas Keilty, Howard Countryman, Stanley Bateman and Ray Woolfrey; auditors — T. C. Graham and Charles Lynch.

The new president complimented past president McCrea on his interest and service with the board and hoped that with his guidance that the Tweed Fair would continue its successful record.

Former Mountie Tells of Life In Force Fifty Years Ago While in Hudson Hope Area

HUDSON HOPE B.C. (CP)—"He had a bad gash running down the inside of his thigh and along his calf right down to his foot, but me and Tom Briley sewed him up with cotton and a needle."

Bill Carter, former Royal North West Mounted Policeman, was telling a 50-year-old tale of the Hudson Hope area to Corporal Paul Gilchrist, RCMP officer-in-charge of the one-man Hudson Hope detachment, 400 miles northwest of Edmonton.

"After that we kept bathing his leg in salt water and let me tell you, his leg looked like a piece of salt pork. We saved it though, and the doctor, when he got to see the man, said we did a pretty fine job."

The man was Dennis Paddy Ryan, who became assistant commissioner of the force before his death in California. He had sliced his leg open while using an axe.

"I rememeber we had to cut off the big toe at the knuckle joint. He was a big Irishman, and I'd always said these big fellows would suffer more with pain than a little guy. So I sat on him, and Briley got out the scissors and went to work."

STANDBY DENTIST

Billy, as Cpl. Gilchrist calls him, joined the RNWMP in 1905, when "we had pockets in our britches and we stuffed whatever was needed right down inside. We wore the Strathcona boots and spurs, red serge jacket and a Glengarry hat."

He was a roughrider and wrangler on the Peace River-Yukon Trail expedition-12 four-horse teams and a 30-to-40-man party - from Fort Saskatchewan, near Edmonton, to Hazelton, in northern British Columbia. The three-year trek, from 1905 to 1908, was made by way of Fort St. John and Fort Graham, B.C., a distance of more than 700 air miles.

"We pretty well lived off the land on that trip. Mostly, we carried bacon, flour, tobacco, sugar and tea. No coffee.

"I used to give new recruits their paper bag and stick. Told them the stick was to knock down the game with and the paper bag to brew your tea in."

As standby dentist in the bush he figures he has pulled more than 300 teeth.

"Never charged for one of them, though. That'd make me a quack. There just wasn't anybody else to do it."

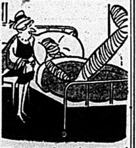
Bill Carter, now 79, was born in Durham County, England, and first handled horses there. "Used to travel the fair circuits in Canada with the musical ride when I was a policeman. We went to Brandon, Fort Qu'appelle, Winnipeg and Calgary.

"But I just fell in love with his part of the country when we came through. So much so that after my discharge in 1910 I came back to go prospecting. "I've never struck it rich yet, but I've struck some pretty good stuff."

He's planning another prospecting trip next summer. This time he's after molybdenum. "I'll be out with a pack on my back, but this time I figure I'll use an airplane to get where I'm going.

"I know where to go, all right. I'll have some mountain climbing to do, because this stuff is usually found near the tops of mountains. I think I'll make it this time."

"Jest a Second"



"Then when I put the saucer of milk at the foot of the tree, pussy climbed down by herself."

Scales Towers To Stop Clocks In Shrewsbury

SHREWSBURY, England (AP) — An around-the-clock watch on Shrewsbury's public clocks was ordered by police today in an attempt to foil a mysterious clock-stoppers.

The unknown prowler has scaled towers up to 100 feet high to stop five clocks and has wrenched the hands off three of them.

"He must be an expert climber," said police Inspector R. C. Tuttle. "How he could make it down from the towers in darkness carrying those big metal clock hands I don't know."

Church Steeple, Pictured By Pen and Brush, Making Comeback in United States

By JULES LOH

NEW YORK (AP) — The church steeple, immortalized by pen and brush as a symbol of old-time religion, is making a comeback in the United States.

A leading steeplemaker reports that use of spires on American churches has increased 40 per cent in the last five years, and they are being used more widely today than at any time since the days of Currier and Ives.

One reason is that lightweight, versatile metals, many of them developed or perfected since the war, have made heavy and expensive supporting structures no longer necessary.

Consequently budget-minded building committees now are able to include spires at far less cost than their fathers could provide them; and creaky wooden spires, long since removed from older churches often simply to save the maintenance cost, can be replaced.

Before these new materials appeared, however, congregations often had to sacrifice esthetic considerations to expanding budget needs.

What with burgeoning costs on such church services as youth programs, missionary appeals, denominational assessments, summer camp — costs unkown to 19th-century church-goers — steeples became just too expensive to build and keep up.

This is no longer true, hence today's revival.

Except for duplications of original steeples, contemporary churches, some call them modern have spires bearing little resemblance to the old-fashioned square structures of colonial days.

St. Francis of Assisi Catholic Church in Western, Conn., for example, has a broad-based spire made of glass and located above the altar. The bell tower of St. Peter's Lutheran Church of Norwalk, Conn., is an open structure of vertical and horizontal beams with the bells exposed to view.

Christ Lutheran Church of Carey, Ohio, has a 66-foot needle — like spire visible for miles across the flat countryside. And the church of the Brethren in Huntingdon, Ind., has a simple 51-2-foot spire topped by a five-foot-10-inch cross.

Income Tax Explained

Written and designed for the taxpayer who is not in a position to employ the services of a professional accountant or visit an Income Tax Office.

By C. A. Miller
Former Supervising Assessor
Income Tax Dept.

Many taxpayers who hold stock in Canadian mines, oil wells, etc., get confused as to the deductions and credits allowed in regard to these dividends.

In a previous article we outlined the 20 per cent tax credit allowed for all dividends from taxable Canadian Corporations. There is another credit applicable when the dividends are paid by any corporation who makes its profit from underground operations. It is a well known fact that a mine or oil well will not produce indefinitely, but will in time peter out and the stock cease to pay dividends. To offset this ultimate loss the taxpayer who is a stockholder, is allowed to reduce his dividend by a certain percentage each year. This percentage will depend on the amount of the corporation's profit, derived from underground operations. This allowance is called "Depletion". If you have received a T5 slip showing the amount of your dividend, the percentage applicable for depletion is shown on this slip. In some cases this percentage will vary from year to year. If you are in doubt as to the rate for the year contact your nearest tax office.

To apply this depletion on your return you should list the full amount of your dividends on a separate sheet of paper. From this, you will deduct depletion at the current years rate, and then deduct the carrying charges, if any. It is only on the net amount after you have made these deductions, that you may claim the tax credit of 20 per cent. The tax credit is deductible from your overall tax.

There is no depletion allowance or tax credit on dividends from mines or oil wells, which are located outside Canada.

Question: I hold stock in Imperial Oil Limited. Why is it some years I get a depletion allowance and in other years none?

Answer: This corporation derives its profits from both oil wells and marketing finished products. If its profits from oil wells are determined at a certain amount you are allowed depletion. When the profits from the oil wells are below a certain percentage, no depletion is allowable.

Question: A few years ago I was allowed a depletion of 15 per cent on my dividends from American owned mines in the U.S.A. Last year (1959) my claim was disallowed by the tax department? Why?

Answer: Depletion allowance on U.S. mining dividends was rescinded by "Order in Council" in December 1958.

Highest Order Statesmanship Says Official

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP)—President Kennedy's trade proposals were described Monday night by R. D. L. Kinsman of Montreal as "a striking example of the highest order of statesmanship."

Mr. Kinsman, vice-president of Alcan International Limited, told an international business management course at Waterloo University College: "Faced with the European Common Market, the president has asked for sweeping powers to enable him to reduce tariffs, not item by item but across the board, in return for similar concessions by the economic community.

"Is there no room in the world for a larger measure of Canadian initiative, adaptability and resiliency?"

Mr. Kinsman said that while the fate of the president's proposals rests with Congress, "it could be a turning point for the whole free world."

Mr. Kinsman, immediate past president of the Canadian Exporters' Association, said the Common Market and Britain's proposed entry appears to place in jeopardy, to a greater or lesser degree, about $900,000,000, or about 17 per cent, of Canada's total export trade.

"This," he added, "is a significant percentage but, between 1948 and 1960 — in 1948 dollars of constant value — we increased our exports by more than 40 per cent; and in five, tough lean years we have pushed them up by nearly 12 per cent. What we have done before we can do again, but we have to determine to do it, then pitch in and work at it."

Successful Living

Seeks Royal Recognition

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—My wife's parents will be celebrating their fiftieth wedding anniversary in August of this year. I have often read articles in the newspaper where couples celebrating such an anniversary have received a congratulatory message from the Queen.

Would you please tell me how this may be arranged?—JACK.

DEAR JACK:—Whether fifty years of wedded bliss rate with royalty is uncertain. It may have to be sixty for official recognition. But it rates with me, so congratulations!

The way to go about it is to write to the Secretary of State, Hunter Building, Ottawa. Give all details. If "found worthy" (their phrase, not mine), it will be forwarded to the proper authority in England, and from there to the Queen.

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—For the last year I have liked a boy. We are both 14.

His best friend told me that he really likes me but his father won't let him date girls who are not his religion. I am not the same religion, but I can't stop liking him. What can I do?—HOPELESS.

DEAR HOPELESS—Now I'll be YOUR friend. Start looking at and liking the other boys.

At fourteen the field is wide open and hope is high. A difference in religious should be shunned right now. His father does you a favor.

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—My husband is a drunkard and an incurable woman chaser.

He had a "steady" girl while I was expecting my last child and even brought her home and slept with her during my confinement in the hospital.

Anyway I forgave him and believe me that's no easy job. Now it seems he is starting all over again. He gets stupid drunk, comes home and beats me up.

Also, he uses the filthiest, vilest language in front of the children, drunk or sober. I have tried everything to reason with him but he just laughs at me.

I have been to the government and they have offered me welfare, but I didn't take it as I don't want to break up a home. This man supports me fairly well.

Do you think he's hopeless? Should I stay with him or walk off and leave him?—DOWN AND OUT.

DEAR DOWN AND OUT:—"Break up a home?" Sounds like a poor excuse for one to me.

I have known wives to stick it out for years, only to give up at last and leave. But I have known alcoholic men to reform and stay reformed.

What he does is all tied up with what he is and what's bothering him. Whether you two clash, for instance.

For direction to counselling and for helpful literature, get in touch with The Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Foundation, 24 Harbord Street, Toronto 5, Ont.

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—I am interested in learning to be a hairdresser. Could you tell me if there are any night schools that I might go to, and what would be the cost of training?

I am married and have a child age two so I couldn't do this during the day.—OBLIGED.

DEAR OBLIGED:—You can learn to cut and curl by night—if you give enough nights to it. It takes a thousand hours. Costs vary with course. Get your National Employment Service to tell you where the nearest school is.

Not a bad skill to have at your fingertips, as it were.

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—A friend of mine who works with me is always wanting to be boss. She is always going to the boss about everything I do.

Should I tell my boss about this or should I tell her I am not going to take it from her any more? I need the work and I don't want to leave it.

She is married and has no family. She does not need the work.—WIDOW G.

DEAR WIDOW:—Tell her first. You may surprise her. Bossy people are inclined to think they know it all, until someone shows they are alive and kicking too.

You don't have to act angry to sound firm. But be firm.

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—Where can I get a correspondence course in bookkeeping and typing? My three children will all be in school by September and I know I will find the days long. I do not care for women's clubs.

Is 35 too old to take such a course?—MRS. J. M.

DEAR MRS. J. M.:—You can study and learn things as long as you have the urge. People who love life are apt to take self-improvement courses at fifty or sixty.

I am sending you information about where to write for the courses you want.

• • •

TO HEARTBROKEN — If you and your girl broke up because of mean things you said and didn't mean, you can be friends again by apologizing. Personally I would leave her as free as the air she breathes when it comes to going out with others.

Since you dislike some of her ways, you need time to think, too. Take a flyer yourself and get to know some other girls.

Bugler Made Balcony for Second Solo

LONDON (CP)—Trumpeter Elgar Howarth stood in the top balcony of Albert Hall, awaiting the cue that would start his playing of the off-stage fanfare in the Philharmonia Orchestra's performance of Beethoven's Leonora Overture No. 3.

His solo is one of the highlights of the overture, giving the impression of a trumpet sounding from a high tower.

His cue came. Howarth started the solo. The first three notes sounded loud and clear.

Attendant Len Goughlan, unaware of a switch—the solo usually was played from behind the stage curtain—thought it must be an amateur trying to get in a few licks with the philharmonia.

"What do you think you're playing at?" he demanded, pushing the harassed trumpeter, still playing, toward a door leading to the bar.

The trumpet fanfare became dimmer as Goughlan hustled the trumpeter up an aisle and through the door. The solo faded, just at the finish, to some muffled notes behind the bar door.

Howarth, due back in for a second fanfare in a few seconds, did some fast talking. He convinced the attendant and was back in the balcony for his second solo.

$12 Million Restoration Job Begun at Fort Louisbourg

By IRA DRYSDALE

LOUISBOURG, N.S. (CP)—A coal miner's pick strikes broken pottery, a rusty spike or a piece of bone 200 years old.

It might be any of these things — but not coal — at the site of the fallen French fortress of Louisbourg two miles from here where a $12,000,000 restoration job has begun.

About 150 miners have been hired here, most of them from Glace Bay, N.S., where nearly 800 were displaced last year when the Caledonia colliery was closed.

It's a new life for the miners. They travel to work by auto instead of by underground train. They work in the fresh air and daylight. They don't need to be afraid of mine disasters. But the $1.10 an hour is less than they got in the mines.

How do they like it?

Francis Barron, 27, dropped his pick by the face of a stone wall he was uncovering and said: "I like it all right . . . or if the pay was better it would be all right."

He had hardly got the words out when another miner piped up: "Tell the truth; you'd go back to the mines tomorrow if you got the chance."

A dozen men were working with Mr. Barron, uncovering with pick and shovel a test section of the three walls and 80-foot-wide moat that made up the land defences for the French fort before British troops levelled them with cannon between 1759 and 1761.

Actual restoration has barely begun but already the miners have uncovered a small collection of bones, pottery and spikes. The biggest job so far has been in setting up offices, warehouses and other buildings as a base for restoration work.

Another man working on the walls was A. G. MacPhee, 43-year-old Louisdale, N.S., stonemason who will be a stonework supervisor here.

Mr. MacPhee said the miners were a good crew to work with but figured it would be quite a job teaching them stone masonry.

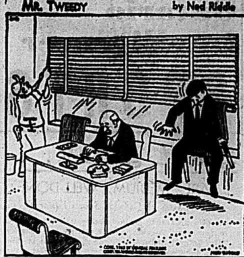
A. D. Perry of Dartmouth, N.S., district engineer for national parks in the Maritimes who has been involved in several restoration projects since 1957, is acting project manager. He says the miners are versatile and capable of hard work. They dig with interest on many of the jobs and are willing to learn.

Most of the restoration, which will include construction of likenesses of the original French buildings, is expected to be completed in time for centenary celebrations in 1967. However, some work is expected to take 10 to 12 years or more.

Bill Marsh, president of district 26 of the United Mine Workers of America (Ind.) and leader of the fight to keep coal mining alive in Cape Breton, had this to say about the restoration:

"We'd rather have the mines . . . but if we didn't have Louisbourg there would be bad trouble in Glace Bay. It's a good thing for Cape Breton."

MR. TWEEDY by Ned Riddle



"Now before I promote you, I want to make sure you have the dignity and poise the job requires."

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo H. Carver, Sports Editor

One of Canada's greatest hockey stars will be here in person on Tuesday evening, March 6. Maurice "The Rocket" Richard, the idol of thousands of fans both sides of the Quebec border will be the guest of the Belleville Shrine Club.

Shrine president Jack Allin announced the other day the Rocket will don sweater, skates and whistle, and referee the annual puck classic between the Belleville Fire and Police Departments.

As is well known this puck epic between the boys of the city's blue and brass is staged yearly in aid of the Shrine Club's Crippled Children's Fund. And if you know a better cause, name it.

Every cent raised by admission funds and sale of tickets prior to the event goes to the Shrine Club's Crippled Kiddies' exchequer. Chief Walter Probert's "Untouchables" and Chief Gerald Vance's "Smoke-Eaters" give their time and efforts gratis. The arena gives its time and ice facilities. Shrine president Allin and his Crippled Children Committee, Chairman "Boiler" Lloyd, and their valiant fez-men go all out to make the night a success.

The Montreal Canadiens Hockey Club is paying the expenses of the Rocket, who, by the way, will make an appearance in Marmora prior to coming here. Richard is probably the greatest ambassador of good will ever sent on a nation-wide tour by any athletic organization.

His fans are legion from coast-to-coast. Wherever he goes, be it in a proud stadium of a metropolis or the wind-beaten building that is the arena of an off-the-beaten-track hamlet, the Rocket gets the keys of the community and the accolade of fans whether they be nine or ninety.

Loyal Canadiens' fans say the Rocket is the greatest hockey player Canada ever produced. But there are those who disagree. Oldtimers back the late Howie Morenz. Gordie Howe of Detroit does not lack for support.

But mine not to reason pro or con. However, it is doubtful if the Canadian hockey scene ever saw a more finished, colorful, dynamic, fiery star in action than Maurice Richard. He is not only a star but in French Canadian circles is a legend. He is one of the game's truly greats, a holder of records, a fierce competitor, whose name is emblazoned in gold across the top of Canada's sports archives.

The Rocket is an idol of the younger fry. The moppets in Broken Tooth, Alberta, or Twisted Finger, Saskatchewan, may mull over the name of Castro, or tell you it's the name of an oil, but mention Rocket Richard, and the faces light up in a knowing grin.

The Rocket is no stranger to Belleville. This is his third or fourth appearance here, twice as a player. He and Kenny Mosdell, late of the Habs, were here some years ago on a special function. He played in a Canadiens' intra-squad game in Memorial Arena on a night that "Turk" Barclay reached Cloud 17. The Turk was rushed into action as a goalie for one of the squads—and as fate would have it, the squad did NOT include the Rocket.

For twenty of the most exciting thrill and puck-filled minutes of Turk's career, he turned aside the blazing shots of the Rocket. Three or four times Richard whirled in close and let drive smoking blasts. Each time the Turk kicked them out. In fact he blanked the famous Canadiens' star for the entire period.

The Canadiens playing on Turk's "side" not only "ribbed" the Rocket for being blanked but they took up a collection of some $30 and presented it to the "Turk," who was still wondering whence came all the pucks.

So March 6th should be a big night for the kiddies, both crippled and those more fortunate. And there will be quite a hockey game to boot. The Police and Fire Department squads have been playing all season in the City Departmental Hockey League—and the word is, there is no love lost between the squads. They play for keeps.

Rivalry is keener this year, the report goes. Arrangements for the game are now under way—and the tension is mounting. I am told that already Inspector Clare Hayes and Deputy Chief "Warpy" O'Brien look the other way when meeting on the street.

And there will be no picketing. Art Peever's "Gordie Howe Fan Club"; Pat O'Meara's "Rough Riders Rangers", and the George McGee-Jim Cook "Queen Elizabeth Putt-Putts" have declared a truce with the Jerry Mahoney-Mercier Freres Canadiens' Club.

New Rinks In Ladies Curling

TORONTO (CP)—Three new rinks and a runner-up from last year's competition will represent the four Ontario districts Feb. 13-15 when the 1962 Silver D ladies' curling championships get under way.

Winner of the competition will represent Ontario in Diamond D national championships in Regina Feb. 26-March 1.

Mrs. Peggy Wellings' rink from Terrace Bay, northwestern Ontario, runner-up in the bonspiel at Fort William last year, is back for another try at the championship.

Other rinks in the competition are led by Mrs. Edna Johnson, Sudbury; Mrs. G. Warren, Eganville and Mrs. H. S. Irwin, Toronto.

STAGG IN HOSPITAL

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP)—Amos Alonzo Stagg, 99, is in hospital for treatment of an inflamed knee. His condition is listed as fair. Stagg coached football for 70 years until 1960 after being named a member of the first all-America team as an end at Yale in 1889. He was selected for the United States Football Hall of Fame both as a player and a coach.

Sports Body Forms Fund-Slicing Plans

Disagrees On Fitness

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP)—A panel of 27 men and two women learned Monday that an assignment to give away $5,000,000 isn't as easy as it sounds.

The National Council on Fitness and Amateur Sport held its inaugural meeting and didn't spend a cent. But it hopes to get around to the spending question before its session closes late today.

Initial discussion was devoted to setting the ground rules for slicing up the $5,000,000-a-year fund passed by Parliament last year for the development of fitness and sports programs across the land.

More policy-making decisions were to be tackled today, but council Chairman Ken Farmer of Montreal said he hopes the council also can make a start on advising the government where the money should be spent.

All but one of the 30 appointees named to the council last month turned up for the inaugural session. The absentee was Maurice (Rocket) Richard, former Montreal Canadiens hockey star who was unable to cancel a previously - arranged speaking tour.

The council already has received between 300 and 400 requests for financial aid. A spokesman said they involve to "a very large amount of money," but declined to give an estimate.

Many of the requests are from various sports leagues and the like but Farmer indicated at a press conference that this type of request will get little attention.

He said council members feel "we shouldn't use this money to displace any sporting effort now existing."

The aim was to expand opportunities for Canadians to take part in physical activity. Most of the activity now under way did not need added support.

Farmer said he hopes to see the plan enlarged beyond its present ability. "I think we're going to end up spending more than $5,000,000."

If the idea proved a success it could easily snowball across Canada with extra money coming from provincial grants and perhaps a larger appropriation by Parliament.

One of the council's main problems Monday was in defining its field of activity. It finally accepted a broad definition of amateur sport as "any athletic or other physical activity when engaged in solely for pleasure, recreation or fitness and not as a means of livelihood."

It stumbled, however, on a definition of fitness. Members could not agree on any of the suggestions and turned the matter over to a committee which will report its decision today.

Other committees studied problems such as setting the standard for sports projects which would qualify for grants, bursaries and scholarships, research, leadership training programs and publicity.

Vezina Worth That Much

Plante Could Win $4,000

By BEN OLAN

NEW YORK (AP)—Jacques Plante, the masked goalie of Montreal Canadiens, says winning the Vezina Trophy this season will be worth $4,000 to him.

The money and the chance "to prove myself" now that Doug Harvey no longer is on the Canadiens' defence are the big incentives behind his fine comeback in the National Hockey League.

"After all these years, I have a real chance to prove myself," he said. "When we had that great defence with Doug Harvey, a lot of fans and writers said anybody could play goal for the Canadiens and still finish with the best record. Now that Harvey is gone and the defence is not what it used to be, what can they say?"

Harvey, the bulwark of the defence that led Montreal to five consecutive Stanley Cup championships, took over as player-coach of the New York Rangers last May.

CUT IN SALARY

"Last summer, the club officials called me into the office and told me I would have to play good goal or they would get somebody to take my place," Plante revealed. "I got a cut in salary, but they gave me a big incentive. If I win the Vezina Trophy again this year, I get a bonus of $3,000 from the Canadiens and $1,000 from the league."

Plante, recently voted the circuit's all-star goalie for the first half of the 1961-62 season, holds a commanding lead in the Vezina Trophy competition. The award is given to the netminder who permits the fewest goals. Plante won the trophy a record five straight times, starting with the 1955-56 campaign.

However, last season, his eighth in the NHL, was a nightmare for the 33-year-old native of Mt. Carmel, Que. He suffered a knee injury and was shipped to the minors for three weeks.

"For a while, I thought my career was over," Plante said. "Even after I had an operation last spring, my knee gave me trouble. But I played a lot of tennis and golf and it finally got better."

WEARS FACE MASK

Plante is the only major league netminder wearing the protective face mask. He started using it in regular competition two years ago.

"That's another point I have to prove," he said, determinedly. "When I was going bad, the talk was that I couldn't see so good with the mask, that I was a better goalie without it.

"But the truth is I'm a better goalie because of it. I'm not afraid of being hit in the eye with a puck. It gives me confidence to get out there and stop any shot, no matter how hard.

"It helps me sleep better at night, too, knowing that one hard shot in the wrong place is going to end my career."

No Reason To Switch Says Lebel

'Tourney Will Go As Scheduled'

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — World hockey officials say the final, official schedule of events for the world tournament here will be released by the first of next week.

"The tournament will go as scheduled," said Robert LeBel of Montreal, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, and Thayer Tutt of Colorado Springs, chairman of the organizing committee.

LeBel said Monday he would like the East German team to compete "but if they can't, we will go along with the tournament as planned."

The tournament is set for Colorado Springs and Denver, Colo., March 7-18. The East German team has been denied a travel permit from the Allied travel agency in West Berlin.

"We have read many stories where the Czechoslovakians and Russians are demanding a change of site," said LeBel and Tutt. "This is an impossibility, not only because it takes at least a year to organize an event like this, but also because there is no real reason to make the switch.

MUST MEET THEM

"We have written commitments from all the countries in doubt. We expect them to meet these commitments."

LeBel said he anticipated little change in the schedule and not too much opposition from Communist countries. Nineteen teams will compete if the East Germans obtain travel permits.

Meanwhile, the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association asked the Canadian government to protest officially the refusal to grant travel permits for the East Germans.

Jack Roxburgh of Simcoe, Ont., CAHA president, in a telegram to Prime Minister Diefenbaker requested the government to "take a lead in this vital matter." The ban is part of the counter-action taken by NATO countries for the erection by East Germany of the wall separating West and East Berlin.

Roxburgh said in Simcoe the ban "could ruin all international sports for years and years."

Sweeney Holds AHL Lead

NEW YORK (AP)—Till Sweeney of Springfield Indians scored six points last week and held his three-point lead over Buffalo's Barry Cullen in the American Hockey League scoring race.

Sweeney has 71 points on 26 goals and 45 assists, according to league statistics released today. Cullen, who also picked up six points for the Bisons last week, has 68 points on 33 goals, tops in the league, and 35 assists.

Willie Marshall of Hershey Bears is third with 64, followed by Brial Kilrea of Springfield with 62, including a league-leading 49 assists. Next is Barry Cullen's brother, Brian with 57 points.

Marcel Paille of Springfield, now filling in for injured Gump Worsley with New York Rangers of the National League, is the leading goalie with an average yield of 2.67 goals a game.

AGREE ON BOUT

NEW YORK (AP) — Dewey Fragetta, boxing matchmaker, said Monday he had signed Wayne Bethea of New York for a Feb. 26-10-round match with Henry Cooper, British heavyweight champion, at Manchester, England.

Ingemar Starts Comeback!

GOTEBORG, Sweden (CP-AP) — Ingemar Johansson is putting the gloves back on and, if he can punch his way past his first barricade, has a three-part plan to gain another crack at the world heavyweight title.

Friday night the former champ enters the ring for the first time since heavyweight king Floyd Patterson knocked him out in Miami, Fla., last March. His opponent for the 10-round heavyweight bout here is Joe Bygraves, former British champion.

If he beats Bygraves, Johansson's plans look like this:

1. Challenge Dick Richardson of Wales for the European title.
2. Fight Sonny Liston in an outdoor bout in Europe.
3. Take another crack at the world title.

"I'm still young," the 29-year-old Ingo said Monday, "and I've got another five years of boxing in me. I think I am still good enough to win back the world title if I get a chance."

He added: "I went on a diet. Previously, I used to eat anything and everything at anytime. Now I don't and I feel fitter and harder." He said he weighs 198.

Hull, Mikita Climb Scoring Ladder

MONTREAL (CP)—A couple of young Chicago hot shots appear ready to put in a challenge for the National Hockey League scoring crown.

Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita, key men in the Black Hawks forward march of recent weeks, are still 10 points off the pace of Andy Bathgate of New York Rangers and seven behind runner-up Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wings. But they've been gaining steadily.

Hull, a 23-year-old left winger who became the second youngest player in league history to win the scoring title in 1959-60, came up with eight points—five of them goals—last week. Mikita, 21, had three goals and three assists.

The pair now is tied for third spot at 53 points, official league statistics released today show.

Bathgate, the leader since almost the beginning of the season lost another point to Howe last week. He scored one goal and assisted on three others for 63 points while Howe scored once and also drew four assists for 60.

Hull took over from Montreal's Claude Provost as the league's top goal-getter with 30, while Bathgate's 44 assists still are tops among the playmakers.

Provost scored his 28th and 29th goals and collected one assist to tie Frank Mahovlich of Toronto Maple Leafs for fifth position, each with 51 points. Mahovlich got two goals, his 26th and 27th.

Norm Ullman of the Red Wings scored four goals and helped set up another and holds sole possession of seventh place with 48 points.

BAGS SEVEN POINTS

Alex Delvecchio of Detroit also had a big week—two goals and five assists—and tied Johnny Bucyk of Boston Bruins for eighth place at 46 points. Bucyk had one goal and one assist.

Jacques Plante of Montreal still holds a commanding lead over Toronto's Johnny Bower in the race for the Vezina Trophy, awarded to the goalie who plays the most games for the team that allows the fewest goals. Plante lowered his goals-against average four decimal points to 2.28 while Bower's mark went up to 2.54 from 2.53 a week ago.

Glenn Hall of Chicago has the third best mark—2.57—and also leads in shutouts with six.

Chicago continues as the most penalized club, with 608 minutes in penalties. Montreal is second with 549.

Montreal defenceman Lou Fontinato is the most penalized player with 141 minutes.

At the Belle

"La Dolce Vita" Has a cast of 800 uncluding Eleven International Stars.

So much has been written and said about the controversial aspects of Federico Fellini's "La Dolce Vita", playing Today and Wednesday at the Belle Theatre, that the prominent players starred in the cast have not been given early enough credit in print. In the cast of eight hundred, "La Dolce Vita" has eight International stars playing key roles that range from an unscrupulous newspaperman to a nymphomaniac heiress.

There's Marcello Mastroianni, who plays the newspaperman. An actor who never tries to be a star, he's now Italy's most sought-after leading man. His career reaches its zenith with his portrayal of the weak, vaguely conscience - stricken gossip writer who moves among the rich pleasure seekers and bogus intellectuals representing the decadent society dissected in "La Dolce Vita".

There's that well-known international beauty, Anita Ekberg. Fellini wanted one of those glamorous, traffic-stopping movie dolls who are forever flitting in and out of Rome with a pack of shoving, scrambling shutter-clickers at their heels. In Miss Ekberg, Fellini got the real live article.

The rich nymphomaniac is played by Anouk Aimee, remembered best by Canadian audiences for her fine performance in the British film, "The Golden Salamander". In "La Dolce Vita" she gives a shocking bitter-sweet portrayal of an idle rich woman frantically searching for happiness in the fleshpots of Rome's cafe society.

Another French actress, Yvonne Furneaux, has the important role of Emma, the volatile, possessive mistress of the journalist. Slim, dark and green-eyed, Yvonne is always included in lists of the ten most beautiful actresses in Europe. She has a long list of film credits, including the role Jennie in Sir Laurence Olivier's production of "The Beggar's Opera".

"La Dolce Vita", is presented twice daily, at 2.00 p.m. doors open at 1.30 and at 8.00 p.m. doors open at 7.00 p.m.

'Arsenic and Old Lace' By Originals Fine Show

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—There has been many a TV tale about sweet little old ladies with a penchant for homicide and all of them have seemed to be pale carbons of Abby and Martha Brewster, the spinster sisters with the secret, lethal recipe for elderberry wine.

And Monday night, courtesy of NBC, Joseph Kesselring's originals were back for 90 minutes. It was a fine, frolicsome TV adaptation of the long-running and classic Arsenic and Old Lace.

Aunts Abby and Martha sympathetically dispatched their 12th lonely old "friend" and stashed him in the living room window box as the merry tale of murder begins.

Boris Karloff was back in his original stage role of the murdering Brewster brother who, owing to unfortunate plastic surgery, resembled Boris Karloff.

Dorothy Stickney and Mildred Natwick were delightful as the Brewster sisters, who could never tell fibs but just couldn't resist helping the old and lonely to their reward.

Even the producers of westerns seem weary of the same old means of transportation: The horse. NBC's Outlaws will have an episode March 1 in which the bank robbers make their get-away in a turn-of-the-century automobile called a Holtzman.

Recommended tonight: Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic Orchestra in Japan, CBS, 7:30-8:30 EST: Henry Fonda and the Family, CBS, 8:30-9:30—Variety special with Dick Van Dyke and Cara Williams. 5

AT THE PARK — Spencer Tracy and Frank Sinatra are starred in the Mervyn LeRoy-Fred Kohlmar production "The Devil at 4 O'Clock", now showing at the Park Theatre, as a South Pacific Island priest and a convict, respectively. The Columbia picture is in Eastman Color. Feature times 7.25 p.m. and 9.45 p.m.

Pepsi's Dump Napanee

NAPANEE—The Belleville Pepsi's scored two unanswered goals in each of the last two periods here last night to dump the Napanee Comets 7-3 in Lakeshore Intermediate hockey league action.

Meanwhile in Uxbridge, the Trenton RCAF Globetrotters shaded the Uxbridge Black Hawks 5-4 in overtime.

Belleville's win here last night was number 18 in 20 starts and leaves the Pepsi's resting in the loop's top position. Uxbridge visits the Pepsi's on Wednesday night.

The Pepsi's took an early 2-0 lead last night when Jones scored at 1.23 of the first period and Hull added another less than two minutes later.

Napanee roared back with all three of their goals in a matter of one minute and 42 seconds near the mid-way mark in the period. Tar Brady hooked up with Pat Gilmour to snap Don Barclay's shutout at 9.48. Don Bellringer took George Jacklin's pass to tie it 2-2 at 10.44 and at 11.30 Frank Griffin put the Comets in front 3-2 with Hugh Brennan assisting.

Baker evened the score for Belleville near the end of the period and at 3.58 of the middle heat Goyer scored what proved to be the winning goal on a solo effort.

Crawford upped the winners' lead to 5-3 at 5.45 to close the scoring for the period.

In the third, Crawford bagged another at 4.17 and Botly fired his third goal of the year at 11.03 to make it 7-3..

The game was a fast, clean affair with only six minor penalties being handed out in all. Each club picked up one in the second heat and two in the third but none figured in the scoring.

Floyd Crawford set a hot scoring pace for the winners, scoring two goals and earning three assists. Gary Goyer had one goal and two helpers with Dave Jones getting one and one. Stripper Gypsy Rose Lee Portrayed by Natalie Wood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The sight of Natalie Wood doing a striptease is like seeing Helen Hayes do the twist.

The view is fascinating but you're not so sure she should be doing what she's doing.

That was my reaction to watching Miss Wood prepare for her role as stripper Gypsy Rose Lee. The young actress is playing the title role in Gypsy.

Miss Wood does a good job, as always. Although she is perhaps the screen's most effective symbol of purity since Lillian Gish, she does a mean strip.

She was rehearsing the Let Me Entertain You number, a montage which shows her developing from a shy, hesitant peeler to the strutting, insinuating Gypsy.

She wore a skin-tight leotard. "In the picture I'll end up in a bikini-like outfit," she explained. Hollywood's censors don't permit nudity.

Nor are bumps and grinds permitted on the screen. But that doesn't inhibit Natalie.

"From all I can gather, Gypsy Rose Lee didn't do the bump-and-grind kind of strip. Hers was a more tongue-in-cheek kind of a routine. She would even recite nursery rhymes during her act"

Natalie did some research at a strip joint on Sunset Strip. She refuted my suggestion that she was small to portray a stripper.

"I admit I'm not a big girl," said the actress. "But when I saw some of the strippers walking out after the show I was surprised to see that most of them were smaller than I am.'

Gypsy is the saga of how the mother of Gypsy Rose Lee and June Havoc pushed her daughters to stardom by any means within her grasp. Rosalind Russell plays Ethel Merman's role as the rapacious Rose, whose portrayal may set motherhood back a decade or two.

Buckaroos Borrow Roy Edwards

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Roy Edwards will be in goal for Portland Buckaroos when they meet Los Angeles in a Western Hockey League game here Wednesday night.

He is being sent on loan from Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League to replace Don Head, who suffered a torn hip muscle in Sunday night's game.

Edwards, 24, has played this season with Pittsburgh Hornets in the AHL and Sault Ste. Marie Thunderbirds in the Eastern Professional League.

When Baby Needs Shoes, Baby Gets 'Em

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP) — "Baby needs a new pair of shoes" is a mournful cry at Santa Anita Park these days—and from the owners, not the bettors.

The reason: The cost of shoes for thoroughbreds has gone up.

It used to cost $17 to shoe a race horse. On Jan. 1 the Journeymen Horseshoers Union, Local 12, raised the price to $18.

Nothing was said at the time. But now, amid the wear and tear of the Santa Anita season, the owners are beginning to grumble.

Ernie Mason, Los Angeles Herald - Examiner racing writer, declared Monday:

"Around the backstretch there are definite indications that a battle royal may erupt between horse owners and the horseshoers."

The union said the raise was made in a legal manner. They said it was occassioned by economic necessity.

The owners were willing to talk about the issue but reticent to have their names used. Some said they didn't like the fact that the prices were raised without any negotiations with the owners. Another claimed the shoers had a monopoly.

But none was anxious to get the farriers mad at them. When baby needs a new pair of shoes—and baby was to run tomorrow—baby gets 'em.

Come, Come Mr. Bragg, Sour Grapes?

NEW YORK (AP)—Olympic champion Don Bragg, acknowledging he's "a little jealous," said Monday he is unimpressed by John Uelses' record 16 foot, ¾ inch pole vault.

"It's not a great jump," the former record holder from Penns Grove, N.J., added. "All he (Uelses) did was perfect something in a new field with a new gimmick—the glass fibre pole."

Bragg, recently released from the army and looking for a job, said he used an aluminum pole in winning the 1960 Olympic crown and in setting the previous world record of 15 feet 9½ inches.

This took speed, strength and co-ordination, he added, while with the glass fibre pole "only co-ordination counts—the pole does all the work."

He contended that if Bob Richadds and Bob Gutowski were competing today with the new pole, they would be hitting 16 feet, 6 inches.

Bragg said the glass pole should be banned.

Uelses, the Marine corporal who soared 16 feet, ¼ inch in New York's Millrose Games and then went to 16¾ at Boston Saturday night, was not disturbed by Bragg's comments.

"That's progress," the corporal said. "Let him come out of retirement and try it."

Darts League Results

In other games, Hobby Shop edged the Wildcats 6-5, Skyliners downed Dover's 9-2, Lucky Lews topped Wilbur's Jets 7-4, Wilf's City Service copped a 6-5 decision over LaPalms, Northern Electric tripped the Legion 9-2 and Corby Specials took a 7-4 win over OPP No. 2.

Change Ski Title

'A Tourney By Any Name'

CHAMONIX, France (CP-AP)—The International Ski Federation has come up with an unofficial world championship to replace the world ski championship, which appears doomed by political entanglements.

The federation said the replacement competition will be called the World Games.

"We'll have the same races, the same courses, the same schedule," an official said Monday. "Just the label will be changed."

There was still a technical possibility that the world championship could go on, but nobody believed it likely.

The federation ruled in Bern Sunday night that the world championships could be held only if East German team-members were granted visas by Tuesday noon. The three-power allied travel office in West Berlin said flatly no change of policy was in sight. That meant no visas for the East Germans.

The vanguard of 300 skiers from some 30 countries including Canada began arriving in Chamonix Monday.

The Czechoslovakian team has left here but the Bern decision was not involved, officials said. The Czechs were called home because of their poor showing in preliminary meets, they said.

Trenton Wilsons Crawfords Win Cage Battles

Trenton Wilsons took a 61-53 win over the Belleville Lightfoots and Belleville Crawfords thumped Northern Electric 92-46 in a Bay of Quinte Basketball League double-header at Moira Secondary School last night.

The Wilsons and Crawford Metals tightened their grips on the six-team league's first and second positions with the victories.

Crawfords had an easy time of it in their win, leading by a 40-14 score at half time, as both Teddy Batchelor and Bert Faulkner came up with their top point productions of the season.

Batchelor paced all scorers with 40 points while Faulkner hit for 31. Don Skinner also reached double figures with 13.

Bob Smith, with 12, and Harry Green, with 11, were best for Northern Electric.

The other game was much closer. Lightfoots led 18-12 at the end of the first quarter, it was tied 30-30 at half time and the Wilsons pulled in front 46-44 by the end of the third.

Ernie Clarke paced the Trenton scorers with 15 points while Warren Whitley and Joe Theriault each collected 14.

Enthusiastic Students Mob Kennedy But Leftists Win

TOKYO (AP)—Thousands of of students at Tokyo's Waseda University gave Robert F. Kennedy a roaring, cheering welcome today, but shouting, jeering leftists broke up a speech by the U.S. attorney-general. It was the first hostility Kennedy has met on his visit to Japan.

It was estimated the hecklers totalled less than 100. U.S. Ambassador Edwin Reischauer said they were "a small group of hardcore Communists and I don't believe they were from Wadesa."

(Reuters said that the majority of the student audience turned on the leftists, pushing, carrying and fighting them out of the hall.)

Kennedy and his wife, Ethel, stood calmly on the university stage despite the pandemonium and left the auditorium building safely through a rear door.

"I think the vast majority of the students were friendly," the president's brother said later. "I'm just sorry we didn't get more of a chance to exchange ideas. I'd like to go back."

CROWDS CHEER

Students by the thousands swarmed about Kennedy's car as he drove into the university grounds to cheers of "Kennedy! Kennedy!" and cries of "Shake my hand."

The American visitor was literally carried up the steps of the building. Police and university security officials finally managed to get Kennedy inside.

The auditorium was packed with about 6,000 students. As Kennedy waited to begin his speech, a disturbance broke out in the front rows and several youths tried to climb on the stage. Small knots of strategically located young people set up cries of "Kennedy go home . . . Kennedy off the platform . . . Cuba . . . Okinawa . . ."

Most of the students kept quiet, and the attorney-general plunged into his speech, reviewing his brother's policies. When he said he would discuss the "responsibilities of living in a democratic nation," strong applause broke out, but jeering, shouting students in the rear of the hall drowned out the rest of his remarks.

JUMPS ON STAGE

A college cheerleader jumped to the stage and got the students to singing the university song. The leftists meanwhile collected in the back of the hall, and the Communist Internationale mingled with the school song.

The cheerleader then led the students in school cheers. From the back the hecklers continued jeering, heaped up wooden chairs and climbed on top of them, shouting, "go home . . . leave the platform . . . Cuba."

The Zengakuren leftist students' group said representatives from 30 of its chapters were at the university to ask questions of Kennedy and present petitions. The Zengakuren organization led the 1960 riots that resulted in cancellation of President Eisenhower's visit to Japan.

Should Not Put Pensioner on Auction Block

- - Crerar

OTTAWA (CP)—Senator Thomas Crerar said Monday some way should be found to "avoid putting the pensioner on the auction block" every time there is a federal election.

He made the statement in clarifying his position on old age pensions—a topic he dealt with in the Senate throne speech debate last Wednesday.

The 85-year-old Liberal senator from Manitoba said some newspaper headlines on a Canadian Press account of his speech created the erroneous impression that he is against old age pensions.

"I am not opposed to old age pensions for those who need them," he said Monday. "If it is the pensioned's only means of support, then $65 or even $75 is not enough."

Debate on a government resolution to increase the basic old age pension to $65 a month from $55 opened Monday in the Commons. The Liberals have outlined a plan whereby the pensioner would receive $75 monthly should the present opposition party be elected to power, $10 of this being on a contributory basis.

"I am opposed to paying pensions to those who do not need them," said Senator Crerar. "The millionaire and the pauper over 70 years of age can and do get them equally today."

Senator Crerar said he suggested in his speech that any increases could "wait a year or two until our government finances are in better shape." He said he is "wholly in favor" of a contributory scheme—advocated by the Liberal party.

FOXBORO

Rev. R. Reid Inducted Into Pastorate

FOXBORO—Members of Holloway, Marsh Hill, and Foxboro United Churches met Thursday evening in the United Church for the "Induction" of Rev. Robert O. Reid, B.A. B.D. of Coldlake, Alberta, who recently has accepted the call to the Foxboro pastoral charge.

The Rev. A. Poulter, Belleville, the Rev. C. W. Coleman, Holloway St., Belleville, and the Rev. N. Truax, Wellington, were in charge of the service.

Mr. Poulter opened with the hymn "Glory Be To God, The Father," following with Psalm 67 read in unison. The lesson taken from 1 Peter: 5-9 and St. John 21: 15-17 was chosen and read by Mr. Truax. Mr. Coleman led in prayer. Foxboro choir sang a lovely anthem, "My Soul Longeth," with Mrs. Ferne Spencer at the organ.

Mr. Poulter spoke briefly, welcoming each one to this service, especially the ministers who had put forth a special effort to make this a memorable occasion.

CHARGE TO THE MINISTER

"O Spirit of the Living God" was sung. Mr. Truax gave the charge, first the minister, then to the congregation taking his text from Mathew 9: 36. He spoke to the minister, comparing him as a shepherd and the congregation as his flock. To be able to help the needs of the people and to minister unto them as a full time worker, preacher, teacher and prophet called by God and to be a leader in their midst. He said, he did not expect the minister to be perfect, no one is perfect, but to do his best and thus reflect himself to others in his ministry and life at all times.

The charge to the congratulations was to be faithful to the minister by giving him full cooperation in labor and devotion. He cannot labor alone and accomplish much. All must have faith and give much time in prayer towards the work of the church.

In working with him all are honoring Christ in the Church. Mr. Truax closed with prayer

Mr. Coleman, president of Presbytery, called on the Rev. Reid and Mr. Earl Dafoe to come to the front where Mr. Dafoe, on behalf of the pastoral charge, accepted Mr. Reid as minister.

Mr. Reid received his vows from Mr. Coleman, as minister of the Foxboro Pastoral Charge. Mr. Coleman taking Mr. Reid by the hand accompanied him to the pulpit where he closed the service with hymn "Jesus Shall Reign Where'er the Sun", and the benediction.

A receiving line was formed at the front of the church where Mr. Earl Dafoe and Mr. Allyn Finkle introduced Mr. and Mrs. Reid to the members present.

A social hour was spent in the Sunday School parlors.

Quebec Doctor, Wife Arrested In Rochester

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—A Quebec physician and his wife were arrested here Monday after authorities found $4,500 in counterfeit Canadians bills in their automobile, police said.

Both were charged with passing a foreign counterfeit obligation and with conspiracy to possess and pass counterfeit notes.

ON GUARD IN ALGIERS — French soldiers and an armored car move into position at an intersection in the heart of Algiers yesterday to counter a threat of an uprising by the underground secret army organization. Security forces throughout Algeria and France were alerted in advance of President de Gaulle's radio and television address dealing with progress toward ending the seven-year rebellion in the North African territory. One-Way Bilingualism In Canada Severely Attacked

OTTAWA (CP) — A noted French - Canadian scholar says national unity may face tragedy unless "drastic steps" are taken to overcome the problem of bilingualism.

Dr. Seraphin Marion attacks "the one - way bilingualism that still prevails in Canada."

He describes this as the situation in which French-speaking Canadians are forced to learn English, but few English-speaking Canadians learn French.

"National unity, or rather unity between the two nations —English-Canadian and French-Canadian — living side by side in this country is encountering major obstacles," he says in a study prepared for the Canadian Conference on Education.

"And unless all concerned react vigorously, the situation may soon become difficult, perhaps tragic.

TERMS IT 'CRISIS'

"In order to remedy the crisis, it is necessary to take drastus of the University of Ottawa, too long left open."

Dr. Marion, professor emeritus of the University of Ottawa, prepared the study on Innovations in Second - Language Teaching" for discussion at the education conference meeting in Montreal next March 4-8.

The study, printed in both English and French in a 96-page booklet, also charges [illegible] English Canada has "a double standard" in the teaching of second languages.

It says that in most provinces, French - speaking pupils have to start learning English at the Grade I level — in Ontario in the third year. But English - speaking students don't start to learn French until the fourth, fifth, sixth or even the seventh year of school.

Dr. Marion says one - way bilingualism should be replaced "with a true bilingualism where Canada's English and French elite will speak and write the country's two official languages with some facility."

Warsaw Bows To Marmora

MARMORA (Special) —Marmora - Havelock turned back Warsaw by a score of 8-6 before a small crowd here last night in an OHA Northumberland - Hastings Intermedite 'C' league game.

The winners were ahead all the way. They led 4-2 after one period and 7-4 at the end of the second before Warsaw outscored them 2-1 in the final 20 minutes.

Harold Maloney and Chase sparked the Marmora - Havelock scorers, each with a three-goal "hat-trick." Bill Jones and McArthur had the other goals.

Rowe topped the Warsaw crew with three goals while singletons were divided among Keating, Wasson and Nelson.

The game was cleanly played with only five minor penalties, three to the winners and two to Warsaw.

Bob Turley Looks for Good Season

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—Hard-throwing Bob Turley, a bullet without powder after he developed bone chips in his elbow during the 1961 baseball campaign, has passed the first test on the road back toward the form that made him a 21-game winner for New York Yankees.

Turley, 31 - year-old righthander who won 21 in 1958, took his first workout as the advance guard of the world champions opened their training camp here Monday. He pitched for 15 minutes and then reported:

"It felt very good . . . I believe I'm going to be all right. Right now I could pitch a few exhibition innings."

Turley could be a big asset to the Yankees if he can avoid the arm trouble that began plaguing him during the 1960 season. In 1958 he was 21-7 and won two games in the world series, including the clincher, as the Yankees beat Milwaukee Braves.

He was 17-14 over the following two seasons before becoming ineffective last season, appearing in only 15 games (72 innings) for a 3-5 record.

Picton Seniors Whip Moira, Juniors Win

By JOE CLAPP

Moira Senior went down to defeat last night at the hands of the Picton Seniors by a score of 62-48. Moira Juniors came up with the only win by downing their Picton counterparts 48-39. Picton Bantams defeated Moira Bantams 34-20. The games were played at the Picton High School.

SENIOR GAME

Picton Seniors wasted no time in getting under way. They opened up an early lead and held it all the way. At the end of the quarter Picton led 19-8. Picton added 14 points in the second quarter while the Moira Trojans added ten, increasing the margin to 15 points. Picton led 33-18 at the end of the half.

Moira added 11 points in the third quarter but the fast-flying Prince Edward squad hit for 13 to bring the score to 46-29 at the end of the period. Moira came up with their best effort in the final eight minutes. The Trojans added 19 points, but Picton was not to be denied. They ran up 16 points to clinch the win.

Commission Reinstates Ed. Quinn

MONTREAL (CP)—The Montreal Athletic Commission reinstated Eddie Quinn as a wrestling promoter Monday. His licence had been suspended last December for undisclosed irregularities.

The commission did not rule on Quinn's annulled boxing promoter's licence, nor did Quinn ask that it be re-issued.

Commission secretary Gerry Gosselin said the commission laid down conditions "concerning the past and we understand he has made certain changes within his organization to fulfil these conditions."

The commission suspended Quinn's boxing licence Dec. 5 when he called off a scheduled 10-round fight between Archie Moore and Bob Cleroux because of what he described as "a sick box office."

Scientists Hard to Convince

We were sitting in the lounge of the Anglers' Club of New York, having an after-lunch smoke and relaxing before once again exposing ourselves to the hurly burly of downtown Manhattan.

This was in the old quarters of the Anglers' Club when the club rooms occupied part of a building built on the site of Captain Kidd's earlier residence. The solunar tables were comparatively new. Each year I learned more about them (and this still is true) but I wanted specific information. My friend was, and still is, one of the world's foremost astronomers and scientists.

At that time I was anxious to have scientific recognition. Approval on the part of professional biologists, both in universities and in the field, would, I figured, add body and stature to the solunar tables and the solunar theory on which these tables are based.

But such approval was not forthcoming. Appeals to key men here and there about the country were met with unanimous rebuffs, my own alma mater not excepted. I wondered why.

RESENTMENT

"That's easy," said my friend. "Not very many scientists (and this is true not only of biologists, but straight across the board) take kindly to the idea of a layman stepping into their chosen field and telling them something they do not know. The natural reaction, I suppose, is to resent such intrusion. Best thing is to go your merry way and forget about them."

"At the present time," he continued, "There is all too little of the information you want and need available. Pending such time as it may be available, blaze your own trail. Don't be discouraged by anybody, regardless of how many impressive initials he may wear after his name. Instead, record your observations. Make a graph of them. At first you may get a rather fuzzy line. Eventually, however, you will find that the picture will crystallize and clarify itself. And don't worry about the Ph.Ds; the woods are full of them, too full."

Time went on and my friend did dig up for me much valuable information. With it I was able to improve my formula and it opened the door to new lines of experiment and observation. Gradually the solunar tables emerged from the theoretical stage to that of proven practicality.

The biologists about the country reacted variously. Strangely enough, among the first to accept the idea were the ornithologists, the bird men. They learned that the solunar tables actually did help them greatly in their field work. Many others, notably the ichthyologists, the fish men, declined absolutely to find any virtue in the work that I was doing. A few set about to put me in my place.

CARE AND INTEREST

Gradually these papers began to come in. As might be expected, I read them with care and interest. Some of the conclusions reached as a result of the experiments cited at first left me somewhat baffled. I reread the papers to see if I could find out why.

In every case the answer was easy to find; if those biologists had had the forethought to consult some good, practical fishermen before setting up the general plan of their experiments — men who had learned much about fish behavior the hard way, through years of observation — their conclusions no doubt would have been altered considerably.

For example, two gentlemen in Iowa set out to learn something of fish activity by setting gill nets in a lake. These nets were lifted at two-hour intervals and the experiment lasted for two or three years. Their discoveries were shattering in their impact. They found that fish were quite active at dawn and dusk. But no correlation could be detected between the periods of activity (as shown by gill-net catches) and barometric changes, wind, sky or cloud conditions, or solunar periods. Now I ask you.

There was one gentleman who conducted an experiment in trout migration, lasting from early spring until late fall. In a good trout stream fishways and traps were constructed. Daily counts of trapped trout were taken.

Eventually the results were published and the conclusions were quite contrary to what might be expected. Unfortunately, he neglected to take into account the fact that his traps were more or less methodically raided by the residents of the area who lived royally on trout that summer.

Any practical fisherman knows that noise and disturbance have their effect on fish behavior. Yet the University of Michigan, in an experiment that lasted, I believe, two full summers, proved conclusively that noise and motor disturbance does not alarm fish or have any effect on the quality of the fishing.

One inescapable conclusion that most anyone will reach in looking over these scientific papers is this — a dedicated biologist manages to prove just about what he wants to prove if you give him time and plenty of statistics.

Even I, in no sense a trained biologist, can prove conclusively that just about everything that we know about fish activity is as wrong as it can be. All I need is time and the proper equipment, together with the help of strong-backed boys to do the incidental work.

The above is not meant to be in any sense derogatory. I honestly believe that these men who make these experiments are entirely honest and sincere. The fact remains, however, that some practical assistance from layman fishermen would be of great value. As it is with all too many of the manufacturers of outdoor equipment, there are too many designers and engineers but no practical field men; too many scientists and not enough seasoned anglers. In short, too many chiefs and not enough Indians.

Prepared to Let Kenya Student Attend College

OTTAWA (CP) — The immigration department has made arrangements to allow a Kenya high school student to attend a Canadian college but the student has made no reply to the offer, a department spokesman said today.

The disclosure follows a report Monday that Bernard Ndari, 18, was denied a visa to attend Regiopolis College, a resident high school at Kingston, Ont.

The department spokesman said that although a visa was denied on the grounds that study permits are granted only to prospective students at degree-granting institutions, the department had offered to allow Ndari to come to Canada several months before the beginning of the 1962-63 academic year to take special courses in preparation for college entrance.

No reply has been made to the offer so far.

Arrangements to have the student come to Canada were initiated by Kingston area residents who contributed money to finance his stay. One area farmer had contributed $1,000 to the fund.

The money was returned after a delegation from the Jesuit secondary school went to Montreal to meet an aircraft on which they expected Ndari would be arriving. They later discovered no visa was allowed for high school purposes.

The department said today their offer to let the youth enter the country still holds good provided he gains admittance to a degree-granting institution, has financial support while in this country and is able to pass the medical examination for university entry.

what decision had been taken or whether it concerned a reported tentative Algerian settlement. Diplomatic sources have reported in recent days that the French and Rebels in secret talks have reached agreement in principle on Algerian peace and independence.

Terrorists killed four Moslems and four Europeans in Algeria today. European gunmen in a passing car wounded Jean Oudinot, director-general of the government radio-television network in Algeria, and killed his chauffeur. Also among the dead was a high school student, shot by a Moslem.

Employees at the government's heavily fortified administrative headquarters at Rocher Noir, outside Algiers, refused to take their commuter train to work. Secret army terrorists attacked the train Monday, wounding seven persons.

Employees in the government administrative branch in the capital staged a two-hour strike, demanding more security against the secret army.

allegations against former town clerk L. J. Ferrie, though some of the clerk's actions were "arbitrary, dictatorial, ill - advised . . ."

The judge found no evidence to support suggestions Mr. Book or anyone else received thousands of dollars in connection with building permits.

And he concluded that Robert Walton had committed a wilful misrepresentation in testifying that Mr. Book had sought $200 to prevent closure of Mr. Walton's theatre.

While Mr. Walton seemed interested in bringing about improvements in the town, Judge Shea said, "It was unfortunate that because of his bitterness and desire for vengeance, he considered it necessary to give evidence that could not be accepted and was not reliable."

The judge found no irregularities in the closing of the theatre, which he found was in bad condition.

RECOMMENDS ACTION

The judge made no recommendation for action against any person named in the report, but made three general recommendations for action to deal with similar situations:

That a bylaw enforcement officer with full powers of investigation and, if necessary, powers to prosecute, be appointed in every municipality;

That the Municipal Act be amended to clarify procedures to be followed in similar inquiries;

And that a simplified handbook be prepared by the province setting out privileges and duties of municipal officers.

Municipal Affairs Minister Cass said the recommendations "sound very reasonable" and promised government action along the lines suggested.

Mayor Griggs said a special council meeting will be held to consider the report.

Mr. Book said he "wasn't surprised" by the report. Mr. Ferrie declined comment.

Macmillan Forced to Prove His Right of Leadership

By DOUG MARSHALL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A surge of criticism has forced Prime Minister Macmillan into the position of a greying wolf forced to prove that he still has what it takes to lead a worried pack.

With his 68th birthday coming up this Saturday, the "unflappable" prime minister finds himself under fire from within his own ranks.

The extent of the revolt is hard to determine. The traditional tendency of the Conservative party to rally behind its leader in times of stress will work strongly in Macmillan's favor.

Nevertheless it can be said without reserve that there is a distinct uneasiness, within the party. The present restiveness is more pronounced than at any time during Macmillan's five years of office and it does not reflect only the pique of a few scatteded crackpots.

CRISIS OF CONFIDENCE

Two pillars of the Conservative Establishment, the Sunday Times and the Daily Telegraph, openly discuss the "crisis of confidence" in the party that has broadly dominated British politics since the First World War.

A common theme of complaint is that Macmillan's leadership has lacked bite. In two speeches last week, he gave the impression of tiredness and inertia.

Discussing Macmillan's address to Oxford University Conservatives last Friday, Peregrine Worsthorne, a senior commentator of the Sunday Telegraph, writes that the prime minister was a "shadow of his former self, seeming to lack all authority and conviction."

In the five years since he took over from Sir Anthony Eden, with the ruins of the Suez policy around him, Macmillan has fashioned the successful image of a man who refuses to get into a flap, no matter how things are going.

LIMITED TECHNIQUE

His unruffled demeanor has seemed to flow from an inner calm, a settled political philosophy. Today it looks as though "unflappability," as a technique of government in troubled times, has only a limited utility.

What Macmillan's supporters are looking for is the reassurance of some clearly - defined objective. They are worried by many things, perhaps first of all by Britain's diminished place in the world and by the uncertainty caused by the government's groping toward a new intimacy with Europe.

With the deadline for the next election still more than two years off, Macmillan has plenty of time to reassert his old authority. But the rumbling of discontent will grow ever louder if he continues to reply exclusively on the passive, you-can't-rattle-me approach.

Seventeen Inches Snow Dumped On Prairies

REGINA (CP) — Snowplows and other snow - clearing utensils made their appearance Monday as Prairie residents started to dig through up to 17 inches of snow dumped on the ground during a weekend blizzard.

Department of highways officials said it would take a week to make all roads in the north-central Saskatchewan passable.

Hundreds of cars remained abandoned in road-side ditches in the area Monday. On Highway 27 east of Aberdeen, Sask., where a Saskatchewan Transportation Company bus with 33 persons aboard was stranded for 17 hours overnight Saturday, cars were found abandoned in the middle of the road. Two snowplows later rescued the bus.

On Monday temperatures dropped to about 20 below in most Manitoba centres.

The weatherman said the western Prairies were expected to return to above-normal temperatures Wednesday.

The blizzard struck hardest in the Saskatoon area, where it was described as the worst in seven years, causing drifts up to eight feet high.

Edmonton got 9½ inches of snow, Saskatoon 13 inches and Winnipeg 5.2. The heaviest fall, 17 inches, was recorded at Whitecourt, Alta., 100 miles northwest of Edmonton.

Virus Beaten By New Drug

NEW YORK (AP) — A virus that erodes the window glass of the eye has been beaten by a new drug treatment that holds promise against other virus infections, a doctor said Monday.

The virus is herpes simplex—the same villain that causes cold sores. It is responsible for most operations on the cornea of the eye, Dr. Herbert E. Kaufman, University of Florida ophthamologist, told a press conference.

The drug is 5-iodo-2-deo-xyuridine, or IDU for short. Dr. Kaufman and his co-workers applied it in drops to infected eyes and in most cases got remarkable results in a day or so, healing in three days.

In a first group of 46 cases since treatment was begun two months ago, there have been dramatic results, Dr. Kaufman said.

Rosy Euphoria of Queen's Reign Evaporated at Suez

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) — Ten years ago today King George VI died at Sandringham, and in a hotel room overlooking the lonely hills of Africa a slender, serious young woman became Elizabeth II, sixth reigning queen of England.

She was 25, the same age as Queen Elizabeth I when she was crowned in 1559. Everywhere there was talk of a "new Elizabethan age."

Britain, gradually writhing out of the iron grip of post-war austerity, was a drab, dispiriting place in 1952.

Ration - books were still necessary at the grocery store. There were shortages and power cuts. Britain's stature as a world power had shrunk, as had her empire.

At home the country sometimes seemed to be run by brusque bureaucrats.

Now, the question went, why shouldn't Elizabeth II lead Britain back to the panache of the first Elizabethan age?

It seemed almost too good an omen when, on the morning of Elizabeth's coronation, June 2, 1953, the world learned that two British explorers had conquered Mount Everest.

REALM DWINDLES

The rosy euphoria did not last. It finally evaporated with the Suez invasion of 1956, when the limitations of Britain's imperial authority were posed

Today the realm over which Elizabeth's father reigned as emperor has dwindled into a commonwealth of assorted independent states. Yet the monarchy has never been healthier

It has not only come to terms with the modern world — it has enhanced it. The Royal Family, commetnators agree, has made contact with ordinary life without degenerating into camaraderie.

This balance between pomp and modern circumstance is due to the hand of the Queen, whose dedicated personality wields an influence one would not have suspected from the rather passive figude who assumed the crown 10 years ago.

Her decisive quality emerged vividly at the time of her Ghana tour last November, when it was believed she insisted on doing whatever her ministers might advise, saying "if I have not courage, what am I?"

Woman Finds She Cannot Hog Phone Line

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — A rural Stockton woman, Mrs. Virginia Irene Plumb, 44, Monday was found guilty of attempting to hog a telephone line during an emergency last July.

Mrs. Plumb was charged with refusing to relinquish her party line to Mrs. Ora Smith, who was attempting to summon aid for her baby, whom she believed critically ill.

The defence contended that no real emergency existed since the baby was dead at the time of Mrs. Smith's attempted call. The prosecution held Mrs. Plumb should be judged guilty of an attempt to commit the crime.

Judge William Dozier set sentencing for Feb. 20.

MEETS PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON (AP) — Premier Cyrille Adoula of The Congo conferred Monday with President Kennedy on Congolese problems and said later he is confident "unity, peace and security" are coming to his troubled land.

Justice Grants Another Stay Of Execution

TORONTO (CP) — Arthur James Kendall, 51, sentenced to be hanged on St. Valentine's Day, Monday received a stay of execution to April 17.

Kendall was convicted Oct. 27 of the murder of his wife Helen after three of his children broke a silence of nine years and told of seeing him drag the body of Mrs. Kendall from their cottage in Bruce County in August, 1952.

The women's body was never found.

Kendall originally was sentenced to be hanged Jan. 23 but a stay was granted early in January by Mr. Justice W. D. Parker in connection with an appeal later that month.

APPEAL DISMISSED

An appeal court unanimously dismissed the appeal Jan. 23 and his execution was set for Feb. 14.

The date was set back again Monday when Acting Chief Justice R. E. Laidlaw granted another stay to permit an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

At the trial last fall the three children, who said they feigned sleep at the time of their mother's disappearance, told of seeing a blood-stained knife on the table of the cottage and hearing Mrs. Kendall say: "Please, Art, don't."

Their father then dragged the woman down the road, they said.

When the appeal Jan. 23 was dismissed the court returned its decision without calling on W. C. Bowman director of public prosecutions, for his arguments supporting the conviction.

Charles Dubin, counsel for Kendall, argued then that Mr. Justice W. D. Parker, trial judge, had misdirected the jury during his charge by failing to instruct the jury that if it was in doubt between capital and non-capital murder it must give Kendall the benefit of the doubt and convict him of non-capital murder.

Govt. Denies Attempt Made On Nikita's Life

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet foreign office press spokesman today bdanded as a "provocative rumor without any foundation at all" a story current in Moscow that an attempt has been made to assassinate Premier Khrushchev.

"It is an invention and completely false," the spokesman added.

The rumors had been investigated by correspondents and diplomats for the last several days and no one could find any substance to them.

The first report, heard three days ago, was that Khrushchev had been shot in the lung during a public meeting in Minsk, in byeloRussia, in mid-January. But Jan. 26, some days after the rumored attack, Khrushchev spent three hours with a Burmese trade and diplomatic delegation in Kiev, in the Ukraine.

One of the Burmese said the premier was clearly in good health and good spirits.

Jan. 30 Mrs. Khrushchev told guests at a meeting commemorating the birthday of the late president Franklin D. Roosevelt that her husband was in Gagra in Caucasus.

RUMOR THAT STABBED

A rumor then sprang up during the weekend that he had been stabbed Saturday in Gagra.

Today, the foreign office said it was all false.

The spokesman declined to say where Khrushchev now is. Diplomats expressed belief that he still is in Gagra working on the agricultural report he will give to the Communist party central committee meeting in Moscow March 5.

The Italian Communist party newspaper L'Unita Monday published rumors of an attempt on Khrushchev's life but a spokesman for the newspaper later said he did not think the rumors were true.

Commenting on the story, the Rome newspaper Il Messagero said there was suspicion it was an invention, pure and simple."

But the paper added that if there was an assassination attempt, "events should confirm it befode long, with an announcement of a big political trial against the organizers of the coup."

ASKS MORE POWER

TORONTO (CP) — Etobicoke Township council decided Monday to ask the provincial government to give the larger suburban municipalities greater voting power on Metropolitan Toronto council. At present the city has 12 representatives on Metro council and the other 12 area municipalities each have one — although they vary in population from about 10,000 to about 250,000.

Windsor Jeweller Outhustled For City Contract by Junior Achievement Program Co.

By DOUG ENGLISH

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Three years ago, Windsor's city fathers decided to buy 100 desk sets to distribute as souvenirs to visiting VIPs.

In doing so they scrapped plans to buy a batch of souvenir cufflinks and letter-openers from a commercial jeweller.

It's understandable if the jeweller was miffed about losing the order, because he was outhustled by a pint-sized manufacturing company run by high school students.

The company was an enterprise of Junior Achievement, a program established here six years ago to teach teen-agers the facts of business life.

This year, 428 students are enrolled in the program. They operate 22 miniature companies and manufacture such things as Christmas centrepieces for tables, house number signs, meat - cutting boards and educational toys. These are sold to the public, usually on a house-to-house basis.

The Junior Achievers formed their embryo businesses in September. They elect their own officers, decide on a product to manufacture and raise capital by selling stock at 50 cents a share.

They buy their own raw materials, lease equipment and rent work space. From then on they're up to their necks in board meetings, cost - analysis programs, January slumps and many of the problems that face their adult counterparts.

Every May the companies close for the year. Usually the junior tycoons break even or show a small profit, but sometimes the youthful ventures flop. Last year three JA businesses went bankrupt.

Bankruptcy could probably be avoided if the businessmen, who act as advisers for each company, intervened. But both the advisers and the achievers agree that this kind of help, well - intentioned as it might be, would defeat the purpose of the program.

"Junior Achievement isn't a game," says Paul Dale, the youthful president of the Bank of Achievement. "You're treated like an adult and expected to act like one."

Since each of the miniature companies is sponsored by a parent Windsor firm, achievers develop value contacts with representatives of business and industry. Businessmen say they place a high value on a JA recommendation when interviewing job applicants.

The program has helped many youngsters decide on a future vocation. One boy who is involved in the Bank of Achievement has decided to make a career of banking when he finishes his education. And even those who don't intend to go into business life agree they gain maturity and valuable business knowledge through Junior Achievement.

It is estimated that 70,000 teen - agers belong to Junior Achievement in Canada and the United States. Programs similar to the Windsor one are operating in Vancouver, Calgary and Brantford, Ont.

Fate of Krishna Menon To Be Decided in Election

By RUKMINI DEVI
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP) —The political future of V. K. Krishna Menon, India's controversial and colorful defence minister, will be decided when India votes in a mid-February general election.

Menon, India's chief spokesman in the United Nations, is running for re-election to parliament in the North Bombay constituency. Pitted against him is Kripalani, a founder of the Democratic Praja (Peoples) Socialist Party and a no less controversial figure so far as domestic politics are concerned.

Newspapers have described the contest as the "battle of the two Ks."

Some 700,000 votes are at stake in the fray and the city is in the grip of an election fever.

Walls are plastered with such slogans as "throw out Menon," "Kripalani is opportunist No. 3," "Menon is our biggest liability" and "A vote for Kripalani is a vote for reaction."

Every day scores of meetings are held by the rival parties. On a single Sunday evening 90 rallies, big and small, were organized.

Prime Minister Nehru himself flew to Bombay to open the campaign for Menon. Some 500,000 people heard him pay tribute to the "integrity" and "dedicated efficiency" of the defence minister. Top leaders of the ruling Congress Party are visiting Bombay to enlist public support for Menon.

NOT AGAINST NEHRU

Kripalani, whose candidature was sponsored jointly by the Socialists and three other groups says he has nothing against Nehru.

"I am not fighting Nehru but his colleague Menon who gives an anti-Nehru, pro-Communist twist to the government's foreign policies in the course of their implementation," says Kripalani, a one-time party colleague of Nehru and the late Mohandas Gandhi.

Menon's supporters dismiss the charge that he is pro-Communist as "political slander" and assert that both in the UN and as defence minister he is only carrying out the cabinet's decisions.

"I cannot help if I always happen to be in the midst of controversies," Menon tells his audiences. "Controversy follows me and not the other way round. But I never run away from it."

Kripalani's opponents charge that the Socialist leader is backed by big business and Hindu religious extremists and say the "anti-Menon alliance is an unholy alliance."

The Bombay electorate is highly politically conscious and gave Menon a thumping majority in the 1957 general elections. But Kripalani's campaigners are confident they are bridging the gap.

Padre of Pubs Fills Pulpit At Parry Sound

TORONTO (CP)—Rev. Arthur Packman, the "padre of the pubs," has decided to fill the pulpit at Parry Sound until June, following minor surgery here.

Meanwhile a decision will be reached whether he will return to his beat around Toronto's bars or help train someone else for the job.

The United Church Observer says Mr. Packman is convinced the church should train ministers for the type of work he has been doing.

His 18 months among Toronto's drinkers is being studied by a committee under David Archibald, director of the Ontario Alcoholism Research Foundation.

Former Officer Given Year On Theft Charge

MEDICINE HAT (CP) — James Gehring, 28, a former member of the Medicine Hat police department, pleaded guilty Monday to the theft in Oct. 31, 1960, of a box containing $44,000 from the city police station. He was sentenced to one year.

Ex - constable Bill Plotsky, also charged with theft in connection with the same incident, is to appear Wednesday.

Mr. Justice W. J. C. Kirby told Gehring: "You have shaken the confidence which people are entitled to have in law enforcement."

Earlier, James G. Kid, Crown prosecutor, suggested to the court that as Gehring is a former policeman he should be sentenced to a federal penitentiary in Saskatchewan rather than to Lethbridge jail. He said there "may be people in Lethbridge who don't like policemen."

Mr. Justice Kirby ordered Gehring to serve his sentence at Fort Saskatchewan Jail, 20 miles northeast of Edmonton.

Ron May, manager of the Medicine Hat Co-op store, left a fishing tackle box containing $44,000 at the city police station for safe keeping in 1960.

Soviet Govt. Will Attempt To Divert Into Caspian Sea Rivers Emptying Elsewhere

By JOHN E. BIRD

OTTAWA (CP) — Dr. J. L. Kask, chairman of the Fisheries Research Board, says the Soviet government will attempt to divert into the Caspian Sea two rivers emptying into the Arctic Ocean.

The Russians consider the project practical, he said in an interview. It had been authorized by the government but engineering plans had not yet been completed.

Dr. Kask was in the Soviet Union from Sept. 9 to Oct. 15 last year as a research consultant for the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations. He attended a seminar for fishery administrators from the Indo-Pacific and Mediterranean areas.

The Caspian Sea is one of the Soviet Union's chief inland fisheries. While it conforms to the definition of a lake, it is called a sea because of its salt water content.

LEVEL FALLING

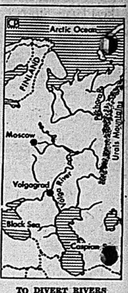
Dr. Kask said that while the Caspian has many rivers running into it, including the mighty Volga, and none running out, its level has been receding gradually during the last few decades. This has been caused mainly by a high rate of water evaporation and the damming and diversion of several rivers for generation of electric power.

The level of the Caspian was falling at a rate of two to three inches a year. This was seriously affecting the sea's fisheries resources, docks, waterfront buildings and shipping channels.

The Russians hoped to restore the Caspian's level by diverting into it the Pechora and another small river, both of which now empty into the Arctic Ocean. They felt the level could be returned to normal in five to 10 years.

"It also is speculated that the productivity of the sea would be increased with the influx of new, rich, fresh water.

"No one will hazard a guess as to what extent productivity might be improved but Russian scientific opinion seems to favor chances of considerable improvement."



TO DIVERT RIVERS

In a project aimed at preserving the fisheries resources of the Caspian Sea, Soviet scientists are said to be considering a plan to divert into the Caspian two rivers now emptying into the Arctic Ocean. One is the Pechora River, flowing north on the west side of the Urals Mountains. Map locates main Soviet rivers running into the Arctic and the Caspian Sea. (CP Newsmap).

56 DEAD, 78 INJURED IN SAAR BLAST

Secret Army Plans Rising Of Whole People

Intensifies Resistance Without Call to Revolt

ALGIERS (AP) — The secret army promised intensified resistance and stepped up mobilization against President de Gaulle today but said there will be no call for an immediate public uprising to block Algerian independence.

"You will see that we are not preparing a putsch, but a massive, progressive and methodical rising of the whole population," the rightist terror organization told its followers in its newspaper The Call of France.

"The resistance of patriots in Algeria will be intensified and progressive mobilization of all forces will be accelerated," the underground organization of Europeans said.

"The fight will continue until the elimination of traitor de Gaulle and until victory of the cause of French Algeria, the only one which can guarantee a lasting peace."

ORDER TO STOCKPILE

The statement said secret army field units are being slowly organized and stockpiling of food, medicine and gold by the European population has been ordered.

"In the second phase of the revolutionary war, all patriots will have a role to play," the instructions said. "Everybody will receive an order of mobilization and the necessary instructions."

The announcement appeared to confirm the general belief among French officials that the secret army is taking a long-range view of its campaign against de Gaulle's plans for an independence agreement with the Algerian Moslem rebels.

But French officials looked for no letup in spectacular hit-and-run action, such as attacks on military bases and government installations. Officials said plans for such a raid on the French air base at Telergma, in eastern Algeria, fell into their hands this week when they raided a secret army hideout.

ATTACKS CONTINUE

A series of attacks in Algiers before nightfall Tuesday left 10 persons dead and six wounded. In Bone a bomb exploded aboard the French liner Ville de Dordezu, killing four persons and wounding several others. Three Europeans and three Moslems were killed in Oran, and secret army raiders escaped with about $20,000 in francs from two banks.

French security forces reported the capture of 40 armed men of the secret army's elite Bonaparte commando unit. They were seized by an army patrol without a struggle 15 miles southeast of Philippeville.

It was the first time the government had captured an organized, uniformed secret army unit.

PARIS (Reuters) — A plastic bomb—weapon of the Secret Army Organization — exploded today outside the Paris home of the novelist and government culture minister, Andre Malraux.

A four-year-old girl and a man were injured. The bomb was placed on a window ledge above Malraux's first-floor apartment

The author and his wife were not home at the time. The bomb caused considerable damage to their apartment.

The blast occurred as the French cabinet headed into session today amid reports that a cease-fire ending the Algerian war was imminent.

The meeting came in the wake of a report in the Tunisian weekly Jeune Afrique Tuesday that an agreement between France and the independence-seeking Algerian insurgents was "now virtually realized"

The weekly declared that the Tunis-based Algerian provisional government now was explaining to its own militants that a compromise with the French was necessary so "the revolution can attain its objectives."

Drop Appeal Against Bribe Case Acquittal

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Kelso Roberts said Tuesday night the Crown has dropped its appeal in a police bribery case that revealed large-scale gambling in Ontario and led to a royal commission on organized crime in the province.

Mr. Roberts said he would make a statement later today giving reasons for the decision.

Vincent Feeley, Joseph McDermott and former Provincial Police Constable Robert J. Wright, charged with attempting to bribe Provincial Constable George Scott, were acquitted after a lengthy trial here last summer.

Police began an investigation about two years ago after Const. Scott reported he had been offered money to tip gamblers when police raids were due.

TOLD TO GO ALONG

As a member of the anti-gambling squad, he was ordered to "go along" with the offer and pretend to be working with the gamblers.

Scott did this for four months, at the end of which time Feeley, McDermott and Wright were arrested.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Continuing a quiet shift away from rigid racial bars, Memphis has desegregated 30 downtown restaurants, lunch counters and snack bars. PENSION BOOST WINS APPROVAL IN BRISK DEBATE

Plan Final Reading Of Measure Today

OTTAWA (CP) — The commons old age pension debate—fertile ground foe feathering of election-campaign nests among all three parties — is near its end.

Approval in principle and detailed study of the short bill came swiftly Tuesday after an all-day debate on the measure to pay all citizens 70 and over an extra $10 monthly, effective last Feb. 1. The existing rate is $55 monthly.

Third and final reading, before Senate consideration, was scheduled today.

Senior Canadian citizens will have received $25 a month more in just over four years when the bill becomes law, Justice Minister Fulton said — or an increase of 62.5 per cent.

Even if one credited the 1957 increase of $6 to the Liberals, who had pledged it, the present Progressive Conservative government had upped the old age pension by $19 or 41.3 per cent, he said.

MUST AMEND

Mr. Fulton stressed the need of constitutional amendments before the government can bring in a comprehensive contributory pension plan starting at age 65.

Paul Martin, former Liberal health minister, blamed Finance Minister Fleming for blocking the plan that figured in the 1958 Conservative election campaign.

The member for Essex East, chief Liberal critic in the two-day debate on the bill and a preliminary resolution, said taxes wouldn't be increased by one cent under the Liberal proposal of a "national minimum" of $75 monthly for all aged 65 or more under a contributory system.

Hazen Argue, CCF-New Democratic Party House leader, said that speaking strictly for himself he feels steps should be taken' at once to "make certain that people who are retired in this country shall have an income of not less than $100 a month."

Mr. Fulton said Mr. Martin was indulging in "frenzied statements and fantastic criticisms" while putting forth a half-baked alternative proposal for retirement pensions.

NEEDS BNA CHANGE

No basic contributory plan could be introduced until the British North America Act was amended with the consent of the provinces, and that consent was being asked.

(Earlier information was tabled showing that Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, Manitoba and Alberta are agreeable, Saskatchewan has some reservations about the draft amendment itself and Quebec wants more details. There was no reply tabled from British Colum-

Ottawa Mother Asks Jet Plane Fly Over to Stop Her Baby Crying

OTTAWA (CP) — Here's a switch.

A mother living near a busy airport called the control tower and asked that a jet plane be sent over her house so that the baby would stop crying.

The child had become accustomed to low-flying planes but on this night North American Air Defence Command's exercise Skyshield had grounded all commercial aircraft.

This probably is an extreme example of the type of complaints the RCAF and NORAD receive continually about sonic booms and low-flying planes.

Most complaints are from harassed mothers who say they have been hours getting baby to sleep only to have aircraft noise wake it up.

One boy claimed damages of 50 cents on the grounds jet noise had prevented his tropical fish from spawning. He was paid.

On Christmas Day, the first RCAF squadron of supersonic CF-101B Voodoo jet interceptors went into operation at Uplands Airfield here.

New flight patterns were worked out so that the Voodoos climb almost straight up from the end of the runway. As a result, there have been no complaints about Voodoo noise.

Flow of Immigrants in '61 At Lowest Ebb Since 1947

OTTAWA (CP)—British immigrants remained in second place behind Italians for the fourth straight year in 1961, the immigration department reported today.

Immigrants of Italian ethnic origin totalled 14,630 during the year, an increase of 1,335, compared with British arrivals of 13,295. Newcomers from the United States were in third place at 11,516.

Total immigration in 1961 sagged to 71,689 from 104,111 in 1960. The inflow was the lowest since 1947 when newcomers totalled 64,127.

Persons of British ethnic origin were the main source of immigrants until 1958 when Italians moved into first place. Italians also made up the biggest group of arrivals in 1959 and 1960.

Chief reason for the slump in immigration last year was the federal government's policy of discouraging entry of unskilled workers, the class which makes up the bulk of Canada's unemployed. Another was a shortage of qualified immigrants due to the economic upswing in European countries.

May Use Taft-Hartley Law To Head off Steel Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy wants a steel labor settlement in a matter of weeks. If there is delay, he has full power to head off a mid-year strike and disruptive steel inventory buildup as well.

The reason is that the 80-day cooling-off injunction procedures of the Taft-Hartley labor law can be invoked to prevent a strike from occurring as well as to stop one that has already started.

With both the president and Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg saying repeatedly that a steel strike in this stage of half-developed economic recovery is unthinkable, it's logical to assume the administration wouldn't let a steel walkout occur if threatened.

But besides not wanting a strike the administration wants to avoid the usual overstocking of steel in advance of a strike threat. Both Kennedy and Goldberg have said this should be avoided as economically disruptive—a production letdowon inevitably following a production buildup.

Thus, if the industry and Steelworkers Union fail to heed the administration advice to come up with an early settlement, it should surprise no one if the president lets it be known publicly he intends to trigger the Taft-Hartley procedures into effect early.

A promise of this sort—that there would be no strike when present steel contracts expire June 30—certainly would substantially discourage steel customers from overstocking.

If all this came about, the threat of any steel strike would be put off from July 1 to past mid-September when the 80-day no-strike period ran out. Even then, the odds probably would be against a walkout—because Congress, too, could step in to prevent one.

Such discussion is perhaps premature. It's still early in the game. The Steelworkers Union is to come up with its demands for contract changes today in Pittsburgh. Such demands are traditionally a statement of goals rather than realistically expected attainments.

Right now the administration is pouring the heat on both sides to get going toward an early agreement.

One-Day Strike Brings Lockout In Retaliation

LONDON (AP) — Bernard Cook locked-out his 200 engineering workers Tuesday. The men at Cook's Universal Equipment factory took part in a 24-hour wage strike Monday. When they reported for work Tuesday this message was waiting from Cook: "You had your day off yesterday. I'm having my day off today. I'm not opening the gates."

MARTIN URGES CANADA TIGHTEN CUBAN TRADE

Strategic Goods List Needs Revision

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberal Paul Martin suggested Tuesday that Canada tighten up its list of strategic goods whose export to Cuba is banned.

In a spirited exchange with Prime Minister Diefenbaker in the Commons, the member for Essex East charged that explosives, aircraft engines and parts, and various other types of engine are being shipped to Cuba.

Did the prime minister not think that the strategic list should be reviewed as it applies to Cuba?

Mr. Diefenbaker said Canada has been "most meticulous" to see that strategic goods are not exported to the Caribbean country.

At the same time, Mr. Diefenbaker said, Canada has not received any representations from the United States concerning trade with Cuba. The U.S. has halted all imports from Cuba and all exports to Cuba except certain foods and medicines.

Mr. Diefenbaker reiterated that Canada will pursue its own policy toward the Castro regime while observing the need for "maintaining intact the determination of the free world to resist communism."

OUTLINES STEPS

Earlier, replying to a question asked last week by Opposition Leader Pearson, Trade Minister Hees outlined in detail the steps that are taken to assure that American-made goods are not trans-shipped to Cuba through Canada.

Mr. Hees said Canadian officials have full authority under the Customs Act to search, detain and seize export shipments to prevent U.S.-made goods from leaving Canadian shores for Cuba.

Hubert Badanai (L—Fort William) asked the trade minister whether the government considers Cuba a Communist colony.

Mr. Hees sidestepped the question, saying that "for some time Cuba has been among the countries to whom the list of strategic goods applies."

WASHINGTON (CP) Canada's decision to maintain commercial trade relations with Cuba despite the United States trade embargo has stirred some resentment in Congress.

Senator Kenneth Keating, New York Republican, said he is "very disappointed" with Canadian policy.

"I think Canada is making a great mistake in not co-operating with other American states in imposing economic sanctions on Cuba," Keating said in an interview.

A member of the Senate internal security subcommittee and the Senate judiciary committee, Keating has been critical of Western trade with Communist countries. He has criticized Britain for selling commercial aircraft to Communist China and has called for a tightening up of the Western ban on shipment of strategic goods to Communist countries

150 Are Trapped As Explosion Rips Coal Mine

Rescue Workers Fear Many Missing Dead

CP from Reuters-AP

VOELKLINGEN, West Germany—At least 56 persons were killed, 78 injured and 150 missing today after an explosion ripped through a coal mine in the Saar Valley here.

More than 200 miners were originally reported trapped about 1,600 feet below ground after the blast, but rescue workers reached the first of the trapped men after digging frantically for more than five hours through the rubble.

The death toll mounted hourly and an official said many of the survivors were critically injured.

A flash of flame down the main shaft of the mine ignited coal dust gas and set off a giant explosion.

Fire and the cave-in of several levels of the mine killed some workers. Others died when a shock wave threw them against pit walls and smashed their lungs. One survivor told of being hurled against the wall by the shock wave.

HUNDREDS AID RESCUE

Many were trapped by falling debris. Hundreds of rescue workers struggled to reach them.

Rescue workers said they feared many of the trapped men may be dead.

If so, the disaster may turn out to be one of Germany's worst.

About 50 miners were just about to descend into the mine when the explosion occurred. Many fled in panic, but returned later to help with rescue operations.

Rescue workers first went to the aid of men on the upper levels and many of them were brought out. Some had died from the collapse of walls and the shock waves, but others were brought out unhurt.

Ten rescue teams rushed from nearby mines were at work below ground and helicopters flying a shuttle service took the injured to hospitals.

U.S. ARMY HELPS

Appeals for help in treating the burned and injured brought supplies of transfusion equipment and blood plasma by helicopter and road from the U.S. base at Landstuhl.

Rescue workers said the blast apparently occurred near a training shaft where young miners were working.

Hundreds of weeping relatives and friends of the trapped miners stood in the pit area, cordoned off by police, but news from the mine was scarce.

The disaster mine lies in the middle of Luisenthal, a part of the industrial town of Voelklingen, about 200 yards from the local church and next to the railroad station.

Police, firemen, ambulances and relief shifts of miners were mobilized for rescue work. Ambulances from towns of up to 80 miles away raced between the mine and hospitals.

Haileyburg Dogs Must Stay Home Or Her Child Does Says Mother

HAILEYBURY, Ont. (CP)—A Haileybury woman, spurred on by an incident involving her daughter, is waging a war on the town's dog bylaws.

Mrs. Arnold Nelson has 407 names on a petition calling for year-round control of dogs. For emphasis, she has written Premier Robarts threatening to take her daughter, Nancy, 5, out of school unless Haileybury streets and schoolyards are cleared of dogs.

"Haileybury has gone to the dogs," she said Tuesday night. "If something isn't done, we are going to have to send the children home and the dogs to school."

She said many of those who signed the petition are dog-lovers "but see the necessity for control."

Dogs now are allowed to roam at large in the town from Sept. 1 to May 31.

Councillor James Whelan, local representative of an area animal control association, said he has ordered the dog catcher to pick up animals congregating on school grounds.

He said he took the action in face of complaints from parents and cases of dogs molesting pedestrians on the streets. He said two elderly women on their way to church recently were knocked down by dogs and one was nipped.

"Another dog blocked a child one cold day on the way to school and moved only when the child surrendered her lunch sandwiches."

Mrs. Nelson says she was spurred into action when Nancy, on her way to kindergarten, "had her pants clawed off by a hunting dog without a licence tag."

Glenn's Trip Is Set Back Another Day

WASHINGTON (AP) — The next attempt to loft marine Lt.-Col. John Glenn Jr., into orbit around the earth is now scheduled for Feb. 14 at the earliest—instead of Feb. 13 as previously announced — it was learned Tuesday.

Informed sources reported that while no specific problem has developed, the work of preparing the booster rocket for the new attempt will take longer than anticipated last week when the Feb. 13 date was announced.

It was learned that "tankage tests" of the big Atlas rocket were under way — this is, filling the tanks of the rocket to appraise them.

Meanwhile, Lloyds of London insurance brokers have been asked to insure Glenn's life, a Lloyds spokesman disclosed in London Tuesday. He said the policy, for around £34,000, was taken out with an American insurance company which asked Lloyds underwriters last month to re-insure part of the risk. The policy covered preparations for Glenn's flight, the flight itself, and the recovery of his space capsule.

The American company was understood to have quoted a rate of 2½ per cent of the value of the policy.

Lloyds underwriters offered a quotation on the reinsurance but it is not known whether the American company has yet placed the business with them.

Africans Liked Special Shoes

A sales letter bulletin recently arrived in Batawa from the Bata organization in Tanganyika, Africa which outlined vividly the celebrations held as they observed their political independence on December 9th 1961.

With green being one of the national colors of the new state, the Bata Shoe Company there produced thousands of pairs of "uhuru" green shoes in preparation for the big event and according to reports they sold like hotcakes and were worn on practically all feet except those of some 5,000 children who took part in the Dar es Salam Jonte Rally and those youngsters wore Bata-made twiga White shoes for the big demonstration parade.

The Bata factory at Dar es Salam floated giant balloons supporting 50 foot banners on which were printed the opening words of the new National Anthem of Tanganyika Mungu Ibaraki Afrika (God Bless Africa).

Senator Dies Few Minutes After Speech

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberal Senator George H. Barbour, 83, of Charlottetown died in the Senate chamber Tuesday night a few minutes after making a brief speech in support of financial aid for drought - stricken Prairie farmers.

The former Prince Edward Island farmer was the first senator to die in the Senate chamber with the House in session. Other senators have died in their rooms in the Parliament Buildings.

Senator Barbour, a member of the P.E.I. legislature for 14 years and the province's minister of public works and highways from 1943 to 1949 when he was appointed to the Senate, had resumed his seat after delivering a five-minute speech on a government appropriation bill.

He said no senators are against the $42,000,000 in acreage payments to western grain growers. He said that in order to appreciate the problem of the western farmer "you have to experience the effects of drought and losing your crop."

WOULD LIKE HIGHER

Senator Barbour and other Liberal senators said they would have liked to have seen a plan under which needy farmers received higher payments than those who did reap crops last year.

Shortly after resuming his seat Senator Barbour clutched his chest and fell back in his seat.

Senators Joseph Sullivan (PC—Ontario) and F. W. Gershaw (L—Alberta), both medical doctors, rushed across the floor of the House to examine him as the sitting was hastily adjourned by Senator Walter Aseltine, government House leader.

Senator Sullivan pronounced him dead within minutes, apparently of a heart attack.

SENATE MAKEUP

Senator Barbour's death created the seventh vacancy in the 102-seat upper house and reduced Liberal representation to 67. There are 25 Progressive Conservatives, two Independents and one Independent-Liberal.

No Action Taken on Guard Slaying

KINGSTON (CP)—Efforts by the Crown to obtain enough evidence for the laying of murder charges in the Nov. 24 killing of a Kingston penitentiary guard broke down today.

After three days of examination of convicts under oath, Justice of the Peace D. W. Lockett said:

"On the basis of the evidence taken to date, I have decided that no action be taken at this time."

The official presided at closed hearings aimed at getting evidence in the death of guard William C. Wentworth, 42, found dying of stab wounds the morning after he had been locked, unarmed, overnight in a dormitory with 42 supposedly non-dangerous prisoners.

When the dormitory was unlocked, he was found in a washroom, stabbed 11 times. Two bloodstained knives were found in a garbage can.

Mr. Lockett examined 14 prisoners Jan. 24 and 25 behind closed doors in a courtroom at city hall here, and Tuesday the questioning was reopened.

The number of prisoners questioned Tuesday was not disclosed immediately.

The justice of the peace did not elaborate on his brief statement.

Assistant Crown Attorney John E. Sampson, who participated in the hearings, was expected to issue a statement later.

Home, School Body Sponsors Special Course

The Belleville and District Home and School Council is sponsoring a leadership training course to be held at the Moira Secondary School, this coming Friday evening, all day Saturday from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. "Take a Look at Yourself . . . You, Too, Can Be a Leader!" is the theme of the course.

The Ontario Federation of Home and School and the community programs branch are assisting the council in this endeavor.

Mrs. W. H. Crown, Scarborough, leadership training chairman, Ontario Federation, will chair the Saturday morning session, "Members' Roles in Home and School". Mrs. Crown will emphasize the responsibilities of members in Home and School and the importance of a "working" membership.

EVALUATION

Mr. Donald W. Maddocks, district representative, community programs branch, will be in charge of the principal session Friday evening when the topic wil be "Evaluation". Mr. Maddocks will explain what "Evaluation" is, different methods of "Evaluation", how to use information obtained by these methods and what proper "Evaluation" can mean to an organization. Mr. Maddocks will also assist with the Saturday afternoon session.

Mr. Jack Ellbeck, Toronto, will lead the session, "Discussion Skills" on Saturday afternoon. There will be a demonstration of how "Discussion" when used properly is a vital necessity in a 'study and action" organiaztion like Home and School.

Throughout the sessions there will be ample opportunity for delegates to participate in discussion groups, workshops and question and sugestion periods.

Although it is desirable that delegates attend every session, however, if this is not possible, representativs are urged to attend as many sessions as they can.

A noon luncheon on Saturday will be provided in the school cafeteria for the convenience of delegates at a modest charge. For reservations, contact Mrs. S. Whitaker (WO 2-3520).

This course is designed to be especially valuable to members of home and school associations, but material contained would be useful to anyone engaged in any other organizational or community group. There is no registration fee.

Burns Incense, Kennedy Hopes It's Not Heresy

NARA, Japan (AP)—Buddhist priests asked Robert F. Kennedy to burn incense today at Nara's most famous temple, the world's largest wooden structure.

The U.S. attorney-general turned to Ambassador Edwin O. Reischauer and asked the significance. Reischauer replied that burning the incense would show respect for Buddhism but would not connote worship.

"Well, if I get kicked out . . ." Kennedy, a Roman Catholic, replied with a grin as he lit the incense.

Mr. Drury spent his 84th birthday in hospital here Jan. 22, but is expected to be released Friday. He headed the now-defunct United Farmers of Ontario who assumed power in Ontario in a wave of agrarian unrest following the First World War.

Quinte Rink Eliminated At Kingston

KINGSTON (Staff) — In the first round of the British Consuls held at the Kingston Curling Club this morning, the Belleville rink of Ben Corke, Al McCallum, Cec Kirkwood with T. A. Carruthers, skip, were defeated by the RCAF rink of H. Latrielle, Dick Frampton, Grant McCauley with Bill Lewis as skip, 11-6.

The game between the Kingston Curling Club rink skipped by Al Cormarty defeated Dick Irvine of Prescott, 11-4, while Peter McKay of Cornwall defeated Bernie Tetro of Cataraqui Club, Kingston 9-8. Gananoque received a bye.

The Belleville rink at the first of the game just failed to get the run of the ice and were five down at the end of the fourth end and never did recover.

Bill Lewis, the winning skip, scored two two-enders and a three-ender while Belleville only got one two-ender and only scored on four of the 12 ends. The ice was tricky but fast.

Can Fluoridate Water at Home, Cost Is $295

TORONTO (CP) — Murray Cohl, president of International Fluoridators Ltd., announces that the Toronto company has developed a home fluoridator for drinking water.

A press release says the product is the result of work by Eric Greenwood, Toronto engineer, is six inches tall and three inches in diameter and is installed at a separate cold water outlet in the home.

The release adds that the unit will cost $295 installed, including five years' servicing with chemicals.

A spokesman stated that world patents are held and that the product will be marketed internationally.

Flu Epidemic Closes Schools At Burks Falls

BURKS FALLS, Ont. (CP)—An influenza epidemic has hit this community of 900 persons, forcing closure of the public and high schools and a ban on all public meetings.

The ban was imposed by Dr. Milton Witticks, area medical officer of health, who also stopped visits to the village hospital and ordered the theatre and arena closed.

More than 250 pupils have been stricken, with 156 pupils and five teachers absent Tuesday from the public school of an enrolment of about 400. Some 100 of 270 students at the district high school missed classes.

Dr. Witticks said the outbreak is confined to the Burks Falls area, 50 miles south of North Bay, but that unless immediate action is taken there is a danger of the disease spreading.

The community is the second in Northern Ontario to experience a flu epidemic. Twenty-seven of Sault Ste. Marie's 13 schools were closed today because of the outbreak which health authorities say has affected about 35 per cent of the population of 42,000.

Two public schools closed at noon Tuesday and the others either closed during the afternoon or announced they would not reopen today.

TOKYO (Reuters) — Japanese amateur astronomer Tsutomu Seki, 31, has discovered a new comet, the Tokyo Observatory announced today. He spotted the comet Feb. 4 as bright as a star of the ninth magnitude, southeast of the double star Puppis.

At the local inn, about 200 yards from the pit, the West German flag flew at half staff.

Through the waiting lines, police cars and ambulances raced to and from the area, their sirens screaming.

CHANGE SHIFTS SWIFTLY

Rescue workers descended into the various shafts every few minutes, while others returned.

"They can only stay below a short time," one official explained. "The fires are out, but there is still some gas below."

Returning with black-smeared clothes, rescue crews now and then brought a stretcher with a dead or injured miner.

Bodies were being taken to a temporary mortuary alongside the mine office.

The injured were taken to hospitals throughout the region.

Suggests Tying Wage Standards To Productivity

TORONTO (CP)—Freezing of wage and salary levels by voluntary agreement was proposed today by Carl A. Pollock of Kitchener in an address to the Kiwanis Club.

The freeze, he suggested, should be for a calculated time, followed by a wage formula based on productivity.

Mr. Pollock, president of Dominion Electrohome Industries Ltd. and second vice-president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said an improving standard of living can more readily be achieved by lowering costs and prices than by raising them and the same action would increase both domestic and export markets for Canadian goods, because their prices would be more competitive.

Analysis would show, Mr. Pollock said, that Canadian business profits are completely inadequate to stimulate a growing economy with expanding product lines and enlarging employment. He added:

"While profits, the stimulator of employment, have been declining, wage and salary levels have been rising. At the same time our productivity has been stagnating. Gross national product per capita in constant dollars actually declined from 1956 to 1961. This is truly inflationary and means our standard of living has dropped."

He suggested that the problem be studied by "a joint group of intelligent citizens representing the public, government, labor and business" with the aim of coming up with a plan that could be sold to all Canadians.

CO of 6 RD Tells of Trials Of Leadership

TRENTON — "So you want to be a leader? Well, be very, very careful — for you may get what you want!"

With these words, Group Captain C. R. Thompson, commanding officer at No. 6 Repair Depot, challenged members of the Quinte Toastmasters' Club with the responsibilities of leadership, at last night's Open House, sponsored by the local organization.

"Why do you want to be leaders?" queried the speaker. "Do you hope to get new jobs? Raises? Recognition? Are you prepared to pay the price of being a leader? Will you put in the extra study? Remember that along with responsibility goes blame, abuse and, sometimes loneliness. When you assume responsibility, you have to make decisions — decisions which sometimes make it necessary to appear to be cruel."

Group Captain Thompson listed the attributes of leadership for his audience. He said that some are leaders because of their physical characteristics. Some men give the impression of being leaders through their height, or breadth, or strength. Others because of their skill or endurance. Some achieve leadership through their untiring energy, or bursting vitality.

Considering the mental side of leadership, the speaker said that a leader generally had above-average ability to think. Some have the ability to think more quickly than his fellows. Slower thinkers often achieve leadership because of their ability to reason more clearly, weigh facts and values, and make a choice.

"If you want to be a leader," said the speaker, "don't be afraid to tackle a new job. Look for opportunities to learn something new."

Group Captain Thompson told his listeners that the majority of leaders are hard workers and that they have an interest in what they are doing.

"If you're not interested in what you're doing — get another job," he advised.

Group Captain Thompson was introduced to the club by Quinte Club president Les McKenna.

Head table guests at the Open House included R. D. McDonald, president of the Trenton Rotary Club; Frank Strange, area governor of Toastmasters, and Arthur Duncan, public relations officer with the Bata Shoe Company of Canada.

The club members' progress in public speaking was demonstrated by Tim Minacola and Douglas Tufford.

Toastmaster for the evening was Ken Lawson and the general evaluator was Lorne Johnson. Jim Rombough conducted the Table Topics session.

Bata Shoe Makes Special Presentation

TRENTON — When the management seminar of the Shoe Manufacturers' Association of Canada met for its third annual session in Montreal on Monday, Feb. 5th, a highlight of the important conference which represented about 75 per cent of the Canadian Shoe industry, was a presentation by executive of the Bata Shoe Company of Canada Ltd. on the important subject of Quality Control.

Mr. E. T. Stewart, personnel manager of the Batawa plant and Mr. A. Machala, chief chemist combined efforts and with the use of various types of visual aids gave a comprehensive lecture on the subject. Necessary projectors and other material used for illustration purposes were assembled in Batawa and transported to Montreal for the event. Main speaker in the presentation was Mr. Stewart and the feature was very well received by all in attendance and comments were all of a complimentary nature.

Largely as a result of this fine presentation Mr. Stewart and Mr. Machala have been invited to attend the National Shoe Manufacturers' Association of United States Annual Management meeting to be held at Cincinnati, Ohio, in May 1962.

This 'Raze' Was on The House

BOSTON (AP)—The auctioneer's red flag was flipping briskly in the breeze.

The city auctioneer and his assistants were there.

At least one prospective bidder was there.

All that was missing Tuesday was the three-family house which Boston officials had ordered sold for taxes.

The building department razed the building last October and forgot to tell the real property department.

Man Jailed For Assault On Official

TRENTON — In magistrate's court at Trenton yesterday, Sidney L. Henry, of Leopold St., in Trenton, who last Friday pleaded guilty to the charge of assaulting welfare administrator Gordon Davis, was sentenced to three weeks in jail by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

Said Magistrate Wills: "I think this sort of thing is serious. Welfare officers are asked to make decisions. They should not be subjected to things like this."

Mr. Davis told the court that X-rays revealed that he had sustained a sprain at the base of his neck when he was attacked by Henry in the welfare office last week. Mr. Davis said a doctor had told him that he "might have some trouble with his neck later on."

Roy Keith O'Hara, 23, of Mill Street in Consecon, pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving and was remanded for one week for sentence. A charge against O'Hara of taking a car without the owner's permission, was dismissed. O'Hara was the driver of a car, owned by Alyea Motors of Consecon, which on Aug. 12, 1961, struck and killed Edward Reeves, 28, of Trenton. In January, O'Hara was acquitted on a charge of criminal negligence in connection with the death of Reeves.

Sgt. Gordon Steenburg of the Trenton police force, told the court that tests taken after the accident had established that the alcohol content of O'Hara's blood was 1.7 and that of Reeves 2.2. Magistrate Wills said that the 1.7 content "could not be ignored"

O'Hara was represented by barrister Thomas Lally of Belleville.

Ray Mountenay, R.R. 4, Trenton, was found guilty on a charge of accepting and receiving an ante-dated hunting licence, contrary to the game and fisheries act.

A conservation officer from Picton said that he had asked to see Mountenay's licence on Jan. 6 and had been told that he did not have it with him.

On Jan. 10, said the official, Mountenay had shown him a licence dated Jan. 3.

Victor James McMurray, a clerk in McClung's Hardware Store, in Trenton, told the court that Mountenay and his brother had come in the store around noon on Jan. 6, and that the brother had asked for the ante-dated licence, to be made out in Ray Mountenay's name.

Mountenay was fined $20 and costs of $21.

A Lost Cause

The Cape Breton Post no longer will report in detail games in the Cape Breton Senior Hockey League in which brawls take place.

The Post has embarked, with high courage, on a worthy campaign. We wish it success, but we cannot predict it.

Possibly the fear of lost publicity may reduce the number of brawls. But that will only eliminate a symptom; to cure hockey's disease will be much more difficult.

Most of today's brawls at hockey games result from a good player being hamstrung by a poorer one. It is not the fighting, but the hooking, holding, clutching, boarding and cross-checking that is spoiling hockey.

Every sport has its fanciers. For our money, there are two which stand out head and shoulders above all others in offering spectator thrills—hockey and Canadian football. Both these games have changed radically over the past three decades. They have been changed by the same innovation—the forward pass. The difference is that Canadian football fans have been educated to appreciate the niceties of the pass and the function it can play in opening up the game. In hockey, though, play has been tailored to the preferences of a people with no inbred appreciation of the sport. The rules have been adjusted to U.S. tastes, and Canadians have had the exceedingly bad taste to accept the change.

It is questionable whether the forward pass belongs in hockey at all. Old-timers will remember when it was first introduced by the professionals and when home-town pros, drifting back to town in the spring, amazed and delighted fans by demonstrating its possibilities. Without the forward pass, hockey was a brilliant spectacle of dazzling speed, clever stick-handling and heavy, clean bodychecks, since a defenceman knew that if he nailed the puck-carrier there was no opponent behind him who could pick up the puck without being offside.

But frequently this style of hockey resulted in a paucity of goals—and these did not always come to the club playing the best hockey. The forward pass, properly used, would have changed all that. It would have added a third, and a greater offensive threat to speed and stick-handling. The difficulty was that it could have produced many lop-sided scores. That would have been bad for attendance at U.S. cities where the new fans did not know enough to appreciate finesse. So, to prevent runaway races, the poorer teams were permitted to wrestle more skilled players into the corners.

The result is what we have today—and if anybody tells you that this is better hockey than in the old days the chances are five to one he or she is either biased by direct interest or not old enough to remember what hockey once was—and could be again.

We read a letter to another district newspaper a couple of days ago in which the writer declared that bodily contact is not necessary in hockey. That was a startling statement to anyone who regards a clean bodycheck as the most thrilling play in the game. But, carefully considered, it appears to be a true statement. Loss of the bodycheck would be a serious blow to the game—but it might not be too heavy a price to pay for the elimination of all the grabbing and hooking which now masquerade under the name of legitimate defensive tactics. Later, bodychecking could be brought back.

Of course, this is just a day-dream. The pros would never consider such a rule—it would drive people who never saw real hockey away from the arenas by the thousands. And the "amateurs," of course, take their orders from the pros.

But many old-timers would like to see Frank Mahovlich or Bobby Hull turned loose in a game in which they had to be hit cleanly or not at all.

Inspiration for Poets?

At North Bay Thursday the RCAF took over control of Canada's first Bomarc anti-missile base from the contractor, Boeing Airplane Co. of Seattle. The base is complete with 28 missiles. The missiles have no warheads. No conventional warhead exists for the Bomarc. No arrangement has yet been made with the U.S. to supply nuclear warheads.

This missile that's built in Seattle
Was never intended for battle
We get lots of prestige
If the trigger we squeeze
But never our rockets we rattle.

We all of us agree with Mr. Green
It's important that weapons be clean
Now our style of miss-ile
Makes the enemy smile.
Why should we want to be mean?

What Young Are Reading

Brantford Expositor

The disappointing trouble with some "children's books" is that children don't like them. This may be due to a variety of causes. They may be poorly written. They may be written "down" to what the author wrongly estimates to be the prospective readers' level. Perhaps the child has been told that he or she should read this, that or the other book because it is good for him.

The same goes for certain books specially designed for teenagers (or young adults as it now seems more fashionable to call them).

With the latter group especially, perhaps the wisest and most successful course is to let them choose for themselves. More than likely they won't make bad choices.

We saw a list of such books the other day. It had been compiled by librarians of both school and public libraries. Adults may be surprised and pleased to find what the teenagers went for.

The list covered a wide and diversified field to include such works as "Brave New World" by Aldous Huxley, even though it was first published some years ago; "Mutiny on the Bounty" by Nordhoff and Hall; "My Antonia" by Willa Cather; "Northwest Passage" by Kenneth Roberts; "Mrs. Mike" the girl who married a Mountie), by Benedict and Nancy Freedman; that Bronte classic, "Wuthering Heights"; "King Solomon's Mines" by Sir H. Rider Haggard and Sir Winston Churchill's "Memoirs of the Second World War," the abridgement of his celebrated six volumes, running from "The Gathering Storm" to "Triumph and Tragedy".

There were many more, but the foregoing is sufficient sample to show that a lot of young pople have a lot of good sense and a lot of good taste when it comes to selecting reading matter.

River Board Steals Lake

Cleveland Plain Dealer

We are familiar with the man who was called Honest John because he wouldn't steal anything that was nailed down. We've also heard of the yegg who was so light-fingered he could successfully purloin a hot stove and then make a return trip for the smoke. But we never, until now, heard of a stolen lake.

It happened in England: Man by the name of the Earl of Yarborough went to bed one recent night the owner of a jim-dandy little lake, a wild life sanctuary on his estate, spanned by a bridge built of old Abbey stones, designed by a fellow named Capability Brown. Next morning the Earl arose to find the bridge spanned a mess of mud. The lake was gone.

Now, a lake isn't a very easy thing to conceal. A man can cache banknotes or put away jewels where no one, sometimes not even the hider, can find them. But a lake? A lake isn't just the sort of thing which can be hidden. Leaks, you know.

Finally the culprit was found. It was the Lincolnshire River Board, which was dreadfully sorry about the whole thing but couldn't see any possible way to give the lake back to the Earl. Seems in pumping water for industries down river the Board's engineers unconsciously took in the wayward lake. It was on a gravel bed, anyway, the lake was. When it heard the goings-ons down stream aways it just up and percolated through to join the fun.

The engineers can't figure out what part of the river really is the Earl's little lake nor how to get it to go home. And was the little body of water really lake-napped or did it flow away of its own accord? We leave it to you.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

IN THE SANCTUARY

The seventy-third psalm deals with the prosperity of the wicked. The writer is hard pressed to understand how God can allow wicked men to prosper while good men often seem to fail and to experience trouble. "When I thought to know this," he cries with lamentation, "it was too painful for me until I went into the sanctuary of God; then understand I their end."

There are many things we never understand until we go into the sanctuary of God. We have failures when according to the requirements of diligence, honesty, industry, and apparent worth we should have had success. We have sorrows and we cry out, "How could this have happened to me?" We have temptations, yet for years we have been praying, "Lead us not into temptation." We have in our lives some circumstance which can never be changed, and every day we feel frustrated and perhaps defeated because of this circumstance.

We are never going to know the full secret of human life and all its complexity here on earth, of that we can be sure. But we do get an insight when we summon up all the religious faith we have and carry our distressing situations into the sanctuary of God. This may not solve all our problems, but it will start us in the direction of solution. Some things will still be behind the veil. There must still be faith. But light will begin to shine in the sanctuary.

Boy Friends Got Free Beer

Vancouver Sun

The story of the English cosmetics manufacturer and the free beer induces in us a feeling akin to a man finding a worm in an apple. Or worse, half a worm.

The employer had to install a bar and serve beer to their boy friends so his women employees would work overtime.

We can imagine crusty 19th Century employers spinning in their graves. The types who used to make their employees live on the premises, sweep out the store of a morning, go to church on Sunday (the employer's church preferably), and refrain from tobacco and drink. But we're not concerned with the impact of this new practice on industrial relations.

What does concern us in the lengths a girl has to go nowadays to keep a boy friend.

Imagine the pampered louts sitting at their ease in a bar, sipping beer, while the girls slave in the next room.

Not thus was it in grandfather's day, nor in father's. The man catered to the girl, jealously watching out for the possible rivals while HE worked overtime.

One Should Respect Mental Patient

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Half the hospital beds in the country, as we know, are occupied by mental patients; and one out of ten persons walking the streets today will have a mental breakdown of some sort.

Given these blunt facts, it is time we were also given some blunt advice on the handling of such cases by families, relatives and friends. And the first and best piece of advice is — stop moralizing.

There is no relationship between the moral and the mental structure. The mental patient does not have free will — that is why he is in trouble.

Don't advise him or her to "use will power," which is a dangerous, arrogant and ignorant thing to say.

Don't ask him or her to "pull yourself together" — for people in serious difficulties are beyond pulling.

Don't offer such fatuous remedies as "get a hobby," "keep your chin up," "think on the bright side," or "count your blessings." This is as infuratng (and as futile) as urging a man with two broken legs to go down a ski slide.

Dont suggest "a change of scenery" — for the mental patient takes his own scenery with him wherever he goes.

Don't urge "if you'd only try a little harder" — for this is like imploring a hunchback to straighten up a little.

Don't say "If you really loved me..." for the mental patient is beyond love, which is an act of the will.

Don't invoke "faith" or any religious inspiration, because religious feeling must be rooted in mental health, not in illness.

Don't imagine for a moment that a new job, a new mate or a new setting will clear up the ailment — for the problems come from within the patient, not from without.

Don't preach, don't beg, don't give pep-talks, don't threaten, don't bribe, don't do anything that assumes the patient could change if he only would.

In a positive sense, be sympathetic but not sentimental; cool but not hard; attentive but not over-solicitous; concerned but not frightened; and, most of all, keep in mind at all times that most saving thought of all: "There but for the grace of God go I."

None of this is easy; some of it is impossibly hard. The least we can do, however, is to respect the illness and not expect the patient to stand up and walk with the equivalent of two broken legs. We cannot make him better; but we should not make him feel worse.

Letter To The Editor

Suggests Diverting River Into Harbor

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Would you please publish this. It is only one man's idea that likes the bay and the harbor.

Years ago, we had one of the most beautiful parks and harbors in the country (Victoria Park) and thanks to the parks Board we have one now, but the entrance in the summer is terrible owing to the backwash in the harbor, caused by the closing up of the two culverts that at one time fed the water from the river through the harbor, washing out the weeds and filth. Any small boat owner will tell you that in the middle of summer it is nearly impossible to get an outboard motorboat out on account of weeds.

Just an idea.

While the heavy machinery is at the entrance it would not take very many minutes to cut a channel just south of the bridge and run a short weir out in the river to divert the water through the harbor, thereby washing out the harbor and smells.

A timber bridge would not cost much more than is paid for a couple of men on a raft, doing a hopeless job of trying to cope with the weeds all summer. The current from the river would carry the weed seeds and back wash out and make the harbor clean.

Alcoholic Needs Help To Conquer Drinking Habit

You may find today's letter tragic; I hope I am not being overly optimistic in thinking that it may not be. The letter:

"When I was 16 I married the most wonderful man in the world. I found out that he had been a heavy drinker but that he had stopped because he knew my parents wouldn't let me date him otherwise.

"About a year after our marriage he began drinking again. It hurt me, and made me furious, too. I'm afraid I have a terrible temper. A lot of times he would stay out all night.

"Sometimes he would quit for two or three months, then start again.

"I went from begging to anger to threatening to leave him. Nothing worked. About five months ago I discussed the problem with our minister, the first time I have ever told anyone what our life was like.

"He contacted Alcoholics Anonymous. Well, AA helped for almost 30 days, then for about three weeks, then two, then not at all.

"He just wouldn't give in to following the steps necessary to succeed.

"Last week I saw a lawyer about a divorce. I am 25 and have three children and can't see wasting any more of my life or having my children grow up with a drunk father.

"Do I love him? I think so, but there are times when I think I hate him, but I always forgive him. Sometimes I wonder if I drove him to this.

When I told him I had been to a lawyer, he seemed sincerely sorry. The next day he was mad. Since then he has been a perfect husband — a week. He says if I don't go through with a divorce he will try harder than ever before. I want to believe him but I don't want to be hurt or humiliated again. I really think he still believes he can lick it alone. Would it help if I could get him to go to a psychiatrist? Do you think he can lick it alone? — R.M."

These two people obviously love each other. The man has, just as obviously, tried hard to stop drinking, but with only periodic success, and possibly half-hearted effort.

After nine years — plus — do I think he can lick it alone? No.

He has been under plenty of pressure to make good. He wants to make good. He has tried. But he has failed.

The answer? He'll have to admit, I think, that he can't lick it alone. That is the simple but all-important fact that so many men (and women) have had to learn when, after trying their best, they still couldn't succeed.

Who of us is self-sufficient? Who really "walks alone"?

In this case I deeply feel that the husband has only this one last step to take: To admit that he can't do it alone. If he'll talk, humbly, with other AA members, he'll find that they will tell him the same. This man has to realize he is an alcoholic and admit it.

Alcohol is more powerful than anyone but a chronic drinker ever knows. It usually takes more than one's own efforts to conquer it. Some call the extra power God. Some call it something else. But it is help from outside ourselves plus acknowledgment there is a problem. We have to admit that we need it. This man should go back to AA—and accept all of it.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

When you consider the millions of Canadians who, as a matter of course, head off for the country every Friday evening from May to October, there must be a good many tens of thousands of them, or maybe hundreds of thousands, who are looking for something more than just a long gassy ride on a concrete highway. Even when they get to the lake, or beach or woodland resort, multitudes of them surely have something more in mind than a swim, or a couple of hours' fishing, or a lounge on the verandah.

It stands to reason that the natural surroundings — the bush, the lake, the trees, the occasion glimpse of a wild creature with its sense of secret possession of the place — must inspire a degree of curiosity in the city dweller. Truth is, the majority of people would love to enter into some sort of acquaintance with nature. But how do they begin? Where do you start to be some kind of an amateur of nature?

There is a new book out, "Watchers at the Pond," by Franklin Russell, published by McClelland and Stewart. It reads like a novel. It is the story of a pond, beginning in the dead of winter, as of now, and following the course of the lives of every living creature in and about the little pond, plant and animal, through one year. The book is an exciting answer to the question; how do I begin to be aware?

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

WANTING AND HAVING

When a boy I once vowed that when a man I would one day buy a whole bunch of bananas — and eat them all. Well, I grew up (I guess) but I have never had the desire for my fill of this delightful tropical fruit, though I have had the money to satisfy this boy want.

And yet, at this advanced time of my life, I still have wants. This is the surest evidence that I am normal.

If you have wants, even though they be well mixed with worries, never mind. You will fare well. Wants are a scarcity with millionaires. They have things — so many that they are bothered!

Wanting and having at the same time is like being a member of a large family. The wanting and having should go hand in hand like brothers and sisters.

Too many of our wants come true too soon. And we have things too long. The happy man likes goals, difficulties, problems. He isn't at his best until he is on the road to something that he thinks he wants. Of course he may not want if after he gets it, but the game is to go after wants.

It isn't well to keep too much for too long, either.

I know an author who spent many years collecting the rare first editions of a great writer. Then he sold them — and gave others the pleasure and happiness of owning what he for so long sought. He threw his wants out into the world again. I have thought many times what a fine idea this was.

Most of the fun of life comes in the wanting. Worries accumulate after you get — just as dust does in a big house.

Father-Son Banquet Held By Air Cadets

Over 100 guests, officers, cadets and fathers were present for the annual father-son banquet of the Royal Canadian Air Cadet Squadron No. 608 of Quinte Secondary School held yesterday evening at the school. The banquet formed a part of the Air Cadet Week activities of the squadron.

During the course of the evening remarks were made by various people associated with the school corps. Principal Leslie Reid, chairman of the sponsoring committee, said that he was happy to see the interest of the parents in their sons' cadet activities. Mr. Reid also expressed the feeling that it was possible for the cadets to win back the Strathcona Trophy, symbolic of the top Air Cadet Squadron in Canada, for this year.

F-L E. Killeen of Trenton RCAF base, senior unit liaison officer for Air Cadet squadrons in this area, stated that he was encouraged by the fine showing which the 608 Squadron's cadets had put up in the past and that they were always one of the best units in the area. He commended them to the project of winning the top laurels for their corps in the current training year.

Mr. Doug Whitely, representing the Air Cadet League of Canada, noted that the local squadron had received much in the way of new equipment this year and expressed the hope that soon they would have the necessary quarters that they could make the fullest possible use of this material, some of which consisted of first-rate photographic equipment.

Mr. Whitely also stated that cadet training was something which no lad could buy but which he would have to work for and earn. What he achieved through this fashion would always be of good use to him in his future life, Mr. Whitely concluded

Mr. Tom Simpson, chairman of the Bay of Quinte District High School Board, brought the greetings of the board, which is the sponsoring body of the local squadron. He commended the cadets for their fine appearance and urged them to strive for the regaining of the Strathcona Trophy.

The banquet, which also featured entertainment by some of the students of the school, was conducted by Squadron Leader E. A. Craighead, commanding officer of the unit.

Following the banquet a rifle competition was held between the cadets and their fathers.

Fraser Drops After Five-Mile Ice Jam Breaks

QUESNEL, B.C. (CP)—The level of the flooding Fraser River dropped eight feet in less than an hour today after an ice jam five miles long cracked under its own weight.

Engineers at this logging and cattle centre in central British Columbia expected the river level would quickly fall back to normal after the massive thrust of the ice started the river flowing freely again.

More than 400 residents evacuated homes after the river rose 16 feet above normal Tuesday.

The temperature dropped to 16 above zero, prompting engineers to fear the steady flow of ice may jam up again.

There were reports of minor flooding in small communities downstream from Quesnel after the ice broke up, sending a wall of water rushing from the river.

Farm Accident Rate Triple Metro's Toll

GUELPH (CP) — The rate of fatal accidents on Ontario farms is about three times that of traffic fatalities in Metropolitan Toronto, Ontario Agriculture Minister W. A. Stewart said Tuesday.

Speaking to the annual conference of the Ontario Farm Safety Council, Mr. Stewart said many accident factors were traced to farm mechanization. Mr. Stewart also said his department has organized a two-pronged program toward a better economic position for Ontario farmers. It will make farm management advice to farmers, he said — including safety information — a necessary factor in a sound management program.

PENSION BOOST

bia, Ontario, New Brunswick or Newfoundland.)

Mr. Martin asked Mr. Fulton why the government had delayed plans for its contributory plan despite 1958 promises. Mr. Fulton said talks had been started in 1960 with the objective of gaining provincial consent to have Canada — rather than the United Kingdom Parliament as at present—amend the constitution. This agreement had not been reached yet.

Mr. Fulton said the Liberals had even amended their own retirement pension plan to bid for votes.

Murdo Martin (CCF — Timmins) said the government's contributory plan should be introduced immediately before "too many more cracks" appeared in the rosy picture painted by the government in the speech from the throne opening Parliament.

Just before second reading of the pensions bill, Health and Welfare Minister Monteith made a vigorous, shouting reply to charges against the government made earlier in the day by Mr. Martin.

Mr. Monteith said that if the Liberals had been returned to office in 1957, the country's old age pensioners would all have received $468 less in the period since then than they did receive.

He said Mr. Martin had made a "very entertaining speech," and should be on the stage. Mr. Monteith would see that he got a job in the Stratford Shakespearean Festival — Stratford is in the minister's riding of Perth —after the coming election.

Car Key Tags To Be Sent Out By 'War Amps'

In the next few weeks 8,500,000 little "War Amps Key Tags" will be distributed to Canadian motorists, thus giving drivers an effective protection against the worry and exasperation of losing car keys.

For 16 years the War Amps Key Tag Service has been distributing tags for car keys as a public service, using the proceeds to finance the benevolent work of the War Amputations of Canada throughout its 19 branches from coast to coast.

Since its inception the War Amps Key Tag Service has returned 70,581 lost sets of car keys to their rightful owners.

The Key Tag Service is one of Canada's most notable "self-help" projects. In its Toronto headquarters the Service employs 40 war amputees, most of them too disabled to compete in the open labor market. Under congenial surroundings these men enjoy steady year-round work manufacturing and distributing the tags that are distributed to motorists. (The price is 60 cents for a duplicate set of tags, and 35 cents if only one tag is needed.) The practice of sending duplicate tags (for husband and wife) is proving satisfactory.

Last year in Ontario 3,128,000 key tags were distributed and 5,579 sets of keys returned to their owners.

Allan Piper, manager of the War Amps Key Tag Service, is a "War Amp" himself and wears hooks in place of hands he lost in World War II. The War Amputations of Canada was founded under Dominion Charter in 1919. Lt. Col. the Rev. Sydney E. Lambert, OBE, is Dominion President and Alan L. Bell is Honorary Dominion Secretary. Key Tag Service headquarters is at 140 Merton St., Toronto 7.

Pouliot Wants Queen Awarded Nobel Prize

OTTAWA (CP)—Party leaders in the Commons Tuesday voiced unanimous expressions of congratulation to the Queen on the 10th anniversary of her accession to the throne. Prime Minister Diefenbaker announced that he has extended to the Queen on behalf of the government, Parliament and the people congratulations coupled with the hope that the next decade would be one of peace and prosperity.

Senator Jean-Francois Pouliot proposed in the Senate that Queen Elizabeth be awarded the Nobel Peace Prize for 1962. The suggestion by the Quebec Liberal won the support of Senator Walter Aseltine, government leader in the upper house, and Senator W. Ross MacDonald, Liberal opposition leader.

STILL LIKES CANADA — Dr. George Mares, who resigned nine years ago as the Czechoslovakian consul-general, says he has never regretted the decision to remain in Canada. Now a Canadian citizen, Dr. Mares, 53, teaches high school in the Victoria suburb of Saanich. He is shown with Hanna, one of three daughters. (CP Photo).

Once Czech Consul-General, Victoria Teacher Is Glad He Quit, Became Canadian

VICTORIA (CP)—Nine years ago, Dr. George Mares resigned as Czechoslovakian consul-general to Canada because he could not abide his country's policy in the Korean war nor could he support the general Moscow alignment.

Today, the 53-year-old ex-diplomat who was a lawyer in his native land and who can speak seven languages, is a teacher at Claremont High School in suburban Saanich.

The intervening years were not easy ones, but Dr. Mares says he has never regretted his decision.

Another reason why Dr. Mares resigned was the underlying desire that his three young daughters, then aged 13-11 and 8, be allowed to grow and mature as their natures led them.

GOT CLERICAL JOB

"So I resigned and loaded my family and the few things we possessed in a trailer and headed for the west coast."

When the family arrived here, Dr. Mares was able to obtain only a clerical position offering little opportunity and less pay.

The girls, formerly accustomed to new and fashionable clothes, made do with hand-me-downs, and Mrs. Mares, raised in a family accustomed to chauffeurs and butlers, learned quickly the limits of a narrow budget.

The next five years proved the most trying for the family, brightened by the marriage of eldest daughter Helenka in 1956 and the proud day in 1958 when the family became Canadian citizens.

"I sold insurance for a time, real estate at one point, and for a short period was a hearing aid salesman," said Dr. Mares. "It was difficult for a long time."

BEAUTY QUEEN

During these years, Dr. and Mrs. Mares watched proudly as daughters Margykta and Hanna, now 21 and 18, respectively, grew into beautiful young women.

"It was, and still is, a great delight to me to watch my daughters express themselves as they wish, to be able to make up their own minds in a country that allows them to do so," said Dr. Mares.

Margykta placed third in the 1960 Miss Canada contest and now is studying to be an actress in New York.

"In 1960, I decided to become a teacher," said Dr. Mares. "Here I was, in a new country, and young all over again actually. So I thought I could learn with my students as well as teach them."

A year at the University of British Columbia and Dr. Mares had his certificate, and in 1961 he got a position as a German and French teacher at Claremont.

"This is a good country," he said, "with good people who let you follow your own path."

Jury Recommends Signals Placed At Herchimer Avenue Crossing

A coroner's jury probing the circumstances surrounding the death of Wilfred Carter, 81 South George Street, last night recommended that automatic signals be placed at the Herchimer Avenue railway crossing.

Carter, 58, died following a collision at the crossing between his taxi-cab and a CPR freight train during the early morning of January 19th.

The jury attached no blame to anyone in connection with the death of Mr. Carter.

The accident occurred minutes after he dropped a fare on South Herchimer, Mrs. Thelma Elliott.

Const. D. Byers, O.P.P. photographer who took photographs at the scene of the accident, pointed out in several pictures where a driver's view would be obstructed from the railway crossing by two houses if he were proceeding north on South Herchimer, toward the crossing.

Merle Wickett, dispatcher at Checker Taxi, said Mr. Carter reported empty on South Herchimer around 3 a.m. and asked if he could stop at a restaurant nearby and cash a cheque. "I said he could and when I did not hear from him, I figured that's where he was."

Mr. Wickett said Mr. Carter was a very careful driver and was very particular about his vehicle.

A train brakeman testified that the train was proceeding into Belleville enroute from Smiths Falls and that it would be travelling at approximately 65 miles per hour through the crossing.

He said he noticed a car approaching the tracks and when he realized a collision was going to take place he yelled for the engineer to stop the train. He said the car was still moving when it was struck and that it did not appear to be stopped.

City police constable L. McLinton, who attended the scene of the accident, said that the crossing was icy and it was possible for a car to skid on it.

Canada Needs Trained Men Kiwanis Told

The preparation of young men to be properly equipped to keep Canada's economy and development progressing in the future was the subject of an address by Andrew Irvine, general sales manager of the Cities Service Oil Company Limited, at the weekly meeting of the Kiwanis Club at the Kiwanis Centre yesterday afternoon.

It is as important for a firm to have a reserve of top management personnel as it is for it to have a monetary reserve, perhaps more so since it is more difficult to obtain and train capable personnel than to build up a reserve of capital, he said.

Three factors are necessary to ensure the development of young men to take over the administration and direction of a firm, he advised. These are: training, good human relations and the selection and encouragement of people who are "self developers". The speaker suggested that there were many firms who hav neglected this important phase of their development and were either "one man operations" or controlled by a small group.

In training a potential executive it is important to let him know how he is doing, where he is going and how he can improve himself. Such a program requires careful planning if it is to be of value and should allow its candidates to plan, see and do things on their own with authority delegated as far down the line as possible as the ability of the personnel warrants it, Mr. Irvine said.

It is important to realize that training will not improve morale, right poor planning or cure those lacking initiative, he added.

The second phase of a personnel development program should create a good atmosphere of human relations, the speaker said. to develop this atmosphere it is important that a firm recognize and satisfy the basic needs of an individual for status, recognition, participation, security and opportunity, he emphasized. The implementation of a program to adequately meet these needs must also be supplemented by a good compensation plan to encourage long time employment of the personnel, Mr. Irvine advised.

The selection of personnel with initiative and a desire to improve themselves constitutes the third portion of a program to develop capable future executive, the speaker said.

It is also quite important that the potential executive be offered a series of new and enlarged goals to achieve as old ones are achieved so that his faith in himself may be kept predominant. He should be developed so that he can "fail successfully" and need not fear "sticking his neck out" or trying new ideas upon occasion. This helps him to keep his faith in himself and not to slip into a niche where he is working below his ability, Mr. Irvine explained.

The implementation and administration of such a program should come easy to Kiwanians in their business, he suggested, since it follows the basic theme of Kiwanis — "We build".

Kiwanian Art Pennington introduced the speaker and Clarence Fuzzen expressed the thanks of the club. President George Hume noted that next week's program will feature Julia LaMarsh, Liberal Member of Parliament for Niagara Falls.

Immediate past president Bob Brain was presented with a special past president's ring on behalf of the club by president Hume in recognition of the excellent leadership which he had given the club during 1961. The club members gave Kiwanian Brain a standing ovation.

Board Refuses To Hear Brief On Religion

TORONTO (CP) — Mayor Sharzer of the Canadian Jewish Congress said Tuesday that North York parents won't be satisfied as long as school trustees refuse to "face up" to the issue of exemptions during religious instruction periods.

North York trustees argued for more than an hour Monday night before refusing to hear a brief submitted jointly by the Canadian Jewish Congress and the Ethical Education Association.

The groups had been told three weeks ago that they could submit a brief but were told later the board would hear the brief only if it contained "something new."

"After reading the brief over carefully, I find no new proposals, no new suggestions and no new information on this priblem," chairman Isobel Walker told representatives.

The board's ruling also prevented laymen of the United Church of Canada from reading their brief which congratulated the board for retaining religious instruction.

Army Changes Snowshoe Style

OTTAWA (CP) — The army has turned thumbs down on the centuries-old cowhide and wooden snowshoes and is trading them in for new models of metal and wire which will cost three times as much. But the army announcement said they will last 10 times as long.

The new snowshoe — now in production—comprise a frame of magnesium alloy strung with nylon-covered aircraft cable.

Conventional snowshoes, researchers found, required too much maintenance, deteriorated rapidly and could not be stored for long. The wooden frames warped in storage and "them oose or cowhide was an easy prey for vermin."

The army had god news for trappers: Snowshoes of a similar type are now available commercially.

Twin Holsteins Here First To Win Silver Seal Awards

BRANTFORD — This pair of twin Holsteins, bred and owned by Allan B. McComb & Sons, Belleville, have each produced over 150,000 lbs of milk in their lifetime on official record of performance test. Each has thus qualified for a silver seal certificate of long-time production, the only pair of twins in Canada to have ever accomplished this feat.

At the left, with Delbert McComb at the halter, is Glenalcomb Rag Apple Nancy Nig, with a lifetime record on twice-a-day milking of 157,000 lbs. milk and 5,570 lbs fat, while at the right, held by Allan McComb, is Glenalcomb Rag Apple Nancy Burke, with 155,893 lbs. milk and 5,374 lbs. fat.

Both Burke and Nig are classified "very good" for body conformation. Burke was twice grand champion at the Hastings County Black and White Show while Nig was Reserve Grand Champion. Each is also a noted brood cow, Burke having been officially listed as a three star brood cow. She is the dam of Glenalcomb Supreme Dora, owned by F. Roy Ormiston, Brooklin, Ont., which is a five star brood cow and has a lifetime record of 176,800 lbs. milk.

A daughter of Nig was reserve grand champion at the Hastings Black and White Day, another daughter junior champion and a son junior and reserve grand champion.

ATTACKS LEGISLATION

LONDON (Reuters) — British treasury official Sir Edward Boyle refused in the House of Commons Tuesday to change the legislation under which the Royal Family is given more than £600,000 a year. Opposition Labor party legislator William Hamilton, a frequent critic of the cost of keeping royalty, made a bitter attack on the legislation which he said was "a gold-plated assistance board."

Nine Steps to Success Told By Film, Panel Discussion

Nine steps to success for life's work were pointed out through an excellent film and a panel discussion at BCIVS Home and School meeting.

In introducing the film entitled "Finding Your Life's Work," Mr. H. Mott, guidance director at BCIVS, explained briefly what and how the guidance program at the school is presented. This is a five-point program with the main objective being to help the individual "know himself."

DEMONSTARTED BY FILM

This was brought out in the film, stating "It is essential that students know themselves which in turn will help guide them in choosing a career." Futher, the film listed nine steps leading to success: health, character, general education, citizenship, special intelligence and ability, ambition, willingness to work, knowledge of self, and special training ultimately lead to success.

Members of the panel agreed it is important to know what one wants—what one has to obtain it —and the willingness to stick with it till one accomplishes this.

Mr. Max Watts, a pupil and parent, spoke on reasons for obtaining the most education possible before stepping out into the world. He pointed out the limitations you impose on yourself and the impossibility to further education without a high school diploma. He was able to speak from experience, having returned to school after trying his way in the business world for seven years.

In his remarks, Mr. C. Hiuser, of National Employment Office, said the biggest problems their office encounters with young people seeking jobs, are with those who had not a graduation diploma, pointing out again the necessity to graduate.

Mr. G. Daugherty, personnel manager of Northern Electric Company, said, "Industry, when hiring looks ahead to the future and with the rapidly expanding technological processes used by industry an applicant needs high standards to keep up with this advancement.

PARENTS' RESPONSIBILITY

In pointing out the known low percentage of those who go on from high school to higher education, Mrs. D. McKinnon, noted economist, felt this perhaps was the responsibility of parents, to guide their child to use his full potential in order to provide him with an education which will fit him for his "Life's Work".

Mrs. McKinnon felt a girl should acquire as much education as her ability allowed, as the future holds much change; and lives will become involved in a much more technicalized world. Also it will allow her to be a better homemaker, with knowledge to use as she requires it later on.

In summing up the panel agreed: it is the parents' responsibility to take a deep interest in their child and guide them to a better education. Perhaps the public and parents could give more support to Guidance Counsellor by showing an interest in the student and encouraging their interest in enthusiastic guidance discussion in schools.

The possibility that perhaps the public, both in industry and the business world, have a responsibility to encourage students to stick to their studies till they can qualify to the high standards required to fill the jobs available.

THANKS TENDERED

The members of the panel were thanked by the chairman Mr. A. Wynne for their enthusiastic discussion of the topic.

Many questions from the floor were replied to by the panel members bringing a most interesting evening to a close.

Later, over a coffee cup in the cafeteria, many discussion groups were formed by the audience.

Treat Sex Criminals, Women Ask

OTTAWA (CP)—The government was urged today to set up clinics for treatment and preventive detention of dangerous sexual criminals.

The request was contained in the annual submission to the cabinet by the National Council of Women.

The organization also called on the government to establish youth hostels in Canada's national parks; expressed concern about the high prices of drugs; and urged pensions payable to widows, which are subject to income tax, be exempt from the estate tax.

The council asked for amendments to the Criminal Code under which any person convicted of a "dangerous criminal sexual offence" would be committed by the judge to a government diagnostic clinic.

The group also urged legislation that would empower judges to sentence persons considered as dangerous sex criminals to preventive detention. These prisoners would be kept in a special clinic until an appointed board ruled that it was safe to release them.

These suggested measures were among the chief recommendations of a three - man royal commission headed by chief justice J. C. McRuer of the Ontario Supreme Court.

The Experts Say

Anyone Can Be Good Cook Says Conductor of School

By EDNA BLAKELY

TORONTO (CP) — Anyone can be a good cook, says Diane Lucas of New York, a good cook herself in her New York restaurant.

Mrs. Lucas was in Toronto to conduct a seven-lesson cooking school for the women's committee of the Toronto art gallery, and she has appeared often on television.

"Anyone can be good — not great, but adequate," she said. "A great cook is hard to define. I imagine it would be someone who is inspired."

The role of the cook is minimized in North America, she thinks. She would like to see more emphasis in the culinary arts in school and college courses. At the Sorbonne in Paris, cooking is regarded as one of the seven arts.

"After all, the main function of women is to marry and have a family. I think women would enjoy cooking more if it wasn't regarded as just a chore."

JOY IN COOKING

For Mrs. Lucas, cooking is a joy. She would rather cook than eat, because she eats mostly simple things, with lots of fruit.

But she gets plenty of opportunity for cooking at her New York restaurant where she is the only chef, and at her cooking school there.

Simple food can be superb, she said. She advises the new cook to start out modestly, learning a few basic dishes well, such as a casserole, soup, dessert and dressing for a salad. "Nothing too ambitious."

It is important that the food be attractive in appearance, and served properly.

"The eye is a very important part of eating—when one sees something attractive it stimulates the appetite."

For utensils, she said three good knives are adequate — a chopping knife, a filleting knife and a paring knife. One or two saucepans are necessary, one or two cast iron or aluminum pans, an omelet pan and a few mixing bowls.

EASY ON SPICES

Spices are fine but should be used sparingly, as they become stronger in cooking. Spices should not be mixed, she said, but the same spice should not be put into everything.

And in North America, meal preparers were often guilty of over-cooking their vegetables. "When they lose their color, they're overdone."

Here's what Mrs. Lucas does when cooking green beans:

Plunge the beans into boiling water and leave for two or three minutes, then drain. Place in a heavy pot with butter, salt and pepper. Cover with a sheet of buttered wax paper, and cook over moderate heat for five or six minutes.

YP Union Discusses Sun. Observance

Frankford - Stockdale United Church Young People's Union met in Rose Lowery Hall on Sunday evening. Eighteen boys and 14 girls staged a lively discussion on the Christian attitude to Sunday observance and most of them were in favor of it.

Eleanor Beach, president, conducted a snappy business session and several arranged to attend the annual Y.P.U. snow-shenanigans in Brighton, February 10 and 11.

The worship service was in charge of Anna Judd and this set the Scriptural basis for the discussion. Everybody seemed to enjoy the sing-song with Judy Whitmore at the piano. A five-ring circus arrangement of recreation and culture had everybody in stitches over some new angles on English literature, modern advertising, antique automobiles, the law of gravity and some beans in a bag.

In a boy and girl musical parade endurance contest, two girls had to be boys, and Gloria Nelson and Gordon Savage won in a close finish.

At the next meeting the executive of Cobourg Presbytery Y.P.U. will be in charge of the program.

CGIT Plans Valentine Party

The St. Andrew's Presbyterian C.G.I.T. group held its meeting on Monday evening. The president, Linda Marner, presided.

There was a short business period. A Valentine party was planned for February 12th.

The guest speaker, Mrs. Weir, led the mission study lesson for that night about British Guiana, followed by a worship service.

Games were enjoyed.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Glenn C. — She's taking too many clothes on our trip.

Mabel C. — He doesn't care how he dresses. I do.

• • •

Glenn C. — We're leaving for a two-week cruise, the first we've ever taken and my wife is packing practically everything she owns except her kitchen aprons. Just because there's no weight limit for baggage on a ship, she doesn't have to empty her closets. All she needs is a poodle to look like one of those movie stars, surrounded by luggage!

The brochure from the travel agency gives a list of take-alongs, just as suggestions. Well, Mabel just used that as a starter. My main objections are that she's hardly leaving me any room in my own valise — my only one — for the few rags I'll need. Also, I'm the one who'll have to do most of the lugging. How can I slow her down?

• • •

Mabel C. — There's no comparison between Glenn's packing problems and mine. Still he's been heckling me and scolding from the minute I opened the first bag and began to put shoes in. Doesn't he realize I need walking shoes, dancing shoes, warm ones for the deck, open-toes for the beaches and colored slippers to match my dresses, not to mention beach shoes, rubbers and galoshes?

I'm sorry if it seems to be a lot of clothes, but I need things for cold and bad weather, plus the heat of the tropical ports we're landing in. And for shipboard I need sport togs, as well as dinner and party outfits. Glenn will be sorry to have so few costume changes along. I'll make room for his things. But he doesn't think his appearance matters.

• • •

The Council: While the Council isn't exactly qualified to expatiate on what the well-dressed cruiser should wear, we've been around enough to recognize — and adjudicate — a battle over how important to status is the status symbol of wardrobe? For that's what the C.'s are really debating, — not ten gowns versus one business suit.

Of one thing we can assure Mabel — no matter how many costumes she assembles, someone else will have something more resplendent, more eye-stopping to strut about in. So why not cut corners, even if it means the supreme gaucherie of wearing the same dress twice?

The deciding factor as to what to take along is appropriateness. for festive evenings — the Captain's Dinner, say — certainly no sackcloth and ashes! Air the best bib and tucker. Deck sports, shore trips, swimming and sunning require a few neat changes. Throw in a masquerade costume if there's room. Otherwise, improvise. The important question each must ask is, "Why am I taking this?" If the honest answer is, "To show I have it," admit your inferiority complex, then lighten your luggage load by removing the item.

Dressing in harmony with the occasion is fine, friendly and sociable. But overdressing as Mable indicates she'll do, and underdressing, as Glenn proposes, is often an exhibitionistic gesture which simply says, "Please, please notice me!" We suggest that Mabel bring along less, Glenn a bit more (for crispness' sake), and that they reach out for notice in more relaxed ways, through amiability and congeniality.

A brief anecdote may underline our point. On a transatlantic voyage, a quiet passenger who kept to herself was noted to be wearing just one dress, a blue two-piece knit, every day from morning to night. "Poor thing," an observer whispered, "that's probably all she has!" On landing day the lady's identity was revealed. She was Mrs. — well, if we printed her name it would be a free plug for the owner of several big department stores.

No, the best way to pack usually is to take things out of, not put them into, the bags!

Congregational Meetings

HOLLOWAY ST. UNITED

Taylor expressed the thanks of the congregation to Mr. Templer and the choir and to Mr. John Dudley, church caretaker. Mrs. White presented an excellent humorous reading. Mrs. P. Mr. John Courtney was elected people's warden, Mrs. Ed Colden elected vestry clerk and Mr. Cannan Colden elected lay delegate to Synod.

Some new business was discussed and the rector announced the new Diocesan budget appeal which was accepted. This was unanimously carried.

The meeting closed with prayer and a social hour was enjoyed.

Mrs. Roy Tucker Hostess To River Valley W.I.

STIRLING — On Thursday last despite cold weather 21 members of River Valley Women's Institute and one visitor were in attendance for the February meeting at the home of Mrs. Roy Tucker. A flowering African violet graced the president's table. Mrs. Glenn Bush distributed "The Home and Country Winter Edition".

Mrs. Kenneth Myers presided and opened in the usual manner with Mrs. Philip Conley at the piano. Mrs. George Heasman gave a full financial report of the recent barn sale. The district fees have been paid to Mrs. Harry Coulter. A case history of the W.I. foster parent child has arrived from the Toronto office. Members are to sponsor Gunther Gericke who is deserving of assistance.

CORRESPONDENCE READ

The correspondence included a lengthy letter from Mrs. L. G. Lymburner, Provincial president. One of the paragraphs centred around an international scholarship fund which annually would provide the financing of a young women from Canada to one of the emerging countries to teach women and young girls the same things which women in Canada accept so freely from their organization. This is a special effort for the 65th anniversary year and branches are asked to be generous to this appeal.

During the past ten years the Women's Institutes of Ontario sent a tractor to a village in Greece, sewing machines to Korea and equipment for home training centres to Ceylon. A discussion followed and the treasurer was authorized to forward immediately to F.W.I.C., Toronto for this special anniversary fund; also ten cents per member for the Adelaide Hoodless Homestead fund, and a one dollar yearly contribution to the National Foundation Fund of F.W.I.C.

Mrs. Glenn Bush and Mrs. Ernest Carr and their group volunteered to house clean the school kitchen. The summary day for the recent training school "143 pounds of meat", will be held next Thursday and it will be most worthwhile to all those in attendance. The newly appointed Home Economist for Hastings County will be Miss Margaret Hunt, North Simcoe.

The officers' conference on Institute procedure sponsored by West Hastings district will be held Wednesday, March 7th, at River Valley School with two sessions, morning and afternoon. Mrs. James Haggerty, Napanee, newly elected president of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada will conduct the conference and each of the eight branches is asked to send its president and secretary-treasurer or alternates. Other interested members are welcome. Each delegate will provide her own lunch and bring her handbook to this meeting.

Mrs. Glenn Bush reported for the 4-H Club girls and an honorarium was voted to the leader and her assistant, Mrs. Philip Conley, who were given an ovation for their efforts. The friendship secretary synopsized a clipping of a meeting of Abbot's Leigh W.I. in Bristol, England. The secretary, Mrs. George Heasman has received a letter from her pen pal and a picture of several ladies of the drama club, one of which was the link secretary, Mrs. E. Coombs of Abbot's Leigh W.I. Mrs. Clarence Chard demonstrated some lovely designs of maple leaves and white trilliums.

The March meeting will be held at the home of the president, Mrs. Kenneth Myers and will be based on the theme "citizenship". An invitation has been forwarded to the members of Trent River Bridge W.I. to be guests at that meeting. Several thank-you notes were read by the secretary. Mrs. Roy Tucker A.C.W.W. convener passed the "Penny Jar" and reported $1.12 for January. The regular Institute collection was also gathered. She also read the story of "The North Carolina Home Demonstration Council," whose international program includes an annual study tour to the United Nations. For the past seven years 250 women come by bus and stayed for a week to gather information to carry home to their local communities.

FINE PROGRAM

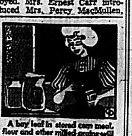
The program for the meeting was in charge of Mrs. Roy Irwin and the values of education today were stressed. At this point a sing-song was enjoyed. Mrs. Ernest Carr introduced Mrs. Percy MacMullen, president of West Hastings District, who made her official visit. Mrs. MacMullen has been a member of River Valley W.I. for the past 15 years and at present is public relations officer of her own branch.

In her address she paid tribute to the wonderful leadership given by Mrs. L. G. Lymburner and the new trend in thinking. She thanked River Valley for making it possible for her to attend the Guelph conference and thus understand the work of this organization. She congratulated the branch on their acceptance of "the foster parent plan", and the "anniversary scholarship fund". She also congratulated the 4-H Club leaders and explained why she was absent on Achievement Day. Mrs. MacMullen outlined several suggestions that River Valley could incorporate in their 1962-63 plans and stressed that some phase of "Food and Nutrition" be studied. The various subjects are all important to the homemaker and Miss Helen McKercher will gladly give assistance. She congratulated ACWW convener and announced a collection of "Pennies for Friendship" at the district annual in the spring. She closed her message with the reading of a poem entitled, "Give A Little and Love a Little More."

Mrs. Edgar Hay-Ellis read a humorous selection entitled, "The Mind of Professor Pinegrove". Mrs. Glenn Bush read the current events, the main topic of conversation as written by the assistant program convener, Mrs. Jack Bush. This covered a wide range of subjects and was most interesting. The best preventative of various skin diseases is the liberal use of soap and water.

The meeting closed, after the citizenship group served refreshments.

Mrs. Sheldon McIntosh voiced thanks for hospitality, address, program and refreshments.



A bay leaf in stored corn meal, flour and other milled grains will keep weevils out.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

MATCHMAKING CAN MAKE ENEMIES

If you want to lose your unmarried friends in a hurry, then be a boor of a matchmaker.

Some briedes hardly wait until the ink's dried on their own marriage certificates before they're trying to get their friends to sign up on the dotted line.

Some brides hardly wait unproper to try to bring together a couple who have similar tastes. But often a matchmaker gets carried away with her role, and when she indulges in "boy-meets-girl" it's only too obvious that her object is matrimony.

Instead of casually throwing two likely prospects together, she practically throws them at each other. We watched one militant matchmaker at work a short time ago and squirmed right along with the unhappy duo.

To begin with, she immediately pointed out how much they had in common. Both liked to ski, were interested in art and shared a mutual distaste for the Twist, which was innocent enough. But during dinner she really warmed up, and practically ruined the taste of the steak with remarks like:

"Ralph, Mary is the most miraculous cook. You should taste her home-made cheesecake."

Or: "You know, Mary, Ralph is a regular Mr. Fixit. You should ask him to put a new dowel in your Queen Anne desk."

Or: "You two really should see the Roualt exhibit. Ralph, why don't you take Mary next Sunday?"

Or: "My, you make a handsome pair."

Ralph took Mary home after dinner, and I don't know what the upshot of the meeting was, and whether Queen Anne got a new dowel or Roualt got a look-see. But I do know the matchmaker gave everyone a trying evening with her ill-advised nudge in the direction of togetherness.

Naturally, young unmarrieds are eager to meet "the one," and what could be more correct than to be introduced in the home of a mutual friend. But it should be done tactfully.

If you must play the role of matchmaker, then here are a few "Don'ts" to consider:

Don't embarrass the couple by pointing out the advantages of married life over single unblessedness.

Don't keep saying how pretty the girl is and what a wonder the fellow is around children.

Don't dwell on how much they have in common. Let them find it out for themselves.

Don't insist they make future dates. Give the poor guy a chance to get the idea himself — then to ask the girl properly.

Don't phone each the next day to find out if the introduction "took." They may have decided they've been taken instead, but may be too polite to say so, and in private.

PLAN INTERCHANGE

TORONTO (CP)—Plans were disclosed Tuesday by the Toronto Transit Commission for a massive subway interchange and a $60,000,000 office building development to rise above it, at Yonge and Bloor streets. Construction will begin within two years.

Make Your Own Pudding Mixes

Second Instalment

by Mary Moore

Chocolate Pudding (serves 6).

Note: The Chocolate Pudding is the most popular. Add 2½ cups hot water and cook and stir over boiling water until thick. Cover and cook 10 minutes. Remove from heat and add 1 tablespoon butter. Pour some over 1 (or 2) slightly beaten egg, return to double boiler and stir 1 minute. Remove from heat and add ¾ teaspoon vanilla. Pour into serving dishes and chill.

Caramel Pudding (serves 6).

Add 4 cups hot water, stir well and stir over boiling water until thick. Cover and cook 10 minutes. Remove from heat, add 1½ tablespoons butter and pour a little over 1 (or 2) slightly beaten egg. Stir then return all to double boiler and cook, stirring 1 minute. Remove from heat, add 1 teaspoon vanilla. Pour into serving dishes and chill.

Suggestions for additions when serving:

Serve the Vanilla Pudding mix with milk or cream, or fresh frozen strawberries, raspberries or peaches or any fresh fruit in season. Smashing with fresh blueberries. Or top with whipped cream and some chopped nuts.

Serve the Chocolate Pudding with milk or cream, or whipped cream topped with cocoanut or nuts or green-tinted, mint-flavored whipped cream or commercial whipped topping.

Serve Caramel Pudding with milk or cream (pouring or whipped) and fresh sliced bananas or chopped almonds or walnuts or pecans.

I have been thinking that the 20 servings that this total mix makes would be a dandy and economical dessert for a party of 20 people. Make up the whole Basic Vanilla Pudding Mix yesterday adding 10 cups hot water, 4 tablespoons butter or margarine, 4 beaten eggs and 3 teaspoons vanilla. Or if you make 3 variations in stemmed glasses they are 3 different colors. At a church supper, if these were placed in alternate groups of 3 each at the table settings, or on a buffet table you would have a pretty color effect.

We will make extra copies of these two columns giving Basic Pudding Mix. Anyone requiring them should enclose stamped self-addressed envelope with their request, mailed to this newspaper.

BONARLAW

[illegible].U. Asks For Free Serum Administration

BONARLAW — The meeting of Local 171 of the Ontario Farmers' Union was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Mumby. A good attendance was present.

The president, Murney Bateman was chairman and opened the meeting.

Some of the members attended the Cheese Producers convention held recently in Toronto. They reported that a resolution asking for a government grant to assist in the erection of milk houses had failed to pass the convention. A discussion was held re-milk marketing and the possibility of a pooling plan.

[illegible]abies is again a problem in [illegible]he areas. When humans come in contact with rabid animals, they have to take a series of 14 needles. The serum for innoculation is provided free, but the administration of the serum has to be paid for by the person receiving it. A resolution was passed asking that the government pay for the administration of rabies' serum.

Some of the members reported that they were having trouble getting their calves vaccinated against brucellosis. It was the opinion of the meeting that technicians should be trained in each township to get this work done on time.

Murney Bateman thanked Mr. and Mrs. Mumby for the use of the home.

Lunch was served by the ladies and a social time was spent.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Finch.

ARCHITECTS TO MEET

TORONTO (CP)—The annual meeting of the Ontario Association of Architects will be held here Thursday, Friday, and Saturday.

U.S. CONSUL BUSY — Ed Madill, United States consul in Southern Alberta, is kept busy in his Calgary office looking after the interests of between 82,000 and 85,000 Americans now living in the region. They represent the largest non-military concentration outside U.S. borders. Most of them are connected with the oil industry. Mr. Madill dictates a letter to his secretary, Mrs. Alice Parnell of California. (CP Photo).

Americans Have Been Crossing Border Into Alberta For Almost Hundred Years

By DENNIS ORCHARD

CALGARY (CP)—For a handful of reasons and for almost 100 years, Americans have been crossing the Montana border into southern Alberta, and staying.

They have come in trickles and occasional floods. Mormons came after 1887 and Hutterites after 1899. Land rushes brought farmers and ranchers in the 1890s and the first decade of this century.

Executives and men of specialized trades in the oil and gas industry were pulled here magnetically by the thousands after the Leduc strike of 1947.

Their estimated number today is between 82,000 and 85,000 in southern Alberta, 36,000 of them in Calgary. They represent by far the greatest non-military concentration of American citizens outside U.S. borders. Most are connected with oil.

They fit easily into the fabric of city life. The average free-mixing American is distinguishable in his milieu only if he happens to have a southern drawl.

FEW PROBLEMS

Many oil men are members of service clubs and the Calgary Chamber of Commerce. American oil man C. U. Daniels was president of the chamber in 1956-57 while living in Calgary as board chairman of the Royalite Oil Company.

They report few conflicts, and southern Alberta consul Ed Madill, an extremely popular, white-haired extrovert, finds that looking after the interests of 85,000 countrymen consists largely of easing their travel back and forth between the two countries.

He encounters occasional "picayune" beefs such as the housewife whose daughter caught a cold three days after the family arrived from the U.S. The first doctor she called prescribed an aspirin.

The housewife called Mr. Madill and asked him where she could get hold of an American doctor.

"I told her Calgary has some of the best doctors in Canada and that doctors have been giving aspirins to knock out a cold for 40 years."

Mr. Madill says Americans—even if they plan to stay in Calgary with their company only a few years—buy rather than rent houses, and nearly always send their children to local schools.

CHILDREN STAY

This goes for older children too, who often stay behind—some of them attending the University of Alberta—marry and settle in Canada after their families have gone back to the U.S.

But the ordered pattern that brings Americans to Alberta today cannot touch the fascinating story of the early influxes.

Most settlers from the U.S. were pioneers unearthed by agents of the CPR and Canadian government, both anxious to sell and populate land granted the CPR when it completed its main line in 1883.

The agents found them in towns and villages across North and South Dakota, Nebraska and Minnesota. Whole communities moved to Canada, naming their new settlements after their old.

Hutterites came to form farm colonies, which number 60 today. Their children born in Alberta are, of course, Canadians, but few parents bothered to take out citizenship and as much as 15 per cent or 1,000 of the population still are American citizens.

CHANGED FARMING

Mormons have had a far-reaching effect on southern Alberta agriculture. Led by Charles Ora Card, 41 Mormons bolted in 1887 to Cardston, Alta., from their Utah home and the U.S. crackdown on polygamy. Even after the church itself banned polygamy, Mormons continued to come, bringing with them irrigation techniques and a knowledge of sugar beet farming, both of which have revolutionized the region's crop structure.

Some of the most successful early settlers were whisky traders. From 1869 to 1874, before the international boundary was surveyed and the Northwest Mounted Police arrived, traders sold their wares to Canadian Indians without check.

The Mounties put the clamp on trade in 1874, and a few traders stayed and reformed. Among them was D. W. Davis, once second in command of "Fort Whoop . Up," a whisky house near Lethbridge, who became—no less—Alberta's first member of Parliament.

Anti-Nuclear Leader Held

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard detectives Tuesday arrested 23-year-old Pat Pottle, field secretary of Earl Russell's anti-nuclear committee of 100, who has been on the wanted list since Dec. 8.

He was arrested to face charges of conspiracy and incitement under the Official Secrets Act. The charges arose from the committee's plans to invade the U.S. Air Force base at Whethersfield, Essex, Dec. 9 and stop flights of nuclear bombers. The plans fizzled.

PIONEER PREACHER

Ebenezer Moulton, pioneer Baptist preacher in Nova Scotia, lived at Yarmouth, N.S., from 1761 to 1771 and died in Massachusetts in 1783.

Successful Living

(A Canadian Social Worker Helps with Human Problems)

Asks About Diabetic Course

DORIS CLARK

DEAR DORIS:—My problem is what am I going to do when I finish grade 12, which will be this year, I hope.

I like to cook and sew and was thinking maybe I would go in for a dietitian. I don't know much about a dietitian's work and was wondering if you could help me?—K. W.

DEAR K. W.:—If you like cooking, it's even better to do it for pay.

It is exciting to learn about foods and flavors; about serving up dishes fit for a king. About sewing a fine seam too.

"Home Ec" is a university course now. Write to the nearest one for a calendar about it. After you are through, they'll be clamoring for your help in hospitals, restaurants, industrial food research labs, schools and public health departments. There are never enough dietitians to go around.

And your husband-to-be will be a lucky man when he lures you away from the job you chose. Not to mention those unborn children, whose diet will doubtless be perfect, thanks to you.

• • •

DEAR DORIS:—You mentioned you have a booklet for teen-agers. I have a girl 13 and she is just in that age where she thinks that she should go out and seems to think a lot about boys.

I've told her everything, but one can't tell them enough, and it's always better if they hear it from another source. There may be a lot of things that are explained better in your booklet than I can.

So will you kindly send me a book for her with advice about going out and the facts of life.—FAITHFUL READER.

DEAR FAITHFUL:—At 13 she is eager for life. Good for you for seeking guidance in guiding.

I have sent your request and your dollar on to my book store with the names of two dandy little paperbacks on the subject.

• • •

CONFIDENTIAL TO FEAFUL:—By all means, tell your mother. Later you'll be glad you did.

Going steady is foolish at 14—there are other boys you will like, and how will you learn to choose if you only know one?

As for necking—it is a threat to any reputation, steady or no steady; just asking for trouble.

• • •

CONFIDENTIAL TO MR. H. C.:—If you positively know beforehand that it is her intention to leave you again, taking your daughter, what's the point in reconciliation?

Talk to your social worker, even if your wife won't consider counselling. If there is a chance for your marriage, I'd say try again.

• • •

Gloomy Soothsayers Were Right, Stars Spelled Trouble--for Them

NEW DELHI (AP) — The first evil effect of the planetary conjunction has fallen on the Indian astrologers and southsayers who predicted the weekend's celestial phenomenon would bring horrible calamities to the world.

A crowd of women in Jaipur chased four Hindu priests and beat up two of them for being scaremongers.

Some of the doomsday boys kept up a last-ditch battle.

"The Western countries are in for trouble the next 30 months," Swami Madhavacharya insisted.

This clean - shaven pundit, weighed down by a heavy silken turban, told a press conference the moon has left the conjunction but Saturn has taken over for the next 30 months.

"Saturn is black in color and therefore it is bad for the whites," he argued.

The swami said congregational prayers, mainly for the welfare of the Western nations, will continue until Feb. 26 outside the 17th century Mogul Gate.

Incense will be burned to purify the skies, he said.

"Will smoke from railroad engines have the same effect?" a sceptic asked to the merriment of others.

"No," the swami protested. "Much depends on the way it is burned. We burn it in urns and send it up with prayers."

Poona was rocked with two earth tremors of slight intensity Sunday but meteorologists hurried to deny any connection with the planetary conjunction.

The rumble of a passing truck also set off earthquake scares in a congested area of Calcutta. One person was trampled to death in the stampede.

The truck driver noticed smoke coming from the rear of the truck and stopped to telephone the fire department. He had walked only a few yards when the blast came. The explosion blew off roofs of houses, smashed windows and cracked walls.

Virus Found in Some Past Batches of Polio Vaccine Gives Cancer to Hamsters

NEW YORK (AP)—A virus, found in some past batches of polio vaccine, has produced cancer in hamsters, a scientist reported Tuesday.

But so far the virus—called SV 40 for simian virus 40—has not been shown to produce tumors in any other animals or man, said Dr. Bernice E. Eddy of the U.S. National Institute of Health.

Since last May health authorities have not permitted the use of any vaccine that contains the virus.

It is likely that persons inoculated with polio vaccine before that date received some of the simian virus too.

The SV 40 virus is a contaminant of monkey kidney tissue in which the polio viruses are grown. Formaldehyde, which kills the polio virus, apparently does not kill the simian virus.

There are new techniques available which do kill the simian virus, however.

Dr. Eddy told a symposium on perspectives in virology that an agent from monkey kidney tissue which caused tumors in hamsters had been identified as the SV 40 virus.

In her formal report on viruses, she said that if it is true that one of every four persons some time or another develops cancer, then it is most likely that the remaining three persons have been exposed to at least one of the various cancer-causing agents.

Dr. Eddy and Dr. Sarah Stewart reported a major cancer research discovery in 1958 while working at the National Cancer Institute. They discovered the polyoma virus, which caused many types of cancer in laboratory animals.

Conservatives May Learn Election Date in Caucus

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative MPs looked to today's weekly party caucus to give them at least a hint to the answer to the biggest question of the new parliamentary session: How long will it last?

A wave of election fever swept through their ranks Tuesday. Many of them, particularly those from Western Canada, freely predicted Prime Minister Diefenbaker would ask Governor-General Vanier to dissolve Parliament this week and set an election date for early April.

Dissolution this weekend would mean the earliest the election could be held would be Monday, April 9, as a minimum of 57 days is required between the issue of the writs and the actual polling day.

No firm foundation could be found for the wave of speculation. It seemed to be fostered primarily by western MPs. Other Conservative sources, however, said the time is not yet ripe for assuring the return of a big Conservative majority in Ontario and Quebec.

Tuesday's announcement by Finance Minister Fleming that the government will use bilingual cheque forms for all its remittances, once present printed stocks have expired, was hailed as a morale-booster for the Quebec Conservatives whose fortunes have been reported in a slump.

There is still a considerable body of party opinion that the election should not be held until the autumn, when economic indicators are expected to be brighter than this winter.

Caucus sources said they are already convinced the government plans no budget this spring. Mr. Fleming gave a non - committal reply Tuesday when asked in the Commons by the opposition for an assurance there would be one.

Government sources indicate Mr. Fleming will present his estimates of 1962-63 spending to Parliament this week or next. Parliamentary authorities say the government is almost certain to table the estimates before the election call, even if no action is taken on them before the vote.

Prairie MPs are reported anxious to have the election as soon as possible because they feel their fortunes are riding a crest now, with $42,000,000 in acreage payments to the farmers due to go out soon.

Ontario Conservatives are reported still fearful of the effect of the province's new three-percent sales tax. Other federal Conservatives say their Ontario colleagues are worrying unduly about the tax, which now has been in effect five months.

Maritime Conservatives are said to be well pleased with their election prospects. They say that in the main the federal government's program of bolstering the economies of the Atlantic provinces has worked out well.

REFUSES TO IDENTITY

WASHINGTON (AP)—The inquiry into alleged Pentagon "muzzling" was stalled by failure again Tuesday to break a deadlock over whether the Pentagon should say which censors altered specific anti-Communist speeches. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara stuck firmly to his refusal to let the censors be identified during a peace talk behind closed doors with the investigating senators. A similar fruitless talk was held last Friday.

Soybean Flour As Substitute For Milk Tested

TORONTO (CP) — Two University of Toronto scientists are studying the advisability of substituting soybean flour for milk in preparing baby foods, because it may contain less strontium-90.

The study is being made by Dr. Anita A. Jarvis, a senior research fellow, and Dr. John R. Brown, professor of physiological hygiene, under a grant from the federal and provincial departments of health.

In early experiments the team tested three infant food formulas—two prepared from cow's milk and the other from soybean flour.

Their report, published in the Journal of the Canadian Medical Association, says the formula prepared with soybean flour contained about one - fourth or one-fifth the strontium-90 found in the dairy-based formulas.

Samples of mothers' milk tested revealed a strontium-90 content about half that of baby foods prepared from cow's milk.

However, the experiments are far from conclusive, Dr. Jarvis said Tuesday night. Soybeans harvested at other times might show more strontium-90 content than milk, she said.

Dr. Jarvis added there is no cause for alarm at the level of strontium-90 now found in cow's milk.

Order Jobless To Take Army Training Course

WINNIPEG (CP) — Officials of the adjoining city of St. Boniface have ordered more than 40 men to report for the next Canadian Army national survival training course.

The men concerned are on welfare.

Registered letters signed by N. G. Goodman, assistant superintendent of the St. Boniface welfare department, received by the 40 men read in part:

"You are hereby ordered to report to Minto Armouries, located at St. Mathews Avenue and Minto Street, Winnipeg, sometime between the date of receipts of this letter and Feb. 14, 1962, to enroll for the survival course."

CITES REASON

Mr. Gordon said the department decided early in the year the courses were a means of gainfully employing family men during the winter.

He said some of the men rebelled at the idea and the letter was an effort to "get tough" with them.

Mr. Goodman denied that the letters were a form of conscription into the six - week course.

Applicants accepted for the courses received $40 a week pay.

Mr. Goodman said: "We can't do much if they don't report, but they must realize that all we are trying to do is rehabilitate them."

FORMER PREMIER DIES

AMMAN, Jordan (Reuters)—Dr. Hussein Khalidi, a former Jordanian prime minister and foreign minister, died in hospital here Tuesday night. Khalidi, 65, had been suffering from a stomach ulcer.

Recommend Hydro Boost Wage Rates

TORONTO (CP)—A conciliation board which investigated a contract dispute between the Ontario Hydro - Electric Power Commission and its employees union handed down majority and minority reports Tuesday recommending wage increases, of differing amounts, to the 9,000 union members.

Judge R. W. Reville, of Brantford, conciliation board chairman and member J. C. Adams recommended a two-percent wage increase effective April 1, 1961 and a two-per-cent-increase, effective Jan. 1 1962. The new contract would terminate March 31, 1963.

This majority report recommended that an escalator clause covering half the union membership be dropped. The clause provides a three-per-cent wage increase with each three per cent rise in the cost of living. The report rejected a commission proposal for a 7.8 per-cent cut in operators wages and a four per-cent cut for construction tradesmen.

A minority report by Harry Waisglass, the union's nominee on the board, recommended a four-per-cent wage increase in April, 1961 and another four per-cent increase in April 1962. He also recommended retaining the escalator clause.

The union has called an emergency meeting of its bargaining committee for later this week to decide whether to ask membership to accept or reject the board's findings.

Have Got Candy Await Medicine Says Douglas

SARNIA (CP)—T. C. Douglas, national leader of the New Democratic Party, said here Tuesday that dissolution of Parliament within the next few weeks would have "sinister implication."

"The government is the largest in history and it hasn't much of an excuse to dissolve," Mr. Douglas said.

He spoke at a press conference before addressing a rally to mark the start of the Sarnia NDP Association's election campaign in preparation for a probable federal election this year.

Mr. Douglas said the Progressive Conservatives have outlined their program and have committed themselves to billions of dollars in expenditures, but have not brought down a budget to show who is to pay for it.

"We have got the candy but we still have to have the bitter medicine," he said. "If dissolvement comes before the budget is handed down, we don't know how bitter the medicine is going to be."

Saw Accused Beat Woman

TORONTO (CP) — A Crown witness said Tuesday she saw Lorenzo Hiscock, 41, charged with the non - capital murder of Mrs. Marion Taylor, beat the woman over the head and body the day before she died.

Mrs. Rene Sharpe, a cousin of the dead woman, testified she heard a scream from Hiscock's quarters Oct. 6 and that Mrs. Taylor was screaming "Rene, come and help me fast."

Mrs. Sharpe said she tried to help Mrs. Taylor but that Hiscock warned her to "keep out of this or you'll get the same."

The trial is continuing.

Jews Oppose Bible Reading

NEW YORK (CP) — The American Jewish Congress has asked the New York City board of education to stop the practice of reading verses from the Bible in public schools.

The congress, in its petition Monday, cited a recent federal district court ruling in Philadelphia that Bible reading in Pennsylvania schools was unconstitutional.

The board promised to study the request.

IODINE 131 DECLINES

LONDON (Reuters) — The level of iodine 131 in British milk shot up after Russia's nuclear tests last fall but declined until it now is almost neglible, Britain's agricultural research council said today.

Map-Drawers Under Fire For Ignoring Local Custom

OTTAWA (CP) — Cartographers—the men who draw maps—were sharply criticized Tuesday for using place names on maps which confuse and puzzle the public.

G. F. Delaney, chief of a section of the federal mines department which selects names for government maps, told a symposium sponsored by the Canadian Institute of Surveying that too many place names on maps vary with local usage.

Mr. Delaney said names should not be selected for maps without an examination to learn the place names used by local inhabitants. The drawing of large - scale maps demanded "on-the-ground" investigation to determine whether a local name should be used.

"Every time a map is published with carelessly applied names confusion results. The harm done is not easy to dissipate, for succeeding corrections leave the public sorely puzzled — they don't know which name is right."

Mr. Delaney said cartographers are not being responsible when they designate a crater in northern Quebec as the Chubb Crater. The official name was the New Quebec Crater.

In Canada's early railroading days Sir Donald Mann wanted to name a divisional point on the Canadian northern railway in Northern Ontario "Foley." When he was told the name was already in use he said to an official "I will name that place Foley yet."

The official, Mr. Delaney said, replied "Foleyet will be fine, sir."

The community still is called Foleyet.

Mr. Delaney said very often cartographers seeking to improve place names run afoul of public opinion.

Some years ago an attempt was made to rename Crowe Lake and Crowe River as Marmora Lake and Marmora River after the adjacent mining town of Marmora. The attempt was abandoned after local residents made a strong protest.

"The name Crowe is still in use, and will doubtless survive," Mr. Delaney said.

HAS NO COMMENT

LONDON (Reuters) — Buckingham Palace had "absolutely no comment" Tuesday night on press reports that Queen Elizabeth is expecting another child, her fourth.

BOY SAVED BY FIREMAN — Four-year-old Christopher Winkle, found unconscious in a smoke-filled bathroom as flames raced through a home in Hamilton Tuesday, is held by fireman as another prepares to give him inhalator treatment. He was successfully revived and reported in good condition in hospital a short time later. Leonard Winkle herded his other two children safely from the house after fire broke out but could not find Christopher. Fireman Ted Morgan (back to camera,) wearing an air pack, searched through dense smoke and hearing a gurgling sound from the bathroom, found Christopher lying on the floor. (CP Photo).

Liberals Win Annual Election At Queen's

KINGSTON (CP) — The Liberal party remained in power Tuesday night as Queen's University annual model parliament was dissolved — but the trick wasn't an easy one.

Two House of Commons members were on hand, J. W. Pickersgill (L — Bonavista-Twillingate) and Frank McGee (PC — York-Scarborough), and delighted the student members as they matched barbs during the debate.

Each of the three student parties, Liberal, PC and New Democratic, went down to defeat on bills once during the two-night session. Standing of the House was: Liberal 25, PC 22, NDP 14.

The Liberals were defeated on a bill calling for free education for all Canadians, the PCs went down on a move urging nuclear arms for Canada and the NDP suffered defeat in demanding the formation of an economic advisory board.

The sitting was quiet, as compared to Monday night when a group of students invaded the House, tipped the Speaker from his chair and stole the mace.

Station Drops Rock 'n' Roll Audience Falls

QUEBEC (CP) — Do Canadians really care for rock 'n' roll music?

Two years ago radio station CHED Edmonton eliminated rock 'n' roll from its programming.

The result:

A substantial decrease in audience and a decline in the station's rating as an advertising medium.

This point was made Tuesday before the Board of Broadcast Governors by BBG counsel William Pearson.

He was commenting on an application by Lloyd E. Moffat and E. A. Rawlinson to buy control of the station.

Mr. Pearson asked Mr. Moffat if the new owners would revert to rock 'n' roll policy of progamming in the light of the setbacks without it.

"Without ratings we won't get any revenue," Mr. Moffat replied.

Shopping Centre Sports Arena Is Considered

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A sports arena and recreation centre seating 5,000 persons, which may be used for a London - based Junior A hockey team, will be built this year in a shopping centre at Wellington Rd. and Highway 401, it was announced Tuesday.

Dave King, the centre's general manager, said Westminster Township council approved the $600,000 - project Monday. Construction will begin "as soon as possible."

Negotiations are already under way, he said, to form a London - based Junior A hockey team.

The arena also will provide facilities for roller-skating, wrestling, stage shows and dances. It will be built next to a curling rink now under construction.

Pleads Guilty To Fraud Charge

TORONTO (CP)—One of 22 persons arrested in connection with an alleged $200,000 swindle of an automobile insurance company pleaded guilty Tuesday to a fraud charge but told Magistrate C. A. Thoburn she received only $1,300 of $12,013 she obtained for accidents that never happened.

Mrs. Eleanor N. Macneil, 40, named Carl Uteck an adjuster with the American Insurance Company, as the man who put through false claims for which she received money under five names.

Mrs. Macneil, arrested three days ago in Vancouver, said Uteck warned her to leave Toronto early in January, and gave her $150 for the trip.

Uteck who is the owner of five race horses that raced on Ontario tracks last year was discharged from his job early in January shortly before the investigations began.

Mayor of Nelson, BC, Wants Capital of Sons of Freedom Douks, Krestova, Broken Up

KRESTOVA, B.C. (CP)—This has been called the strangest city in Canada.

The home for between 1,600 and 2,000 Doukhobors, most of them members of the Radical Sons of Freedom Doukhobor sect, it doesn't show on the map, it has no beginning or end, no government, stores or streets.

Yet over the years it has achieved such prominence in the affairs of British Columbia's southeast Kootenay district that the mayor of Nelson, 30 miles to the east, called this week for its breaking up.

Mayor Thomas Shorthouse made the suggestion after an attempt Sunday to burn down the Nelson courthouse where a special assize court is trying more Freedomites on charges in connection with continuing Kootenay terrorism.

LAW WON'T ALLOW

In Victoria, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said he knew of no law by which Freedomites or any other community of persons could be dispersed. It would be contrary to accepted notions of civil liberty.

Krestova, generally regarded as the Freedomite capital, has no power, no telephones, no piped water.

The children are clean and well dressed and go to school regularly.

The tempo of life is slow. Old men will stop by their gates and talk to the visitor. They speak of bringing up the young in the ways of the spirit. The bombings? They are the work of someone else.

RUN ALL WAYS

To the casual visitor, most of Krestova seems incredibly old and dilapidated. The homes run in all directions with patches of garden between.

In Krestova there is a sign typifying the Freedomites' stand on land and taxes: It reads: "The land cannot be bought or sold or taxes collected thereof; the land is the gift of God by the birthright inheritance of man.

"Down with private ownership. Down with boundaries. Let the world be a communal abode of all mankind. For the kingdom of God is already with us on earth."

Australia Announces New Fiscal Policy

CANBERRA (CP)—Tax cuts, increased unemployment benefits and more government funds for public works and housing are part of the new Australian fiscal policy announced Tuesday by Prime Minister Robert Menzies.

Menzies, recently returned to power in a close election, said that Australia is faced with increased unemployment and a lack of confidence which is limiting buying and production.

Opposition Leader Arthur Calwell said the government's plans to stimulate industry and overcome unemployment will not change the situation much.

"We are now in the middle of the third recession in 10 years," he commented in Brisbane.

The government held 11 conferences with leaders of industry, commerce, banking and labor unions before completing the draft of the new measures five days ago. Menzies disclosed the proposals at a press conference Tuesday.

WILL CUT TAXES

Taxes would be cut on incomes and sales of cars. War veterans would be able to get larger loans for buying homes. The government also would promote bank lending to stimulate housing construction. It promised to make more money available to state governments for public works.

At the same time it was [illegible] that import restrictions would be renewed if necessary to protect certain industries.

"We do not want to generate anything in the nature of another inflationary boom," Menzies said.

"But we want to make it clear that far from desiring stagnation we are determined upon growth.

"We believe this can be reconciled with reasonable stability of Australia's cost and price structure and with a strong external position."

Wife Nagged Him to Bet So $267,111 He Will Get

LONDON (AP) — Harry Boggust, 54 - year - old maintenance man, learned Tuesday he has won $267,111 because of his wife's nagging.

Boggust hit the jackpot on a one - penny bet in the soccer pools. The winnings are not taxable.

He didn't want to mail his coupon last week because postal workers were on a slowdown strike and he feared it might not get delivered in time. But his wife Kathleen kept nagging.

"Go on, send it," she insisted. "Never mind the strike. If you won't fill it in, I will."

So she did, and he mailed the coupon.

Tuesday Mrs. Boggust heard their ship had come in and commented: "Oh, Mate. That's a hell of a lot of money."

The Boggusts picked eight soccer games to end in ties. Their handicapping was fantastic. There were only eight ties in the entire British soccer league program and they picked them all.

Boggust works at the Olympia, London's leading exhibition hall.

Que. Woman Seeks $17,615 For Loss of View of Sunset

OTTAWA (CP) — Mrs. Olivine Trudeau of St. Lambert, Que., has for the moment lost a court fight to collect $17,615 from the CNR for blocking her view of the sunset on the St. Lawrence River.

Mrs. Trudeau is the owner of a home at 145 Riverside Drive in St. Lambert on the south shore of the St. Lawrence opposite Montreal.

Prior to 1956 Mrs. Trudeau's home commanded a wide view of the river. However, in that year the publicly-owned CNR built an elevated railway directly in front of her property, entirely cutting off her view.

In August, 1959, Mrs. Trudeau launched an action in the Quebec Superior Court for damages of $17,615. She claimed that the value of her property was depreciated because the elevated railway cut off her "fine view of the river, of the city, of Mount Royal and of the sunset."

The CNR argued that Mrs. Trudeau's action could not be taken in Quebec Superior Court. It said the action was one for injurious affection resulting from a land expropriation by the CNR which was not subject to the jurisdiction of the Quebec courts. Such an action, the railway said, could be taken only in the Exchequer Court of Canada.

However, the Quebec Superior Court and the Quebec Court of Appeal ruled that Mrs. Trudeau's action was one for damages within the jurisdiction of the Superior Court.

The Supreme Court of Canada set aside the two lower court judgments Tuesday and dismissed Mrs. Trudeau's action. But the court said it did so without prejudice to the right of Mrs. Trudeau to launch an action in the Exchequer Court.

Statement Says Shot Accident

TORONTO (CP) — A statement in which John Stillwell, 23, of Toronto, who is charged with the non - capital murder of his wife Janet, 19, last Nov. 16, admitted killing her was read to an assize court jury Tuesday.

Stillwell said in the statement his wife was watching television when he went to a closet to get a pail.

"I knocked the gun (a .22 calibre rifle) down," said Stillwell. "I pulled back the trigger and it went off. She said 'Oh, John,' got up, staggered over to the door and fell. It was an accident."

The trial continues.

Canada's Capital Getting Lavish Beauty Treatment For Confederation Birthday

By RUSSELL ELMAN

OTTAWA (CP)—To the staccato chatter of pneumatic drills, Canada's capital is getting a lavish beauty treatment for the 1967 centennial of Confederation.

Steeplejacks on the skeletons of new buildings, landscapers designing elaborate new parks and road gangs carving new expressways have made Ottawa a sidewalk superintendent's dream and a motorist's horror.

In the next five years tens of millions will be invested in the most ambitious development program in the capital's history.

Planners hope to provide the city with, among other things, a new national museum, national library, railway station, downtown hotel-shopping centre, parkways, gardens and many new government and private office and residential buildings.

Master planner is the National Capital Commission, a federal body with representatives from each province. By 1967 it hopes to own outright a 41,000-acre greenbelt ringing the inner city and to have completed a major portion of a scenic parkway system.

SPEND $75,000,000

Federal authorities, who since the war have spent $125,000,000 on new buildings in the capital, plan to spend upwards of $75,000,000 on further expansion in the next few years.

Most spectacular project is the Confederation Heights decentralization program, first planned scheme to take government offices out of the congested downtown area.

Located on a bluff overlooking the Rideau River four miles south of Parliament Hill, Confederation Heights is already the new working home of some 3,000 civil servants.

Completed buildings, named after Fathers of Confederation, include the $7,150,000 Sir Charles Tupper public works and fisheries block, the $5,500,000 Sir Alexander Campbell post office headquarters, a $2,800,000 National Research Council communications laboratory, a $1,400,000 public works testing laboratory and $800,000 cafeteria.

Within three years Confederation Heights is to be finished with addition of a $1,000,000 headquarters for radiation and nuclear fallout detection services, a $6,000,000 northern affairs and forestry building and an $11,000,000 16-storey tower for the transport department.

PLAN SKYSCRAPER

Meanwhile, at Tunney's Pasture in the west end, the go-ahead has been given for the city's first skyscraper—the 291-foot-high, 18-storey health and welfare department headquarters. When ready in 1963 it will house 19 branches now scattered around the city.

A 14-storey, $7,000,000 agriculture headquarters building has been designed and a new seven-storey $3,000,000 head office is planned for the CBC.

Things are happening downtown, too. Near the Parliament Buildings on Wellington Street temporary wooden buildings are earmarked for demolition this winter. In their place will rise the $11,000,000 National Library, its green roof and granite exterior designed to harmonize with the neighboring Supreme Court building.

On Parliament Hill the old West Block is being renovated and a tunnel is being burrowed to link the office building with the Centre Block, home of the Commons and Senate, at a cost of $6,000,000.

Sweeping improvements are envisaged for the heart of the city around Confederation Square, site of the National War Memorial. By 1965 Union Station will have been replaced by an ultra-modern rail terminal in suburban Alta Vista, permitting new developments near the Rideau Canal, now an eyesore of railroad tracks.

Long-range plans suggest possible construction of a 4,000-seat convention hall on the present Union Station site and conversion of the nearby Sparks Street shopping area, closed to motor traffic experimentally the last two summers, into a permanent pedestrian mall. Another proposal is for a $10,000,000 program to bury unsightly downtown hydro wires.

In the same general area near the canal, a new National Museum is expected to be built before the centennial. The present museum would be torn down to make way for an approach to the $35,000,000 Queensway, a controlled - access expressway knifing through the city, due for completion in 1965.

The war memorial itself would be supplemented as a site for ceremonial functions by a National Memorial Building on Nepean Point, a high brow over the Ottawa River adjacent to Parliament Hill. Work is scheduled to start this year on the building, which will house the Books of Remembrance and serve as a memorial to all those killed in wars involving Canada.

MILE OF HISTORY

Several historical projects are on the drawing boards. Along the ceremonial Sussex Drive from Parliament Hill to the Governor-General's residence, a "Mile of History" is planned with restoration of old buildings to their appearance in Confederation days. At Victoria Island and Richmond Landing on the Ottawa River, the district's first settlements, as they existed in 1818, are to be reconstructed.

Many of the new buildings will be set in parks and gardens. Landscapers already are developing a four-acre triangle at the western end of Sparks Street into a "Garden of the Provinces"—terraces and gardens featured by sculptured coats-of-arms of the 10 provinces.

One of the most costly schemes is a long-term plan to build a 4,500 - acre $28,000,000 Satellite Farm in suburban Nepean Township to provide additional space for the Central Experimental Farm now surrounded by the city. Work may start next year on a $2,000,000 agricultural research branch building, first of 87 structures contemplated.

LIMIT ON HEIGHT

Future development plans by the city, which opened an $8,000,000 city hall in 1958 and a modern filtration plant last year, have not been announced pending publication of a building renewal study. Final removal of old streetcar tracks, new hospital expansion and perhaps some low-cost housing are seen as possible ventures in the next few years, in addition to seeking establishment of light secondary industry in the Ottawa area.

Meanwhile, the city is mushrooming upwards in the downtown section and outward in the suburbs. A score of new 10- and 11 - storey offices and luxury apartments are under construction and more are expected to soar even higher if the city rescinds a bylaw limiting building height to 111 feet—a measure designed to preserve the lofty dominance of the 291-foot Peace Tower.

PLAN NEW HOTEL

One of the biggest privately financed schemes is the $11,700,000 Royal Edinburgh project—a multi-tiered hotel, shopping and parking centre to rise on downtown Bank Street in 1963. Many new churches, schools, department stores and discount centres also are being built.

In the educational world imposing new modern buildings by 1965 will adorn the campuses of Carleton and Ottawa universities, which respectively have $14,500,000 and $10,350,000 building programs.

The entire development plan is laced by a new roadway network, including the Queensway and parkways. Other projects to be completed by Centennial Year are the six-lane MacDonald-Cartier Bridge across the Ottawa River to Hull, a 5½-mile driveway on the banks of the river west of Parliament Hill and a new highway to the green-glass Uplands international airport opened last year.

CAMPBELLFORD

236 Attend 'Burns Night' Supper at St. Andrew's Church

CAMPBELLFORD. — Two hundred and thirty-five guests were in attendance at the Burns' Night supper held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, on Friday evening. The hall was artistically decorated for the occasion with tartans of various clans and tables were gay with lighted candles and decorated with Scotch thistles, heather and Scotch caps in keeping with the Scottish celebration.

Due to icy road conditions, pipers Carl Linn and Robert Mathew arrived late, so the guest speaker and head table guests took their places without the traditional skirl of the pipes.

The Rev. A. E. Toombs said grace after, which the Haggis was carried aloft to the head table by Mr. Moray Beeler and Hector Macmillen, attired in their kilts. The famous Scottish dish was then addressed by Dr. Isobel Laird, Professor of Psychology of Queen's University, Kingston. Being a native of Scotland, Dr. Laird, with her natural brogue, performed this duty in the true Scottish manner.

PIPERS DELIGHT ALL

The pipers arrived during the course of the dinner and made up for lost time throughout the evening to the delight of all present.

Mr. Toombs proposed the Toast to the Queen and Mrs. Toombs welcomed the guests. During the course of the supper everyone joined in singing of "Bonnie Scotland", under the direction of Mrs. Jack Clark. A group of girls comprised of Jane Cowell, Joanne Haig, Susan Douglas, Cathy Oder, Charlotte Garneau and Kathy Machesney took part in the Rye dance.

Dr. Laird gave the "Toast to the Immortal Memory" with all the worthy words of the Poet Bard.

She also read an article relating the activities of a Burns Club in Russia and the enthusiasm with which it was received even in a Communist country.

Linda McCredie, Beverley Linn and Ena McCulloch danced their popular Scottish dances including the 'Highland Fling' and Beverly and Linda did the 'Sword Dance'.

Guest soloist for the evening was Mr. Robert Cassidy, a former native of Scotland, who resides now in Toronto and his wife, also a Scot accompanied him on the piano.

GUEST SPEAKER

Highlight of the evening was the guest speaker, honorable Dr. Matthew T. Dymond, Minister of Health of the Province of Ontario, who was introduced by Francis DeCarrol.

Dr. Dymond entranced his audience with his review of the life of Robert Burns, revealing the true character of the Poet Bard and the tremendous influence for good among every race and creed which he inspired in spite of his own personal shortcomings.

He spoke of the worthwhile things of life and "Those of us without the brogue could learn from Bobby Burns that being a man for "A" that and A'That gave life its zest and could be said in any language'.

Mrs. R. Locke graciously thanked Dr. Dymond and Dr. Laird for taking time off their busy schedule to visit folk in a small town. She thanked all those who contributed in any way toward making the evening a success.

Goldfish, originating in China and Japan, were introduced to England in 1691.

Protest Brings Abusive Letter

TORONTO (CP)—John Goad, a suburban Scarborough ratepayer, told township council Monday night he had received threatening telephone calls and an abusive letter after attending a previous council meeting to protest the building of a 14-storey home for the aged.

He handed the letter to Township Clerk C. A. Tripp, who said it was not the sort of thing to be read out in council, or even to be passed around to the members.

After hearing protests of ratepayers, council tabled a planning-board report on the building.

They are to be presented to three past presidents, Andrew Boyer, Vankleek Hill; Edgar Drew, Moscow; Leonard Wookey, Callander; and Hyman Irwin of Toronto, a retired highways department employee.

Pentagon Men Caught Between Crossfire

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Strom Thurmond demanded Tuesday that Pentagon employees be cited for contempt of Congress if they obey Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara's orders and refuse to tell a Senate investigation who censored what speeches.

Contempt is punishable by up to a year in jail and $1,000 fine.

Thurmond spoke out as the special subcommittee conducting the inquiry called a meeting to consider its next step. Thurmond is a subcommittee member.

A series of Senate speeches by Thurmond charging that censorship had "muzzled" military men's anti - Communist speeches touched off the inquiry. Thurmond, South Carolina Democrat, is a major-general in the air force reserve.

McNamara said Monday he would stand pat on his refusal to tell the subcommittee which of the censors altered language of any particular speech text. He also has forbidden his subordinates to give such testimony, and he said he was standing pat on that order, too.

Addressing a press conference, he said it would undermine morale if he let subordinates answer to Congress for following his directives. He vouched for the censors as loyal Americans, saying that many of them are war veterans with distinguished combat records.

Thurmond released a prepared statement accusing the secretary of trying to "build a Maginot Line of precedent to shield the state department."

New Knowledge on Tumors May Lead to Cancer Cure

WASHINGTON (AP)—A possible lead towards increasing the effectiveness of cancer-fighting drugs was reported Tuesday by the U.S. public health service.

The agency said National Cancer Institute researchers have made new discoveries about the blood supply of tumors "which may be of great importance to the drug treatment of cancer."

Experiments with transplanted tumors in rats and mice, a service announcement said disclosed that "much less blood flowed through the tumors than had been supposed."

"From these observations," the report continued, "the investigators concluded that less than five per cent of a drug injected into the body to treat a liver cancer, for example, would reach the tumor.

"This led them to suggest that the effectivenes of drugs may have to be re-evaluated because the dose received by a tumor in a single treatment may be too small."

The implication of the report was this:

The effectiveness of certain drugs in temporarily checking or reducing a cancer growth might possibly be enhanced by giving larger doses — provided ways could be found to offset or prevent undesirable side effects which often accompany relatively large doses of such drugs.

The health service said "at present, about 20 drugs effective against some 30 forms of cancer are available to physicians on prescription."

"So far only one of these is credited with cure. A few women with a rare but severe form of cancer occurring in connection with pregnancy, who were treated at the National Cancer Institute with a drug called methotrexate, have survived for five years or longer without evidence of disease."

The benefit of the other anti-cancer drugs has so far been limited to temporary checking of certain types of malignant growths.

Gordon Outlines Liberals' Social Security Plan

TORONTO (CP) — Walter L. Gordon, Liberal candidate for the Toronto riding of Davenport in the next federal election, Tuesday night outlined his party's "financially responsible" social security program which, he said, will "bring peace of mind to hundreds of thousands of Canadians."

Mr. Gordon, who headed a royal commission into Canada's economic prospects, told a Liberal nomination convention in High Park district that the party's program includes:

An adequate and properly financed unemployment insurance plan.

A medical plan to pay doctors' bills.

Generous scholarships for university students.

A contributory old age pension plan providing minimum pensions of $75 a month to single people and $140 a month for married couples.

He said the pension plan, which would be carried from one job to another, will provide much higher payments than the basic minimums once the plan gets into operation. A man with an income of $78 a week would receive $178 a month when he is 70. If married, his total pension would be $243.

About the university scholarship plan, he said, "once the Liberal plan is put into operation, we shall be able to say with complete conviction that no boy or girl in Canada with the necessary qualifications is denied a university education for financial reasons."

New Drug Slows Nerve Action

WASHINGTON (CP)—A Canadian biochemist reported Tuesday on his development of a potent new drug that may help in the treatment and study of cancer and mental illness.

Dr. Bernard Belleau, 46, of the University of Ottawa, told a meeting called by the United States Institute of Health about a new drug "several orders of magnitude more potent than any previously known drug" for slowing nerve action.

The drug—known as an enzyme inhibitor —slows heart, blood and muscular action, enabling scientists to increase their knowledge of how the nervous system works

Dr. Belleau, a native of Montreal, said his experiments, performed on animals, may contribute knowledge useful to researchers working on cancer

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The Uxbridge Black Hawks, rated in some quarters as the team to beat for the Lakeshore Intermediate League championship and who have to date proved more than a stumbling block to the Pepsi's, will be the big red squad's guests at Memorial Arena tonight.

The Pepsi's defeated the Hawks in their first tilt here but had to pull all the stops to squeeze out a 2-1 victory the last time the squads clashed in Uxbridge. That one could have gone either way with all three goals being scored in the first 16 minutes of the first period.

There is not much love lost between the teams and tonight's tilt has all the earmarks of a thriller.

The Hawks dropped a squeaker to the rampaging Trenton RCAF Globetrotters Monday night, yielding the gavel in a tense overtime struggle. The Flyers are riding cloud seven with some five victories in a row, according to a Trenton story. They have not been defeated since the Pepsi's sunk them 10-4 in Memorial Arena a short time ago.

Orv Gravelle has a spirited hard-fighting cluster of puck-chasers that apparently are getting better each time out. They have upped their scoring punch apparently and developed a team spirit that is paying off on the right side of the won-and-lost ledger. They have a couple of grudges (nothing personal) to settle with the Pepsi's and look out for some topflight battling when the teams clash again.

The grapevine has it that there may be some sort of a shake-up in Lakeshore Intermediate League playoffs. As of now a Kingston entry has drawn a bye in the finals and will play the league winners.

Napanee Comets do not like the setup and figure they should play off with Kingston, while the Pepsi's take on Lindsay, the other "A" entry in the loop.

Meanwhile Lammy Lamirande's crew will be gunning for their 19th win in 21 starts tonight. Uxbridge will throw all their strength at the city crew in an effort to avenge past setbacks.

QUINTE DRIVING CLUB ANNUAL

The Quinte Riding and Driving Club inaugurated its "Trots Under the Lights" policy last summer—and to say the least, it met with the approval of enthusiasts of the harness racing sport hereabouts.

The highlights of a successful season and plans for an even better one will be aired at the annual meeting of the club scheduled for the Moira Street Firehall tomorrow night, starting at 8.00 o'clock.

Officials of the club went all out last season to give harness fans the best in track entertainment. Their under-the-lights policy was successful and resulted in bringing some of the best horses in the district here for competition.

Harness racing is undergoing a tremendous surge in all parts of the country. Tracks in Ontario and Quebec report increased attendance and in a number of cases will extend the number of racing days and meets.

Fans in this area in general like the idea of night-racing as evidenced in attendance last season. Betting privileges are appreciated.

This city has one of the finest tracks in the province for its size. The Fair Grounds has an up-to-date grandstand with spectator facilities and with the Quinte Club planning bigger and better things the 1962 season should rate one of the best.

The club has earned itself a fine reputation among fans and horsemen alike. "Trot Night" in Belleville brings not only the best in horseflesh but attracts fans from the faraway places of the province.

Tomorrow night's meeting will likely be one of the best in the history of the club and all interested in the sport are invited to attend. New members have a special invitation.

Every Four Years

Sports Festival Plans

OTTAWA (CP) A "gigantic" Canadian sports festival to be held every four years was envisaged Tuesday by the National Advisory Council on Fitness and Amateur Sport.

The council gave its endorsation to the plan at the close of its two-day inaugural meeting.

Chairman Ken Farmer of Montreal said the festival could be launched in 1965 and become a "gigantic operation" involving the 53 winter and summer sports in which Canadians now take part.

The target year of 1965 was chosen because it will be an off-year for the Olympic, British Empire and Pan - American Games.

Charles Mayer of Montreal, a council member, said such a festival could solve the recurrent problem of selecting a Canadian amateur hockey team for the Olympics. The winner of the festival's hockey tournament would go to the Olympics.

Mr. Farmer said the festival could have summer, fall and winter stages with different sites for each. It could be limited to Canadian athletes and provide tremendous encouragement for national sporting achievement.

The festival idea will be studied further by the council, which hopes to interest other national bodies in it.

Sports Council Cuts Fitness Melon

Plans Huge Festival

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP) — A $500,000-plus plan to stimulate the growth of physical fitness and amateur sports in Canada was announced Tuesday by the federal government's newest advisory body.

The National Advisory Council on Fitness and Amateur Sport, ending its two-day inaugural meeting, put the stress on education in allocating about one-tenth of its $5,000,000-a-year budget.

It recommended a program of bursaries and training grants costing $494,250 along with three emergency grants totalling $14,875 for international competitors.

Council chairman Ken Farmer of Montreal said it is hoped that the government will act quickly in the recommendations.

PROPOSE FESTIVAL

The council also:

1. Proposed a "gigantic" Canadian sports festival to be held every four years beginning in 1965.

2. Authorized study on the idea of a national centre for fitness and amateur sport, possibly patterned after such centres in Europe.

3. Agreed to provide half of the costs for sending Canadians to the Olympic, British Empire and Pan-American Games.

4. Endorsed the bid by Banff, Alta., to be the site for the 1968 Winter Olympics.

The allotment for education and training was broken down to $300,000 for local workshops and training seminars to teach coaches and competitors, $178,250 for university-level bursaries and $16,000 for special long-term research and training.

PROVINCES TO SHARE

Farmer said he hopes to see the plan in effect for the 1962-63 academic year. The money would be split up among the provinces which would administer the program. Some post-graduate students would be sent to foreign universities for specialized training.

The only string attached to the bursaries would be an agreement that the student return to work in Canada.

The 30-member council, with all but one member in attendance, was unable to tackle anything but emergency items from among the 350 requests it has received for money.

The Canadian Amateur Ski Association was given $9,375 to complete its program for training 40 Canadian skiers in Europe. The Canadian Wheelmen's Association got $5,000 of a $7,000 request to send seven Canadian cyclists to the Tour de l'Avenir in France next July. Toronto speedskater Paul Enoch was awarded $500 to pay his way to the world speed-skating championships in Moscow next week.

NO AID FOR TERRIERS

Galt Terriers sought $1,200 to help pay expenses for the world hockey championships but the council took no action. Farmer said it was learned that the money has been raised by the club from other sources.

The council decided that in no case will it agree to pay the entire cost of a Canadian team or athlete. A principle of "self-help" has to be established, Farmer explained.

Other requests for aid are to be studied at a second meeting in Ottawa April 16-17.

One of the council's toughest jobs was in defining fitness. After 3½ hours of discussion and a split vote it came up with this wording:

"Fitness means the ability of an individual to function at his best, combining the physical, mental and social aspects."

EPL President

Fines Wolves, 'Hits' Fans

OTTAWA (CP)—Eastern Professional Hockey League president John J. Urie today fined members of the Sudbury Wolves a total of $155 and took a swipe at fans in neighboring Hull for using fight - inciting foul language.

Sudbury coach Chirp Brenchley was fined $25 and eight of his players $15 each for their part in a brawl in a game between the Wolves and Hull-Ottawa Canadiens last Sunday.

Fined were members of the Sudbury bench who jumped onto the ice and joined a free-for-all after a scuffle broke out at the Sudbury nets.

They are Don Cherry, Nick Polano, Gordie Haworth, Ed Stankiewcz, Ed Diachuck, Ted Wright, Dennis Rathwell and Frank Roggeveen.

Urie, an Ottawa lawyer, also fined Polano another $10 for a misconduct penalty received later in the game.

None of the main participants of the fight that started the brawl were fined. They were Habs' playing coach Bob Armstrong, Wolves' goalie Carl Wetzel and Hull-Ottawa goalie Cesare Maniago. They were handed major penalties in the game.

PRESIDENT WAS WITNESS

Urie saw the game himself and also had written and oral reports from referee Bruce Simms. He had an interview with coach Brenchley.

The league president said he fined Brenchley "for failing to exercise the degree of control over his players that one should expect from a professional coach." The players themselves were fined for leaving the bench and joining the fight.

Urie said he has arranged with arena officials to have the area behind the visiting players' bench guarded by policemen.

This, he hoped, would "deter the small, vocal few who, by hurling foul and abusive language at visiting players, contribute in no small measure to the occurrence of an incident of this kind."

Urie said visiting clubs have complained in the past of abuse from the fans. He urged that these fans be "promptly and permanently ejected from the arena."

Ingemar Said Serious

'Liston Doesn't Scare Me'

GOTEBORG, Sweden (AP)—"Sonny Liston is not unbeatable and he doesn't scare me."

Ingemar Johansson, former heavyweight champion, spoke out Tuesday as he paused in training for Friday's comeback fight with Joe Bygraves of Jamaica.

The 29-year-old Swede is serious about his comeback but realizes that Liston, now recognized as the No. 1 challenger to Floyd Patterson's title, is the man he must beat eventually.

"I've heard that Liston is the fighter a lot of the world's heavyweights don't want to meet," Johansson said. "This is the way I see it. If I can beat Liston, then I must get a chance to win back the title.

"Liston is good and strong . . . but he is not fast. I don't think he is unbeatable. I would like to fight him. Liston has looked bigger than some of the men he has fought recently but he is not much bigger than I am."

Indians Claim Baseball Origin

Anyone Check The Flintstones?

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)—Neither Abner Doubleday nor the Russians invented baseball, according to a book published here in 1910.

The book, prepared by the Franciscan fathers of St. Michael's, Ariz., says a Navajo Indian game with a name which can be translated as "running around" was played in prehistoric times and abandoned about 1890.

(Doubleday is generally credited with inventing baseball in 1839. The Russian journal Nedelya acclaimed Monday that a similar game was played by the Soviet Union's "grandfathers and great-grandfathers.")

According to the Franciscan fathes, the Indian game had pitcher, catcher, infield and outfield and used four bases, just like baseball. Home plate was always north.

The pitcher threw the ball underhand. The batter was allowed four strikes instead of three and if he fanned the side was retired.

If he hit the ball he lit out for first base.

Members of the opposing team had to field the ball and tag him. They also were allowed to clobber him with it from a distance.

A runner could dodge or jump to avoid the ball and nothing in the rules prevented him from taking a five-mile detour between first and second.

The pitcher, too, had his troubles. As many as three batters could oppose him at the one time, each swinging a curved club similar to a hockey stick.

Beavers Whip Hull, Fronts Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A rookie and a veteran Tuesday night fired the guns that stopped Sault Ste. Thunderbirds, the club that lately has been bowing to few teams in the Eastern Professional Hockey League.

Bobby Leiter was inserted in the Kingston Frontenac lineup between wingers Tom McCarthy and Pete Panagabko and came up with three goals as Frontenacs swept to an 8-5 victory.

Not to be outdone, playing-coach Orval Tessier added another three-goal performance.

Another club that has been running hot lately, Hull-Ottawa Canadiens, also met a stumbling block, in the form of Kitchener - Waterloo Beavers. The Beavers sent them home 7-3 losers.

ARE THIRD

But the Canadiens can more easily afford to take the loss. They are in third spot, 16 points ahead of Sudbury Wolves who currently hold the last playoff spot. Beavers' victory jumped them to second spot, one ahead of Hull-Ottawa.

The Thunderbirds are in fifth spot, three points back of Sudbury.

Western Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Vancouver Canucks dropped their ninth straight Western Hockey League game by losing 3-1 to Seattle Totems Tuesday night. Calgary Stampeders defeated San Francisco Seals 6-3.

Bill MacFarland, Gord Sinclair and Gord Labossiere were the Seattle marksmen. Jim Baird scored for the Canucks.

International Rules

Terriers Whip Blues

TORONTO (CP) — Galt Terriers overwhelmed University of Toronto Blues 10-2 Tuesday night in an exhibition hockey game dominated throughout by Canada's entry in the world hockey tournament.

The game was played under international rules, the same as will be used in the world tournament at Colorado Springs, Colo., March 7-25. Under these rules bodychecking is allowed only by a defending team in its own zone, there is no icing of the puck allowed during penalties and a penalized player is not allowed to leave the penalty box if a goal is scored before his penalty has expired.

The Terriers jumped into a two-goal lead early in the first period. Varsity tied it up before the period ended but from then on it was the Terriers' show.

Peter Kowalchuk, Bob McKnight and Lloyd Mercier led Galt with two goals apiece. Jackie McLeod, Tod Sloan, Bob Mader and Don Rope added singles. Sloan also got three assists.

Toronto scorers were Bill Kennedy and Jim Murchie.

STARTED EARLY

McLeod put the Terriers into a 1-0 lead at 2:10 of the first period from a goalmouth scramble while Toronto's Mike Elik was sitting out a hooking penalty. Mercier made it 2-0 at 5:38, also from a scramble.

Kennedy narrowed the margin to 2-1 at 6:28, shifting around Galt defenceman Bob Robertson and hitting the corner with a knee-high 10-foot shot.

Murchie tipped in a goalmouth pass from Elik to tie it up at 8:34 but McKnight put Galt ahead to stay at 18:39 on a close-in shot.

Sloan scored at 2:36 of the second period, flipping in a short pass from McLeod, to give Galt a 4-2 lead. Toronto started playing wide open but was held off by Galt goaltender Boat Hurley and by 4:30 Galt had taken a 5-2 lead on Mader's goal.

The Terriers unleashed a third-period attack that netted them four more goals by 6:43, Kowalchuk firing two of them in a minute and 43 seconds. Rope finished off the scoring at 16:08, tipping in Bill Wylie's shot.

Bob Awrey of Toronto got a 10-minute misconduct penalty in the second period for refusing to obey linesman John Sullivan's order to retrieve a puck he had fired down the ice in disgust.

Galt picked up six of the eight minor penalties called by referee Gord Fevreau.

Sam Stays With NFL

TORONTO (CP)—Sam Etcheverry says he plans to stick to the National Football League for the time being.

Here for a television appearance, the 31-year-old St. Louis Cardinals' quarterback said in an interview Tuesday night the NFL will be his territory "for at least four or five years."

There have been rumors that he planned to return to Canada.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League said Tuesday they have asked Toronto Maple Leafs for player help. Playing coach Phil Maloney said he telephoned Punch Imlach of the National Hockey League club, asking about the availability of Paul Jackson, now with Pittsburgh of the American League.

Playoffs continued in the squirt division of the BMHA last night with the second games in two-game, goals-to-count series being played.

The Royals edged the Red Wings 4-3 to take their series 8-7. P. MacLean and C. Adams each scored twice for the Royals with MacLean's second goal snapping the game, and series, tie. D. Fobert, G. Andrews and M. Browning had Wing goals.

Rangers topped the Flyers 3-1 to cop their round 9-3. B. Buchanan scored two Ranger goals with T. Meagher getting the other. T. Gill had the Flyer goal.

Barons won over the Browns 4-2 and won their series 7-4. T. Lynch fired two Baron markers with D. James and D. Skinkle scoring the others. C. Powell fired both Browns' goals.

The Bruins blanked the Frontenacs 5-0 to register a 6-2 victory on the round. G. Hyde had the shutout while D. Bailey led the scorers with two goals. D. Cone, D. Topping and D. Simmond scored a goal each.

The Macs defeated the Black Hawks 6-2 to take their series by a 14-3 count. D. Beecher fired three Mac goals with S. Moore getting two and J. Drummond one. M. Semark and J. Holland had the Hawk goals.

The Maple Leafs won a 7-3 tilt over the Canadiens and won the series by a 9-5 count. D. Lynch and S. Reid paced the Leafs with two goals apiece while D. Muldoon, L. Burley, and D. Pascoe had the others. D. Demers scored all three Canadien markers.

In the midget grouping, two league games saw the Untouchables top the Riske Boys 4-1 while Bishop Six defeated the Rovers 5-3.

Reddick potted two goals with one each for Manteeney and Pursey in the Untouchables' win. Harvey, Pursey and Meens had assists. Casson scored for the Riske boys.

Hannah and Cannons each triggered a pair of goals in the Bishop Six win. Mott had the other goal while Dyble drew two assists, Culloden and Rutherford one apiece. Brooks, Ruttan and Walsh scored for Rovers, Mallory helping on one.

Champion Nabbed for Carrying Gun

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Joe Brown, world lightweight boxing champion, was charged Tuesday night with carrying a pistol. He was arrested after Patrolmen D. E. Lee and B. W. Rushing stopped him for driving 40 miles an hour in a 30-mile zone.

The policemen said they searched Brown's convertible and found a .22-calibre pistol in the glove box.

Brown said he had forgotten the pistol was in the car. He had loaned it to a friend who was worried about robbers and the friend returned it to him several days ago.

Bruins Jolt Bower's Vezina Hopes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Goaltender Johnny Bower of Toronto Maple Leafs is irked at Boston Bruins.

He figures the Bruins have just about ruined his chances for a second straight Vezina trophy—and the $1,000 that goes with it.

"It makes me laugh when I hear somebody say the Bruins are not of NHL calibre," Bower said in an interview.

"They certainly were strong enough for anybody the last three times they played on Toronto ice."

In those three games, the Bruins pumped 17 goals behind Bower, winning 7-4 Dec. 23, losing 7-5 Jan. 10 and then winning 5-4 Jan. 20.

Bower currently trails Jacques Plante of Montreal Canadiens by 13 goals in the race for the Vezina—awarded to the goalie who plays the most games for the team that allows the fewest goals.

HOPES FOR CHANGE

Bower, no doubt, hopes there will be a turn of events when the Bruins again are in Toronto tonight.

It's a big game for the Maple Leafs, battling with Canadiens for the league championship.

Going into tonight's contest, the Leafs trail the Habs by six points and each team has 20 games left. A win for the Leafs would cut the deficit to four points.

Another game scheduled tonight at New York features the Rangers and Detroit Red Wings.

Both clubs are expected to have new faces following a two-player trade Tuesday.

The Red Wings gave the Rangers defenceman Pete Goegan and an undisclosed amount of cash for Noel Price, also a rearguard. Both are 26.

BALFOUR TO RETURN

Elsewhere in the NHL, Chicago Black Hawks announced Tuesday that right winger Murray Balfour, out for 13 games with a bad arm, is ready to return to duty.

Balfour will be in the lineup when the Hawks take on the Bruins at Boston in Thursday night's lone game.

To make room for Balfour's return the Hawks sent Chico Maki back to their Buffalo farm club of the AHL. Hawks also announced defenceman Dollard St. Laurent will play in the Boston game. He has been out with a wrenched shoulder.

ECPSL EXPANDS

TORONTO (CP) — The Eastern Canada Professional Soccer League expanded to six teams Tuesday night with the admission of Montreal Ukrainians, formerly of the National League. The other ECPSL teams are Montreal Cantalia; Italia, Roma and City, all of Toronto; and Hamilton Steelers.

Snead Scores Hole-in-One Of His Boats

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Sam Snead managed a one-stroke lead over a field of top women pro golfers Tuesday at the halfway point of the Royal Poinciana invitational tournament. But he lost a boat at the 15th hole.

After 36 holes, Snead was three-under-par at 105 on the Palm Beach par-three course. One stroke behind was Ruth Jessen of Seattle.

Last year's 54-hole tournament had several top male pros as competitors. This year the sponsors changed the format, making it Sam Snead against a selected field of women golfers, with competition lengthened to 72 holes.

At the 15th hole Tuesday, the engine noise of an expensive inboard runabout at the nearby seawall bothered Snead. He asked the young lady driver to turn off the engine or leave the area.

The driver, later identified as golfer Judy Kimball of Sioux City, drove away but ran aground on a reef and ripped open the bottom of the boat.

Snead reluctantly admitted the boat was his.

Redl Drops Verdict To DeMarco

BOSTON (AP) — Former welterweight champion Tony DeMarco, displaying only a fraction of his one-time ability, still had enough firepower Tuesday night to register a unanimous 10-round decision over Stefan Redl of Clifton, N.J.

DeMarco weighed 147½, half a pound more than the Hungarian-born Redl.

DeMarco, 30, had to weather a brutal last - round rally by Redl, who landed two hard lefts on the former champ's chin.

Referee Jimmie McCarron, who twice warned DeMarco about low punches, scored it 97-96 for the winner. Judge Joe Santarpio had it 98-94 and judge George Flate 97-95.

In a semi - final bout, Blair Richardson of South Bar, N.S. Eastern Canada middleweight champ, stopped Joe-Joe Moore of New York on a fifth-round technical knockout. The match was scheduled for eight rounds.

Richardson weighed 163, Moore 157.

'Pull Goalie' Earns Tie For Royals

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The often - disastrous practice of sacrificing a goaltender for an extra forward paid off Tuesday night for Guelph Royals, gaining them a 5-5 tie with Niagara Falls Flyers in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A action at Niagara Falls.

Coach Emile Francis decided to pull his goalie with only a minute and 25 seconds of play left. But it took Don Diberardino only 30 seconds to score the tying goal on a rebound from Dave McComb's shot.

The tie left Guelph in fourth place, three points ahead of the Flyers and eight behind the third - place St. Catharines Teepees.

The Flyers, playing before 1,580 fans, at one point held a 3-1 lead, but the Royals managed to tie the score within five minutes.

Diberardino led the Royals with three goals, two in the third period. Duke Harris and Mike McMahon scored singles. Niagara Falls scorers were Howie Dietrich, Terry Crisp, Ron Schock, Jean Parise and Bill Glashan.

Chess Results

STOCKHOLM (CP - AP) — Only three games were completed Tuesday in the seventh round of the interzonal chess tournament and all ended in draws.

Abe Yanofsky, international chess master from Winnipeg, and Manuel Aaron of India played through the entire allotted time before declaring a draw.

Yanofsky now has two victories, two losses and three draws.

Bobby Fischer of Brooklyn and Miroslav Filip of Czechoslovakia, co-leaders in the tournament, both were involved in adjourned matches Tuesday.

The eighth round is scheduled for tonight.

Reds Move Out of Ski Games

CHAMONIX, France (AP) — Communist-bloc nations began a mass withdrawal Tuesday from the politically muddled world games of the International Ski Federation.

Russian and Romanian teams, which took part in an international meet last weekend at nearby McGeve and Saint-Gervais, headed home from this French Alps resort without even setting foot on the site of the now - defunct world alpine ski championships. A Polish team is here but has yet to make any practice runs.

The Czechs pulled out Monday, but said at the time that they did not feel their team would fare well against the cream of international ski competition.

A Russian delegate said today "there is no world championship in Chamonix, so there is no reason for us to go there." The Russians will return to Moscow.

The Soviets cast one of the votes Sunday night at a council meeting of the federation to remove the world championship label from the Chamonix competition after a NATO travel ban against East Germany prevented that country's team from getting travel visas.

Fifteen Canadian men and women skiers came to Europe at the end of November to train under European coaches for slalom and downhill events. Others were to join them.

The Chamonix races will begin this weekend.

There was still some hope they might be accepted as world championships. It was reported that United States and French representatives have asked for another meeting of the council.

Aces Whip Reds 4-2

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec Aces defeated Providence Reds 4-2 in an American Hockey League game Tuesday night and went into third position in the Eastern Division of the league.

Right wingers Michel Labadie and Reggie Grigg and centres Michel Harvey and Ed Hoekstra scored for the winners. Centres Orland Kurtenbach and Stan Baluik tallied for Providence.

Left winger George Ranieri of Providence was checked into the boards by Quebec defenceman Jim Morrison in the first period and was sent to hospital for x-rays.

With Ten Players

Pepsi's Defeat Kingston

A shorthanded Belleville Pepsi team turned back Brown's Automats, Kingston's representative in the OHA Intermediate "A" playdowns, by a 9-7 count in an exhibition game played in Kingston last night.

The Pepsi's had only ten players dressed for the game but it was enough to grab a 3-1 first-period lead. They opened up a 5-2 spread at the end of two periods. Kingston outscored the visitors 5-4 in the final twenty minutes, tying the game 7-7 at one point before O'Meara and Lamirande scored to give Belleville the decision.

The Kingston lineup was composed mainly of over age juniors, former senior players and others from the Limestone City's Industrial leagues. This team is expected to meet the winner of the Lakeshore League's "A" grouping in playdowns.

Every player, with the exception of goalie Bill Moxon, shared in the Pepsi's point parade last night.

Ronnie Hull, with two goals and two assists, and Tom O'Meara, with two goals and one helper, paced the pack. Floyd Crawford contributed a goal and three assists, Gary Goyer one and two, Duke Doran one and one, coach J. P. Lamirande and "Shaker" Baker a goal apiece. Lionel Botly and Dave Jones each earned two assists.

Vic Drinka and Harold McClaren each potted two goals for Kingston. The others were scored by John Tuttle, Bill Hayward and Guy Roy. Clint Tinkess and Gerry Montgomery led the playmakers with two assists each.

The losers picked up three of the game's four minor penalties.

Rich Prizes Attract Bowlers

TORONTO (CP)—A national bowling competition expected to draw a minimum of 200,000 entrants from Newfoundland to British Columbia was outlined Tuesday at press conferences in Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg.

The contest, offering trips to the Caribbean or Hawaii is open to the estimated 1,000,000 Canadians in men's, ladies' and mixed leagues bowling five pins, duck pins or candlepins in regular league play. All entries will bowl only against their own previous established averages based on at least 21 games played before Feb. 1. Registration will begin Feb. 15.

In the first step, league teams bowl in their home lanes against their own team's established average. Approximately the top 25 per cent of each establishment's league teams are eligible to continue in the second step, in which competitors bowl as individuals seeking to better their own registered season averages. Those exceeding their averages by the greatest average number of pins get into the grand roll-off.

The final will be held May 26. Fifty winners from east of the Manitoba-Ontario boundary, will receive trips for two persons to Jamaica. The 25 western winners will get trips for two to Hawaii.

The sponsor is a tobacco company.

Duke Uses Tie for Belt, Turns Up Jacket Sleeves

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Bud Collyer, presiding over To Tell the Truth Monday night, neglected to supply the answer to one question asked the contestants who included the Duke of Windsor's tailor.

The real tailor revealed that the duke frequently uses a necktie for a belt, but he skipped the former king's notable sartorial idiosyncrasy — which was what panelist Dina Merrill was seeking — of turning up the sleeves on his sports jackets.

Dina said the only other man with self-made cuffs she had ever seen was movie star Gilbert Roland — who picked up the style from Windsor.

People who search out TV trends overlooked one, probably because they are so busy contemplating the success of the doctor-series. But the program-developers at ABC obviously have had their sharp eyes on the high ratings of NBC's Hazel, the Shirley Booth series about an indomitable maid.

Next season ABC will have a comedy series—get this switch—about a butler. It's Our Man Higgins, and will star Stanley Holloway, the English comedian who made such a hit playing Cockney Alfred Doolittle in the Lerner - Loewe Broadway hit, My Fair Lady. The title, incidentally, is reminiscent of the musical comedy—the hero was Professor Higgins.

Ziegfeld Girls Hold 25th Anniversary of Their Club

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — There was a sizable display of mink, but some cloth coats, too. Some brought along their husbands, but many came singly. They seemed to have one thing in common: A joy of life, spawned in a wonderful era.

These were the Ziegfeld girls, meeting for the 25th anniversary of their Ziegfeld Club. There were grandmothers and even great - grandmothers among them, but some were still stunning to behold.

Like Mrs. Berniece Dalton Janssen, mother of actor David Janssen and a lovely brunette who recalled wearing a hat and a few rosebuds in the follies in 1930.

I dropped in at the Ziegfeld Club's banquet at the Hotel Roosevelt and the first person I met was Billie Burke. As Flo Ziegfeld's widow, she was the guest of honor.

SHE'S STILL LOVELY

"They're such brave girls," said the still-lovely actress of the club members. Then she added as an afterthought: "I think anyone must be brave to go into show business."

Miss Burke drew solid applause as she entered the Redwood Room and sat at the head table with her daughter Patricia and her husband, William Stephenson.

Beaulah McFarland (Follies 1918-24) is head of the local chapter and she paused between her duties to tell about the club. It was founded 25 years ago in New York, where there now are 200 members. In recent years groups have formed in Los Angeles (75 members) and Miami (50).

The girls meet for monthly get - togethers and sometimes raise money for members whose luck has turned sour.

The Ziegfeld Follies ran from 1908 to 1931, but Mrs. McFarland said there was no difficulty about members' dating themselves. "The ones who won't admit their age won't join," she said.

At the Park

"THE DEVIL AT 4 O'CLOCK"

Spencer Tracy

Spencer Tracy, one of the motion picture industry's most distinguished craftsmen, won his second Academy Award for best actor impersonating Father Flanagan in "Boys Town." Currently, Tracy plays another priest, Father Doonan, in the Mervyn LeRoy-Fred Kohlmar production, "The Devil at 4 O'Clock." Tracy is starred with Frank Sinatra in the new Columbia drama, in Eastman Color at the Park Theatre for its first Belleville and district showings. Kerwin Mathews, Jean Pierre Aumont, Gregoire Aslan, Alexander Scourby and Barbara Luna are co-starred.

In "The Devil at 4 O'Clock," Tracy is seen as an indefatigable Irish priest who, assisted by three criminals, defies both nature and man to rescue child patients and the staff of a mountainside hospital on a small Pacific island. Sinatra plays the convict whose cynicism brings him into continuing conflict with a aging, irascible priest, even as they work together against time and a volcanic eruption.

Tracy made his film debut way back in 1932 in "Up The River," directed by John Ford. He then went into "20,000 Years in Sing Sing," established himself as a leading Hollywood star and, in 1938, won his first academy Award for his performance in "Captains Courageous."

Among other of Tracy's films are "Fury," "Edison the Man," "Northwest Passage," "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," "Woman of the Year," "A Guy Named Joe," "Father of the Bride" and "Bad Day at Black Rock." More recently, Tracy has starred in "Inherit the Wind," "The Last Hurrah" and "The Old Man and the Sea."

"The Devil at 4 O'Clock" is shown at 7.25 p.m. and 9.45 p.m. Doors open at 6.30 p.m.

Benedict Recalls Old Days

'Lost Count Of Stitches!'

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP)—"When those guys got in close, either the puck went in or you did. Lots of times I went right through the back of the net."

Clint (Benny) Benedict, goalie with one of the great hockey teams of all time, was telling an interviewer what it was like to be a goaltender in the early days of big - time professional hockey.

"After the first couple of seasons I lost count of the stitches they put in my head.

"They didn't have a goal crease in those days and the forwards would come roaring right in and bang you as hard as they could. If they knocked you down you were supposed to get back on your feet before you could stop the puck—those were the rules.

"I remember at least four times being carried into the dressing room to get all stitched up and then going back in to play. There were some other times, too, but I don't remember them."

TURNED PRO IN 1913

Despite 18 years of such treatment, none of it shows outwardly today on the pleasant features of Benny Benedict, a strapping six-footer at 68.

Now living quietly in retirement from a late career as an Ottawa civic office worker, he looks back on his hockey years with fond memories and still follows the game with all the relish of a youngster.

Benedict broke into pro ranks in 1913 with Ottawa Senators of the National Hockey Association, forerunner of the National Hockey League.

He was a standout with Senators until 1924 when he was sold to the then-forming Montreal Maroons for $7,000. After seven seasons Maroons sent him down to an amateur farm club, Windsor Bulldogs, in 1931 and he quit hockey a year later.

Benedict played on five Stanley Cup championship teams, four of them in Ottawa. He appeared in 32 Stanley Cup playoff games, had 10 shutouts and allowed an average of 1.35 goals a game. During Maroons' four-game cup series in 1926 he gave up only three goals.

SUPER SIX

He was a key man in the sensational Ottawa starting lineup of 1922-23 which was dubbed the "Super Six" and ranks as one of the great professional teams of all time. With him were Buck Boucher, Eddie Gerard, Sprague Cleghorn, Jack Darragh and Cy Dennenay.

But the biggest mark Benny Benedict left on the game doesn't show in the record books.

He was the first pro goalie to make a regular practice of dropping to a kneeling or prone position to block close - in drives.

"It was against the rules then, but if you made it look like an accident you could get away without a penalty.

"I got pretty good at it and soon all the other goalies were doing the same thing. I guess you could say we all got pretty good at it about 1914 and the next season the league had to change the rule."

Bruce Gibson of Ottawa, a brother-in-law of Benedict and a former amateur player himself, recalls the night in Toronto when Benny first performed "the flop."

"The Toronto fans were screaming mad," Gibson says. "They shouted 'Bring your bed, Benny' and hollered at the referee for not calling a penalty."

'PRAYING BENNY'

Toronto crowds took to calling the Ottawa goalie "Praying Benny" for his habit of kneeling and the name stuck even after the rule was changed.

In those days a penalty to the goalie could not be served by another player, as now. He had to sit it out in the penalty box while one of the other players tried to keep goal.

Benedict also was the first goalie to experiment with a face mask, although most fans credit Jacques Plante of the present Montreal Canadiens with inventing the mask.

One night in 1930 Benedict's nose was smashed by a blistering shot from Howie Morenz of Canadiens. "I didn't know what happened until I woke up in hospital." It took him a month in bed to recover.

Before returning to hockey he had a Boston firm design a helmet with metal bars to protect his face. "But it didn't feel good and I threw it away after a couple of games." The following summer he tested various baseball catcher's masks but gave that idea up, too.

HERO OF LOSS

Two games stand out in Benedict's memory. One was a Maroons-Canadiens clash in 1924 when the fledgling Maroons were overwhelmed. It ended up 5-0 for Canadiens but the next day sportswriters hailed Benedict as the star of the game.

"They took over 60 shots at me, 28 in the second period."

The other was the deciding game of the 1923 Stanley Cup series in Vancouver against the Millionaires. It was 2-1 for Senators with three minutes left in the game when two Ottawa players went off on penalties.

To this day Benedict doesn't know how he kept the tying goal from scoring. "We were out on our feet at the end but we won." That was when the name "Super Six" was tagged on to the Senators.

A native of Ottawa, Benny started playing school hockey at six, moved into senior amateur ranks at 15 and was a pro at 20. He was an active lacrosse player, too, and for his first five years with Senators played semi-pro lacrosse in the summer.

HOWE IS GREATEST

His first contract with Senators paid $800 a season but he was up to $2,500 when he went to Maroons and reached a peak of $5,000 in his final year with the Montreal club.

"It was good money in those days, but not much for the work we had to do. My only regret is that I never got a chance at the really big money the pros get today."

Benedict watches NHL games on television regularly and has high praise for today's hockey stars. His observations:

"That (Gordie) Howe is the greatest player I've ever seen. I take my hat off to him."

Favorite goalie? "Johnny Bower. Toronto is the worst city in the league for blaming a goalie when the club loses and he's under great pressure. I never played for Toronto because I didn't want to."

RECALLS HOCKEY DAYS

Former hockey great Clint Benedict played goal for five Stanley Cup championship teams. Now 68, he began playing hockey at the age of six and entered pro ranks in 1913 with Ottawa Senators when he was 20. Benedict was the first pro goalie to make a regular practice of dropping to his knees to block close-in drives. (CP Photo).

Glass Pole Old Stuff

Furthermort, the International Amateur Athletic federation apparently is in for an awakening when it discovers that George Davis, whose mark of 15 feet, 10¼ inches is up for recognition as a world record, also used a glass - fibre pole for his outdoor vault, the same type as Uelses employed to better 16 feet by three - quarters of an inch.

The glass - fibre poles have been used off and on and usually with indifferent success for about 10 years. The manufacturer even claims that Don Bragg, former holder of the world record and a critic of glass - fibre poles, tried out a couple but didn't like them.

It was not until Uelses cracked the 16 - foot target twice in two nights last week that much notice was taken of his pole, since the IAFF doesn't recognize indoor records.

But by the time the outdoor season arrives, Uelses should be well over 16 feet. Athletes have always done better outdoors than indoors. Then the hue and cry will start in earnest.

The U.S. Amateur Athletic Union is taking the attitude that it's legal until it's outlawed.

"All this is unfair to Uelses," said Dan Ferris, president of the AAU. "He doesn't have the exclusive rights to it. Anyone can use it, so it's as fair to the others as it is to him."

Have 'Control' Problems

Trots Bodies Plan Talks

TORONTO (CP) — A conference will be held here Feb. 14 between the rival Canadian Trotting Association and the Ontario Racing Commission concerning the control of harness racing in the province.

There has been a growing dispute between the two bodies.

The Star says "it is believed the commission is prepared to offer a practical basis for a truce, ending the feud which seriously jeopardizes the sport's future in Toronto, and possibly in all of the province."

Before the Feb. 14 meeting was arranged by the commission, says The Star, "there existed a very strong possibility 226 days of standardbred racing in Ontario this season would be cancelled by the apparently insoluble stalemate between the rival governing bodies."

Commissioner members were not available for comment.

Lebel Takes Charge

Rush Plans for Tourney

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (CP) — Plans for holding the world ice hockey championships here March 8-18 were pushed ahead here Tuesday under the direction of Robert Lebel of Chambly, Que.

Lebel, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, was attending a two-day meeting of the executive committee.

There has been a strong possibility the championships would not be staged here because of difficulty in getting the East German team here to take part.

Colorado Springs' hopes of staging the tournament were boosted Tuesday by word from Oslo that the hockey federations of Denmark, Finland, Norway and Sweden had decided to send their teams to the United States.

LeBel said "We would like the East Germans to compete, but if they can't, we'll go along with the tournament as planned."

If East Germany has to be counted out, a revised schedule must be drawn. LeBel said this will probably be released Saturday.

Lary Signs For $35,000

NEW YORK (AP) — Pitcher Frank Lary of Detroit Tigers, whose main claim to baseball fame is his ability to beat New York Yankees, has made the habit pay off.

Lary, 30, signed his 1962 American League contract Tuesday for a reported $35,000, making him the highest paid Tiger hurler since southpaw Hal Newshouser starred for Detroit in the 1940s. The five - foot-eleven, 185 - pound righthander will be starting his seventh season with Detroit.

Lary had his finest year in 1961, winning 23 games and losing nine. He was the only other American League pitcher besides Whitey Ford of the Yanks to win at least 20 games.

AT THE PARK — Frank Sinatra, starred with Spencer Tracy in the Mervyn LeRoy-Fred Kolmar production, "The Devil at 4 O'Clock" now showing at the Park Theatre for a limited engagement, romances lovely Barbara Luna in the new Columbia Picture, in Eastman Color. Feature at 7.25-9.45.
